CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 31. NUMBER 47. EIGHT PAGES COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1924 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

H. C. COOPER HAS PASSED ON

WAS PROMINENT IN COUNTY AFFAIRS

Held Many Offices in the Gift of the People, Who Reposed Confidence in Him

Charlevoix lost one of its most respected and influential citizens in the death of Henry C. Cooper, which occurred on November 14th at his home in this city, at the close of an illness of more than a year's duration.

Mr. Cooper, who was nearly 67 years of age at the time of his death, was born on Beaver Island, June 12, 1858, and came to Charlevoix with his parents, Richard and Marietta Geer Cooper in 1867. The elder Cooper was the first sheriff of this county and held the office for several terms, later being elected judge of probate. At the time of his father's death in 1897, Henry Cooper was associated with him in the management of the Fountain City House. He had attended the first school established in this county, taught by the late Major E.H. Green, and located in the center of what is now Charlevoix's business district. For one year he clerked in the general store, conducted by Amos Fox, a pioneer merchant and in 1882 he engaged in the furniture and undertaking business on his own responsibility, establishing the first exclusive enterprise of the sort in the county and conducting the same successfully for a period of five years, at the expiration of which time he sold the business to S. M. See & Sons, whom he assisted in the management of the enterprise during the ensuing year. He then served one year as village marshall, after which he became associated with his father in the management of the hotel business, as mentioned above, and continued in this business after his election to the office of county sheriff in 1896. He was reelected to this office in 1898 and in 1901 he entered upon his duties as county treasurer, having been elected to this office in the previous November. He succeeded himself as treasurer in the election of 1902 and at the expiration of his second term was elected to the office of town clerk. He also served in various village and township offices.

In the year 1918, Mr. Cooper was appointed county agent of the State Board of Corrections and Charities by Governor Sleeper and at the time of his third election to the office of county treasurer in 1922 he held the offices of superintendent of the poor and justice of the peace, which offices he resigned on entering his petition for nomination to the treasurership.

A year ago last September, his rapidly failing health caused Mr. Cooper to give up active participation in the duties of his office.

Mr. Cooper was married in 1882 to Miss Hattie Boak, a daughter of Thomas Boak, one of the pioneer settlers of this county and to this union were born four children, two of whom died in infancy and one at the age of six years, the only survivor being Clinton Cooper of this city. Besides his widow and son, Mr. Cooper is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Annie Crane, of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Harrison Bedford of Charlevoix. There is one granddaughter—Rosemary, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Cooper.

Funeral services were held from the late home of the deceased on Dixon avenue, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. W. A. Datson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, Petoskey, and Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., of which Mr. Cooper was a member, as well as of the Knights of Pythias and Maccabee fraternity. Interment was at Brookside.

ANOTHER CLIFTON VICTIM IS FOUND

Leo Brauer of Institute is Sixth Body Recovered

Yet another body of the Clifton's 28 dead has been discovered, according to a dispatch received by the authorities at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., on November 14th.

Complete telegraphic details were given of the body, which was found on the shore near Wiarton, Ontario. After an exchange of telegrams and the furnishing of additional information from Sturgeon Bay, the body was positively identified as that of Leo Brauer, who was a resident of Institute, Mich.

Forty days have elapsed since the sinking of the stone carrier and the recovery of the sixth body. Relatives of the men who lost their lives are still hopeful that other bodies will be found. Twelve of the men were residents of Sturgeon Bay and each discovery renews the grief into which the city was plunged by the harrowing disaster.

CANNOT SHIP ALL OF CAMP DEER IS RULING

Not Over Three-Fourths with Head and Hide

Hunters who kill a deer for their own consumption while in camp this year, under a camp license, will be permitted to ship not more than three-fourths of the carcass when they leave camp, provided the carcass is shipped with the head and hide and has the camp permit attached to it.

That is the ruling made by John Baird, director of the state department of conservation who has sent the following memorandum to American Railway Express agents in northern Michigan: "After taking the matter up with the attorney general, it has been decided to permit the transportation of male deer killed on camp permit when not more than three-fourths of such deer with head and hide, is presented for shipment with permit tag attached thereto."

The Mary Brewster Circle will hold a fancy work and baked goods sale at Wood Bros. Electric Shop, Saturday, December 13.—Adv. 47t2.

TO ORGANIZE A CALF CLUB

MELLENCAMP AGITATING MATTER IN COUNTY

Boys and Girls of Charlevoix County, Turn in Your Names As Members

The following open letter to the farm boys and girls of Charlevoix county has been submitted to the Courier for publication in its columns by Burton C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent. The subject of this letter embodies a first-rate idea and we hope Mr. Mellencamp will have lots of assistance and enthusiastic cooperation in putting it across.

"Dear Reader:

"I am endeavoring to organize a Boy's and Girl's Calf Club in Charlevoix county this fall and am sending out this circular letter as a means of securing names of prospective members.

You no doubt have heard of the Boy's and Girl's Pig Club which has been in operation for over a year and have noted the results accomplished by the 26 boys and girls who started their project with a purebred pig selected from Loeb Farms.

From a conservative estimate those 26 pigs have increased in numbers until today there are over 100 purebred pigs scattered in all sections of the county and that means stimulated interest developed by both the parents and the Club members. The farmers of tomorrow are the young boys of today; anything that you can do to keep your boy or girl interested in the farm and its management and operation in every form is to your benefit, to the boy's future success, and to the community welfare.

Following are the suggested plans for the organization of the proposed Club:

1. To have it open to grade animals backed by cow-testing association records as well as the purebred. I believe the majority of us are not yet ready to tackle purebreds for various reasons.

2. To have all the major dairy breeds represented in the project, if possible evenly divided.

3. To allow each member his choice of a calf or a bred heifer upon which to start his work.

4. To keep feed and cost records of his animal for a period of four months unless the heifer freshens, then records on the weights, etc.

5. To have each boy take a note on one of the banks, indorsed by his father and carrying legal rate of interest for a year's time.

6. To have each member of the club care for his calf or heifer as far as possible and as much as conditions permit.

7. To have in the territory around each city in the county an equal number of club members if possible.

8. To have the members choosing one particular territory grouped together, the better for community work.

9. To have each member exhibit his or her animal at the County Fair next fall.

Realizing the mutual benefits to both you and your son, are you sufficiently interested to answer this so I may visit you and talk the proposition over?

Yours very truly,
B. C. Mellencamp,
County Agr'l Agent."

KILLING FROST ON OCTOBER 21

THIS MARKED CLOSE OF GROWING SEASON

All Main Crops, Except Corn, Clover Seed and Sugar Beets, Above Average

The growing season of 1924 terminated for the greater part of the state on October 21-23, when the first general killing frost occurred. Notwithstanding the backwardness of the season and slowness in maturing, all main crops except corn, clover seed and sugar beets are above the average in yield per acre, according to the November crop report issued by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Verne H. Church, U. S. Agricultural statistician for Michigan. Fruit growers suffered more generally than grain farmers this year as apples, peaches and pears were only partial crops.

Corn: Crop correspondents report an average corn yield of 27 bushels per acre, or a total crop of 45,981,000 bushels, as compared with a yield of 34.5 bushels per acre and a total production of 58,167,000 bushels last year. The ten year average yield for Michigan is 33.2 bushels per acre. 42 per cent of the crop this year is reported to be of merchantable quality as compared with 73 per cent last year. Only about 50 per cent of the crop is being husked, approximately 35 per cent has been put into silos, and 15 per cent is being hogged down.

The national crop aggregates 2,477,538,000 bushels, more than one-half billion bushels less than was produced last year. It is estimated that 63.2 per cent is of merchantable quality. The amount of old corn remaining on farms is reported at 101,934,000 bushels.

Buckwheat: The average yield of buckwheat is 15.5 bushels per acre, as compared with 14.2 last year and 13.6 the ten-year average. The total crop for the state amounts to 868,000 bushels, and has an average quality of 90 per cent or one per cent better than the ten-year normal. Yields varied considerably as fields did not ripen evenly in all cases.

For the country as a whole, the buckwheat crop amounts to 15,520,000 bushels, or 1,600,000 larger than the 1923 crop.

Potatoes: Although Michigan growers planted about 12 per cent less acreage than the average of the last ten years, the production indicated from their reports amounts to 38,227,000 bushels. This crop has only been exceeded twice, in 1909 and in 1914. The large production is due to the high yield of 127 bushels per acre. This is the highest yield since 1869 when the acreage was only one-sixth of that for the current year. The quality is rated at 91 per cent being four per cent above the average and good in nearly all sections. It is estimated that 61 per cent of the crop will be shipped out of the counties where grown.

A marked increase in other states, as reported since the harvesting of the crop became well advanced, gives a total of 454,119,000 bushels. This is the largest crop on record although less than a million bushels over the bumper crop of 1922.

Beans: A special inquiry during the month brought forth the infor-

LITTLE WILL'S SHOP IN PETOSKEY ROBBED

Amateur Crackaman Evidently Wanted a Watch

The Searle jewelry store, at the intersection of Lake and Howard streets, Petoskey, was burglarized last Thursday night, several valuable watches being taken. The large plate glass window on the west side of the store was smashed with a rock, the thief reaching through the small hole made to get at the watches on display.

Officers believe the job was the work of an amateur—some boy or youth who wanted a watch. Valuable watch cases also on display were not taken, the thief throwing them back after discovering they were empty. Other jewelry in the window was not touched which leads officers to believe that the job was not the work of a professional.

The value of the loot will reach several hundred dollars.

Mr. Searle last Friday forenoon offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the thief or thieves.

The stolen goods included several high priced and several medium priced watches on display for the holiday trade.

LOST GAME BY 14 TO 0 SCORE

UNBEATEN HARBOR TEAM IS STILL UNBEATEN

Red and White, However, Kept Visitors from Touchdown Until Last Quarter

Charlevoix high school football team appeared for the last time this season on the south side gridiron and was defeated by the unbeaten Harbor Springs outfit, 14-0.

Charlevoix started out with a determination to hold this team and, as the score indicates, we did. Harbor has the remarkable record of winning seven straight battles and having finished her schedule without a defeat.

The Springers did not score until the last few minutes in the second quarter. Their touchdown was due to the completing of several passes.

In the third quarter again did the big Harbor backs plunge our line for their second and final touchdown of the game.

Charlevoix foothall fans also saw the playing for the last time of Captain Burns, left tackle; Peter Hallett, quarterback; Glasgow, halfback and "Chuck" Dagwell, end. All of these men played a fine game and were the bright lights for the Red and White.

Connell, Woodruff and Jones were the bright lights for Harbor.

Considering that the locals lost seven "letter" men last year, they have completed a successful year, although beaten in every start. We had a team of youngsters and each played his part and did his bit towards making a name for his school.

This record, however, does not give as much credit to coach Alldread as he deserves, but every Charlevoix follower has a right to say that he did remarkably well in rounding out a team that held Traverse City 27-6. Held Boyne City, who tied Petoskey, 16-12, and Harbor Springs 14-0.

DERAILED FREIGHT HOLDS UP TRAFFIC

Track Gang Worked from One to Seven Repairing Damage

Train service on the Pere Marquette through Charlevoix was held up for about five hours last Monday afternoon when a northbound freight pulling out of the siding between the Standard Oil tanks and the Seed House crossing, at about 1:00 p. m., turned a rail on the main line, the heavy engine, No. 369, and tender derailing and tearing up the track and roadbed for about 150 feet.

Passenger engine No. 196 was rushed through from Petoskey and a gang of trackmen under the supervision of Nels Holland and one of the road's officials worked until 7 o'clock Monday evening to put things in shape for a resumption of traffic.

REMEMBER THE UNFORTUNATES

EAT A MEAGRE MEAL ON DECEMBER 7TH

Golden Rule Dinner Idea Designed to Provide Funds for Armenian Children

The Golden Rule Tea given by the W. C. T. U. in the Congregational church last Friday afternoon was quite well attended by the ladies of the community.

After a short business session, Mrs. Lelah Simmons, president of the Union, gave an address of welcome which was followed by a solo, "My Task," sung by Miss Sylvia Black, accompanied by Mrs. Archie Belding. Mrs. Albert Stelter favored the audience with an instrumental selection, which was followed by a talk by V. K. Beshgetoor, explaining the object and plan of the Golden Rule Dinner, to be observed in all homes in the United States and other lands on December 7th. Every family, having the interests of the starving Armenian children at heart, are asked to serve a very plain dinner on December 7th and make an offering to the Near East Relief fund of the amount that the usual Sunday dinner would cost and as much more as they care to contribute, ever keeping in mind the scant rations these children are forced to get along with, while our tables are always bountifully spread.

It is asking very little of us to deprive ourselves of an abundance for only one meal and contribute to the physical needs of these unfortunates. A lady from each church in the city was named to serve on a committee to collect the funds and deliver same to W. S. Richardson of the State Savings Bank. Ninety-six per cent of every dollar collected goes into the immediate work of providing for the needs of these children.

A ladies quartette: Mrs. Archie Livingston, Mrs. Clair S. Webster, Mrs. Charles Lamphear and Mrs. Albert Stelter, accompanied by Mrs. E. J. Edwards, gave a very pleasing number which closed the program for the afternoon. Mrs. John Burns and Mrs. F. W. Metcalf were the committee who served tea and a social time was enjoyed over the teacups.

WILL PROBABLY PLAY SAGINAWS THIS YEAR

Local Basketball Team to be Asked To Meet Them

Saginaw will be represented by the best basketball team in years when the Triangle's court aggregation take the floor for their initial encounter December 4th. Manager Harold Huebner will have an all-veteran team at his disposal with several ex-collegians added to the roster. Early indications point to a fast team which should be heard from in state independent circles. Huebner has already hooked games with many teams around Saginaw and has also started on the annual north jaunt schedule. He hopes to book every team in this section that is considered strong, meeting such teams as Alpena, Petoskey, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Kalkaska, East Jordan and other fast fives.

DETROIT CAN POSE AS AN OCEAN PORT

Clears Big Steamer Bound for Buenos Aires, Argentina

Manned by a crew of salt-water seamen, and presaging the day when Detroit will see the ships of the world tied up at her docks to take on her diversified products for a world's consumption, the steamer Onondaga of the Ford Motor company's fleet started the first week in November on an epoch-making voyage to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The Onondaga is the first large Detroit vessel to sail for a foreign port. She carries a cargo of automobile parts for the South American branch of the Ford Motor company.

Revival Services

Rev. S. J. Brooks of East Jordan, will hold revival services this week and next at the Church of God chapel at 7:30 o'clock each evening. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend.

ARE YOU RHEUMATIC?

Many Pangs That Pass for Rheumatism Are Really Due to Weak Kidneys.

Do you suffer the agonizing pangs of rheumatism? Are you tortured with rheumatic joints and stubbing twinges? Then you should know that many so-called rheumatic troubles are due to an excess of uric acid and must be treated through the kidneys. When the kidneys weaken, the whole system is upset by these body poisons. Help your kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills, the remedy your neighbors recommend! Here is a Charlevoix woman's case:

Mrs. J. H. O'Neill, 101 Green Ave., says: "I was just miserable with a lameness across the small of my back. Then I had rheumatic pains and twinges in my limbs. I was nervous and always had a weak, tired out feeling. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. I used Donn's Pills and they drove the trouble away. I soon felt like a different person."

AT THE MOVIES

"The Eleventh Hour" is Rushing Tornado of Thrills

A rushing tornado of whirling action that moves as swiftly as the speeding seconds! Briefly, that describes the Fox production, "The Eleventh Hour," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Charles Jones goes through a lifetime of adventure within less than two days counted on the calendar. He had need of all his iron muscle and nerve to do the stunts required of him in this high-genred melodrama. Submarines, airplanes, speed boats, roaring lions, pirates and high explosives are elements in the fast-moving plot. Nor did the producer forget the charming feminine side of the photoplay. Shirley Mason, dainty as ever, is seen as a talented society girl, whose ability as a dancer and whose attractiveness in a variety of rich costumes, added considerably to the evening's enjoyment.

Remember when Lincoln J. Carter had his thrilling stage productions touring the country? Well, Mr. Carter is now doing stories for the screen and he supervises the various thrill-producing stunts in the picture so that his old stage technique is not only kept on the screen, but is greatly enhanced. Hair-raising escapes, fights with lions, leaps from airplanes to boats and back again—a whole raft o' excitement is provided in the entertainment offered at the Palace Theatre.

Human Interest Tale in Newest Fox Drama

There is an exceptional appeal in the new William Fox production, "No Mother to Guide Her," because the thread of the story runs so close to the lives of thousands of young girls everywhere. Genevieve Tobin, known for her work on Broadway in "Polly Preferred" and "Little Old New York," has one of the leading roles. Dolores Rousse has another and others in the cast are equally well known. "No Mother to Guide Her" comes to the Palace Theatre for a two day engagement on Tuesday.

ROAD BUILDING

SENATOR SAYS, SPEND MONEY ON HIGHWAYS

"We have provided ourselves with the motor vehicle rolling stock at a cost of many billions of dollars, and we must now provide the tracks upon which to operate it," said Thomas Sterling, United States senator from South Dakota and chairman of the senate committee on post offices and post roads, in making a plea for the continuation of federal aid in a recent address.

After outlining the need for a federal appropriation of $100,000,000 a year for ten years and a like appropriation from the states if the system of 170,000 miles of federal aid highways is to be completed within ten years, Senator Sterling stated that he could not say just what congress would do.

"When it is known that the wholesale value of automobiles and trucks manufactured last year amounted to over $2,500,000,000 and that the wholesale value of tires manufactured amounted to $760,000,000 and that we spent over $1,000,000,000 for automobile parts and accessories, exclusive of tires," said Senator Sterling, "it does not sound unreasonable to propose that we should spend at least $100,000,000 a year from the federal treasury and an equal amount by the states in order to complete our federal highway system within a reasonable length of time.

"We must not forget that the good roads built under this system serve even a higher use than that of the tourist or of the visitor or those on pleasure bent. We must think of the commercial and economic advantages of a system of good roads, of what they mean to the farmer, who, on such roads and by means of the motortruck, finds it easy and a great saving of time and expense to transport, not only his grain, but his hogs and sheep or cattle to market. Another consideration is the enhanced value of his land due to the good road at his door or nearby. One of our great economic and commercial problems is that of bringing the market and the producer closer together."

Transportation Is Big Factor to All Farmers

The farm and highway transport are closely bound together. The transportation of his product is a most important factor in the success of the farmer, for all the products of the farm travel first over the highway. It has been said the requirements of a good farmer are:

1. The ability to make a comfortable living from the land.
2. To rear a family carefully and well.
3. To be of good service to the community.
4. To leave the farm more productive than when he took it.

Every one of these requirements is affected by highway transportation. Take the first: "The ability to make a comfortable living from the land."

Tax on Motor Vehicles to Aid Better Highways

Owners of motor vehicles pay to the federal government in taxes each year more than double the amount spent by the government on account of federal aid highway and forest road construction, together with all administrative outlays, according to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who has charge of the administration of the highway funds.

Since 1917 the government has been collecting a tax on the selling price of motor vehicles, tires and automobile accessories, and also a tax on the use of passenger automobiles for hire. On June 30, last year, $589,012,021 had been collected from these sources. Expenditure on highways by the government in that time totaled $264,782,216, or 45 per cent of the amount taken in.

DAY OF NARROW ROAD CONSTRUCTION GONE

Don't build the road narrow. But however it is built, have a right of way ample enough to provide for widening in the future. On these two hang all the law and the profits of modern road building.

An expensive fault of the narrow road is the concentration of traffic. Wheels moving constantly over the same places produce parallel lines of excessive wear. To prevent rapid disintegration of a single track road a heavier foundation and surface is needed than is required for a wider road.

Substantial shoulders at the sides on which the passing traffic may turn out are also necessary, as otherwise the wheels of vehicles turning out to pass will quickly wear ruts at the edges. In these water collects, to penetrate beneath the foundation, with disastrous results. A narrow road with soft earth shoulders is dangerous to motor traffic in slippery weather.

To build the heavier foundation and surface needed to bear the concentration of traffic on a narrow road, and the substantial shoulders at the sides require as much money as to build a wider road. On a wide road, traffic is scattered, and wear is distributed. Within paved surface sufficiently wide for two lines of rapidly moving vehicles to pass in safety, the necessity for artificial shoulders is eliminated. To build a narrow road, thin and without shoulders, means a loss of the entire investment in a comparatively short time.

A narrow right of way requires drainage ditches close to the travel. With no shoulder between paved surface and ditch the chances of serious accident are largely increased. All drainage ditches tend to become deeper, so that the danger to traffic becomes constantly greater.

Before any program for beautification of highway is undertaken, some assurance that the rights of way are wide enough to accommodate future traffic should be had.

Motor vehicle traffic will increase as the mileage of hard roads increases. A general extension in the width of wearing surfaces will call for wider rights of way. To obtain wider rights of way now means an ultimate saving of a large sum of money and will prevent many future difficulties.

If the chicks are inclined to fill their crops with buttermilk instead of with mash, give them something to eat before the buttermilk is left before them.

The dirt floor in laying house is a carrier of disease, unless five or six inches of the soil are removed and replaced each year. Board floors are all right, but expensive. Concrete floors are the most economical in the end.

Enough roosts should be provided in a poultry house to allow eight inches per bird. The roosts should be nine inches from the front of the dropping boards and nine inches from the back and they should be fourteen inches apart.

Cleanliness Important

Nowhere is cleanliness more important than in the rearing of little chicks. Their lungs and entire organisms may be stunted and permanently weakened by compelling them to sleep in filthy quarters, breathing impure air night after night. Clean out the brooders and coops often, every day if possible, and give them a good sunning and airing. Nothing is more health-giving and inexpensive than pure air, for chicks as well as old fowls.

To the Farmers--

Reports upon which we can depend tell that there is an acute shortage of food and feed grains in Germany and other European countries.

Moreover, we hear and it is probably true, that there is a material reduction in the Canadian wheat and oat yield.

These facts can have but one effect upon grain prices in the United States, in fact, they have already had the effect of raising the price of wheat very substantially. Rye climbed 25 cents in a week, and there has been a remarkable advance in the price of all farm products.

This, it seems to us, spells prosperity for the farmer and our feeling is borne out by a nationally known economist, who says that the good old days of prosperity are back for the farmer, with increasing prosperity for farmers in all sections.

This condition means that your road and ours is going to be far smoother from now on and we went you to know that our service in time of prosperity will be just as whole-heartedly helpful as it has been in the past, and we solicit an opportunity of demonstrating.

"ALL FOR HEALTH; HEALTH FOR ALL"

THAT'S THIS CRUSADER'S WAR CRY AS SHE FIGHTS FOR BETTER HEALTH.

Here's Mary Elizabeth, all ready to wage war against dirty hands, face and teeth; enemies of Better Health. She's a Modern Health Crusader of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association which fights disease of all kinds. She sleeps at least ten hours every night, with her windows open, she likes milk and she eats only those foods that healthy, happy children should have.

Healthy children can't succumb to tuberculosis. Making frail children strong is one of the duties of the Christmas Tuberculosis Seals. Buy Christmas Seals and help Mary Elizabeth and other Crusaders fight tuberculosis, which strikes where least expected.

THE DAIRY

FEEDING DAIRY COWS FOR PRODUCING MILK

A cow weighing 1,000 pounds needs each day, for the maintenance of her body, an amount of food equivalent to that supplied in 8 pounds of clover hay and 20 pounds of good corn silage. She must have this food regardless of whether or not she produces any milk. Food used for milk production must be in addition to that required to keep the cow's body.

A 1,000-pound cow producing 20 pounds of 4 per cent milk a day, if properly fed, devotes about half of her feed to maintenance and half to milk production. Obviously when a dairyman has gone to the expense of supplying that half of the food required for maintaining the cow's body, it is poor economy to withhold any of the other half, all of which goes to produce milk. A cow then requires feed in accordance to the amount of milk she is able to produce. The heavy producer needs the most feed.

Farm-grown roughages (silage, hay, etc.) furnish the cheapest food nutrients. However, a good dairy cow cannot eat enough roughage to supply her needs for milk production. She must have some grain. Therefore, to feed with the most economy the following rules must be observed, says the University of Missouri college of agriculture:

1. Feed all the roughage a cow will eat. She will eat more if fed three times a day instead of twice.

2. Feed grain in proportion to the pounds of milk produced.

To a Jersey or Guernsey cow feed 1 pound of grain for each 3 to 3½ pounds of milk produced.

To a Holstein, Ayrshire or Shorthorn feed 1 pound of grain for each 4 to 4½ pounds of milk produced.

Hollanders Breed Cows for Higher Production

"Weed, feed and breed" should be the slogan of every dairyman who has an eye to the future. Weed out the poor producer, feed well according to the amount of milk produced, and breed only to good, pure bred sires whose dams have records of better than 400 pounds of butterfat. If you follow these suggestions, your herd's average yield will be doubled, and more than doubled, in a few years.

In the United States 4,000 pounds of milk containing 160 pounds of butterfat is the production of the average cow. In Holland the average is just about double that figure. Why? Merely because the Hollanders have for many years fed and bred their cattle for high production.

A study of the records of more than 18,000 cow-testing associations in this country reveals two significant facts: First, in all cases the high-producing groups were the most profitable—they returned the greatest income over cost of feed. Second, the highest producers were also the groups that produced milk and butterfat most economically—that is, they showed the lowest feed cost a pound of butterfat or to the 100 pounds of milk.

Sudan Grass Makes Good Supplemental Pastures

In the handling of a herd of good milk cows, it seems to be imperative that farmers generally make provision for having supplemental pastures for their cows along in July and August when normally the native pastures give mighty little good feed. Probably the outstanding annual feed crop which we have for that purpose is sudan grass and the planting of that crop on thousands of acres simply for the pasture it would give when the other pastures were at best inferior would mean normally a higher return an acre than now is obtained.

Pastures provide cheap milk because pasture is a cheap feed and gives an excellent yield of milk. Plan to put in a few acres of sudan grass to use for pasturing your milk cows along next summer. The return will be higher an acre than if handled in any other way.

Dairy Notes

Cleanliness precedes a larger cream check.

Tuberculous animals show no symptoms until the disease is far advanced.

As a business man, Mr. Dairyman, can you afford not to improve your herd?

If it were not that it results in cows giving more milk, warming their drinking water would be a waste of time.

Most scrub cows don't seem to appreciate the law of compensation; it doesn't take half the time to milk them that it does to feed them.

Butter scoring 92 per cent brings from seven to nine cents more a pound than butter scoring 89 per cent. Why not make better butter?

The beginning of a balanced ration for dairy cattle is to give the cow all the roughage she will eat—and nothing is better than alfalfa, or some of the other legumes.

GOOD ROADS

ENGINEERS WATCHING DETROIT EXPERIMENT

Ultimately, when the horse and buggy idea gives place to the motor transportation plan nationally, automobiles must be allowed to travel over long stretches of right of way at their maximum speed. Wider roads entering population centers, division of highways into their logical freight, local and express lines, and the unification of transportation laws throughout the United States will make all this possible.

So, at least, say engineers of the Middle West and the transport experts now busily engaged in working out the growing road problems of practically every community of any size in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, writes J. L. Jenkins in the Chicago Tribune.

All of them are looking eastward this spring toward Detroit, where Wayne county pavement pioneers are pushing the construction of a 200-foot right of way from Detroit to Pontiac, with just this idea of segregating highway traffic and putting automobile operation into the scientific transportation field where it belongs.

When completed this highway will provide tracks in its center for fast and local railways. On the outside two 40-foot pavements will carry the automobile traffic. These one-way lines will provide for slow-moving and local cars on the inside lines and for fast, through motors on the outside speedways. Cross traffic will be protected, according to the first plan, by elevating the intersections and dividing the grades.

Thus the cars used to transport passengers or light freight for long distances will be given a chance to operate at maximum efficiency and minimum expense without endangering the joy-riders, the slow-moving trucks and the myriad other tardy vehicles which form the real barrier on any open road.

Uniform Road Rules Are Being Urged by Railways

Arguments for a federal rules of the road act to secure uniformity and reduce automobile accidents all over the country were advanced before the committee on commerce, trade and commercial law of the American Bar association by Herbert E. Rowe, chairman of the committee on the prevention of highway crossing accidents of the American Railway association, and D. E. Minard, general attorney of the Erie railroad. The committee met at the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, 63 Liberty street.

Doubt as to the legal practicability of the plan was expressed by some members of the Bar association committee. Mr. Rowe will file a brief and the recommendations of the committee will be announced at the forthcoming annual meeting of the Bar association.

W. H. H. Platt of Kansas City, chairman of the committee, said that the differences in the rules of the road in various states were a decided detriment, now that country-wide automobile travel had become common.

Method for Increasing Strength of Concrete

The strongest concrete will be obtained by the least possible amount of water in the mixing to produce a plastic mortar or mix, but after the concrete is placed the concrete should be kept wet for at least ten days, if great strength of wear or strain is needed as in highways.

Keeping the concrete damp the first ten days adds 75 per cent to its compressive strength, and adds 65 per cent to its resistance to wear. Three weeks of constant moisture will add still greater strength and resistance. Constant sprinkling may not be possible. Cover the concrete deeply with dirt, sand, hay or anything that will hold moisture and it will serve the purpose desired.

Good Roads Facts

It is estimated by highway experts that the extent of surfaced roads in the United States will have reached at least 450,000 miles by the end of the first quarter of 1924.

NOVEMBER'S GREAT THOUGHTS

November has commonly been reputed an unpopular month, with its short days and approach of winter's chills and storms.

Yet gray old November brings two wonderful anniversaries, each carrying great thoughts. Armistice day recalls how our boys crossed the submarine infested sea, went into battle with all too brief training, and delivered a knockout blow to the mightiest military power the world ever saw. Such a history gives one faith in America and American traits, and in our own power to win victories in our daily experience.

And this same old chill November brings Thanksgiving day, with its merry feasts and home-comings. It brings haunting recollections of family reunions around the old firesides. It tells us to be true to the ideals those homes taught us, particularly to render thanks to the higher power that thus far has led us on. It bids us to look around in our own neighborhoods and share our own good things with those who have fared less well.

If we let thoughts like these add color to November's fading light, it can be the brightest month in the year for the people of Charlevoix.

PROGRESS IN THE SCHOOLS

Parents who desire their children to make more rapid progress in the schools, might well ask themselves the following questions:

1. Have we become personally acquainted with our children's teachers? A few kindly attentions give quite a lift to a teacher who is struggling with a roomful of restless youngsters. Sometimes she can tell the home folks things they need to know about their angelic offsprings.

2. Are we cooperating with school discipline? Do we frequently let the children stay up late at night, thus depleting their energy? Do we encourage the children to think they are severely or unfairly treated, and thus incite them to an attitude of resistance?

Many other questions could be asked. Remember that you can't turn children over to the schools to have their heads filled with knowledge, as you turn them over to the dentist to have their teeth filled with gold. Education calls for ambition on the part of pupils, and the homes have to help create that sentiment.

DAIRY COWS ARE INCREASING IN COUNTY

A Nine and Two Tenths Per Cent Gain is Noted

Charlevoix county's dairy cow population is increasing according to figures announced by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The statement covers an area embracing approximately one-eighth of the state in this section, and is believed to hold true for the county proper.

A 9.2 per cent gain in the number of dairy cows two years old and over is noted for the district over the preceding year, while the increase for the state as a whole was 5.5 per cent as compared with 1923. The entire United States shows an increase amounting to 6 per cent, government figures show.

The number of heifers 1 to 2 years old as compared to the total number of cows in this district seem to be above the average, indicating the intention to bring more young stock into milk in the near future.

In citing these figures the Institute calls attention to the fact that the United States needs 320,000 more cows every year if production is to keep step with the normal growth of demand for dairy products. There are 1,412,000 more mouths to be fed in the United States with every passing year and with the increased consumption of dairy products per capita, this added number to the nation's herd will barely suffice to meet the increased demand.

MOTHER OF W. G. PARKER IS DEAD

Passed Away In New York on Armistice Day

Mrs. Sarah E. Parker, muther of W. G. Parker of Charlevoix, died on Armistice Day in New York.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Parker taught Latin and French in eastern colleges. She is also survived by two daughters, one unmarried. A second son, recruited through the New York national guard at the age of seventeen, was lost in the way with Spain.

Pickle Company

Awards Prizes:

At contracting time, the Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company offered three cash prizes to the three growers securing the highest yield per acre. These prizes are now being paid to the following winners:

1st Prize—John N. Empey, $15.00.

2nd Prize—Mrs. Chas. Burnett, $10.00.

3rd Prize—Paul Pesek, $5.00.

Many other growers had yields that followed the prize winners very closely, and a few that deserve special mention and that were very near to the leaders are:

Henry Willis, Charlevoix; Cecil Richardson, Atwood; Casper Bailey, Bay Shore; Hiram Potter, Charlevoix; Peter VanUnen, Atwood; Herman Poll, Atwood; E. L. Shider, Charlevoix; Grant Ferguson, Bay Shore; Egbert Wynsma, Atwood; W. T. Louisell, Charlevoix; Mrs. Frank Brock, Charlevoix; Jacob VanUnen, Atwood; Albert Brower, Atwood; A. J. ROAD BUILDING

FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE AIDS ROAD SURFACE

When a man or a family gets used to eating pancakes for breakfast, it takes an extra effort and much advertising to make them believe that there is a breakfast food that is cheaper and better. It is the same with everything. Roads and automobiles are no exception.

We have our present style automobile driven by the two rear wheels. The two front wheels carry about the same load, many times there is more weight on the front wheels than the rear ones. And still the rear wheels are compelled to do the pulling for all four.

In traveling around the country on dirt or gravel roads you will notice the road surface is full of short little holes dug into the road by this pull on the wheels. Because the pull on the road surface with the present style drive is exactly equal to the pull on the tire surface, any dirt or gravel road will give way under such a pull or strain. This strain or pull on the road surface is entirely gone from the front wheels. If we used horses to pull the auto instead of an engine, we would do away with all this pull by the wheels on the road surface.

Now, it was never supposed that rolling a road did it any harm. Neither would rolling an auto over the road do much harm. By driving an auto over the road with all four wheels turning together we would be as near the rolling idea as possible. By turning all four wheels at the same time they simply act as rollers and do not dig into the road surface enough to pull it loose.

I claim that four-wheel drive will more than pay for the extra cost in saving on tires alone, writes J. B. Ketchum of Illinois, in Hoard's Dairyman. It would also save on gasoline; less horse power would be required. It is the big secret of good roads in this country. Until we get the auto perfected and a successful four-wheel drive, we will never be able to maintain any road system at a reasonable cost.

Our present automobile engineers are just about the same as the man that got used to the pancakes.

Highways and Railroads Need Billion Each Year

At a time when the railroads of America need at least $1,000,000,000 a year for their development, the public highways of the country are receiving that amount and more, says the Providence Journal.

In 1923 the sum of $1,250,000,000 was expended upon road improvement, while the total capital expenditure on railroads, including equipment, was only $750,000,000.

This means that we are starving our railroads and at the same time providing new means for their competitors, the motor cars and particularly the motor trucks, to flourish. The situation is unfair, because the trucks are permitted to operate without paying anything like their fair share of the upkeep of the modern highway surfaces of which they take advantage and on which they put a heavy tax of wear and tear.

Trails to Be Marked in Cascade Forest Reserve

Five hundred miles of government trails in the Cascade national forest will have been marked with sign posts every mile when installation of 300 that have just been received at the local warehouse of this forest is completed. The posts will be installed in May, according to officials of the forest service.

The posts will be sent to the McKenzie bridge, Oakridge and West Boundary districts of the forest. On the top portion of the posts will be printed the name of the trail and beneath will be an arrow pointing the direction of different objectives.

Drive Against Billboards

Massachusetts has begun a statewide drive against the billboards that line its highways. The state department of public works has been empowered to regulate billboard advertising by the process of licensing that industry. Violation of the new regulations is punishable by a fine of $100 for the first offense and $500 for the second.

Location of Best Towns

In traveling one cannot but note that the most prosperous towns are along the lines of good transportation, so good roads and good transportation help in the first element of the farmer, "The ability to make a comfortable living from the land."

Roads to Circle Earth

More than 8,000 miles of roads of all types were completed with federal aid during the year which ended June 30, 1923, according to a government report. This, added to the mileage completed previously, brought the total for finished projects up to 26,530 miles, or more than enough to circle the earth. The projects under construction at the close of the year amounted to 14,772 miles, and were estimated at 53 per cent complete.

CALLS ON PEOPLE TO GIVE THANKS

Groesbeck Issues Usual Thanksgiving Proclamation

Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck last Friday issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

"Thanksgiving day this year should mean much to the American people. We are blessed with a reasonable degree of prosperity and the outlook for the future is encouraging.

"In spite of the many handicaps under which our government operations are carried on, our people, as a whole, are making steady advances in the cause of good government. The progressive spirit which they repeatedly manifest in relation to the public service, demonstrates their faith in American institutions and the stability of constitutional government.

"For these great blessings and the many good things that are ours it is most fitting that we should render united thanks to Almighty God, the giver of all that is good.

"Therefore, in pursuance of our time honored custom and in accordance with the proclamation issued by the president of the United States and by virtue of the authority vested in me as governor of Michigan, I hereby designate Thursday, November 27, 1924, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer."

The M. E. Sewing Club will hold their annual Christmas sale on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13. Place announced later.—47-t4.

CHANTICLEER IS SMALLER, BUT—OH, MY!!

Plenty of Pep and Qoodles of Spizerinktum

The first issue of the Chanticleer for 1924-25, the November number, came off the Courier press last week.

This interesting school publication is put up in smaller compass this year than last, being a booklet, 9x6 inches in dimension, with twenty-four pages.

It is full of "meat," however, and quite up to C. H. S. standard. There are several snappy articles, many rich jokes and some interesting sport bulletins and chronicles of memorable social events. The advertising section is well filled and on the whole it represents a very creditable achievement on the part of the editor-in-chief and her staff.

Wool socks, mittens, gloves, underwear, pants, shirts. Wear wool and keep warm and healthy. We have your size. Benj. Brown.—Ad. 41-tf.

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, November 22 and 23

An up-to-the-minute picture by Lincoln J. Carter; "THE ELEVENTH HOUR," an American pirate story, with Charles Jones, Shirley Mason, June Elvidge and Alan Hale. Mystery, intrigue, romance—it has them all. And the thrills of a thousand pictures packed into one. A picture for all classes and all ages. The kind of a picture that induces fine citizenship. Its red-blooded, high-spirited action is truly American. It will stand out from the background of ordinary pictures. A picture that has everything. Don't miss this one and be sorry. Also a two reel Tuxedo comedy, with Poodles Hannaford, famous New York Hippodrome star, in his first comedy, "FRONT." It's a knockout.

Tuesday and Wednesday, November 25 and 26

Wm. Fox presents "NO MOTHER TO GUIDE HER," with Genevieve Tobin. A human drama of life's pitfalls. From the stage play by Lillian Mortimer. A story about what might happen to you or to any of us. Told with a dramatic interest that grips to the end. Refreshingly brightened by bubbling comedy. Also another one of the Go-Getters, "A KICK FOR CINDERELLA," featuring George O'Hara and Alberta Vaughn.

FLOWERS

We aim to keep on hand at all times a good stock of Roses, Carnations and other seasonable flowers, and will fill your orders promptly and carefully.

WEDDED PROSPERITY

Many a married man, in spite of his blessedness, sighs for the days when he "alway had plenty of money." He imagines that if he were still single, he would be far better off financially. And he is nearly always wrong about it.

The treasurer of Cook county, Illinois, which includes Chicago, has been looking into the subject, and finds that the bachelor's financial superiority doesn't last long. At 24, he generally has 5 per cent more taxable property than a married man of the same age. But after that, the supposedly harrassed husband forges ahead. At 28, the husband's taxable wealth is 3 per cent greater than the bachelor's. At 38, it is 17 per cent greater and at 48, 20 per cent greater.

The treasurer does not attempt to explain this situation. But common observation suggests some reasonable explanations. Foremost among them, perhaps, is the fact that the bachelor, having less incentive to effort than the husband and father, is less energetic and makes less money. Marriage is a great stimulus to ambition. A second reason is that what money the bachelor does make he spends more carelessly. The head of a family learns to be thrifty and so saves and "salts down" part of his earnings, in spite of his heavy necessary expense.

ABATING A PUBLIC NUISANCE

Of the three proposed constitutional amendments duly and elaborately buried by the people of Michigan on November 4, one on legislative reapportionment was submitted by a Detroit gentleman in practical defiance of the legislative body of Wayne county, one by a group of untutored statesmen obsessed with the idea of raising taxes from other people's money, and one by a group of religious fanatics.

The anti-parochial school amendment was submitted four years ago and was soundly beaten at that time. There is nothing to prevent it from being submitted again. There is nothing to prevent any other group from submitting any amendment that the mnjority of the people of Michigan do not want. Any group that can get signatures to an initiative petition equal to 10 per cent of the legal voters of the state can force all the rest of the people of Michigan into the expense of a statewide debate and an election.

Twice in four years friends of the parochial schools have been compelled to raise funds and perfect organizations and promote a campaign of popular education to protect a right which should never be questioned in American democracy, and which the people of Michigan have twice reaffirmed by a vote of approximately two to one.

The initiative and referendum is becoming a public nuisance. If it is to be retained in our constitutional machinery the percentage of petitioners required to initiate an amendment should be raised high enough to prevent the submission of any amendment that has not a substantial demand behind it. Ten per cent is too low; 50 per cent is perhaps too high. Is 30 per cent too high? Or 40 per cent? It strikes us, at least, as reasonable that not less than one-third of the voters should want a constitutional amendment before it was put to a vote, especially since the constitution permits the legislature to submit constitutionnl amendments only by two-thirds of the total vote of each house.—Menominee Herald-Leader.

THE THIRD DEGREE

The Supreme Court of the United States has condemned in scathing terms the common police practice of the "third degree." The case may become a notable one. It is that of a Chinese named Wan, accused of murder in the District of Columbia and convicted on his own confession, the court holds, was invalid, because he confessed under coercion and virtually under torture. So the court reverses the verdict and takes occasion to read a lecture to the police on such procedure.

It appears that the defendant, seriously ill, was taken to the police station held incommunicado, bombarded with interminable questions, taken to the scene of the crime and compelled to witness a representation of it and kept without sleep or medical care for nearly two weeks. At last, in weariness and desperation, he yielded and signed his "confession."

Many a man did the same thing in the Spanish Inquisition, and in many another inquisition not spelled in capital letters. The process is far more common in this country than the police anywhere like to admit, or than the public has any idea of.

Like many other wrongs, it is meant for a praiseworthy purpose—the detection and punishment of crime. It may be legitimate when applied in moderation, to exceptional cases. But the trouble is that it is so easy to abuse the principle and go to cruel excesses, without any warrant in law or regard for basic human rights.

It may be said, without any suggestion of coddling criminals, that this decision of the Supreme Court should serve as a warning to police officials everywhere. It should remind them that in America every man is legally innocent until he is proved guilty, and that no matter how strong presumption of guilt every individual has inalienable rights, in the police station as in the courtroom.

PROGRESS IN VOTING

In spite of heroic efforts made by party workers and disinterested patriots to "get out the vote" on election day, the result shows that scarcely one-half of the qualified citizens in the United States voted. The National Federation wants to know why, and is making a national canvass to that end, as a ground work for more effective efforts hereafter.

The situation lamnetable, by no means fatal, as matters stand. It represents a big gain for democracy and a better representation than ever before.

Time was when, we might say, only one man in a country voted. That was the king. An absolute monarch elected himself, and his word settled every national issue.

There was a gain when a few powerful nobles made royalty divide up its sovereign power with them. That made perhaps a dozen votes, or a hundred.

Later on, the propertied middle-class gained the franchise and elected parliaments or congresses to represent them and curb the king still more. Eventually all free men could vote, in countries interested in freedom. Then all men could vote. And now all women can vote.

During all this political progress, there have always been voters—even among kings — who failed to use their franchise. But the big thing has been the gain, in spreading the privileges and responsibilities of government.

Nearly 30,000,000 men and women shared in the last election. That means more than one-fourth of the population, and an average of about one and a half votes per family. Eventually the average family will be still more fully represented. In the meantime, we are doing pretty well.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, November 23rd

10:30 a. m., pastor will preach. Subject, "Stewardship for all of Life." Every Methodist ought to hear this sermon.

12 o'clock, Sunday school. We have our school rain or shine. The little tots come, the kiddies are there, the boys and girls do not miss and the older folks ought to follow their example.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. This bunch of youngsters have a good organization and invite the cooperation of all of their kind.

6:00 p. m., Ye Epworth League. Thirty-four attended last meeting. All there pretty well on time. Good leader. The boys came also. Oh, you weren't there? Well, come next time.

7:00 p. m., pastor will preach. This is your service. You can take some active part. The sermon subject is "A Handful of Corn." Is your life sowing good grain on good ground?

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read chapter 19 of the Acts. Note the special reference to the Holy Spirit.

The Epworth League of this church will give a musical program on Wednesday evening, December 3, at 8:00 p. m. The tickets can be purchased from the members of the league. It is the desire of the cabinet that all the members and friends of the church give us their support. We need you older folks as well as the young.

Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club meets with Mrs. Ed. Smith this Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Answer to roll call with a Bible verse.

Sunday, the 30th, is the end of first quarter. Methodists will kindly note.

Friday this week the finance committee will meet with Olaf Nordrum, 105 Park avenue.

Quite a few from this church attended the Conference Claimants Rally at Petoskey last Monday evening.

Annual Summons to Service

The annual nation-wide Roll Call of the American Red Cross to enroll members for 1925 will open on Nov. 11, the anniversary of that tense and never-to-be-forgotea Armistice Day six years ago, which silenced the crashing arms of the World War. The enrollment will continue for 17 days, through Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27. Preliminary to the Roll Call period will come Red Cross Sunday, Nov. 9. During the 17 days set aside for the enrollment more than 3,500 Chapters of the Red Cross and their thousands of branches will invite the people to join the Red Cross or renew their membership.

Their Amazing New Value

The Coach is now priced below all comparison. It is the greatest value in Hudson-Essex history.

Largest production of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world makes possible these price reductions. Hudson-Essex alone have resources to create this car and this price.

Everyone knows the Coach represents highest closed car value. Not merely because it exclusively provides "Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost."

Even more important is the outstanding value in the Hudson and Essex chassis, famous for performance distinction and reliability not equalled by many costlier cars.

No car at or near the price rivals the Coach in actual proof of value—which is sales.

On Thanksgiving, November 27th, at the town hall, the ladies will serve an old-fashinned Thanksgiving supper. Everything to eat you may think of and the price will be very reasonable. Come with the spirit of thanksgiving. Supper served at 7:30 standard time.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE "YIMMIE YONSON"

High School Play at Blue Hall, Friday, November 28.

Don't forget to see "Yimmie Yonson" who "ban lookin' for yob." He "ban just a foolish chump."

He will make you laugh,
He will make you roar
And when it's all over
You'll want some more.
So don't be grumpy
And don't be glum
And wish, "by heck,"
You hadn't come.

We'll do our best
To give you a good show;
But we need some help
From you, you know!
So laugh out loud—
Applaud and grin,
And "Yimmie Yonson's Yob"
Can't help but win.

FARM POULTRY

FOUNDATION STOCK OF FUTURE EGG LAYERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The buying of baby chicks is a far more important problem than most purchasers realize. Baby chicks constitute the foundation stock of the future layers and breeders and, therefore, too much care cannot be exercised in deciding upon the hatchery from which to buy.

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture have observed that practical poultry raisers and farmers are relying upon the hatcheries more and more each succeeding year as a source of supply for their new crop of chicks. In other words, each year sees fewer and fewer chicks hatched under hens and the mammoth hatcheries are taking the place, to a certain extent, of the smaller incubators which are commonly operated on the farms. It is because of the fact that farmers are buying baby chicks from the commercial hatcheries in such large numbers that the officials of the department feel the necessity of urging them to exercise great care in deciding upon where to buy this year's supply of chicks.

At the same time it should be pointed out that many farmers, perhaps the majority, will still find it more economical to do their own hatching. This is especially the case where the farm flock is of good standard quality and has been bred for egg production. A farmer hatching his own chicks knows the quality of chicks he can expect.

The commercial hatchery business has developed to a very remarkable extent in the United States in the last two years. Some of the hatchery men have estimated that practically double the number of baby chicks will be hatched in mammoth hatcheries this year compared with last. There is a great increase in the number of hatcheries, each varying in capacity from a few thousand to several hundred thousand chicks.

The question of importance to a purchaser of baby chicks is the source of supply of eggs for the hatcheries. Many of the hatcheries have their own business well organized, and are able to guarantee the quality of the chicks. Some of the hatcheries, however, are not so particular where they purchase the eggs they use and are not able to guarantee high-quality chicks.

Purchasers of baby chicks would be well advised, officials of the department say, to make sure of purchasing from a reliable hatchery. Only pure bred chicks should be bought, and in addition to this the purchaser should insist upon a satisfactory statement from the hatchery man as to the quality of eggs used. Were the eggs from a standard-bred flock with trap-nest records and was the flock in good breeding condition? Purchase baby chicks with great care. It is better to pay a few cents more for good quality chicks that can be guaranteed.

High Value of Milk for Increasing Yield of Eggs

Milk fed to laying hens brings better returns than when fed to hogs, according to Purdue university. Returns at that station show that the increase in egg production gives a return of $1.82 to $5 per hundred pounds of milk fed to hens. Feeding of protein to hens will usually increase the egg production of a hen about 100 eggs per year as compared to hens that do not receive a protein supplement.

Milk cannot be compared with other forms of animal protein such as meat scraps and tankage wholly on the protein basis, since its palatability, ease of digestibility, and general availability on the farm must be given consideration.

For chicks, milk is almost a necessity since most people can raise chicks easier and better and with less mortality when given as a liquid diet.

FEEDING BABY CHICKS IS IMPORTANT WORK

Feeding the baby chick is important because of the fact that a good start means good growth, early maturity, and healthy stock, says D. H. Hall, extension poultry specialist at Clemson college, who suggests below when, how, and what to feed the young chicks.

A good many people make a mistake by feeding the baby chicks too early after they are hatched. The chicks can go without food for at least 48 hours after they are hatched. During this period they are allowed time to absorb the yolk material left in their bodies and to put their bodies into condition for receiving other food.

The first food that should be given a baby chick is buttermilk, as it is a good protein and also contains much lactic acid. The lactic acid forms an unfavorable medium for the development of white diarrhea. White diarrhea is one of the most dreaded diseases of baby chicks, and to guard against this disease buttermilk should be kept before the baby chicks at all times.

After the baby chicks have had a drink of buttermilk, the next feed should be given as a soft feed. Hard-boiled infertile eggs mixed with an equal part of cornmeal is a mighty good starter. The eggs furnish protein and the cornmeal furnishes heat and energy. When the eggs cannot be obtained it is a good idea to start the baby chicks off on one-half pound of meat meal mixed with five pounds of cornmeal, which can be fed dump with buttermilk.

After being fed either of the above mixtures for one week the chicks should be gradually weaned off to the regular mashes and scratch feeds. A good scratch feed consists of the following:

- 1 part pinhead oats
- 2 parts cracked wheat
- 4 parts cracked corn

The above should be fed as a scratch feed and the baby chicks allowed to scratch in the litter for it. The dry mash should contain the following parts:

- 40 pounds cornmeal
- 20 pounds wheat middlings
- 10 pounds wheat bran
- 10 pounds finely ground oats
- 15 pounds meat scraps
- 5 pounds peanut meal or soy bean meal

The above scratch and mash feeds can be fed to the baby chicks until they are three months old. After the chicks are three months old they can be placed on the regular scratch feed and mash.

Leg Weakness in Chicks From Lack of Vitamins

Feeding is a factor in prevention of poultry disease. A ration should be fed that contains not only the proper amount of fat, carbohydrates, and proteins, but also the essential vitamins. Vitamins are best supplied by green feed. Green feed should be given to the birds daily. A disease known as nutritional disease results from lack of the proper vitamins, but more important than this is the danger of lowering the resistance of the fowls and thus making them susceptible to more serious diseases, says W. R. Hinshaw, instructor in bacteriology, Kansas State Agricultural college.

Young chicks are especially susceptible to the deficiency disease caused by lack of vitamin D. Weak legs result from the lack of this vitamin, and this can be corrected by giving small quantities of cod liver oil. Direct sunlight has the same effect as cod liver oil in correcting this condition, so that sunlight may be considered a factor in health feeding. When direct sunlight is available nutritional rickets or weak legs can be prevented if the chicks are allowed to get plenty of it, according to Mr. Hinshaw.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB GIVES A LUNCHEON

Annual Event Was Much Enjoyed by the Members

The members of the Shakespeare Study Club of Charlevoix were entertained by Mrs. Robert Bridge, Mrs. R. W. Paddock and Mrs. Adah Beeman, the club's executive committee, on last Monday, November 17th, at the home of Mrs. Robert Bridge.

At one o'clock the guests sat down to a four-course luncheon; a delightful affair, graced by decorations of purple and gold — the club colors. The attractive place cards, with their humorous admonitions to the diners respecting their conduct and sketching their individual traits and hobbies, furnished cause for much hilarity.

The first event of the afternoon meeting was the rendition of Chopin's Etude in E-flat by Mrs. Swinton. Mrs. Armstrong, who was appointed by the club as its delegate to the State Federation meeting at Petoskey, read an instructive report on that convention. Mrs. Stelter delighted her audience with Chopin's Polonaise in A-flat, both musical numbers with the brief description of their composition that accompanied them being very much appreciated.

The president and her committee on revision then reported and the revised constitution and by-laws were adopted after a thorough discussion.

This entertainment, which is an annual affair, surpassed in interest and novelty anything of the kind heretofore attempted and its reoccurence in 1925 will be awaited with much pleasurable anticipation on the part of the members.

mation that 84 per cent of the total acreage of beans in Michigan this year was planted to small whites, 4 per cent to large whites, 80 per cent to red kidneys, and 2 per cent to soys, limas and others.

Clover Seed:- While some good individual yields are reported, much of the crop averages light. The acreage is estimated at 85,000 as compared with 105,000 last year and 150,000 two years ago. The indicated yield is 1.2 bushels per acre, giving a total production of 102,000 bushels as against 147,000 in 1923, and 240,000 in 1922. The quality is rated at 86 per cent.

The total crop of the United States is estimated at 817,000 bushels, being generally light throughout the country. Last year's crop was 1,233,000 and that of 1922, 1,887,000 bushels.

Test weights of grain: The average weight per measured bushel of winter wheat this year is found to be 59.5 pounds; spring wheat, 58.0 pounds; oats, 33.8 pounds, and barley, 48.4 pounds, all being decidedly above the average.

Sugar Beets:- The condition of the sugar beet crop on November 1 was 83 per cent as compared with 90 per cent one year ago. The beets are averaging smaller in size than usual but possess a good sugar content.

Fruits: The harvesting of the apple crop has been completed and is estimated at 7,333,000 bushels, or 44 per cent of a full crop. The commercial portion is placed at 1,222,000 bushels. The quality is rated at 67 per cent, 12 per cent below last year and 10 per cent below the ten-year average. The total apple crop of the country aggregates 177,238,000 bushels, of which 27,188,000 barrels constitutes the commercial portion. The quality is 74.7 per cent. Last year's commercial crop was 34,403,000 barrels.

The pear crop represents 67 per cent of a full crop for Michigan, a somewhat greater production than indicated earlier in the season. The quality is rated at 86 per cent, or two per cent below the average. For the United States, the production totals 17,925,000 bushels, which is slightly greater than that of last year.

Michigan's grape crop proved to be 75 per cent of a full one, and had a quality of 74 per cnt. Frost damaged a portion in commercial districts because of the lateness in maturing. In northern district, very few grapes ripened before the frost. The nation's crop is reported at 1,771,898,000 pounds with a quality of 89.8 per cent.

The M. E. Sewing Club will hold their annual Christmas sale on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13. Place announced later.—47-t4.

HOW'S THIS FOR SWEET CLOVER?

Leu Bros. of East Jordan Raise Ten Bushel on One Half Acre

Burton C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent, submits the following:

"Sometime ago the writer observed an article in an Antrim county publication stating that a certain farmer residing in that county had raised a wonderful crop of sweet clover seed that threshed 7 bushels to the acre and was considered to be the best yet reported.

Not in the sense of bragging at all about our own county accomplishments, but as a matter of fact we have had many yields that have beaten that mark twice over. The highest that has been reported to my knowledge is that of Leu Brothers, East Jordan, who had the remarkable yield of 10 bushels of re-cleaned sweet clover seed on a one-half acre of ground. The seed was of exceptional quality and brought very nearly the highest market price.

The producer was paid $10.80 per hundred, or $6.48 a bushel and received $64.80 for his one-half acre of ground, which I consider is going some for this kind of crop. This seed was grown on a medium loam soil and was from the first cutting.

More farmers have raised sweet clover for seed this year than at any other time previous and are realizing good profits. Some are cutting the first cutting for hay and letting the second cutting go to seed and in so doing are fulfilling two requirements, plenty of roughage and a cash crop besides.

Are Leu Brothers the champions of the county or can you beat their mark?

If you have got 'em beat, let us hear about it.

B. C. Mellencamp,
County Agr'l. Agent."

WILL BE ISSUED SOON AFTER DECEMBER FIRST

Must Present Title in Own Name—Be Prompt and Help Eliminate Congestioo

The following letter from County Clerk Charles H. Emrey, containing information for the people of the county relative to the issuance of license plates, has been submitted to us for publicatioo:

"The Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Michigan

Gentlemen:—We still have 1924 license plates at hand and we have also received our supply of 1925 plates and will begin to issue them early in December. No car may be operated next year without obtaining 1925 plates prior to operating, as the plates are being distributed early enough to give all a chance to procure them.

We shall endeavor to give the citizens of Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls and their surrounding districts early delivery on plates, on orders coming through the mail and assure them that no application for plates will lay over night on our desks if papers are properly executed when presented.

The secretary of state has issued a bulletin on titles that will be of interest to car owners, as the law requires that anyone purchasing a car must obtain a new certificate of title within ten days of the date of such sale. This order cannot be overlooked! So examine your title to see that your name as owner appears on the face of such title and not on the assignment blank on the back of said title. If you have not traded or purchased a car in 1924, but still have the same car, you probably have a proper title and can obtain your plates without difficulty. It will be necessary to present your title when applying for plates! Hereinaunder you will find the main extracts from the Secretary of States's bulletin No. 1:

'There are thousands of people who have transferred title from the former owner, or an assigned title from some dealer that they have failed to present to the secretary of state for title in their own name, although the law specifically says this shall (not may) be done within ten days.

'There are two reasons for this situation. It is caused first, by the class of people who always fail to comply with the law, either title or registration, until positively forced to do so by the law enforcing officers. The other class, and by far the largest number, are those who have a mistaken idea, possibly through ignorance of the law, but more often through misinformation, that their transferred title or reassigned title is all that they require.

'Because of the large registration in the state, only those persons will be issued license plates at any of the state's branch offices who present a certificate of title in their own name, and thnse persons who have failed to secure the certificate nf title required by the law, will be compelled to mail their transfers to the Lansing office, and unless this is done immediately, they will probably be held up for weeks, as a terrific congestion is looked for at Lansing in the title division as was the case last year, with nobody to blame but the title holders themselves. This will result in the tying up of thousands of cars as they will not be permitted to operate on 1924 license plates, and there is no extension of time beyond January 1, but to avoid congestion, and give people an opportunity to secure their 1925 plates without the rush and jam that occurs the first of the year, the local branch office will start issuing 1925 plates very soon after December 1st.

Very respectfully,
Charles J. Deland,
Secretary of State.'

We trust that the citizens of Charlevoix county will not wait for the day set for turning over their motor in the new year before thinking of obtaining their new license plates, but will prepare their applications and present them a day or two ahead in order to relieve the congestion at the first of the year.

Respectfully submitted,
Charles H. Emrey,
County Clerk and Branch Mgr."

LICENSE NUMBER ON TITLE CERTIFICATE IN MICHIGAN IN 1925

Motor car owners in 1925 will have the number of the license issued by the department of state indelably stamped upon the face of the certificate of title, according to an announcement made by Secretary of State Charles J. Deland to the Michigan Automotive Trade association. This will make it more difficult to dispose of a stolen car to a dealer or to the public, as the license plate on the car must coincide with the number imprinted on the certificate of title.

The law requires that both the license and the certificate of title be transferred in the event of sale of the car during the year in which the license was issued. The title cannot be transferred unless the license is also transferred and the stamping of the license number on the face of the title will not only give the dealer and the purchaser the assurance that the car is properly owned, but will simplify the transfer by the department of state and speed up the handling of the titles and licenses in Lansing.

RADIO OUTFITS IN HUNTING CAMPS

MANY CAMPS KEPT IN TOUCH WITH OUTSIDE WORLD

Aerial from Roofs of Huntiog Shacks in Northern Woods is Now a Commoo Sight

It's a different north wonds now. The singing pines and the silent swamps, the trackless woods and the snug but rough shod camps—all are there. But civilization has stretched out and laid its hand upon the wilderness and man now finds the solitude he formerly treasured a difficult thing to obtain.

Radio is the new invader of the sacred precincts of wild life. Nothing can stop it and as a matter of fact, no one attempts to. Radio may be the latest innovation in civilization but it is welcomed in the north woods. It provides just the proper amount of release from being completely cut off from progress.

A speech by the president is now mingled with the hunter's fireside tales of the big buck that he tracked down the old right-of-way and across the big swamp. The strains of grand opera form rough contrast to the lumberjacks' chant. The newest jazz concoction coming in over the loud speaker finds response in an awkward jig on uneven pine bonrds.

Radio has found a home with the woodsman and hunter. Roam through the deer country and a tell-tale aerial will frequently he seen. Clance in a cabin window at night and those who have professed that civilization is too erudite for them will be found grouped ahout a loud speaker listening to an address or the strains from some symphony orchestra.

It is claimed that the veneer of civilization is thin enough and yields to the slightest pressure but then, again, it is easy to apply the coating. Witness show the woodsman is eager for the education and entertainment he receives over the radio.

SURPRISED ON THIRTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

Friends Drop in On Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie

A party of their friends and neighbors surprised Mr. apd Mrs. Colon McKenzie at their home in this city last Friday evening, it being the occasion of the latter's 13th auniversary.

The evening was spent in playing cards and dancing and, shortly after midnight, refreshments were served.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Angie Shoops, of Manhattan, Kansas, Mr. Richards, from Bay City, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gordon, of Greenville, Mich.

The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie many more happy anniversaries.

The M. E. Sewing Club will hold their annual Christmas sale on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13. Place announced later.—47-t4.

HUNTSMEN HAVE THEIR TROUBLES

TWO DROWN FERRYING CARCASSES IN SMALL BOAT

Wardens Arrest Many Game Law Violators at St. Ignace, Confiscating Outfits

Report of the deaths of two more deer hunters comes to us from Cheboygan.

Robert Radke, 43 years old, married and Chester Clark, 28 years old, single, both of Rogers City, were drowned last week off Marblehead, Drummond's Island, when attempting to ferry their game across to the mninland at Detour. They were with a party of nine from Rogers City who had succeeded in filling their quotas and dragged their deer to the water's edge, crossing to the mainland to have them brought over. Radke and Clark obtained a small rowbnat, quipped with an outboard motor and went to the island to get the carcasses, but it is believed that they overloaned the craft, with the result that it capsized with both hunters.

The party on the mainland anxiously waited for the return of the boat, and when it was several hours overdue, started a search. Not until daybreak did the searchers find the upturned boat, with the motor still fastened to it, and one of the deer floating near shore. No other traces of the men were found, although the party covered the Presque Isle shore for miles. A tug from the calcite plant at Rogers City and a coast guard party from Hammond's bay, in command of Captain Trapo, went in search of the bodies. At noon, November 18th, the bodies had not been reported recovered and rumors were afloat that they had been dashed to pieces upon the rocks.

Deer hunters are finding the Michigan laws are strict especially in northern Michigan. At least 50 arrests have been made at St. Ignace by wardens who are enforcing the laws to the letter.

Every imaginable scheme is attempted by various hunters in an effort to slip something over on wardens, but to no avail as tricks have been tried in too many instances. Hunters even go so far as to take the head of a buck and sew it to the neck of a doe, hoping that the wardens will see the antlers and allow the car to pass without closer scrutiny. This, however, has not been the case and the hunters are finding to their sorrow that Michigan game laws in the north are rigid and that the wardens are too foxy to have it "put over."

One party of hunters numbering ten, were taken November 18 when it was found they had ten bucks, three does, one prairie hen and one partridge. The partridge season closes earlier in the upper peninsula than in the lower and the season is already closed in the north.

When the wardens arrest a man or party they confiscate the deer, guns, car, ammunition and supplies and allow the hunters to go to their homes by train, after getting their names, with the understanding that they will report at a certain place at a certain time. It is believed the number of arrests will total one hundred before the season closes.

WORK OF LOCAL CHOIR ENJOYED

RECEIVED WITH APPRECIATION IN EAST JORDAN

Assisted By Visiting Soloists, Friday Evening Program Was a Success

The sacred recital given by the Congregational Vesper Choir of this city at the Presbyterian Church at East Jordan last Friday evening, November 21st, was an unqualified success, if we may believe the testimony of those who made up the audience. It certainly represented a lot of hard and conscientious work on the part of the choir and its leaders and preceptors, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham.

The mixed choir of men and women, consisting of eight sopranos, three contraltos, three tenors and two basses, were assisted by Rev. Harry M. Allburt and Robert E. Edwards of Petoskey; and Mrs. C. W. Sidebotham and the Misses Gertrude Sandford and Ruth Miller of East Jordan, with Mrs. Oldham of Charlevoix at the organ.

The occasion was especially marked by the fact that three pastors representing two denominations were present on the platform and the members of the choir also represented several different religious denominations. The remarks of the Rev. Harry M. Allburt regarding the function of music in religious and secular life were particularly apt and original in their tenor. His expressions of gratification at the spirit of goodwill and liberal ideals of Christian service that made possible such an affair as the concert of the evening were felicitously answered by the Rev. C. W. Sidebotham in a few well-chosen remarks. Before leaving, the visiting choir were also treated to a satisfying and welcome little "feed."

Following is the program of the evening:

1. Organ Prelude, "A Cloister Scene" by Mason—Mrs. Oldham.
2. Processional, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come"—The Choir.
3. The Lord's Prayer, led by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham.
4. Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, Simper—The Choir.
5. Responsive Reading, led by Rev. C. W. Long.
6. Solo, (a) "Hear Our Cry," Briggs.
   (b) "Invictus," Huhn.
7. Remarks, by Rev. Harry M. Allburt.
8. Solo, "Salvation to Our God," Spry—Mrs. Archie Livingston.
9. Offertory, "In The Light of God," Roney—The Choir.
10. Organ, Reverie, Baldwin—Mrs. Oldham.
11. Anthem. "Praise The Lord, O Jerusalem," Maunder.
12. Solo "The Publican," Vande-Water—Rev. Allburt.
13. Solo with Violin Accompaniment, "The Lost Chord" Sullivan, Robert Edwards, Rev. Allburt (violinist.)
14. Anthem "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand,"—Stainer—The Choir.
15. Recessional "Onward Christian Soldiers," Sullivan.
16. Benediction, by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham.
17. Postlude, March from "Eli" Costa—Mrs. Oldham.

Ex-Vice-President Marshall Will Address Lodges

The first Masonic Radio Night in Michigan will he held on December 10th at 8:30 p. m.

Through the courtesy of the Masonic News of Detroit, Michigan's Grand Lodge commission on Masonic Education announces that W. C. X., the Detroit Free Press, will broadcast the Masonic address to be given in Detroit by Thomas Riley Marshall, thirty-third degree mason and former Vice President of the United States.

This will be the first Masonic lecture ever broadcast in Michigan and is a part of the program of the Grand Lodge commission.

Arrangements have been made locally to receive this address by Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., and members of the frateroity are invited to listen in at the Masonic lodge room where the address will be received by radio.

Every master mason in Michigan is urged to hear this address. Tune in for W. C. X., the Detroit Free Press—December 10th. 8:30 p. m.

TREES TO GET GREATER CARE

CITY WILL PRUNE AND TRIM ITS FINE MAPLES

State is Also Taking Steps to Prevent Waste of its Natural Assets

We note that the trees of the city have been receiving attention lately. This is quite as it should be as nature and far seeing pioneer residents have provided us with a wealth of beautiful shade trees nearly everywhere in the city.

But trees, like cultivated plants of the field, need occasional care and this the trees of Charlevoix have not been receiving heretofore, with possibly the exception of Clinton street and Park Avenue where the property owners seem to have taken especial pride in the fine old maples that line what probably are the two finest streets in the valley and have kept them properly trimmed and their "wounds" bound up, according to the methods of up-to-date tree surgery.

City employees have carefully pruned and trimmed the trees along Dixon avenue, within the last few weeks and are now working along the east end of Park avenue. It is a credit, indeed, to the present city administration.

While we are on the subject of trees, it might be well to note that the state is taking drastic measures to stem the terrific waste, in this, one of our greatest natural resources. The conservation department made first aggressive step toward preventing a repetition of the annual slaughter of young evergreens which in 1923 caused the Detroit market to become so flooded that thousands of Christmas trees were left unsold and were ultimntely burned.

A week ago, according to a Grand Rapids paper, Charles E. Lawrence of Caspian, one of the members of the conservation commission, saw a half carload of young trees between

SEEK INCREASED INHERITANCE TAX

ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR FINANCING PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Stated That $3,500,000 Could Be Raised from Change in Inheritance Laws

More money will be provided for school financing and individual tax payers will be relieved considerably if a measure supported by friends of the public schools is adopted by the state legislature.

The bill is one which would increase all inheritance taxes in the state. The proposed increase, it is contended, would work a hardship upon none; would not boost this form of tax in Michigan to a level that would not be without an equal in the country, and "would be a factor in helping to relieve local taxation for schools.

Petitions have been circulated by school authorities nnd will be sent to the state headquarters of the association at Lansing. These petitions will later be presented to the state legislature to support the initiative bill.

Approximately $3,500,000 would be added to the primary school interest fund if the bill is passed, the petition circulated states. This sum would be considerably increased by estates which would come up for settlement after the law became effective.

Several states have rates equal to those proposed for Michigan. Among them are California, Illinois, Colorado, Missouri, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota. States having rates equal to or greater than those proposed are Georgia, Kansas, Indiana, Washington and West Virginia.

Following are the proposed rates of taxation:

A tax of two per cent to be paid by wives inheriting from $10,000 to $50,000 instead of one per cent, now charged.

A tax of two per cent to be paid by all relatives other than wives inheriting from $3,000 to $50,000, instead of one per cent.

A tax of four per cent to be paid by wives and other relatives inheriting from $50,000 up to and including $250,000, instead of two per cent.

A tax of eight per cent to be paid by wives and other relatives inheriting from $250,000 up to and including $500,000, instead of four per cent.

A tax of twelve per cent to be paid by wives and other relatives inheriting from $500,000 up to and including $750,000, instead of six per cent.

A tax of fifteen per cent on all amounts in excess of $750,000, to be paid by wives and other relatives inheriting such money; instead of eight per cent.

The Mary Brewster Circle will hold a fancy work and baked goods sale at Wood Bros. Electric Shop, Saturday, December 13.—Adv. 47t2.

"KEROSENE CROWD" NOW WELCOME AT ST. IGNACE

The St. Ignace newspapers, who for several seasons hnve duhbed the south Michigan hunters as the "Kerosene Krowd" and sportsmen of the cheapest type because they came into their territory and hunted without leaving a mint of money behind, now changes its tune, according to the following clipping taken frnm last week's issue of the Enterprise:

"In no previous year has St. Ignace been so benefitted by the influx of hunters from helow the straits as it has this fall. In previous years the hunters cnme largely by train, passing through the town without a stop. It has heen different this fall, the great majority coming by auto. On their arrival here on the late afternoon nr evening trips of the ferry hoats largo numbers remained for the night, crowding our restaurnnts, rooming and boarding houses to cnpacity, many of them purchasing hunting outfits from the local merchants. One merchant reports that he was kept up late at night in outfitting parties. They left hundreds of dollars in the town, and were more liberal in their spending than ever hefore. The old term of "The kerosene krowd" is now n misnomer.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, November 30

This is Thanksgiving week.

10:30 the Holy Communion will be administered. Short talk by pastor on the need of our hospital and the annual White Cross offering will be taken.

It costs $1,000,000 every day to carry on the work of the Methodist hospital.

And it can't be done by singing!

Babies are the most precious things in the world but their pocketbooks are usually empty.

Let them sing, but someone must pay!

It will not be forgotten that the final act of the Good Samaritan was to stand for the bills of the wounded man at the inn. It took just that touch to make the picture a masterpiece.

That was long ago, but the years have not altered the situation. Not one but hundreds of sick and wounded lie daily at our door. "The poor ye have always with you."

They must have help or perish. And if we are to help them we must, in turn, have yours.

Will you pass them in their distress, as did the Priest and Levite, or open your heart and purse like the Samaritan?

12 o'clock, Sunday school. Study the Holy Scriptures. No other writings like them. Make the church school productive in your own experiences.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. The four divisions are striving to make each most interesting. Drop in and see how they do it.

6:00 p. m., Epworth League. The lessons are full of spiritual truths and make for the upbuilding of our young people. Larger crowds each evening. Room for more. December 3rd is the date for the Epworth League concert. Get your tickets early.

7:00 p. m., evening worship. Subject: "A Sower Went Forth to Sow His Seed." We are anxious to make this service so evangelistic that some very definite conversions will result. Your church exists for spiritual upbuilding.

Prayer meeting this Thursday is taken up. Instead union service at the stone church. The revival work going on there will not be interrupted by this Thanksgiving gathering. We want to know that many of our Methodist people attended this service. The hour is 7:30.

Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club will hold its annual bazaar on December 12 and 13, Friday and Saturday. Watch for announcement of place. Big line of goods—handmade for Christmas presents.

To the Farmers--

Reports upon which we can depend tell that there is an acute shortage of food and feed grains in Germany and other European countries.

Moreover, we hear and it is probably true, that there is a material reduction in the Canadian wheat and oat yield.

These facts can have but one effect upon grain prices in the United States, in fact, they have already had the effect of raising the price of wheat very substantially. Rye climbed 25 cents in a week, and there has been a remarkable advance in the price of all farm products.

This, it seems to us, spells prosperity for the farmer and our feeling is borne out by a nationally known economist, who says that the good old days of prosperity are back for the farmer, with increasing prosperity for farmers in all sections.

This condition means that your road and ours is going to be far smoother from now on and we went you to know that our service in time of prosperity will be just as whole-heartedly helpful as it has been in the past, and we solicit an opportunity of demonstrating.

Know what's underneath the paint before you buy

YOU wouldn't think of buying a house without first knowing how it is built and the quality of materials used. In selecting a piece of furniture you are sure to find out whether it is solid wood or veneer.

Yet many people who exercise care in most purchases buy automobiles without even lifting the hood or knowing about the hidden qualities of body and chassis construction that really determine one's satisfaction with a closed car.

We want you to know about the unseen qualities of the new Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

Down underneath its superb body finish is a sturdy framework of carefully selected ash, glued together and fastened in place by screws —not nailed. Ash is scarce and expensive, but Studebaker uses it because it best combines proper weight and strength.

Upholstery is genuine mohair of high quality. Various grades of mohair look much alike—the big difference is in the quality.

Beneath this mohair covering are many nests of cushion springs, padded with heavy burlap, upholstery cotton and curled hair. Almost any car seems comfortable on the showroom floor, but it's quality such as this that makes the Studebaker Standard Six remain comfortable after years of service.

The same standards of excellence are maintained throughout the body and chassis. In the engine, for example, the crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces, a practice that results in the smooth, quiet, vibrationless performanee that charaeterizes all Studebaker cars.

Judged solely on what your eye can see—in beauty of line and finish and exterior refinements—the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan will command your instant approval.

But go deeper than that. Compare its hidden, vital qualities—its design, materials and workmanship—with cars selling for hundreds of dollars more.

Studebaker never compromises—never uses a substitute for genuine quality. Studebaker has been building quality vehieles lor 72 years.

Come in and let us tell you the "inside story" of the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

CHRONIC TROUBLE IN ALL MACHINES

Same Make and Model Develops Peculiar Ailments When Not Given Care.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago)

The sensible motor car owner is satisfied if his car gives a reasonable performance. If the fan belt breaks he puts on a new one. If a washer leaks in the rear axle and the axle begins to throw grease, he cleans out the grease on the brake bands, puts in a new washer and then tries driving more in the center of the road. Driving to the right—continually—tilts the axle housing to the right and works the grease out a lot sooner than it would otherwise. And he doesn't howl about it, realizing that it was his own fault for driving to the extreme right.

Chronic Trouble of Cars.

Every car has some sort of chronic trouble. Even the same make and model of car is capable of developing varied troubles. It is common to hear a motorist say, "She always did that." "Or that never did work properly." And such comments are as readily made about the $8,000 machine as the $900 one. But the big reason why complaints are confined to a certain class of drivers is because the other class of driver knows that a car needs constant attention, and gives it.

I know a fellow who is continually bewailing the fact that one of the ignition wires was always dropping off a spark plug. Instead of inserting a new fastener at the end of the cable he chose to sit back and let about it. Meanwhile the car runs on three or four cylinders, depending upon how effectually he swears. The car is mechanically perfect outside of this small defect and six cents would remedy that. But to hear him talk you'd think that the machine was a veritable wreck.

Nothing Goes Wrong.

I invited this same chap to take a ride in my car, which is an expensive make. "This is the sort of car for me!" he exclaimed, as we glided down Michigan boulevard. "Nothing ever goes wrong with this make of car."

But just then he beheld my chauffeur acting exactly the same as he had acted the day before. "Blast it!" the chauffeur exclaimed. "The horn is out of order!"

There you are, folks. Half the automobile drivers are to blame—not the machines. Give your machine reasonable attention and care. And always remember that the car owner who appears to have a "regular car" is the fellow who, nine times out of ten, knows how to take care of it—or has learned to be satisfied with what he has.

Bad to Use Engine and Clutch as Brake

The habit of using the engine and clutch as a brake when waiting for traffic to proceed uphill is very common and very injurious to the car in general. The driver leaves the car in low gear, but rather than take his foot off the brake, he engages the clutch just enough to make the engine keep the car stationary. In a case of this sort the sensible thing to do is to keep one foot on the service brake and feed gas from the throttle, letting in the clutch while releasing the brake as traffic starts moving.

Chicago's Latest Safety Island Reduces Accidents

A new safety light has just been erected at the head of Aldine and Lake Shore drive, Chicago. This is one of the heaviest automobile marts in the world. Traffic here at this point is split in two directions, northbound traffic taking one side of the drive and south-bound traffic the other. For the reason that two drives intersect in an "X" at this point it has been one of the busiest spots of automobile accidents in the world. It is hoped that the installation of this light will reduce casualties at this point. The island is black and white.

Carburetor Adjustment Is Need of Automobile

Automobile owners who are having trouble getting mileage out of their gasoline consumption may find that by having their carburetors adjusted carefully increases in fuel economy can be obtained.

This is the advice given by the Associated Advertising Clubs in a bulletin issued by its vigilance committee reporting investigation of claims made for a carburetor advertised as sure to save one-half to one-third on fuel and to increase the power of any motor from 30 to 50 per cent.

The bulletin states that tests made by the United States bureau of standards was to the effect that the extravagantly advertised carburetor showed no marks of superiority over others, and that the government bureau stated great numbers of automobiles are being operated with a considerable excess of fuel under average conditions, and careful readjustment of the carburetors would in many cases bring about worth-while economy. The government bureau also pointed out that the apparent superiority of some carburetors for which overdrawn claims are made is due to the care with which they are adjusted.

Drainage of Crank Case Is Highly Important

Because of the accumulation of water in the crank case, frequent changing of the engine oil is highly important.

Water does not collect in the crank case because of leaks in the water jacket or through any occult means; it is simply a product of combustion which works down past the piston rings in the form of steam and condenses in the case. In some cars water actually drips from the muffler tailpiece, and in nearly all cars steam is visible in the exhaust on cold days, but this is only a small part of the water produced in the engine itself. Samples taken in a series of tests showed as much as three pints of water in a seven-quart crank case. Badly-worn parts result from the continued use of such a liquid. To avoid the expense of refinishing cylinder bores, refitting pistons, rings and bearings, the crank case oil should be changed at no greater intervals than every 1,000 miles, and preferably once in 500 miles.

Great Influence of Better Roads

The following points show how improved roads influence farm home life:

1. Shortens the distance from neighbor to neighbor and so reduces isolation and loneliness.

2. Brings the town and the country home closer together, making it possible for the farmer and his family to enjoy the amusements and educational advantages offered in town.

3. Saves time in traveling from the farm to town and from farm to farm. This allows more time for work, rest or pleasure.

4. Lightens the burden of marketing crops.

5. Social intercourse between town and country tends to break down barriers of misunderstanding, jealousy, suspicion and ill-feeling.

6. Improved roads make possible bigger and better consolidated schools and churches in town or in the country.

7. Improved roads offer greater incentive to hauling limestone and fertilizer in building up the farm and increasing its productivity and income.

Good Roads Hints

The roads built by the Romans in Europe still are in use and in many places their foundations have required little or no repair in from 1,000 to 2,000 years. Watling street, which runs straight up through England, from London to the Wall, still exists.

* * *

Good transportation has given the farmer's children the same educational opportunities as the city child, and for entertainment father, mother and the children can go to the county seat on good roads to see Charlie, Doug or Mary in their new picture and see the same show that those on Broadway are enjoying.

White traffic lines are to be built into the center of concrete roads on grades and curves in Pennsylvania. Highway engineers, instead of painting white lines each season, will build a four-inch strip of white cement.

Paved roads have made possible the development of rural express routes in many parts of the United States where motor trucks make regular scheduled trips, picking up the otherwise profitless small quantity produce which the farmer places on his roadside platform.

Eighteen million pounds of sodatol, a surplus war explosive made by mixing TNT and sodium nitrate, is to be used in state and federal road construction.

Scale in the radiator can be overcome by mixing a little glycerin with the cooling water. The glycerin should be used in proportions of half a pint to each five gallons of water.

It is enough for traffic people to watch well-kept and conditioned cars without imposing on them the task of overseeing all the old junk on wheels. Just when a car should be "chloroformed" is a problem.

Diseases and Pests of Many Garden Vegetables

From the time the seeds of garden crops are put into the ground until the crops are gathered, diseases and insects may appear that must be fought. Vegetable troubles are due to numerous causes, including unfavorable soil conditions, too wet or too dry, too rich or too poor, lack of humus or lime, weather unsuited to some crops, careless use of fertilizers, or attacks of fungi or other parasites. The adoption of the best horticultural practice—crop rotation, the careful application of fertilizers suited to each crop, adequate cultivation, the planting of all crops in their proper season—is important for the successful growing of garden crops. The control of diseases due to fungi, bacteria, and other enemies requires special additional treatment, as does the damage caused by insects.

The purpose of Farmers' Bulletin No. 1371, issued by the Department of Agriculture, is to present briefly control measures for the more important insects and fungous and bacterial diseases of the home garden vegetable crops.

THE CHILD LABOR CAMPAIGN

The battle over the child labor amendment is going to be fought harder than friends of the amendment expected. The result may be decided this winter by the 36 state legislatures which meet in January. And in most of those legislatures the lines will be closely drawn.

Three states have rejected the amendment already. They are Georgia, North Carolina and Louisiana. To these may be added Massachusetts, whose referendum in the recent election went against the amendment, though official action is still to be taken by the legislature. Only one state, Arkansas, has ratified so far.

It was assumed that the north would be nearly all for the amendment and the south solidly against it. The upsetting of calculations will add interest and fervor to the campaign waged during the winter.

Factory and farm present the big obstacles in this effort to give children greater freedom and opportunity. Both want their labor; and in each case, many parents want their children's earnings.

The factory argument is perhaps easier to meet than the farm argument. The big majority of people will admit, whether they act on the admission or not, that factory work is bad for children.

It is harder for them to see that forced farm work is bad for children. It is still harder to make farmers understand that the intent of the amendment is not to hinder children from doing necessary chores on their father's farms, or helping with the farm work in the summer.

THE BUSINESS CYCLE

Business experts are pretty well agreed that the nation is entering upon a new business cycle. The present year, as they see it, has marked the end of the last cycle, the slump and the period of readjustment. Now begins the up-turn. They do not promise any "boom" remarkable in intensity or duration, but they believe there is now beginning a period of general and prosperous business activity which will last through next year, at least.

This is a cold, scientific conclusion of level-headed observers. Recent Wall Street activity, with a buyers' market and records broken on the stock exchange, is merely a more temperamental manifestation of the same conclusion.

The renewed activity comes, the observers say, because the country is ready for it. Conditions are right and there is nothing political or otherwise, likely to interfere.

The November bulletin of one of the country's leading banks, accepting this favorable opinion, pays its respects to three obstacles which loom largely in the minds of pessimists.

The first of these is the fear of greatly increased competition from abroad, as Europe recovers economically. The bank discounts this fear on the grounds that as foreign nations increase their outputs of manufactured goods, they also become better consumers for our raw materials and many of our manufactured goods—also better customers for their own products.

The second obstacle feared, that of high wages, is considered largely offset by the high purchasing power of the American people which is made possible by the high wages.

The third obstacle, a belief that American industries are over-developed and over-expanded, is pronounced true only in exceptional cases. Industry in general seems sure to be fully occupied.

M-13 NEXT TO BE CONCRETE PAVED

Traffic on Middle Northern Route Heavy During Season

With state highways 16, 17 and 10 "out of the way" on the state highway program, M-13 is the next important trunk line to be surfaced with concrete, according to W. M. Bryant, Kalamazoo, field secretary of the Michigan State Good Roads association.

The highway runs from the Indiana line north through Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Big Rapids and Petoskey and connects in the north with trunk lines running to Cheboygan and Sault Ste. Marie. There remains about 200 miles which the association represented by Bryant will urge to put on next year's road program.

At present, the highway is paved through Kalamazoo with concrete. The rest of the road is worn out macadam, Bryant declared. Counties along the route have organized to cooperate with the Michigan road association to induce the state administrative board to put the project on next year's program.

Actual count during the summer season in counties north of Grand Rapids shows traffic has increased over M-13. More than 250 road boards have appropriated sufficient money to carry the paving project if the state will provide its share. The burden on the state will be especially heavy in Osceola county where tax rates are especially low.

FEW CANDIDATES FILED EXPENSES

Few of the candidates — in fact not more than half—in the recent Charlevoix county general election have filed their expense accounts. The law requires that all candidates must file expense accounts within twenty days following the date of the election. They are required to file whether they have incurred any expense or not.

Up to Monday, November 24th, which is the last day of the time limit, only six had filed their reports: S. A. Correll, Charles Emrey, A. L. Fitch, Frank F. Bird, Lisle Shanahan and G. Will Morehouse. All of these are Republicans with the exception of Mr. Morehouse, who ran on the Prohibition ticket.

There remain seven more Republican candidates, who were elected to office in the recent election, who must file their election expense accounts with County Clerk Emrey.

MALE STARS ENTERTAIN THEIR SISTERS

Lodge Supper Last Wednesday Night A Bang-Up Affair

Last Wednesday evening, the male members of the local Eastern Star lodge entertained their sister stars at a "feed," which was cooked and served by the aforesaid gentlemen, who also provided their guests with an attractive program of music and reading, cards and dancing.

The only jarring note in the affair was the terrible information given out at the close of the supper by the spokesman and master of ceremonies, Meyer Levinson, as to the whereabouts of Swayne's pipe and what happened to Bill and the fried cakes.

There were piano selections by Mrs. A. A. Swinton and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham, solos by Mrs. Archie Livingston, a reading by Miss Kay Gaskin, and some real old fiddle swinging by that incomparable artist, our old friend and neighbor, Andy Ross, the imperishable Scotchman, who put the very De'il himsel' into the feet of his listeners.

McCANN'S BOAT, THE IDLER, A TOTAL LOSS

Engine Backfires When Mile and a Half Off Shore

The tish tug, Idler, owned by McCann Brothers of St. Jumes, caught fire from the engine backfiring, burned to the water's edge and sank before assistance could reach her, last Tuesday afternoon at about two o'clock.

The accident happened about a mile and a half off Garret Cole's place on the Beavers. Emmet and Ulysses McCann, accompanied by the other members of their crew, Francis Donlevy and Eddie Gallagher, left Charlevoix Tuesday morning at about eleven o'clock. No boat was near them when the accident occurred, but all managed to escape in the yawl boat which the Idler carried, without injury. The tug Venus, with John McCann in command, tried to reach the burning vessel, but could not get to her before she sank. The crew of the Idler landed at Cole's place and were taken home in the latter's car.

The Idler, which has been a familiar sight in these waters for a long time, was a valuable boat, powered with a 75 H. P. Kalenburg engine.

A TALK WITH A CHARLEVOIX MAN

Mr. Himebauch Tells Something of Interest to Charlevoix Folks

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Himebauch of Charlevoix, should be mighty helpful here in Charlevoix.

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My back ached and mornings when I got up, catches took me across my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly and I had to get up many times during the night to pass the secretions. I heard a lot about Donn's Pills, so I used a few boxes, from Metcalf's Drug Store, and they fixed me up in fine shape." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 10, 1924, Mr. Himebauch said: "I am glad to recommend Donn's Pills for they certainly helped me."

A GIFT THAT IS A COMPLIMENT

In the gift you receive you can sometimes see yourself as others see you, and the view is not always flattering. It may be a jazz record, or a gaudy tie, or a book that you would hate to have found on you if an auto bumped you into dreamland. And you can't really blame the giver. Knowing you well he concludes that you crave that sort of thing. On the other hand his gift may convey a subtle compliment—a gift of The Companion for instance. It is a tribute to your good taste, to a certain idealism he has perceived in your make-up, to the impression you give that life is real and earnest and not merely a game of skittles. You may be sure that anybody who thinks slightly of The Companion as a gift is himself making life a game of skittles—and very little else.

H. A. Craig, Lee R. Smith and Harley Ochs drove to Ann Arbor on Friday last and attended the U. of M.-Iowa football game. They made the trip by auto, returning Sunday. The game resulted in the defeat of the U. of M. team by a score of 9 to 2.

R. F. Sloan of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co., spent the week end in the city. Mr. Sloan states his road building operations at Pentwater are about completed, but additional work for the city will hold them there until early in the spring.

Mrs. H. C. Plum left for southern Michigan points Saturday. She will visit her daughter, Mrs. Fred Marsh of South Haven, her sister, Mrs. Nellie Godfrey of Kalamazoo, her son, Charles L. Plum of Cleveland and her daughter, Mrs. L. W. Sandberg of Detroit, whose home she will visit first.

Henry Partridge and Fred Myers of this city have received summonses to report at Grand Rapids on the second day of December as traverse jurors for the federal district court. The traverse juror, from what we can learn, bears the same relation to a grand juryman that an alternate to a convention has to a delegate.

Dr. F. F. McMillan had the misfortune to lose his summer cottage at Burt Lake, a three room structure that burned to the ground a week ago last Sunday night from cause unknown, although the doctor thinks it was probably caused from a cigarette butt or match dropped by some hunter who broke in to use it for temporary quarters.

Dr. Vernard L. Miller, former Charlevoix boy, who graduated last year from the College of Dentistry, U. of M. and had charge of Dr. Wilkinson's office in this city, during the latter's absence last summer, has located an office in Bellaire for the practice of his profession. He has the best wishes of the Courier and his many local friends for his success.

The Association of Commerce advertising committee are busy on the Charlevoix booklet for 1925. The new booklet is expected to be higger and better than ever. Proofs of some of the pages have been received from the printer and we might mention specially the new map of the Charlevoix region, which is much more detailed and explanatory than in previous years.

Following their annual hunt on Monday and Tuesday of last week, the local Pythians held a game supper last Thursday evening. The Reds, under leadership of R. C. Korth, won; the Blues, headed by Glenn Sanford, getting the meal and waiting table. About 170 people were present and the tables filled nearly three times. Cards and dancing were enjoyed until a late hour.

KITCHEN SHOWER FOR HOSPITAL'S BENEFIT

There Will Be Refreshments and Card-Playing

The ladies of the Eastern Star are planning a miscellaneous kitchen shower for the benefit of the Charlevoix hospital at the Masonic temple on Tuesday following Thanksgiving Day, which will be December 2nd.

Mrs. M. A. Levinson, chairman of the refreshment committee, states that there will be "eats" of soul-satisfying quality and that those who wish may play cards. All members of the Eastern Star are urged to be present.

PROMINENT EVELINE FARMER MARRIES

Will Make Their Home on Farm Southeast of City

Emil Nasson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nasson of Eveline township, was married to Miss Clara Mitchell, of Boyne City, Saturday evening, November 15, at the Presbyterian parsonage in that city, by the Rev. Linnell. They immediately left on a three day auto trip to southern Michigan points.

The groom is one of Eveline township's most popular young farmers and well known throughout the county, having been identified with Grange and Institute work for several years. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell and for several years has taught school both in Boyne City and points in the state.

The newly weds will make their home on the Nasson farm southeast of Charlevoix. The Courier with their numerous friends extends congratulations.

Post-Card Shower

D. J. Eckinger of this city was the recipient of a post card shower last Saturday from relatives and friends in Flint, who took this method of remembering his birthday anniversary, occurring on Sunday, November 23rd. A number of very fine and useful gifts accompanied the cards.

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Tomorrow Thanksgiving—Paramount presents a fine picture "BIG BROTHER," also a Cameo comedy "OH, CAPTIN." Admission prices, Adults 25c, Children 10.

Saturday and Sunday, November 29 and 30
Paramount presents a Booth Tarkington Story, "PIED PIPER MALONE" featuring Thomas Meighan. A romance with some kiddies, a girl and a new screen idea. Come along and follow "Pied Piper Malone" through love and adventure on land and sea. Lewis Wilson as leading lady. And a flock of the cutest kids ever seen on the screen. Also Lloyd Hamilton in his latest comedy riot. Two reels of hilarious laughter in "LONESOME."

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 2 and 3
Paramount presents "CODE OF THE SEA," a roaring action-tale of the sea, with Rod LaRocque and Jacqueline Logan. A sparkling yarn of the sea and the light-ships that patrol it. Full rigged with thrills and action and freighted with tingling thrills that know no equal. Also another one of the famous H. C. Witwer Telephone Girl stories, "LOVE AND LEARN."

Coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 5-6 and 7
The greatest picture of the year, "THE COVERED WAGON." Here's your greatest screen adventure. Over the thrill-swept trail of '49 with the Western pioneers. Sharing their perils living their romance. A picture that every red blooded American should see. In order that the rural school children may be able to see this picture, we will show this picture Saturday afternoon starting at 2:30. Evening—two shows starting at 7:15 and 9:15.

TO OLD FOR TOYS

Mrs. Nestor Noel

People are very particular to give their children enough to eat. I have seen breakfasts consist of fruit, porridge, eggs and bacon, toast, marmalade and coffee. This would have been enough for a good dinner, but it was simply a breakfast. Imagine what the dinner in such a home would be! Certainly most children nowadays—provided their parents are able to supply it—have more than enough to eat.

Yet while their little bodies are stuffed, their hearts are often starved for want of toys.

"I suppose you are busy buying toys," I remarked to a mother one day, a few weeks before Christmas.

"O no," she said. "My children are too old for toys!" The eldest one was not yet nine!

"What do you give them?" I asked. She told me that she filled their stockings with peanuts, oranges and candy! More to eat! From time to time, I had taken these children toys, and I knew by their delight in my gifts that they would have appreciated toys more than anything else.

Some mothers are quick to say: "My children are too old for toys." I often think they say this because they want the children to help more with the work. After all, it is the children themselves who should decide whether or not they are "too old for toys." Childhood can come but once. Why force your children to grow up too soon?

I have noticed that, when there were many in a family, the eldest was always supposed to be "too old for toys." Of course the child was not necessarily so. I knew a girl once who had been treated as if she were a grown-up since the age of four! It came from being the eldest of the family. At the age of seventeen, she found herself free, with money to spend. One of the first things she bought herself was a doll. She did not play with it, for her the years in which one plays with dolls were gone forever. She sewed for it, however, making it exquisite clothes, and she kept it in her trunk, looking at it frequently. Perhaps she realized how many games she might have played with a doll, and all she had missed in childhood because her mother had persisted in saying, "She is too old for toys."

A way to prove that your child likes toys is to provide an opportunity of choice for the next present. Nine children out of ten will choose toys! At Christmas time and birthday I so often have seen disappointment in children's faces that I feel like writing in huge capitals:—

"MOTHERS! ATTENTION! PLEASE GIVE YOUR CHILDREN TOYS!"

The next article in this series will be "What Do They Really Want?" by Mary S. Stover. If you read it before doing your Christmas shopping for the children both you and they may be benefited.

INHERITANCE TAX BILL AND INSURANCE TAX BILL

Inheritance Tax Bill

1. Ques. What was the amount received from the inheritance tax for the year ending June 30, 1924?

Ans. $3,492,613.60 and interest of $244,033.32.

2. Ques. What is the amount the proposed inheritance tax bill will add to the primary school interest fund?

Ans. About three and one-half millions of dollars.

3. Ques. Will the increased inheritance tax work an injustice to individual receiving estates?

Ans. No. It is in accordance with rates charged in several of the other states. It is assessed on funds to which the individual has not contributed his money or his time to accumulate.

4. Ques. What states have inheritance tax laws?

Ans. All states with the possible exception of one have such laws.

5. Ques. What states have rates corresponding to the proposed inheritance rates for Michigan?

Ans. California, Illinois, Colorado, Missouri, Wisconsin, and North and South Dakota. The following states also have as high or higher inheritance taxes on estates of $500,000 or over: Georgia, Kansas, Idaho, Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, Washington, Virginia and West Virginia.

6. Ques. What is the purpose of the inheritance tax bill?

Ans. Its purpose it to equelize school costs of Michigan by placing a tax upon an income of the individual to whieh he has not contributed time or money to accumulate.

Insurance Tax Bill

1. Ques. What was the amount received from the insurance tax for the year ending June 30, 1924?

Ans. $2,124,564.72.

2. Ques. What is the amount that the proposed bill increasing insurance tax will add to the primary school interest fund?

Ans. About $650,000.

3. Ques. How does the proposed insurance rate correspond with the insurance rates in other states?

Ans. This proposed rate will raise the tax on foreign insurance business in Michigan to about the same rate as paid by several other states.

4. Ques. Will the proposed rate work any injustiee to insurance companies or the insured?

Ans. No. This extra tax is in accordanee with several other states and the differenee to the insured would be so small that it is negligible and would not compare with the amount of financial aid that the bill would bring to the individual as an inhabitant of a school district.

5. Ques. Will Michigan insurance companies be taxed by the proposed bill?

Ans. No. Michigan organized companies are not toxed by this bill.

6. Ques. Will the collection of the added insurance rate and the added inheritance tax rate add and cost to collection?

Ans. It should not, because the same machinery that exists at the present time would collect the additional rate. It simply means more money from the same sources that are already paying.

7. Ques. What is the purpose of the insurance tax bill?

Ans. Its purpose is to equalize the school costs of Michigan by placing a tax on a business organized outside of this state and state-wide in its operation.

8. Ques. What change in rates does the proposed insurance bill contemplate.

Ans. It does not change the rate on fire, maring, and automobile insurance which are now 3 per cent. It does raise from 2 per cent to 3 per cent the rates of all other insurance companies organized outside of Michigan and doing business in Michigan.

Facts Concerning Both Bills

1. Ques. Whom will these two bills aid?

Ans. They will aid every taxpayer of every school district in Michigan as they increase the primary school interest fund on the present basis (about four million dollars) not considering the normal increase in business. Therefore, by signing this petition you help to initiate legislation that will add about $4.00 per child to the primary school interest fund.

2. Ques. Do these bills mean a tax on the individual or the school district?

Ans. They do not.

3. Ques. Will these bills relieve property tax?

Ans. Yes, because they supply funds which must now be supplied by a tax upon the real and personal property of each school district.

For further information concerning these two bills see "Reasons for Initiating this Legislation," which is attached to each petition.—Adv. 48-t1.

Learning to Build Roads

The advisory board of highway research, which recently met in Washington, is composed of from sixty to seventy of the leading engineers and scientists of the country. More than $1,000,000 is being spent on learning how to build highways so as to give the best and longest service per dollar, and this group of men have assembled to discuss and exchange data on the experiments in progress on roads.

Roads Help Keep Pace

Good roads have helped the farmer keep pace with modern things. Who would go back to those days when the farm was isolated especially in wet weather, the days of the dirt roads, the horse and buggy, or perhaps the sleigh, with its limited area of travel when a trip to town was considered a journey.

Poultry Notes

Successful poultry raisers hatch early for winter-laying pullets.

If the turkey hen wants to wean the brood early, there's little use to interfere by coaping them together. In such a case the hen is likely to kill or maim part or all of the brood.

In getting the machine ready for the eggs, be sure that the incubator is running evenly and maintaining a uniform temperature. The machine should be run for several days before the eggs are placed in it.

Do not brood too many chicks in one flock, because it does not pay to raise too many chicks under one stove. If a great number is to be brooded it will be cheaper in the end to buy another stove.

Give a flying start to little chicks by feeding them chick grit and sour milk or buttermilk when they are first hatched.

Incubators should be of good construction and run where drafts, sudden temperature changes and direct sunlight cannot reach them.

Baby chicks hatched out during April must receive the best kind of food to keep them growing, for it will take a little pushing to mature them before winter.

Remove Decayed Trees

Removal of all decayed trees bordering main line roads in Connecticut has been undertaken by the state highway department in the hope of removing the danger of highway blockades during heavy windstorms.

No actual cases of accidents involving falling trees across the roadways have come to the attention of the department, but it is felt that if this precaution is taken the probability of mishaps of this kind will be removed.

Poultry Notes

The wise poultry raiser knows that early hatching catches the best profits.

Young goslings should be kept out of the sun on hot days or they will suffer from the heat.

Gather eggs to be set often and keep them in a cool, dustless place, turning them twice daily.

The best cure for a hen with the egg-eating habit is to give her a dose of iron—applied just back of the ears.

You can count your chickens before they hatch if you observe carefully the correct principles of egg selection and incubation.

Milk is a very valuable feed for baby chicks, since it contains the vitamines so essential to growth and also protein required in a ration.

The thermometer used in the incubator should be tested to determine whether or not it is recording the temperature accurately.

The more ventilation allowed the more the egg evaporates. Skill in running the incubator consists in balancing these two factors so the eggs do not smother or dry out.

Right Feed for Sows

The sow needs the right kind of feed to produce a strong litter. Corn, barley and wheat are fattening feeds and should be supplemented with protein feeds and minerals to produce strong, healthy litters. Alfalfa, clovars, field peas and soy beans are protein faeds. Tankage and skim milk are animal sources of protein feeds and need consideration in the brood sow's diet.

LIVE STOCK

OILMEAL AND CORN FAVORED BY SHEEP

Some sheep feeders have been reporting excellent results from feeding a quarter of a pound of linseed meal a day to lambs in the corn field. Losses have been small and gains very satisfactory so far as they could be estimated. Similar reports have been made by others feeding lambs in the dry lot, though not under circumstances that allow a fair comparison. Some who have tried linseed meal feeding in the field have reported difficulty in getting the lambs to like it, says Chas. I. Bray, animal husbandry department, Colorado Agricultural college.

An explanation of the value of linseed meal with corn lies in the protein balance of the two feeds. A suggested reason for feed-lot losses from heavy corn feeding is that unused or unbalanced proteins may act as poisons in the body. Proteins are complex compounds of simple substances called amino-acids, some of these being highly necessary. Feeds vary considerably in the proportions of aiolno acids contained, some proteins being entirely lacking in one or more of these necessary amino-acids. When this is the case, another protein must be added containing an extra supply of the missing amino-acids.

Now linseed meal proteins and corn proteins appear to supplement each other in this way. At the Wisconsin experiment station tests with young pigs in regard to utilization of proteins showed that linseed meal proteins used alone were only 17 per cent available and the proteins of corn and barley were only 22 per cent available. But when a protein mixture was made up of three-quarters corn protein and one-quarter linseed meal protein, the mixed proteins were 37 per cent available, showing the value of each in supplementing the other.

Alfalfa probably supplies most of the amino-acids needed to balance corn, which is one reason why alfalfa and corn makes such a good combination in lamb feeding. However, in lamb feeding trials by E. J. Maynard at the Colorado experiment station last winter lambs getting linseed oil meal in addition to corn and alfalfa, gained three pounds more per head, brought 40 cents per hundred more on the market and made 38 cents per head more profit than those on alfalfa and corn only.

Tankage Good for Pigs on Rape and Blue Grass

During the summer of 1920, they found at the Iowa station that it paid to feed tankage in connection with corn to pigs on either rape or blue grass pasture. The pigs getting corn alone on rape pasture gained only two-thirds of a pound per head daily and required for 100 pounds of gain 623 pounds of corn, whereas the pigs getting tankage as well as corn gained 1.42 pounds per head daily and required for 100 pounds of gain 355 pounds of corn and 29 pounds of tankage. Each pound of tankage saved 7 pounds of corn. On blue grass, the results were almost identical with the results on rape, a pound of tankage saving 7 pounds of corn.

Earlier experiments at the Iowa station did not indicate such a decided advantage for tankage. It would seem, however, that even under the most unfavorable conditions a pound of tankage should replace 3 pounds of corn on rape pasture or about 4 or 5 pounds on blue grass pasture.

Market Through Sheep

Sheep not only afford a good market for salable feeds but for unsalable material, such as the forage around fences and ditch banks, the pick-up on meadows and stubble fields and other odds and ends of pasture not of sufficient acreage to use for cattle.

Live Stock Squibs

Scrubs lead—straight to failure.

Pure bred cattle figure out 49 per cent more efficient in production than scrubs.

An important thing is to provide clean dry shelters for the sows and their pigs.

Alfalfa and clover pastures are our best hog pastures and these can be used as soon as growth starts in the spring.

When the farmer buys stock he might better make it live stock than stock in a concern he knows nothing about.

Timothy hay is very undesirable as a feed for fattening cattle and clover or some other legume hay should be used if obtainable.

Tuberculosis is a menace to the hog business. In districts where skim milk, whey and other dairy products are fed to the hogs, contagion is likely.

With average prices for wool, a breeding ewe almost pays with her fleece for her upkeep during the year. And every little lamb means just so much profit.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

On a cold night there is nothing more appetizing than a good baked potato. One may vary the serving by using the following:

Stuffed Baked Potatoes.—Scrub the potatoes well with a vegetable brush, and bake until soft. Cut off a slice from the top, scoop out the potato, mash and mix with one cupful of finely-minced, cooked beef, adding more seasonings and refill the potato skins above the edge of the openings. Set into the oven to brown. Serve garnished with parsley.

Veal Cutlets With Horseradish Sauce.—Wipe a slice of veal and cut the meat into pieces. Cover with boiling water, simmer until the meat is tender. Drain, sprinkle with salt, dip into egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. For sauce melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one tablespoonful of flour and one cupful of water in which the veal was cooked. Add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a few drops of onion juice, a few grains of red pepper, one teaspoonful of grated horseradish and one-fourth cupful of cream.

Spanish Steak.—Take two pounds of round steak, cut into four-inch squares, on each square place a slice of breakfast bacon, roll up and skewer with tooth pick. Place the meat rolls in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, add a chopped onion, three carrots sliced thin, a pint of tomatoes, one tablespoonful of salt, a half-teaspoonful of pepper, and cook one and one-quarter hours. Serve hot.

Prune Salad.—Soak one-half pound of prunes over night and then simmer until tender. When cool pit them and stuff with walnut meats. Shred a bunch of lettuce, make nests and put on each plate four or five of the stuffed prunes. Add mayonnaise and serve.

On a cold day a good, old-fashioned dinner dish is side pork and baked potatoes. After the pork has been fried until crisp and brown, prepare a gravy with some of the fat, adding two or three tablespoonfuls of flour and milk, cooked until smooth. Season well before serving.

BROKEN WATER MAIN HAS BEEN REPAIRED

Cracked by Steamer Griffin Four Weeks Ago

Wurk of repairing the north side water main, which was cracked by the steamer, Griffin, some four weeks ago was practically finished last Tuesday, when the water was turned into the repaired main for the first time in a month.

The big pipe has been sunk to a depth of some two feet below the bed of the channel and a new valve has been installed on the north bank, which will be enclosed in a concrete pit. This valve with the one on the opposite side of the channel, which was installed two years ago this fall, will allow a much shorter length of hose to be used in case of a future break and the valves have been provided with outlets and inlets for two lengths instead of the one formerly used.

While working on the channel bottom, the divers cleaned up some pieces of dead cable that had been disconnected some years ago and left on the hottom hy the cable repair men, and made a general clean-up of the channel bottom at this point.

During the entire period that the main has been out of commission, north side residents have had to depend on a length or two of regular fire hose for their entire water supply.

Wednesday, December 3rd, at 2:00 p. m., the Ladies Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Charles Carey in a mission study.

AT THE MOVIES

He's Back Again

"Pied Piper Malone" is Tom Meighan's latest. Booth Tarkington wrote the story, a screen original. It's a Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Lois Wilson is the girl and George Fawcett, Cyril Ring and Charles Stevenson are in the cast. Alfred E. Green directed.

It's a story of sea-faring folk, ships and shipping—of small-town romance with an appeal not unlike that of "The Bachelor Daddy." Mr. Meighan had a good taste of the sea in "Homeward Bound" and has tried his luck at it again.

Come again, Tom, we can't get too much of this.

"Code of the Sea" Coming

"Code of the Sea," a new Paramount picture, with Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan, is due at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. Naturally it's a sea story. Victor Fleming, who made "To the Last Man," "The Call of the Canyon," "The Law of the Lawless," etc., directed.

Some of the big scenes include a series of storm episodes, a leap by La Rocque across a yawning chasm. This is a real thrill. The scene, in which the passengers of a grounded yacht are rescued from the shore by means of a breeches buoy, is a novelty. And then, when the yacht disappears beneath the waves—La Rocque and the captain with it, you'll surely think it's the end. But there's a happy climax to the picture.

It'll do you good to see it.

"The Covered Wagon" Coming

James Cruze's magnificent Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," a tremendous picture of the pioneer days on the plains preceding the gold rush of 1849, is coming to the Palace Theatre December 5, 6 and 7. J. Warren Kerrigan, Lois Wilson, Alan Hale, Tully Marshall, Ernest Torrence, Ethel Wales and Charles Ogle comprise the cast. The story has to do with the love adventures of Molly Wingate and Will Banion which mature during their migration to Oregon with thrilling effect. The picture is packed with dramatic moments, and the heart appeal is irresistable.

the Felch and Calumet mines, near Iron Mountain. He reported to Lansing and Mr. Baird wired Warden Andrews to investigate, with the result, it is said, that three citizens of Nadeau, Menominee county, were charged with grand larceny and subsequently admitted that they had cut the trees on land that had recently been turned over to the state because of non-payment of taxes. At the same time, wardens everywhere were instructed to sieze all trees found to have been cut on state land and to bring larceny charges against the persons in possession of them.

The three accused men protested, however, that the former owners of the land had given them permission to do the cutting and that in return they had agreed to give the former owners three cents a tree. Warden Andrews wired for instructions and Mr. Baird immediately sent back word to proceed with charges of grand larceny and to sieze and hold the half carload of trees.

"Lacking some specific law against timber cutting on state land," Mr. Baird declared, we will invoke the general statute covering grand or simple larceny as the case may be and will do everything possible to prevent a recurrence of the widespread waste of young evergreen trees that Christmas brought last year."

Detroit and other cities had hardly a vacant corner last December that was not filled with freshly-cut evergreens. The high prices that prevailed two weeks before Christmas gradually dropped as carload after carload of trees came in from the north until by Christmas eve trees that had been selling for $1 could be purchased for a dime. Even so the supply was so greatly out of proportion to the demand that only a small percentage of the trees in the city were sold. The others were all burned.

Subsequently the department of conservation received many reports to the effect that many trees had been cut on state forest land and that many others had been taken, without the owners' permission, from privately owned forests. Investigators were sent afield and evidence of promiscuous cutting was found in several counties, but in no case was the state able to bring charges against the persons who were believed to have been guilty.

The Johnson case will be the first of its kind to reach the courts.

ASK FOR INCREASE PRIMARY SCHOOL FUND

Petition Being Circulated by Friends of Public Schools

Friends of Michigan public schools are circulating initiatory petitions asking the legislature to pass two laws to boost the amount of the annual primary school fund. One of these would increase the tax on insurance companies organized outside of Michigan and doing business in this state to three per cent, and the other asks an increase in the inheritance tax rate in Michigan. The insurance tax increase would bring into the primary school fund about $650,000 annually, while the inheritance tax measure would add about $3,500,000 annually to the fund. Most other states have similar taxes.

The M. E. Sewing Club will hold their annual Christmas sale on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13. Place announced later.—47-t4.

ELIMINATE THE MARGIN OF DOUBT

CHILDREN SHOULD ALWAYS BE UNDER AUTHORITY

Reed City Editor Sees Chance for Better Cooperation Between Parent and Teacher

Wells F. Harvey, editor of the Osceola County Herald of Reed City has hit upon an idea which as far as we know is a new one and certainly aounds worth trying. It is a plan to bring the school child always under the supervision of either parent or teacher by eliminating any period in which the child can feel that he is out from under the eye and care of either. Mr. Harvey says:

"At the election just closed the people of the state of Michigan voted on an abridgment of the authority of parents. Whereas it has been cuatomary for parents to decide where their children should go to school, subject only to the educational requirements of the state, the proposal was that attendance at public schools be compulsory and that the parents be deprived of their option as to place of attendance.

That question has been settled by popular vote, and it is not pertinent here to argue about it. But it is pertinent to point to the general tendency of many parents to attempt to shift their responsibility to teachers and school executives. It would be easy if we could turn all of our children over to the school teachers and wash our hands of them. That would be an automatic relief-giver, which, though it is sometimes tried, is never successful. The teacher may be, in the words of the law, "in loco parentis," but the teacher cannot possibly be a substitute for father and mother.

Teachers have the children, in ordinary day schools, six or seven hours a day, five days of the week. That means a total of thirty to thirty-five hours per week out of a total of 168 hours. For the balance of the week, 133 to 138 hours, the children are out of school, and nearly all of that time they are out of the jurisdiction of teachers. It is comparatively simple for teachers to maintain discipline and to prevent trouble during the ordinary working hours of the school day. The difficulty arises almost wholly in the hours when school is not in session. And the responsibility of those hours rests more upon the parents than upon teachers.

What does our youngster do after achool? If he is late getting home; there is a screw loose. It is a wise family provision that each child must come directly home from school. Then, if he is to go somewhere else, let him get permission and have a fresh start. It is not, too much for parents to require that they know all of the time where their minor children are. That statement goes for boys and girls at least up to eighteen, and it may well be carried farther than that.

The point that The Herald is making is that the parents ought to be sure to take up the responsibility the moment the teachers are relieved of it. Any normal child will be glad to have a margin of doubt, wherein he is not accountable to any authority, and this margin of doubt is frequently a margin of mischief.

The parents and teachers of every community ought to work together to insure complete understanding as to their responsibility. There ought not to be any hazy misunderstanding about class functions and other affairs which keep the children out in the evening. It is not enough that an affair is labeled as a school or class affairs. Parents ought to be sure that every such project is fully sponsored by the school authorities, and that adequate provision is made for safe-guarding the conduct of the young people. Chaperonage is certainly proper and to the point.

When the school authorities give their sanction to a class or general achool function, there ought to be definiteness in the statement of the case to parents. Would it be helpful if the community had some general and easy method whereby parents could know what affairs are authorized and safeguarded? Would it be helpful if the school authorities ahould publish in The Herald each week a list of authorized functions, so that parents would know when the children are really passing into the responsibility of the teachers? If so, The Herald will gladly give the space, in order that the community may be well served.

Now does aome young person arise and say, "That's all foolishness. The

KIN OF CREW ASK $60,000 FROM CLIFTON

A suit in which relatives seek to collect damages for the loss of lives on the steamer Clifton, which foundered recently on Lake Huron, has been started.

Twelve of the crew of 28 were residents of Sturgeon Bay, and four of thot number have given their case to Nelson and Cedergren, attorneys of Duluth. Mrs. Penrl Purdy, Mrs. Pearl Writt, Mrs. Pauline Oertling, widowed by the morine tragedy, and Julius Erdmnn ore said to be interested in the action. They nre each seeking damages to the extent of $15,000.

The action will be brought against the Progress Steamship company, owners of the Clifton. Just on what grounds the case is to be founded has not been nnnounced.

The sinking of this boat caused tho death of four residents of Beaver Island, Capt. Emmet E. Gallagher, Joe Scheid, wheelsmnn, Peter Burns, wheelsman, and Anthony McDonough, second mate.

WE GET HARBOR APPROPRIATION

CHIEF OF ENGINEERS RECOMMENDS EIGHT THOUSAND

Should Be Spent in Dredging Out Channel to Make It Safe for Summer Traffic

According to a recent United Press dispatch, appropriations of $71,604,980 for rivers and harbors and flood control work during the fiscal year beginning July 1, next were recommended in the annual report of Major General Harry Taylor, chief of engineers of the army, submitted to congress reeently.

The general recommendations were as follows: Rivers and harbors, $54,183,390; examination surveys, $350,000; flood control, Mississippi river and contributaries, $10,000,000, flood control, Sacramento river, California, $500,000; Wilson dam, Tennessee, $6,541,590; California debris commission expenses, $15,000; and Yuha river restraining barriers, $15,000.

Among the harbors included are Charlevoix, $8,000; Cheboygan, $2,000; Black river, $2,500; Manistee, $6,000; Frankfort, $8,000.

We trust most sincerely that the $8,000.00 which has been appropriated for the use of Charlevoix will be used for dredging out the channel between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. At the present time, there is only about a foot of clearance between the channel bottom and the keel of the largest passenger boat making this harbor. The contour of the channel is constantly changing and if, as it often happens, a good sized rock should shift position it may be rammed hard enough to jar the attractions of Charlevoix for incoming and outgoing passengers completely out of their minds. At any rate, it certainly won't do us any good to have something like this hoppen.

What we would like to see is the General Meade in here in the early apring, giving the channel a complete overhauling in preporation for the summer traffic. This could be accomplished by an earnest petition filed with our representative and senator in congress, setting forth the urgency of the matter. We could surely count on East Jordan nnd Boyne City to stand solidly with us in this matter, as it concerns these towns and their shipping no less than us.

Lowering the water main to the north side below the channel bottom was the first good step forward toword improvement. Now let's go after the General Meade next nnd get her.

$2.00 Free to the person who makes the nearest guess of the weight, alao number of the seed in the mammoth squash on display in our north show window. S. M. See & Son.—Adv, 49-t1.

ROY BENDELL COMING NEXT

POPULAR LITERARY INTERPRETER A LIVE WIRE

Is One of the Best Entertainers On the Redpath Circuit—Here Dec. 10th

Roy E. Bendell comes to Charlevoix on the next number of the Redpath lecture course, which is scheduled for Wednesday, December 10th, at 8:00 p. m.

His program will include the following:

An Evening of Miscellaneous Selections (Some in Special Costumes.)

An Evening with James Whitcomb Riley "The Merchant of Venice," "Ben Hur."

Mr. Bendell is a unique personality. He is large of body and large of soul. The artist tingles in every fibre of his being. Nature has endowed him with rare dramatic instinct, a rich, resonant, musical voice.

To inspire, instruct and entertain the average audience, representing our vigorous and intelligent civilization, is a task whose difficulty is best understood and appreciated by those who have attempted it. Mr. Roy E. Bendell has essayed that task with success for the past five seasons.

Mr. Bendell's interpretationa are clear and sharp in their outlines, and full of fire and dash that inspire and hold attention of the most listless individual; and yet they are well shaded and tempered with that reserve that gives to art its needed balance nnd repose.

His instinctive discrimination in literary and dramatic values gives to his work what all true art has—an educational value.

For the average audience, Mr. Bendell's most popular program is his evening of miscellaneous selections. In this program Mr. Bendell will present a variety of characters. For some he uses grease paints, wigs and "make-up" in full view of the audience, giving a brief sketch of each character to be presented. One of his most popular numbers in an impersonation of Abrnham Lincoln.

The numbers that follow Mr. Bendell are fully up to the high Redpath standnrd and represent a diversity of entertainment which insures for patrons of the course three more profitable nnd delightful evenings. The Zedeler Symphonie Quintet comes to us on January 16th, followed by Ralph Bingham, America's foremost platform humorist, on February 2nd and Everett Kemp, "The Man with a Million Dollar Laugh," on March 13th. It is hoped that the public will appreclnte the high character of the entertainment that is being provided for them and wil respond liberally, as upon their support depends the future of the lecture course in Charlevoix.

Notice

To the Taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix:

Notice is hereby given that the December tax roll of the City of Charlevoix has been delivered to me and that the taxes therein levied are payable at my office at any time on or before the 9th day of January, 1925, without charge for collection. On all taxes remaining unpaid after the 9th day of January, a collection fee of four cents on the dollar will be charged and collected.

FISHERIES SHOW A BIG SHORTAGE

FALL-OFF DUE TO BAD WEATHER CONDITIONS

Booth's Production Alone for November, However, Totals Over 268,000 Pounds

According to expert estimate, commercial fisheries in local waters this fall will show a tonnage deficit, as compared with 1923, of approximately 10 per cent. This shortage is due primarily to the prevalence of unusually bad weather during the few weeks of the fishing season. Heavy seas and high winds have appreciably cut down the number of available working days and the loss in nets and gear has run up into considerable money. The quality of the fish and quantity of the individual catches, however, have been all that could be desired, and this fact has helped, in a measure, to average up.

Fishing in Lake Michigan is now practically over, until the short, ten day whitefish season opens on December 16th. At the present time, perch, menominees and chubs form the principal portion of the catches. The regular fishing fleet operating out of this harbor was augmented this year by two boats from Detroit Harbor, Wisconsin, and one from Manistee.

The figures for November, given out by the Booth Fisheries Company, the largest operators in these waters, show a total production of trout in pounds and by districts as follows:

Beaver Island	129,534
Charlevoix	95,270
Northport	25,727
Leland	17,860
Total	268,391

The palm for the largest individual tonnage goes to Harold McCann of Charlevoix, whose catch totaled 24 tons. Louis Bourissau didn't quite come up to his last year's mark, nor did Duba & Heise, although they did most excellently well considering their handicaps.

The Charlevoix Fish Company froze about he same amount if fish as last year, some 30,000 pounds, and report the fish in the best shape that they have ever been. A carload of frozen stock has already left the plant consigned to southern points.

Louis Bourissau and John Nordrum have already signified their intention to go after whitefish as soon as the season opens. The prospects for a large haul look good.

The Christmas Month

ANOTHER CHARLEVOIX BOY HAS MADE GOOD

Richard Paddock Member of M. A. C. Judging Team

Richard Paddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Paddock of Charlevoix, was one of six out of the senior class in animal husbandry at M. A. C., numbering thirty students, to be appointed on the judging team of the college sent to the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago to judge cattle in competition with the teams of 22 other colleges of the United States and Canada.

Mr. Paddock won this honor through standing third in scholarship in the animal husbandry class. He was also recehtly elected a member of the Alpha Zeta chapter and acted as toastmaster at the fraternity banquet. The Alpha Zeta is an agricultural fraternity, open only to those students having the highest standing in their classes at the college.

Advices from Chicago indicate that in the judging contest, the agricultural colleges of Nebraska, Missouri and Ohio secured in their order the first, second and third places. Michigan A. C. came seventeenth on the list of 22 agricultural institutions, which is better than she has ever done before.

FRUGAL MEAL NEXT SUNDAY

EAT GOLDEN RULE DINNER AND HELP KIDDIES

Day to Be Observed Throughout the Land and Savings Go to Near East Fund

We are asked to observe the Golden Rule in our homes next Sunday by making the dinner a very simple meal and, as we eat it, to consider the needs of the Near East orphans, making such contribution to their support as we would like to have made for our children under like circumstances.

Someone will call at every home early the following week to receive the gifts of those who observe the day.

Observance of Golden Rule Sunday may mean "going to the second mile" in many homes and in others "giving when it hurts," but the lives and well-being of thousands of children depend upon replenishing the Near East treasury at this time. Let's do it! Golden Rule Sunday is December 7th. Remember the date.

The following "Grace Before Meat," is the composition of Dr. Henry Van Dyke, and was inspired by Golden Rule Sunday:

"Thanks be unto Thee, O Giver of our daily bread,

"For this communion of the Golden Rule.

"May this plain food strengthen our bodies,

"And the loving-cup of kindness refresh our souls.

"Bless the great multitude of homeless children,

"Thy little ones far away in the Near East,

"Whom we greet in spirit at our table today.

"Orphaned, may they find in Thee a Father;

"Helpless, may they find in us true helpers.

"In their hunger, we would feed them,

"In the prison of man's cruelty we would visit them.

"Grant, O Father, most merciful and loving,

"That our hearts may hear the benediction

"Of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ;

" 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these,

" 'Ye have done it unto me.' Amen."

LOCAL DEBATE TEAM MEETS CENTRAL LAKE

The debating team of Charlevoix high school will debate with Central Lake here on Friday evening, December 12th, at 8:00 o'clock, in the high school auditorium. The subject is the independence of the Phillipines, the Charlevoix team upholding the negative side of the question.

The local team is composed of Henrietta Baldwin, John Dutcher and Donald Swinton. The debate is under the direction of Miss Etta M. Reed of the high school faculty.

LINING UP A BIG PROGRAM

RESORT ASSOCIATION PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR

Will Try to Bring In Outside Capital to Develop Resort Property

A west Michigan development project of immense proportions is under consideration by President Carroll F. Sweet and secretary-manager Hugh J. Gray of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association as a part of the 1925 program of the association, it was announced recently.

If the plans go through to completion with other plans for the swelling of the 1925 summer business of this section, the stride which property values took in 1924 will be outstripped many times in 1925.

Lines are being laid for the bringing in of outside capital to develop several resort sections, for the purpose of bringing permanent summer visitors here season after season with the consequent profit to every business man, citizen and wage earner in the thirty counties of west Michigan.

Already deals in three different sections of the territory are close to a closing point with outside organizations that have been veritable "empire builders" in other parts of the United States.

President Sweet and Secretary Gray of the association have seen the shore line of Lake Michigan from Holland to Pentwater snapped up by Chicago capital before west Michigan folks were awake to what they had at their doors. Now they propose to turn outside capital to work for supporters of the tourist association and to make members of the organization realize what they have and to work for the genuine realization of the dream that has for years confronted the far-seeing officials.

Carrying the 1924 campaign of the association to a partial conclusion—with the consequent activity in development—resulted in the approach of outside development organizations and the present near-fruition of plans of immense scope. "Our determination to carry out the program for 1925 ratified by the big October meeting of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association is what will hring this development work to a head in the next summer," said Secretary Gray in commenting upon the impending developments.

"We have built for years to this point. We took a fair stride toward it in 1923, and last year in spite of a wintry summer, we made even greater progress than in 1923, due to the enlargement of our publicity effort, our work in bringing in tourists from every state in the union. Those in close touch with the association work have for a number of years seen this great possibility ahead. It is at our doors now. We cannot divulge the details until the completion of our arrangements for we do not want them upset at this time.

"President Sweet, with his usual vigor, is using every measure to make effective the decision to raise $100,000 for the association's work for 1925, and every one of the thirty counties must get behind the work body and aoul, to make our development plans come through. We must have no shirkers this year, for far more depends upon it to every resort proprietor and merchant in west Michigan than just the dollars dollars of the 1925 tourists. Property value increases that will run into the dens nf millions on every rond, in every village, in every city and town of west Michigan rest upon the carrying out of the 1925 program."

Nothing more amazing ever has been seen on stage or screen, and its equal may not be seen in years to come.

Love, adventure, thrills—these are the component elements of this superb screen triumph.

Indian attacks, prairie fires, fording of swollen streams, a great buffalo hunt, dramatic situations galore—these make up the story of the greatest picture ever filmed.

Oh, Susanna, when you see this Paramount picture, you will wonder at its bigness, its purity and wholesomeness.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Bad Backs Bring Suffering to Many Charlevoix Folks

Is that dull, constant backache making you old and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going? Do you suffer headaches, dizzy spells and urinary disorders; feel weak, tired and worn-out? Then look to your kidneys. Delay may mean serious kidney sickness! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's are recommended by Charlevoix folks.

Mrs. R. B. Stafford, 103 Green Ave., Charlevoix, says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I stooped to pick up anything, sharp, cutting pains darted across my kidneys. Dizzy spells came over me frequently when little, black specks came before my eyes, blurring my sight. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Doan's Pills, from the Central Drug Store, rid me of the trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Stafford had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FARM STOCK

YOUNG PORKER WILL MAKE CHEAPER GAIN

When does a pig make its cheapest gains, and when does it sell for the highest price per pound? This is a question that often confronts the farmer who is raising pigs for the market, says Prof. L. V. Starkey, chief of the animal husbandry division at Clemson college, in discussing the marketing of hogs.

Experimental data prove beyond a doubt that the younger the pig the cheaper the gains. A review of the pig market reveals another very interesting fact, namely, that feeder pigs sell for a higher price per pound than those which are ready for the block. If we put these two ideas together it would seem that there is more money in producing feeder pigs than there is in producing fat hogs ready for market. Of course there are many factors, says Professor Starkey, to take into consideration in producing feeder pigs. For example, fairly large litters must be raised. If the herd does not average at least six pigs per litter there will be no money in it. Large litters and cheap pigs go together.

One reason why feeder pigs are so much in demand is that there are so many who do not keep a brood sow and yet they want one or two pigs to fatten for pork.

The man who produces feeder pigs on a large scale must have considerable equipment. Several small lots are necessary in order that not more than two brood sows may be in a lot. Usually good results cannot be obtained by keeping several brood sows and litters together.

With the small-lot proposition there also comes the problem of fresh water. Running streams are ideal for the hogs, but hard to keep fenced. If water is piped to the lots, care must be taken so that there will be no mud wallows.

Male pigs should be castrated at from six to ten weeks of age. The younger they are castrated the less will be the shock. The best time to wean feeder pigs is when they are eight weeks of age.

The greatest demand for feeder pigs is in the fall when corn is ready to be used. At this time carlot shipments can be made.

Proper Ration for Mare Is of Much Importance

"The best time to grow foals, and the time when they will make their largest gains is when they are being carried by their dams," says N. K. Carnes of the animal husbandry division at University farm at St Paul, Minn. "Many farmers do not realize this, and begin feeding the mare a proper ration only after the foal is here. The brood mare, when in foal, should be fed a high protein ration, a ration which is rich in muscle and bone building material. This material is supplied in the form of oats, bran and oil meal, an a concentrate, and clover or alfalfa hay as a roughage.

"The most common causes for losses among foals are constipation and navel trouble. As soon as the young foal arrives, see that he gets a good drink of his mother's first milk. This fore-milk or colostrum has purgative properties and will usually clear the foal's intestines of the excrement accumulated prior to birth. If the digestive tract is not cleaned by the fore-milk, give the foal a tablespoonful of castor oil and a warm water and soap rectal injection.

"Another thing the farmer must watch out for is navel infection. If pus and disease germs get inside the body through the opening of the umbilical cord, a local infection or 'joint ill' may develop and the foal be lost. The best way to prevent this is to keep the stable in a sanitary condition and treat the cord immediately after the foal is born with boric acid powder or tincture of iodine."

Live Stock Hints

Avoid stagnant mud wallows.

Change pastures for sheep frequently.

A pig that doesn't make a hog of himself isn't profitable.

"Purebred Live Stock on Every Farm." Eventually, why not sooner?

Watch your sheep carefully to see that they do not become infested with worms.

Tip to dairymen: Proper feeding means cheaper milk and, therefore, more profit.

Cattle, horses and sheep as well as hogs are fond of hay, but they cannot be expected to eat the coarse stems.

Colts, calves, lambs and pigs, all should have special feed set apart for them as soon as they can be coaxed to eat. Oats are very good.

Hogs with cholera often have diarrhea after they have been sick a short time. Pus may form in the eyes, red or purple blotches come on the skin of the belly inside the legs.

ROAD COURTESY IS OFTEN NEGLECTED

Many Little Things Make Motor Traveling Most Difficult on Highways.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

When you are driving along a road and someone approaching from behind sounds his horn to pass, let him do so.

Many times when driving along the highway you may have noticed drivers give the signal to the car ahead and try to pass only to have the car on the right hand side speed up.

Jangle's Driver's Nerves.

It certainly jangles a drivers' nerves when he finds the car ahead speeding up when he attempts to go by. There is no excuse for this sort of thing. If you want to pass, why should the man on the right step on the throttle and attempt to block you?

There is plenty of courtesy to be observed on the road besides mere theory. If we were more thoughtful of the other fellow, motoring would be a lot more pleasant.

Not Watching Road.

The other day a motorist reported that he was coming from Gary and was crossing the railroad tracks in South Chicago. There is a right angle turn there, and it is dangerous unless low speed is maintained. Coming around the turn a boy was observed driving a delivery wagon. He was taking about all the room to be had on the highway and when this motorist looked at him he found the chap was busily engaged in reading a letter and was not watching the road at all.

It is just such things as this instance that makes motor traveling hard and troublesome. If motorists would drive sanely there would be fewer disasters on the highways.

Remove Scratches From Car Body With Shellac

A car owner naturally takes pride in the finish of a new car and endeavors to retain its mirror-like luster as long as possible. But when work must be done on the car the finish often suffers. Often a button will scratch its way along a fender or the slipping of a screwdriver will leave an unsightly blemish. A method which has often given satisfaction, says the Automobile Digest, is to apply several coats of thin shellac until the scratch has been completely filled. When the last coat has dried it is rubbed with crocus cloth and a little olive oil, just enough to rub out the ridges where the new and old coats join.

Crocus cloth, used extensively by jewelers, is a polishing cloth of a much finer grade than the finest emery cloth and will rub down a surface without the semblance of a scratch. After no signs remain of where the two coats join, a rub-down with a good body polish will render the touch-up inconspicuous and restore the surface to its orginal appearance.

Plan to Keep Windshield Clear in Moist Weather

It is always annoying when at the last moment one is in a hurry to take up a meal or coming from out-of-doors into a warmer temperature, to find the lenses of one's glasses suddenly clouded with steam.

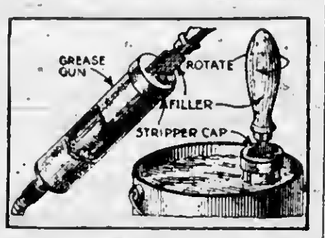
Prevent this by washing the glasses perfectly clean. Dry them on a soft cloth, and then rub with a cloth which has been moistened with a very small amount of paraffin oil. All that is needed is the thinnest film to coat the surface, yet not enough to attract dust. This coating prevents the moisture touching the glass. It is convenient to have a cloth ready prepared. The same plan is excellent to keep the windshield of the automobile clear in damp weather.

Refilling Pressure Type of Grease Gun Is Easy

Refilling the pressure type of grease gun, such as is used in conjunction with modern lubrication systems on automobiles, is a slow and tedious procedure as well as disagreeable because of the amount of grease that is deposited on the hands during the process.

An improved method of filling, which was devised by a Washington (D. C.) motorist, is illustrated. It is simple enough to warrant adoption by any motorist who objects to having to fill the gun with his fingers or a stick, and is also a quicker method.

The filler is simple, a flat strip of sheet metal, fitted with a wooden handle on the upper end. The blade part passes through a slot in a cap that is of the right size to fit the grease-gun barrel. The handle, blade, and cap may be made of any available materials such as a file handle, a strip of galvanized iron, and a metal can top.



Cheaply Made Filler Saves Time in Charging a Pressure Gun With Grease.

In operation the filler is inserted in the can of grease and turned continuously while it is being pulled out. The grease in the shape of a cylinder adheres to the sides of the strip. The filler then is placed in the grease gun, the cap is pushed down over the barrel, and the blade is slipped out, thus leaving the contents inside the gun.—Popular Science Monthly.

Bad Plugs Cause Missing and Jerking of Motors

There are few things more annoying to the motorist than a missing, skipping motor. Besides the certainty that this condition is imposing a serious strain upon the engine, clutch, transmission and the rest of the propelling system of the car, due to the irregularity of the power impulses, it means increased gasoline and oil consumption and carbonized cylinders. Too frequently motorists are prone to suspect the carburetor and start to tinker with the adjustments, when, as a matter of fact, there is nothing the matter with the mixture. The whole trouble may be due to uneven spark gaps, caused either by bending the electrodes unintentionally in removing or cleaning the plugs, and sometimes in replacing them, or by the points becoming pitted to such an extent that the gap is materially widened. By spacing the gap so that there is a space of one thirty-second of an inch between the actual firing surfaces of the two points this condition may be quickly and easily corrected.

Dangers of Carbon Monoxide.

One of the dangers not commonly known to automobile owners is that from carbon monoxide, a deadly gas given off from the exhaust pipe. Because of the fact that many automobile campers build their tent as a part of their automobile, they should know the danger that exists from this odorless, colorless gas. Never run the engine of your automobile without making sure that you are receiving plenty of fresh air. The best rule to follow is never to run the engine in any inclosed place, for any length of time.

An efficient piston ring spreader can be made from one-quarter-inch round stock with one-half of each piece hammered flat and the ends bent, says the Automobile Digest. The two ends are bolted or riveted together and when inserted in the ring slot will permit spreading the ring so that it can be removed over the head of the piston.

Help Your Railroads Keep Tracks Clear

With every Railroad, passenger safety must be the first consideration always. That implies that there must be a clear track.

As motor vehicles multiply, this problem becomes increasingly difficult almost from day to day for the 24 steam Railroads of Michigan. Despite the most costly and carefully planned precautions on the part of the Railroads, crossing accidents are becoming appallingly frequent.

Such accidents are due to the growing recklessness of the motorists. Yet each accident also imperils the lives of trainmen and passengers.

Separation of grades can never solve this problem, for crossings are multiplying far faster than grades can be separated. And, with each separation costing from $70,000 to $100,000, the entire wealth of Michigan could not accomplish the task.

The public demands of us speed—quick delivery—for passengers, mails, freight. To keep our tracks clear for this efficient service, and to maintain our standards of absolute safety, we must have cooperation at crossings.

Most motorists give this cooperation by heeding our request to Stop Look, Listen. For their own protection, as well as ours, those who do not heed this request should be made to do so by the mandate of Law.

Do you agree? Write us your verdict.

NOT WHAT, BUT HOW

Every once in a while these days on is reminded that in a little while Christmas will be here. To do the kind of thing that old Kriskingle does takes a lot of planning if it is to be done well; in a manner of speaking you have to get ready for it. Not that this planning is ever hard work, even if you go at it with all your might and main; because as every boy and girl knows when you do anything to make anyone happy, it is never hard work, and the more patience and skill you have to employ in doing it, the more enjoyment it is.

If you were to ask him face to face, Santa Claus would tell you that a lot of people miss half the fun of Christmas because they forget that it is not what is given that counts, but how the thing is given. He would tell you what a thing costs, or how much it shines, has nothing to do with it. What really counts is how much affection and kindness and well-wishing you put into it. It is what you are, and not what the gift is, that counts.

That is why Christmas is such a wonderful season; and that is why most people who like Santa Claus and Christmas try to plan and get ready for this great day, so that they may have most of themselves to give when that day comes.

Santa Claus never yet waited till the last minute and then scurried around and wondered what he would do about this and about that. You can guess from the stories they tell about him, and from the way he looks, that he is the kind who does things when they ought to be done—quite a while before the last minute. And in these things it is well to follow Santa's example.

STOLEN WATER

Chicago is preparing to renew its fight in congress for diverting still more water from Lake Michigan through its drainage canal. Other cities on the Great Lake are preparing to resist that project more vigorously than ever.

The other cities protest that Chicago is already shamelessly taking more water than the law allows or than is good for the Great Lakes and the populous region they serve. The levels of all the lakes except Superior have been lowered already to a point that cripples navigation and necessitates the spending of millions to deepen channels and dredge harbors.

Moreover, they say, Chicago under the guise of a mere sanitary drainage project, is also using for power water that does not belong to her, at the expense of American and Canadian cities.

As for the "Lake to Gulf barge canal," the critics question the sincerity of that proposal, on the ground that such a volume of water as Chicago demands would make canal transportation impractical.

The people of the Illinois river valley are adding their protest against the "great open sewer" inflicted on them by the metropolis.

Chicago, instead of robbing the great lakes, may yet be obliged to dispose of her sewage at her own expense, in sanitary ways, as other cities are.

STARS' KITCHEN SHOWER WAS FINE SUCCESS

Many Useful Articles Contributed for Local Hospital

The miscellaneous kitchen shower, held at the Masonic Temple by the ladies of the Eastern Star last Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Charlevoix Hospital, was a complete success—both from the standpoint of the results obtained and the fun enjoyed.

The committee in charge, which consisted of Mrs. Meyer A. Levinson, chairman, assisted by Mesdames Richardson, Shores, Elston and Courier, wish to thank the members of the Star Lodge for their loyal and generous support, and to this the superintendent of the hospital, Miss Bertha Larsen, joins her expressions of gratitude and satisfaction at the hearty response that was accorded the plea for assistance.

A large number of kitchen furnishings, utensils, linens, dish towels, wash cloths and other articles were donated, including tea kettles and a fine percolator.

Refreshments were served during the afternoon and the ladies afterwards enjoyed a dance and stirred up enough hilarity to make the afternoon a memorable one from an entertainment standpoint.

FIRE WRECKS COOPER HOUSE ON MASON ST.

Caught in First Floor Ceiling from Overheated Pipe

The Cooper residence at 406 Mason street caught fire at about nine o'clock last Thursday evening and was partially destroyed, the family being away at the movies when it happened.

When its occupants left the house, the lower draft in the heating stove was not closed through oversight and the stove pipe leading through the ceiling to the upper floor became overheated, igniting the adjacent woodwork. Despite the efficient work of the fire department, hampered by a high west wind, the roof and a portion of the upper story were completely demolished. A portion of the furnishings was saved and the damage to the building fully covered by insurance.

The family have removed to temporary quarters at No. 403 Antrim street, until such time as repairs on their home are completed.

MISS CARPENTER WEDS RICHARD G. FINUCAN

Ceremony Performed in Canadian Soo Thursday

R. G. Finucan of this city and Miss Margaret Carpenter, former member of the nursing staff of the Charlevoix hospital, were married at St. Joseph's church in the Canadian Soo on Thanksgiving morning, Thursday, November 27th.

Miss Elennor Finucan, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and Kenneth Carpenter, brother of the bride, as groomsman. A wedding breakfast was served to about thirty people.

The bridal couple returned Friday to Charlevoix, where they will occupy the Armstrong cottage on the north side for the balance of the winter, Mr. Finucan having employment in the local hatchery. They have the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends, in which the Courier joins most heartily.

FRANK J. TODD WAS A FORMER RESIDENT

Cheboygan Man Dies at Home of Sister in Detroit

Frank J. Todd, former resident of this city, died last Wednesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. May Luke of Detroit, as the result of a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Todd, who was born on Mackinac Island sixty-five years ago, was a member of the Blue Lodge, the Royal Arch Masons and the Order of the Eastern Star. He had spent he greater part of his life in Cheboygan and of late years held the office of assistant postmaster at Ray, North Dakota. During the past year he had been unable to attend to his work due to the encroachment of his disease, and was visiting his sister in Detroit for the holidays when death occurred.

The funeral was held at Cheboygan last Saturday morning, under the auspices of the Masonic Lodge of that city. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clarn Todd of Charlevoix, his sister, Mrs. Luke of Detroit and five children, Mrs. Miles Olmstead and Mrs. Charles H. Emrey of Charlevoix, Mrs. George Kalhfleisch of Petoskey and Mrs. Sims Clark and Gordon Todd of Grand Rapids. There are also seven grandchildren.

"The Covered Wagon"

Beautiful, romantic and soul-stirring.— Here's your greatest screen adventure. Over the thrill-swept trail of '49 with the western pioneers. Sharing their perils, living their romance. The picture the whole country is talking about. A vast, thrilling spectacle. You'll see hundreds of men and women, children, horses and oxen. A two-mile wagon train fleeing for their lives from a raging prairie fire. A thousand real, yelling, painted Indians riding madly to attack in their famous "Circle of Death" formation. A buffalo hunt with the world's only remaining herd of buffalo. You'll see the great wagon train ford a turbulent mile-wide torrent. You'll see the whole spectacular heart-drama of the perilous, glorious days of '49, in the most amazing settings ever photographed. With Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan and an all-star cast. For the benefit of those who can not attend the evening shows, we will show this picture Saturday afternoon, starting at 2:30.—Admission prices: children, 25 cents; adults, 50 cents.

Tuesday, December 9

HOME EDUCATION

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

WHAT DO THEY REALLY WANT?

Mary S. Stover

Did you ever have the experience of giving a child some carefully selected and perhaps expensive gift which was not appreciated because the little one's heart had been set on something else?

It may be that you knew in advance what the child most wanted, but you could not easily procure it or considered the other thing more suitable; again, it may be you were enlightened only by a resentful or heart-broken outburst regarding the sled, bicycle or toy of heart's desire.

At such a time nobody should be too much impressed by the child's apparent ingratitude, nor too anxious to hurry down-town and secure what he wants. More important is the open-minded consideration of his desire. Is what the child wants in reason? Does he really long for it, or is this merely a passing whim, perhaps the selfish desire to own something like whatever a playmate has?

One can do a child grave injustice by getting him everything he wants. This is a world of limitations, thwarted wishes, necessity for sharing with others. The person whose every early wish was granted finds it hard to adjust himself to life.

We ought, however, to choose our gifts from the standpoint of sympathetic regard for the child and less from what catches the adult fancy; there ought also to be more concern for the needs of his developing life. Knowledge of what the child really wants furnishes valuable understanding of his personnlity. This means not only to know what he wants but why.

Two boys may declare that they want "a sled like Fred's," and not have very unlike desires. John may express his reasonable wish for a sturdy, well designed piece of play apparatus that he would continue to value, care for and use a long time; John may only want to have a shiny new sled because Fred has one. Keeping up with all the neighbors is a dangerous ambition, as we have tragic witness everywhere; fostering that spirit is no mark of parental kindness, nor should we cater to unduly expensive tastes in children.

On the other hand, a boy or girl who seemingly "wants the moon" may in reality be yearning for something essentially more attainable, such as moonlight! It is worth much patient inquiry and observation to learn what children really want to have, since their longings are significant sign-posts pointing the way that individual tastes and abilities lead.

The child who talks of wanting a violin may only be hungry to hear good music, an excellent but different thing. Perhaps he does want to play some instrument but would be discouraged by beginning on such a difficult one as the violin.

The boy who teases for expensive mechanical toys may have his real wish better gratified in the ownership of materials with which to experiment and construct his own metal toys. Of all things, one should be sure not to stunt a creative talent by the presents he gives.

Thomas C. McRau, Governor of Arkansas, says, "The education of their children is the most important duty of any people, and the proper training of its future citizenship is the biggest problem of any state." Surely no one will dispute this declaration, and yet this "most important duty" is being sadly neglected so long as there is a single child who may not have the privilege of attending kindergarten. The kindergarten age is the most impressionable, and the kindergarten offers "the proper training." Are the little children of your community getting this training? If not, a letter the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York, will bring you literature which will show you how this may be brought about.

Best Plan to Save Feed by Discarding All Males

It will cost about $1.50 to feed each male in the poultry flock until next year, and since the males are of no value to the flock until next breeding season, it is natural to ask, why feed them for eight months without returns, especially when new blood is needed to help build up the flock?

You can purchase new cockerels from any reliable breeder and save the feed money and time in raising them, and new cockerels will mean better baby chicks and a larger percentage raised next year, according to poultry specialists.

Infertile eggs will keep better during the hot summer days, and they have a better market value than the fertile eggs. After a fertile egg germinates and the blood rings begin to form, the eggs are not good for human food. "Swat the rooster and produce infertile eggs" should be the slogan.

Farm Hints

Good seed costs less than poor seed.

In two months a field of weeds can sap the ground of moisture that would mature this year's crop.

Canada thistles can be eradicated. They are indeed hard to kill, but clean cultivation will turn the trick.

Take an interest in your garden. It will be a pleasure for you to care for it, rather than a drudgery.

Rebuilding isn't always necessary to make farm homes attractive. Paint and shrubbery will work wonders.

Prepare to dust the Irish potatoes with arsenate of lead for the control of the Colorado beetle, or potato bug.

High corn yields are most likely to be gained on fields planted to clover, alfalfa, or sweet clover the year before.

Dust cabbage plants with arsenate of lead for the control of cabbage worms. This may be more efficiently applied when the dew is on the plants in the early morning.

Broom corn will succeed on any good corn soil. There are two general varieties grown, the dwarf and the standard, which refers to the height of the stalk and the length of the bush.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By National Editorial Ass'n.

Special to The Courier

Washington, Dec. 3. — Congress has received two important messages from President Coolidge. Today, his message setting forth the opinions and recommendations of the administration was read to the senate and the house. The president's budget message showing a reduction of $59,225,931,72, in estimates of federal appropriations for the fiscal year of 1926, was also submitted to the legislative body. The estimated expenditures for 1926 amounted to $3,729,519,846.48.

In his message to congress, the president stressed the need of rigid economy in public expenditures. He stated that the national taxes still amount to $27 for each one of our inhabitants and that further reduction was necessary. The message was sent to congress and not delivered in person as the personal appearance is made at the opening of the new congress and not at the beginning of subsequent sessions.

Though 26 subjects were covered, the keynote of Mr. Coolidge's message was economy as a means to continued prosperity. "Our nation," declared the president, "is determined to advance in an orderly, sound and common-sense way." It was his contention that "the fallacy of the claim that the costs of government are borne by the rich and those who make a direct contribution to the national trensury can not be too often exposed."

The congress was told that their most important work at this session would be to continue a policy of economy and further reduce the cost of government, in order that we may have a reduction of taxes for the next fiscal year.

The repeal of the publicity features of the income tax was recommended by the chief executive. He expressed his belief that "one of the most glaring of these was the making public of the amounts assessed against different income tax-puyers. Although that damage has not been done, I believe its continuance to be detrimental to the public welfare and bound to decrease public revenues, so that it ought to be repealed."

Commenting upon his own position and the difficulties under which taxes are reduced, the president said: "Anybody can reduce taxes, but it is not so easy to stand in the gap and resist the passage of increasing appropriation bills which would make tax reduction impossible. It will be very easy to measure the strength of the attachment to reduced taxation by the power with which increased appropriations are resisted. If at the close of the present session the congress has kept within the budget which I propose to present, it will then be possible to have a moderate amount of tax reduction and all the tax reform that the congress may wish for during the next fiscal year.

Furthermore, Mr. Coolidge holds that "under the assurance of a reasonable system of taxation there is every prospect of an era of prosperity of unprecedented proportions. "But," the president stated, "it would be idle to expect any such results unless business can continue free from excess profits taxation and be accorded a system of surtaxes at rates which have for their object not the punishment of success or the discouragement of business, but the production of the greatest amount of revenue from large incomes. I am convinced that the larger incomes of the country would actually yield more revenue to the government if the basis of taxation were scientifically revised downward. Moreover, the effect of the present method of this taxation is to increase the cost of interest on productive enterprise and to increase the burden of rent."

Dealing with the subject of agriculture, the president informed congress that he did not approve of class favoritism, "with one occupation striving to secure advantages over another." He insisted that "each must proceed under open opportunities and with a fair prospect of economic equality. The government cannot successfully insure prosperity or fix prices by legislative fiat."

Mr. Coolidge pointed out that "mostly by his own effort the farmer has decreased the cost of production." Emphasizing his opposition to a system of price-fixing for subsidies to agriculture by the government, the president said that the farmer has been brought to a parity with the rest of the nation through normal and natural application of economic laws. He explained to the congress that the agricultural commission which he assembled recently would have some definite recommendations as to legislative measures helpful to the farmers in time for action at this session.

The recommendation was made that congress should continue negotiations looking to the sale of Muscle Shoals properties to private interests. Indirectly referring to Henry Ford's withdrawal of bids, the president was inclined to believe that no one of the interested parties had given final terms.

The chief executive reiterated his views that the consolidation of railways was essential to the development of transportation systems. He recommended that the consolidations be carried out with due regard to the public interests. The opinion was expressed that several changes should be made relating to the merchant marine. In proposing the reorganization of the Shipping Board, Mr. Coolidge said: "The immediate requirement is to transfer into the Emergency Fleet Corporation the whole responsibility of operation of the fleet and other property, leaving to the Shipping Board solely the duty of determining certain major policies which require deliberative action." He suggested that the highly controversial Section 28 of the Merchant Marine Act should be suspended until congress can reconsider the entire question that has developed since its enactment.

Modification of the administrative features of the immigration law was urged upon congress for humanitarian reasons, the president's idea being to render the law more humane for the purpose of permitting those already here a greater latitude in securing admission of members of their own families.

Mr. Coolidge suggested that "the Life Insurance

Coupled with a Trust

Life insurance is unquestionably a wonderful means of protection to the family. But it should be properly safeguarded. Now it often is not. On the contrary, Life Insurance funds are often dissipated by poor investments, sold to innocent people of small means. Statistics are sorrowful proof of this fact.

The situation may be met and maximum protection secured by joining insurance with trust service. By this means, one who takes out life insurance can direct and control for a long time the uses that shall be made of the life insurance moneys.

Acting under an Insurance Trust Agreement, The Michigan Trust Company may be made the direct payee and manager of the life insurance moneys, the agreement specifying its powers, duties and compensation, and stating to whom the income of the investments made with those moneys shall be paid, under the varying conditions which may arise. Where the maker meets the premium payments, this Company usually makes no charge for its part in such trust during the lifetime of the maker.

Thus there is a combination of Life Insurance and Trust Company service: The Life Insurance Company provides the money after the death of the insured. The Trust Company provides the expert service for the care, conservation, investment and distribution of this money.

Thus the widow or other relative is saved many heartaches.

Send for our Circular on this subject.

Harry Taylor lost a horse the first of the week.

Mrs. W. G. Patterson entertained relatives from Alden and Muskegon on Thanksgiving day.

Burton Mellencamp, Charlevoix county farm agent, was in town on business on Monday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Sage entertained the former's parents from Central Lake on Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Klooster returned last week from a three week's visit at Grand Rapids and Muskegon.

Mrs. L. Van Skiver, of Central Lake, visited at the John Timmer home on Friday and Saturday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Croyle, of Hulbert, are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Ted Edson, for a few days.

Miss Emily Brosche, of Traverse City, arrived the first of the week for a few days visit with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Ely.

James Wheeler, of Old Mission, has purchased the Lewis Schafer farm south of town and will take possession at once.

Don't fail to attend the bazaar and supper at the Blue Hall on Friday evening of this week. Supper served at six o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Chelles, Mrs. W. L. Chelles and children left for their home at Detroit on Monday, after a three weeks visit here.

Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Sturk, of Owosso, were in town on Monday of this week. Rev. Sturk has been conducting special meetings at East Jordan for the past two weeks.

Special meetings started at the Holiness church here on Tuesday evening of this week. Rev. Wm. Jappy, of Nashville, Mich., is assisting Rev. Manker during these meetings.

The senior play, "Jimmie Yonson's Yob," at the Blue Hall last Friday night was a decided success, and between fifty and sixty dollars were cleared. It would be hard to pick an outstanding star in the cast as each and every one was as near perfect as is possible among amateurs.

Ira Springstead, of East Jordan, has purchased the S. G. Thompson property on Main street and will take possession within a few days. Mr. Springstead intends to convert the building into a hotel which will be open the year around. He may also put in a short order lunch room.

Twenty carloads of sugar beets were shipped from this place between October 21st when the first load came in and November 29th, which was the date of the last load. John Drenth was the first and Joe Gaunt the last grower to deliver beets at the shipping point. Six hundred tons at $7.00 per ton, netted local growers the tidy sum of $4,200.00, and the usual bonus which will be paid on or about February 15th will no doubt increase this amount to $5,000.00 or better. Henry Black, with 35 tons from two and one half acres, was high man in production.

Said to be one of the most remarkable pictures produced in a decade, "The Covered Wagon," a picturization of Emerson Hough's famous novel, by James Cruze, Paramount producer, will be the feature attraction at the Palace Theatre next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with a matinee Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

FARM FACTS

A farmer is judged by the farm he keeps.

Turn hens out to pasture. They also are live stock.

Though scrub sires will die eventually, why not let it be now?

Tickle the garden soil thoroughly and it will laugh with an abundant harvest.

Make your farm and your farming up-to-date and progressive, and your boys will more likely want to stay on the farm.

Allow two plants of squash, cucumber and melons to remain in each hill. The thinning should be done as soon as the plants have formed the third leaf.

Velvet beans, soy beans, or cowpeas, depending upon local conditions and individual preferences, should be planted as a companion crop in every acre of corn.

If lettuce is grown from seed thin out the plants so as to allow them to be 8 to 12 inches apart in the row. Use thinnings for transplanting and supplementing a broken stand.

Thin out the beets and carrots, allowing the plants to stand from one to three inches apart in the row. Also thin out salsify, allowing the plants to stand one inch apart in the row.

Live Stock Notes

Guard rails in the pen are often the difference between pig loss and pig profit.

A good time to replace scrub stock with pure-breds is when the price of live stock is low.

Care ought to be taken when the sows are put on pasture not to overfeed the first few days.

CLOVER SEED SHORT IN ALL SECTIONS

Michigan Farmers Will Be Way Behind on Its Needs

Michigan faces the greatest shortage of clover seed in its history and the farmers' salvation is to grow alfalfa, according to a statement by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The statement is based on government figures just made public which show this year's production to be the lowest on record.

Production was poor in 1923, the total in the state dropping from 240,000 bushels in 1922 to 147,000 bushels. This year the production is only 101,000 bushels or 69 per cent of last year.

In its statement on the clover seed shortage the Institute says:

"The crop report just issued shows that the total production of clover seed in the United States this year is estimated at 817,000 bushels, as compared with 1,100,000 bushels last year and a five-year average of 1,610,000 bushels. Last year approximately 24,000,000 pounds of clover seed were imported to make up the deficiency in America but Europe has a shortage this year also and probably will have little clover for the United States.

"Red clover seed prices already are high and are likely to go higher. Fortunately, both alfalfa and sweet clover have produced larger crops than usual this year, alfalfa being one-third larger, so farmers of the nation are urged to seed with alfalfa. It will be more economical than to practice thin seeding which is so frequently done when clover seed is scarce as now."

Referring to reforms in the judiciary, the chief executive recommended that "provision be made for the appointment of a commission, to consist of two or three members of the federal judiciary and as many members of the bar, to examine the present criminal code of procedure and recommend to the congress measures which may reform and expidite court procedure in the administration and enforcement of our criminal laws." He also favored the establishment of a national police bureau which would be helpful in the prevention and detection of crime.

Of matters relating to the civil service, the president urged that "first, second and third class postmasters, and without covering in the present membership the field force of prohibition enforcement, should be brought within the classified service by statute law." Quite pithily, the president remarked that "whatever its defects, the merit system is certainly to be preferred to the spoils system."

Though nobody expects the present congress to deal with the question, the president renewed his demand for legislation covering reorganization of federal departments.

Dealing with national defense and foreign affairs, the president indicated that he was not very much impressed with reports of the magnitude of military equipment of other nations. He feels that "any nation undertaking to maintain a military establishment with aggressive and imperialistic designs will find itself severely handicapped in the economic development of the world. But I believe thoroughly in the army and navy, in adequate defense and preparation. But I am opposed to any policy in competition in building and maintaining land or sea armament." He sanctioned many of the proposals of the American Legion regarding hospitalization of the veterans of all wars.

As to foreign relations, Mr. Coolidge very succinctly disposed of the League of Nations issue with the declaration that the country does not intend to become a part of the League of Nations or to assume the obligations imposed by its covenant. He did, however, commit himself to the idea of an international court and urged such action by the senate. Mr. Coolidge stated that the administration would not favor a disarmament conference which would contemplate commitments opposed to the freedom of action we desire to maintain unimpaired with respect to our purely domestic policies.

Concluding his message, the president expressed his conviction that "the nation does not propose to abandon the theory of the declaration that the people have inalienable rights which no majority and no power of government can destroy. It does not propose to abandon the practice of the constitution that provides for the protection of these rights."

"I want," said Mr. Coolidge finally, "the people of all the earth to see in the American flag the symbol of a government which intends no oppression at home and no aggression abroad, which in the spirit of a common brotherhood provides assistance in time of distress."

editor is talking about the responsibility of parents and teachers. Why doesn't he talk about the responsibility of us young people?" The point is well taken. The young people have responsibility, and a lot of it. Many of them, well trained from tender years, are able to govern themselves, and perhaps will conduct themselves wisely even in the margin of doubtful authority. But if there be such, their reliability is based upon long training, and upon the most earnest attention of thoughtful parents. The plain fact is that young people mostly intend well, but they lack experience and knowledge. This they largely do not know. It is the place of us who have been through the mill to supply the lack, and to exert that discipline which we know is in the interest of our children.

Nor is this editorial intended to give teachers a free hand. They cannot entirely wash their hands of their pupils when school is over. If they are real teachers, if they earnestly wish to develop human material, their thought and interest follows their pupils all the time. Hence they delight in playing games with the young folks, in sharing their social pleasures and in serving such useful institutions as the Sunday schools of the various churches.

This desire for full cooperation on the part of teachers will not be resented at all by them. Very largely they try to measure up to the exacting demands upon them. But whether they do or not, we who are parents have no escape. The children are ours. The responsibility is ours. We must see to it that our duty is well done."

BUILDING A NEW TEXACO SERVICE STATION

Brown & Wallace Will Operate Two Distinct Lines Here

The firm of Brown & Wallace have purchased the 60 foot frontage on the southwest corner of State and Antrim streets, opposite the court house, now occupied by the Lakeways Garage and will remodel the building into a drive-in service station for Texaco gas and oils, of which they will handle a complet line, the new structure also including storage space for bulk supplies.

The new station is not to be confused in any way with the present Sinclair service station at the corner of Bridge and Belvedere, which will continue to be operated as usual, the two lines being separate and distinct, though controlled by the same local firm.

The rear of the new Antrim street building will be devoted to the garage and salesroom of the Lakeway Garage and will be remodeled somewhat for this purpose. Construction work will start at once and it is hoped to have the new station ready for business by April 1st.

VALUABLE BUSINESS SITE CHANGES HANDS

Southeast Corner of Bridge and Clinton is Sold

Ayres Boal, of Winnetka, Ill., and owner of the Boal farm on route 3, is negotiating for the purchase of what is known on the records as Lot 4, Block 5, being 66 foot frontage on Bridge street at the corner of Clinton street, including the grocery store of A. E. Mason and the Hannah second-hand store and extending east to the Round Lake water front, which, of course, takes in the Lakeside pavillion.

The transaction is being carried on through Archie Livingston of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank. It is not know what Mr. Boal intends to do with the property, but it is presumed (and hoped) that he will improve it in some way. The Bridge street frontage belongs to the Stockman estate and the lake frontage and pavillion site is the property of Dice & Beard, who operate the pavillion.

MORE SUPPORT ASKED FOR LYCEUM COURSE

It Will Mean a Bigger and Better One Next Year

We have an excellent lyceum course this season, and we believe it should be heartily supported by all of the citizens of Charlevoix.

This lyceum course besides being a source of entertainment and education for mature people, is of considerable value in bringing the best in the line of lectures and music to the pupils in the schools.

It takes money to procure this talent, as it has been the desire of those in charge of the course to get the best that can be secured. If the people of the city support this course, we will be able to have as good or a better course another season.

This course deserves to be well supported, and we hope that every interested citizen will do his or her part to make it a success.

Dorothy Staley, nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Staley of this city, was returned to her home today after undergoing medical treatment at the hospital since last Thanksgiving day.

Arthur Devries, of Central Lake, who is suffering with an infection that is destroying the bone in one of his legs is much improved and may not have to have the limb amputated, as was feared for a time.

Mrs. Emma Smith, of Charlevoix, who was operated on the first of the month for appendicitis, is now well on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Ralph Ranney of the Charlevoix district, who was taken to the hospital on December 1st and operated on the next day, is now getting along in nice shape.

Mrs. Eva Graham, of Beaver Island, who was operated on last Wednesday, is now improving.

Archie Olney, of East Jordan, was returned to his home day before yesterday, having received medical treatment for diabetes.

Mrs. May Hebert, of Charlevoix, was operated on for eye trouble on November 28th and returned to her home the same day.

Order your stove repairs right now. Time will soon be here to start up that heating stove that is in need of repairs. Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 37-tf.

OLD MAN TAXES IS HERE AGAIN

HALE AND HEARTY AND STILL GOING STRONG

Will Not Hit Us Quite as Hard This Year As Last, But Plenty Hard Enough

Birminghant, down in Oakland county, Michigan, recently had an unwelcome but important visitant in the person of Old Man Taxes, with whom we are all well acquainted and for whom we cherish anything but amicable feelings. But as he is now in Charlevoix, and not to be denied, we are reproducing, in the words of George R. Averill, editor of the Birmingham Eccentric, a monologue that might have taken place on his arrival here.

" 'Well, folks, here I am again, back on the job to pay my annual respects to the citizens of Charlevoix. My pocketbook presents something of a lean appearance, so I am going to locate here for a few months until I extract about $88,706.71 from you folks. But I'll be back again in 1925 for another visit—in fact, dear people, I'll continue to arrive annually until the old world refuses to revolve; you'll find me a boon companion to you until death removes you from this earthly plane—for my name is TAXES and I spare no man.'

With this kindly greetings Mr. Taxes for the winter of 1924 blew into Charlevoix on the cold wind this week and descended the stairs of the library building where sit the officials of our beautiful city. This reporter followed hastily on the heels of Old Man Taxes and, upon entering the treasurer's office, found him perched upon the supervisor's assessment roll. His face was wreathed in smiles, while at his side lay an empty money bag. 'Yep, had a hard time getting here this year, but finally made connections,' he said; 'the trains every four years are so filled with candidates making political speeches that I always dread presidential year. But this is what I want to tell readers of the Courier this week about their annual winter state, county and school taxes.

'Tell 'em that every person who owns property in the city of Charlevoix will have to pay me at the rate of $26.04, as against $29.52 a year ago, for every thousand dollars of assessed valuation against his name on the supervisor's tax roll.

'The rate in Charlevoix is arrived at from the following items: for schools, $12.00, which is $3.00 lower than a year ago; for state taxes, $2.04; county taxes, $12.00. This total rate of $26.04 applies to all property in this city. The total city tax, Mr Cook tells me, was $51,646.24.

'I think a great deal of education, and that's the reason that the school tax this year amounts to $12.00, or 46 per cent of the total winter taxes,' went on Mr. Taxes.

'Your city treasurer, John Cook, has been busy preparing the tax receipts that I might begin collecting taxes here December 1st. After January 9th, I will add a penalty of 4 per cent for collection expense.

'Here the fees all go into the general fund of the city. Mr. Cook has a regular, year-around salary. In most places I get the fees. Your plan here in Charlevoix is the cheapest.

'Sorry, folks, to spoil any plans you may have for Christmas, but don't forget that I need the money to dispense government with—and, if you don't pay me on time, well—the sheriff will have to hold a sale.

'For, don't you see,' concluded the amiable gent, as he looked into his empty money bag, 'I am absolute proof that no man really owns what he thinks he does—I'm bound to get my share of it, just as certain as death—or TAXES.' "

1,044 DEER CROSS THE STRAITS AT MACKINAW

State Game Checkers at St. Ignace Make Their Annual Report

Hunters took 1,044 deer and 94 bear across the Michigan straits during the season closed November 30, it was reported to the state administrative board recently.

Practically all hunters have left the upper peninsula and the state ferries have been closed. Reports of game wardens to the conservation department show 35 arrests made at St. Ignace and fines aggregating $2,500 assessed. Six automobiles were confiscated by game wardens and a number of guns seized.

SUPREME PRELATE TO TALK

FRED S. ATWOOD WILL SPEAK TO K. OF P'S.

Radio to Be Installed in Castle Hall, Thursday Evening, December 11th

The following official notice has been received by the secretary of the local K. of P. Castle from Will E. Hampton, Grand Keeper of Records and Seal:

"To the Keeper of Records and Seal:

Dear Sir and Brother: Supreme Prelate Fred S. Atwood will speak in Detroit in the "Arcadia" on Thursday evening, December 11th. He will in addition give a short address that will be broadcasted by the Detroit News. Please see that notice of this talk is given at once to all in your city who have radio receiving outfits. It would be fine if you could put a radio receiving outfit in your hall and invite your friends. But, in any event, notify all Pythians so they can listen in. The News station is WWJ, the wave length 517 meters, time 7:00 p. m., eastern standard time, which will be 6:00 p. m., central standard time.

Fraternally yours.

Will E. Hampton,
Grand Keeper Records and Seal."

On Thursday evening, December 11th, the Knights of Pythias will hold their annual election of officers. At six o'clock they have arranged to have a radio set at the hall, so as to tune in at Detroit and hear Supreme Prelate, Fred S. Atwood, speak.

At intervals during the evening, the radio operator will tune in at different stations. It will be well worth while for all members who can have an early supper and be at the hall at six o'clock. Those who cannot get out that early and have radio at home, be sure to tune in at WWJ and then arrange to be at the hall at a little later hour.

C. H. S. FOOTBALLERS WERE BANQUETED

Orland Cunningham Was Elected Next Year's Captain

The mothers of the C. H. S. football men gave a banquet to the team and the male members of the faculty at the home of Mrs. Louella Korth last Thursday evening.

The tables were decorated with the high school colors—red and white, with a large football in the center of each, covers being laid for forty-four persons.

Harold Hallett acted as toastmaster of the evening and speeches and music were much enjoyed by those present.

Orland Cunningham was elected captain of the team for next year.

URGED TO DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY

One of the important features in the Shop Early, Mail Early campaign, which is being put on throughout the country by the post office department, is the proper addressing and securely wrapping of Christmas packages. When you wrap your Christmas packages, wrap them securely, put your address in the upper left corner, so, if by any chance, it should go astray, it can be returned to you and not sent to the dead letter office. The good folks of our community last year helped to bring joy and happiness to hundreds of thousands of postmen and clerks. Let's do our shopping early and mailing early again this year, so that we may again enable the postmen and the post office clerks to eat their Christmas dinners home with their families and at the same time assure ourselves of having our Christmas presents delivered to our friends in order that they may be opened on Christmas morning.

RUM CHASER, GG-141 TIES UP IN HARBOR

Wicked Looking Craft is Equipped with Teeth

The U. S. revenue cutter Tuscarora arrived in this port last Thursday morning from Milwaukee to act as convoy for the "rum chaser," CG-141, which came into port a week ago Monday morning and laid up at the Brady Boat company's dock for repairs to her machinery.

The CG-141 returned to Benton Harbor, with her consort, the Tuscarora, last week and will remain there during the winter for repairs and a general overhauling, after which she will go to Rockaway Point, N. Y. and join the "rum fleet" in coast patrol work along the Atlantic seaboard. The CG-141 is powered with two Sterling gas engines, each developing 200 h. p. She is 75 feet long and 14 feet beam, and carries a standard rapid fire, four pounder gun, mounted forward. Captain C. T. Christiansen and a crew of seven men are in charge of her.

SYMPHONIC QUINTET COMING SOON

THIRD LECTURE COURSE NUMBER JANUARY 16TH

Zedeler Organization, Composed of First-Rank Artists, Has Popularized Classics

The Zedeler Symphonic Quintet, which visits us as the third number of the high school lecture course on January 16th, has demonstrated conclusively that the rank and file of the American people thoroughly appreciate the music of the masters when it is correctly interpreted.

Nicolai Zedeler, distinguished cellist, believed this at a time when few agreed with him. Today, however, he has convinced all those who doubted him. He has popularized the classics. He has done this not by any departure from the requirements of the great composers but by rightly interpreting their visions, moods, and ideals through the medium of one of the finest musical organizations before the public—an organization which gives a full and wholly delightful interpretation to some of the finest orchestral classics.

In order to secure the fullest symphonic effects in an organization of this size, the quintet employs in its instrumentation an especially constructed reed organ, which fills the place occupied by wind instruments in a larger orchestra.

Interesting explanations by Mr. Zedeler precede the various selections and add much to the pleasure of the audience.

The Zedeler Quintet is composed of artists of the first rank. Mr. Zedeler was for many years soloist with the Stockholm, Sweden, Symphony Orchestra, and later with the New York Symphony; Walter Willihnganz, first violinist, was formerly concert master of the Chicago Civic Orchestra; Norbert Klein, violinist, is a graduate of Ithaca College; Mrs. Miriam Hyland Zedeler, piano student of Walter Spry, possesses remarkable ability in ensemble work; and Helene Portune, organist, is also a dramatic soprano of recognized ability.

With a personnel of such high grade, it is not surprising that the Zedeler Quintet ranks with the greatest of the small orchestral organizations and approaches actual symphonic proportions in its musicianship and masterly appeal.

After you have listened to the musical treat which has been prepared for you on the evening of Friday, January 16th, get ready to laugh with Ralph Bingham, America's foremost platform humorist, on February 2nd and Everett Kemp, "The Man with a Million Dollar Laugh," on March 13th.

New Candy Kitchen Opens Up in the Brown Building

N. J. Murdick and his son, Gould Murdick, of Mackinac Island, have opened a candy kitchen in the Brown building at 409 Bridge street.

Both Mr. Murdick and his son are old hands in the candy manufacturing game and understand it thoroughly. Mr. Murdick has been a resident of Mackinac Island for the past 36 years—in fact, he asserts, he was "there before the island was." During the greater part of this time he has been making candy and good candy at that, as anyone may prove for himself by eating some of his present stock.

The Murdicks intend to make their candy kitchen a permanent affair in Charlevoix and the public is welcome at any time to inspect their methods of manufacture or to inquire as to the ingredients that they use in their candies.

And when you go in, take a look at the two big marble topped work tables. You will seldom see anything like them. One weighs 600 pounds and the other 400 pounds, the marble top, which makes a smooth and easily cleaned working surface, being from two to three inches in thickness.

JAMES A. WHITE DIED LAST WEEK

PROMINENT BOYNE CITY MAN WAS SIXTY-TWO

Identified for Many Years with Extensive White Lumber and Railroad Interests

James A. White, prominent Boyne City business man and prominent church worker, died in Petoskey last Thursday evening, following an illness of less than two weeks. He reported feeling in poor health two weeks previous and one week later, his condition became serious and last Wednesday he underwent an operation. Mr. White was about 62 years old.

Nearly all his life Mr. White had been associated with other members of his family in the lumber and railroad business at Boyne City, residing there about 40 years. He was vice president and assistant manager of the White Lumber company and vice president of the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena Railway company, both with home offices at Boyne City. He was a very active worker in the Presbyterian church of Boyne City and northern Michigan and a member of the Boyne City Rotary club.

Surviving him, besides the wife and one daughter, Mrs. John Davidson of Lansing, are four brothers and four sisters. They are W. H. White, Thomas White and Robert White, of Boyne City, and George White of San Diego, Calif; Miss Louise White, Lincoln, Ill.; Mrs. J. E. Meloche, Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Mary Fairchild, Marine City, Michigan, and Mrs. Claud Early, of Chicago.

The funeral was held from the home in Boyne City at 2 o'clock eastern time, last Sunday afternoon. Burial was in Maple Lawn cemetery.

CHARLES D. McLOUGHLIN DIES IN DETROIT

Was Formerly a Blacksmith in This City

Charles Dougal McLoughlin, a former resident of this city, dropped dead at his home in Detroit, last Sunday. The funeral will be held today in Elk Rapids, attended by local members of the Maccabee and Woodmen lodges, to which Mr. McLoughlin belonged.

The deceased, who was a blacksmith by trade, left this city some ten or twelve years ago and went to Elk Rapids, later removing to Detroit. While here, he and his wife and son, who died some years ago, lived on Antrim street. His widow is expected to arrive here this week to settle up some matters connected with his estate.

PARENTS MUST HELP TEACHER

HERE ARE SOME THINGS THEY SHOULD KNOW

Better Cooperation Will Unfailingly Result in Better Work

The article that follows is the substance of an open letter sent out to the parents by the principal and teaching staff of one of the schools in this state and, as it contains some pertinent questions and valuable suggestions applicable to any school, we have herewith reproduced it for our readers:

"The welfare of your child is very near to you; you are interested in everything concerning him. You realize that the present time brings with it added responsibilties for you, as a parent, and for us, as teachers. Because we recognize this joint responsibility for the future of your child, we are sending you this letter and calling your attention to some things that we know are of great importance.

Do you know when your child leaves school each day?

Do you know how many times your child has been absent and tardy this year?

Do you know the marks on your child's report card?

If his work is poor, do you know why?

Have you realized that he should study at home at least two hours every school evening?

Do you see to it that he has a quiet place and sufficient time in which to prepare his home work?

Do you see to it that his home study is done before he is too tired out and sleepy to know what he is studying?

We, your child's teachers, are trying to do all we can to have our pupils make good this year, but we cannot do it without your help. If the progress of your child is not satisfactory to you, a change for the better will undoubtedly follow if you insist upon prompt and regular attendance. Lost lessons can never be made up completely, and many lessons lost mean discouragement to the pupil. You will be interested in the following statistics showing the relation between absences and failures:

0 to 5 days absence means 88 per cent of academic subjects passed;

6 to 10 days, only 72 per cent;

11 to 15 days, only 45 per cent;

15 to 20 days, only 31 per cent;

21 or more days, total failure.

Complete failure means a waste of $150.00 of the taxpayer's money, a dissipation of a large amount of your money, and a loss of a year in your child's preparation for life.

You can help in the further improvement of your child if you will call at the school to talk personally with the principal, whose time and service will always be gladly given.

We beg you to take special notice of the pupil's record card which will be sent home for your signature on the following dates: Dec. 10, Jan. 21, Jan. 30, March 4, April 1, April 29, May 27 and June 5.

Please reply to this letter by a note to or call upon the principal, thus assuring us of your willingness to cooperate with us for the progress and well-being of your boy or girl."

MUST GIVE LIZZIE A STIFF NIP ONCE IN A WHILE

With the coming of cold weather is increasing the use of alcohol in automobiles to prevent the water from freezing. A careful study of the use of a mixture of alcohol and water shows that a mixture of 10 per cent alcohol and 90 per cent water will freeze at 27 degrees above zero. With a mixture of 20 per cent alcohol and 80 per cent water freezing will take place at 19 degrees above zero. With 30 per cent alcohol and 70 per cent water freezing occurs at 10 degrees above, a proportion of 40 per cent alcohol and 60 per cent water will freeze at 2 below zero while a fifty fifty mixture will not freeze until the mercury registers 18 degrees below zero.

CHEBOYGAN TO LOSE CONSIDERABLE TIMBER

Lumber Companies Are Active in Getting Out Logs

An Indian River news item says that in the south end of Cheboygan county there is considerable activity this winter in getting out logs and all kinds of small timber.

Harold Sloan, of Wolverine, has started a camp on the Hankwood branch where he will get out 1,500,000 feet of hardwood logs.

Harvey Vizina, who is also operating a camp on the Hankwood branch, will get out about 800,000 feet of logs for Kneeland, Bigelow & Co., of Bay City. The same firm is also operating in Wilmot township, where they will have a clean-up camp and will be through skidding by Christmas.

The Richardson Lumber company has two camps east of Wolverine, where the men are taking out about 1,500,000 feet of logs.

H. E. Babcock, who is operating on the Upper Black, southeast of Wolverine, will get out a large quantity of pulpwood and cedar. He has about twenty-five men at work.

May we demonstrate a radio in your home? Wood Bros.—Ad 49-t2.

Sunday, December 14.

10:30 a. m., morning worship. Strangers always welcome. Pastor will preach subject, "The Resounding Influence of Christian Service." The sermon which touches your experience and hurts a little might be good for one to hear. We are grateful for the full attendance of last sabbath, yet we know of some who were not present.

12 o'clock, Sunday school. We consider we have the school in the best state of organization of any time in several years. We look for increased interest in attendance and leadership.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. The boys and girls are loud in their praises of the fine work of their superintendent.

6:00 p. m., Epworth League. This is a live-wire service. It fairly seethes with fervor. Fifty-nine present last Sunday.

7:00 p. m., evening worship. The pastor will preach, subject, "The Strong Tower of God." Nice crowd the last sabbath, 93 in attendance. But we can do better. What say ye, Methodists?

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read 21st chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. Come to prayer meeting.

Ladies' Literary and Sewing club meets this Thursday afternoon at Mrs. H. B. Hooker's. Pot luck supper. Men cordially invited. Supper over in time for prayer meeting at the church. This club has its annual sale of fancy goods at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., Saturday and Friday, the 13th and 12th.

The next Epworth League social is Monday night, the 22nd. It will be a "grab-bag". Boyne City Epworth League will be our guests.

The Epworth League concert of last Wednesday was a winner. One hundred fifty eager listeners heard, according to their own statements, the best concert of its kind in years. Some arrangements are already under way for another of like character in the near future.

It is barely possible that on Christmas Sunday evening we will be able to exhibit the slides of "The Passion Play of Oberammergau."

The Ladies' Aid Society has taken on new vine. Their task has become extensive enough to warrant working under nine divisions, engineered by Mesdames Metcalf, Edwards, Hooker, Byers, Arnold, Poole, Simmons, Ager and Trimble. Let everyone of us do our utmost to make this work the most successful possible.

IS YOUR WORK HARD

How Many Charlevoix Folks Have Found How to Make Work Easier.

What is so hard as a day's work with an aching back?

Or sharp atabs of pain at every sudden twist or turn?

There is no peace from that dull ache.

No rest from the soreness, lameness and weakness.

Many folks have found relief through Doan's Pills. They are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys.

Charlevoix people recommend Doan's.

Mrs. Daniel Potter, 401 May St., Charlevoix, says: "I began to have severe pains through the small of my back, which were the first sign of kidney trouble. When I bent over to do my work, sharp twinges caught me across my kidneys. I felt weak and tired and my kidneys acted irregularly. I used Doan's Pills, which I bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, and they soon cured me"

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Potter had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Frank Mayo Comes of Noted Theatrical Stock

Frank Mayo, who plays the leading role of John Woolfolk in Goldwyn's screen version of the popular Joseph Hergesheimer novel, "Wild Oranges," which comes to the Palace theatre on Tuesday, December 16, for two days, was born in New York City. He was educated at Peekskill Military Academy, and began his stage career with his grandfather, Frank Mayo, in "David Crocket." Mayo's greatest stage success was "The Squaw Man." He went with the original company to fulfill a London engagement. While in England he appeared with Arthur Bourchier and Herbert Sleath in "The Woman in the Case." Later he formed his own stock company and toured England.

Led by a daring youth, called the "Humming Bird," a gang of thieves flaunts the police of Paris. Randall Carey, an American newspaper man in Paris, volunteers to assist in running "him" down. Toinette, a girl, is the "Humming Bird," who preys upon the upper classes to rob them.

Real love for Carey comes into her life—she is willing for his sake to try a respectable life. But then there is another girl. Carey's fiance —Toinette returns to the life she knows.

Virginia Valli's Career Started As Extra Girl

Virginia Valli, who plays the only feminine role in King Vidor's picturization of Joseph Hergesheimer's "Wild Oranges," which will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday for two days, is a native of Chicago. Upon her graduation from the public schools of that city, she appeared in a number of amateur theatricals. Her first appearance in pictures was as an extra with the old Essanay company in that city.

SHIP CARLOAD OF GLADIOLA BLUBS

Petoskey Getting Famous as a Bulb Producing Section

The Petoskey Bulb company Tuesday, December 2, shipped from Petoskey a solid carload of gladiola bulbs to Benton Harbor.

This is the largest known shipment of bulbs of any kind ever made out of the Petoskey country.

The bulbs were raised at the company's bulb ranch on Round Lake, just north of Petoskey, and were shipped to the General Bulb company at Benton Harbor, a wholesale bulb concern with offices in various countries.

Included in this shipment were about seventy varieties of gladiolas. Joseph VanLierup, a representative of the General Bulb company, accompanied the car.

The Petoskey Bulb company has just completed the planting of a carload of iris, tulips and narcissus bulbs at the Petoskey ranch. These bulbs were European grown and shipped direct to the Petoskey concern from Vogleenzang, Holland. The company has about twelve acres planted this fall.—Petoskey News.

MAY BENEFIT WHOLE STATE

Beyond the fact that the automobile license policy of the state will be definitely determined by February 1st, the suggestion of Governor Groesbeck and the state administrative board to hold off the issuing of 1925 license plates until that date is a direct challenge to the legislature. It means the legislature must go to work at once instead of waiting ten days or two weeks as is the usual practice. With the license question disposed of by February first, there will be a general desire to maintain the same speed for the balance of the session. Giving over the early days of the session to perhaps the most important single question to be settled will have a sharp tendency to cut consideration off the usual grist of unimportant bills as the time after February first will be too valuable to waste on anything but necessary legislation. The governor has put the legislature in a hole but the state is certain to be benefited by the governor's action.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday, December 14

10:30 a. m., preaching service by the pastor. Sunday school will follow at 11:45. Theme: "The Raising of Lazarus."

B. Y. P. U. at 6:30. Topic: "My Relations to Money and Property." This meeting will be held here if it is not permissible to meet at Boyne City. Preaching service at 7:30.

At the annual business meeting of the church the following persons were elected as officers for the ensuing year: superintendent, Mr. Peaslee; assistant superintendent, Mr. Carey; church clerk, Mrs. Kibbe; church treasurer, Mr. Peaslee. Deavons: D. E. Ingalls, Eugene Burgess, James O'Brien, elected as life deacon; Ernest Peaslee and James Meggison. Trustees: M. K. Chew, James Meggison, James O'Brien and Mrs. W. S. Kibbe.

A rocker was presented to Mr. Peaslee by the Sunday school as an appreciation of his work as superintendent during the past years.

The B. Y. P. U. will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meggison, Friday evening, December 12, for the monthly business meeting and a social gathering.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Correll, Wednesday afternoon, December 17.

Michael Condon's Christmas

By Katherine Edelman

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE spirit of Christmas hovered over the little fishing village of Bayswater. From every cottage window lights gleamed out into the night and inside the homes all was bustle and preparation for the great festival which was to come with the dawn.

Down at the end of town, however, there was one little house where an air of gloom prevailed. There no Christmas preparations were under way, nor was there anything to indicate that the greatest day of the year was close at hand. An old man sat at a dying fire in a crouching attitude, his long bony fingers clasped together. There was something pathetic about the weary droop of the bent old body and in the quivering of his lips as he spoke every now and then to himself:

"Ten years ago tonight, she went," he murmured; "ten long weary years without a sight of her bonny face. 'Twas the cruel old man I was to drive my own daughter from my home and heart and all because she married the man she loved. But I have paid dearly for my folly since I would give all the world if it were mine just to see her once again."

But Michael Condon had little hope of seeing his daughter again. She seemed to have vanished completely since that black night when he had spoken so harshly to her. He had tried hard to find her during the past years, reducing himself to almost actual want by depriving himself of the money he had spent in the search for her. Of late he had to confine himself to an occasional advertisement in some paper, hoping against hope each time that she might see it. But with each new disappointment a sense of almost despair would take possession of him.

Tired in body and mind from the long weary day and from the fact that he had eaten very little food since morning, the old man dropped to sleep. He awoke with a start some time later. Great God! somebody was in the room—what was this? He was dreaming yet—of course he was dreaming! Hadn't he often pictured Kathleen coming home to him like this, at her side a little girl that was the living image of his own dead wife. Trembling in every limb, he rubbed his eyes with his coat sleeve and looked again. But, before he could arrive at any decision as to whether he was waking or sleeping, two arms twined themselves around him, and Kathleen—his own loved little girl—was sobbing on his shoulder. But not for long; the children—there were two of them—clamored loudly to kiss grandpa, and behind them Arthur Brown, the man whom he might have had for a son all these weary years, was holding out his hand to him.

An hour later there was not a home in all the little town more full of cheer and Michael Condon's face beamed as he watched his grandchildren help their parents unpack the many boxes and packages they had brought with them. And when they told him of the happy accident that had led them to read his message he called it a Christmas miracle.

Frosted Creams for Christmas

One cupful sugar, 1 cupful sorghum 1 cupful of warm water, ½ cupful of butter or lard, 4 cupfuls flour, 1 teaspoonful soda, ½ teaspoonful baking powder.

Raisins and nuts may be added. Cream sugar and shortening; then warm water; add sorghum with soda, well mixed; add flour and baking powder, nuts and raisins. Bake in a dripping pan; frost and cut in squares.

Human Brotherhood

CHRISTMAS is the most human and kindly of seasons, as fully penetrated with the feeling of human brotherhood as the month of June with sunshine and the breath of roses.—George W. Curtis.

The Child and Christmas Night

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

I THINK he's very young and white,
The child who comes at Christmas night
And shining is his hair!
I think his feet scarce touch the snow,
As softly, sweetly forth they go—
His feet so small and bare!

I think his voice is like the brook,
I think he wears a laughing look,
And sunshine in his eyes!
I think his hands are little, too,
But strong his Christmas work to do,
And peace upon him lies.

I think he comes to touch our sight,
The little child so young and white,
To make us see
How simple are the ways of love,
How great the blessings from above
For you and me!

—Martha B. Thomas.

SEE'S BIG PUMPKIN YIELDS UP SECRET

It Weighed 43 3-4 Pounds and There Were 447 Seeds

The big pumpkin in the store window of S. M. See & Sons, which has been the subject of so much interested speculation on the part of our townspeople since it was set up in the window on the Friday following Thanksgiving Day, has at last yielded up its secrets.

The correct weight of the pumpkin is (or was) 43 3-4 pounds and it contained 447 seeds.

Cliff Heller of the A. & P. store and Harold Meggison tied on their weight guess of 43 pounds. Then Cliff again tied with E. L. Denny on the number of seeds, guessing 450. Both guesses were marvellously close, as may be seen.

The prizes of $2.00 for each guess have not as yet been awarded, but it is understood that the rival aspirants will settle their ownership in some amicable fashion.

G. E. Dutton Elected Board President at Annual Meeting

A clipping from the Saginaw News-Courier of November 21, 1924, recently turned in to us, announces the election of George Ellsworth Dutton, former resident of this city, to the presidency of the Saginaw Real Estate Board.

Mr. Dutton was elected at the annual meeting of the board, held at the Ben Franklin Hotel in Saginaw, to succeed A. E. Clampitt. He has achieved quite a marked success in his profession since leaving Charlevoix several years ago and his many friends in this city will rejoice at what we are sure is a well-deserved recognition of his abilities.

NEW SHOP'S OPENING WAS WELL ATTENDED

Redpath's Will Fill A Long Felt Need

Despite most unfavorable weather, which made driving very difficult for out-of-town people, the opening of the Redpath store was in every particular a most successful event, the premises being crowded from early morning until late in the evening.

The store, itself, is something entirely different from anything in the north country, it being fitted up in a manner that would rival the finest shops in the large cities while the merchandise displayed greatly attracted the attention of the ladies, as it is most unusual in design, color, style, etc. and priced to meet the purse that is none too elastic.

Mr. and Mrs. Redpath, ably assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith, were busy greeting old friends and welcoming new faces. From all indications, the new store should fill a long felt want and prove a gratifying success.

POST OFFICE IS BEING REMODELED

Changes to Insure Better Working Facilities

A series of sweeping changes are taking place in the quarters now occupied by the local post office, looking to a betterment of the service. W. J. Bogart is the contractor in charge.

The southern entrance through which so many thousands of Charlevoix foot-prints have left their trail, has been bricked up, the platform in the front window, which is so familiar to our residents as the resting place of announcements (artistic and otherwise) of dances, pot-luck suppers, rummage sales, charity benefits, drives, etc., has been taken out and the partitions enclosing the postmaster's office and the general mailing and sorting enclosures are to be moved up flush with the east wall of the building, shortening the present lobby to a point near the closet door on its right hand side. Entrance to this lobby will be through the north entrance, through which one now passes from the post office to the apartments on the upper floor.

This arrangement will provide much more room in the rear of the office for the parcel post and mailing departments which is badly needed, especially at Christmas time which is so near at hand. A rearrangement of the letter cases will also be made to give more room and effect greater ease and dispatch in the handling of mail matter.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, December 13 and 14

Gloria Swanson in "THE HUMMING BIRD." Here is a picture on the same order as "Zaza." Gloria Swanson in her first dual role, as a French vixen who masquerades in boys clothes and has all Paris gasping at her lawless exploits. A melodrama of many thrills. Also a comedy of laughs. One of the Go-Getters.

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 16 and 17

"WILD ORANGES," in which there are but five stars in this play, but they more than make the picture a success. A kiss in the dark; a raging fire; a thrilling escape and then some—that's "WILD ORANGES." A mystery of the Florida jungles. Frank Mayo leads them all. Also a good comedy.

The Christmas Announcement

By Mary Graham Bonner

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WALLACE TREADWAY, or Wally, as his friends knew him, sang the tenor part in the moving picture and vaudeville theater quartette. Magnificent songs they sang ("program changed weekly") with beautiful stage settings as their background. "By the Old Camp-Fire" thrilled his listeners, and Wally, sitting over a stage fire consisting of two electric light bulbs shining upon a strip of painted tin with a red streak of paint in the curtains above him to indicate the glow from the fire's embers, Wally in a khaki hat and suit and silk handkerchief about his neck singing the song of buying, or making the tears come to the eyes of the audience when he sang "As I Sat Upon My Dear Old Mother's Knee," was about the "grandest" man Blanche Draper, the head usher, had ever seen.

True, Wally had never seen a camp fire, nor had he ever sat upon his mother's knee, for he had spent his youth in an orphanage and he could love the golden light which was sent down from the green and gold ceiling upon the "new-mown hay" as he stood pitchfork in hand, even though he had never seen the real country.

They went out a great deal together, yet as the time went on Wally seemed to grow quieter. Perhaps he was tired of her. He had sent her a Christmas gift that afternoon of Christmas Eve, and yet with it had come this note, shattering all her happiness:

"Blanche Dear: I know it will seem awful to you reading of the engagement announced in this afternoon's paper, but if you'll only give me a chance I'll explain so you won't think me such a cad. Give me the chance to put myself right. At least for the sake of our friendship and the grand times we've had, don't judge me hastily. Not that I don't want to be engaged—I do! But I want to talk to you about everything soon! So I can explain. Perhaps after the show tonight?"

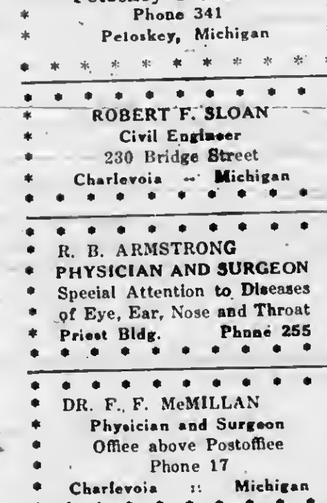
So there was some one else, and the engagement had been announced. That was why Wally had grown quieter and quieter. He had been trying to break it to her, and she had thought at times he was shy. He hadn't been so shy, after all!

She would not go to the theater tonight. What did she care for explanations? Cora Brown, her roommate and assistant usher, would take charge.

She heard Cora's step now.

"What! You in, Blanche?" she asked.

"Yes," came from Blanche a moment later.



"I Got a Couple of Extra Copies of the Paper."

"You're a queer one—thought you'd be out celebrating. Only you might have slipped me the news first. I got a couple of extra copies of the paper."

"Let me see," Blanche said sadly. She had to see it sooner or later, and face the situation. And then suddenly her eyes lighted upon her own name. With a rush and an explanation which seemed mad to Cora, she had hastened from the room. She could just catch Wally at the pastry shop where so often they had eaten their supper together.

And then—as she saw Wally at a table at the far end—it dawned on her that Wally had never proposed to her. It was a mistake! And that was why he was apologizing.

He beckoned her to his table. "Darling," he said, "it was not my fault. I didn't brag to Jennings, our publicity man, you know, of what I had no right. I only said I hoped it would be an engagement, and he just thought he'd stick it in, for he believes we are engaged.

"Oh, Blanche, can you forgive me? And can't you make—the announcement come true?"

"I—I'll make it real if you urge good and hard, Wally," she said.

That night before she went to bed she took one of the newspapers to tuck under her pillow.

"Oh, what a merry Christmas you've given me," she whispered to the paper. "You're a blessed Christmas announcement, that's what you are. I could almost hug you—you beautiful printed words!"

And she smiled at the announcement in a most approving way.

Amid Christmas Festivity

Pause now, for a space,
In the midst of your mirth,
Remember the Christ,
And His coming to earth;
His life and His work,
And the purpose in view,
And question each heart
Of the work still to do.

Christmas Giving

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

CAST your bread upon the waters and it will come back to you after many days." How many times have these words come true for each one of us—aye, more than true, for the little loaf that we sent out came back multiplied many times and its quality was improved a hundred fold. Every kind word spoken, every helping hand given a fellow-being traveling over some roughened mile, if done with the right spirit within our hearts, will be repaid a hundred fold. For while we are doing acts of service and helpfulness we are not alone helping our fellow men but are building up our own character and uplifting ourselves to a higher plane.

So it is with Christmas giving, too. If we give with the real spirit of the season, from the pure joy that giving brings, we will find as the days go on that what we gave and did was but a mite compared to the returns it brought us.

Discouraged Actor

"No Christmas tree this year?"

"No," replied Mrs. Bilggins.

"Children outgrown tinsel and toys?"

"No. Father lost his ambition to play Santa Claus."

HERE AND THERE

Michigan grouse, this year, says a report, "are victims of a kind of worm which is killing them off in large numbers." Is it necessary to lose your temper and call the hunters names like this?

According to a news note from the East, Henry Ford is engaged in a learned discussion of what constitutes a New England breakfast. Codfish cakes, pie, and something to eat, have always been among the most popular menus, we understand.

The story comes from Hastings of a dog, belonging to a well-known fisherman of the place, which jumped into the lake and caught a fish. But any dog that will start a fish story at this season ought to go jump into the lake.

The owner of a musical hen, who prized it highly for its singing ability, charges that his neighbor at Benton Harbor has stolen the bird and eaten it. The neighbor, who was frequently awakened by the hen, seems to have decided finally that it was singing its swan song.

Life Insurance Safeguarded By a Trust

Suppose you had $30,000 invested in Bonds or were in a position to buy that amount, returning you an income of approximately $1,800 per year. Suppose these bonds and your home constituted your entire estate. In the event of your death would your loved ones be adequately provided for?

Suppose that during the active years of your life you leave this income untouched and invest it in such a way that your provision for the family support would be substantially increased, USUALLY DOUBLED, sometimes more than doubled, without much delay and without additional resources?

The Michigan Trust Company offers opportunity for this by means of a "Funded Life Insurance Trust."

Every family man should be interested in this opportunity to safeguard properly the welfare of those under his care.

The income from $30,000 of 6% bonds (not spent but irrevocably set aside for use by the Trustee in purchasing life insurance) in the case of a man of 35 would buy, on present insurance rates, from $61,000 to $84,000 of Life Insurance, (depending on the kind taken, whether 20-year paid life or ordinary life); in the case of a man of 40 it would buy from $54,000 to $70,000 of Life Insurance; in the case of a man of 45 it would buy from $46,000 to $58,000 of Life Insurance; in the case of a man of 50 it would buy from $39,000 to $46,000 of Life Insurance.

By this plan, $30,000 is made to produce from $39,000 to $84,000 ADDITIONAL in family protection.

It is well worth your consideration. Let us explain the plan to you in detail.

"Hail Lansing man as discoverer of white gold," says a headline. The stuff one needs in such qantities to buy black diamonds.

A hunter roaming the woods in the upper peninsula was struck by an automobile, which evidently mistook him for a pedestrian.

A Kalamazoo woman was the first hunter to return to that city from the Upper Peninsula with a deer. Immediately afterward, for a few hours, her place was in the home, particularly in the kitchen and dining room.

As the end of the football season approaches, there will soon be nothing for the fan to do but make a hero of himself by going out and trying to make gains through center in the Christmas rush.

"Pupils should be taught that a political party is a means to an end," declared a U. of M. professor in a lecture at Grand Rapids. Or, to be more explicit, one of them is a means to the big end and the other a means to the little end.

Overproduction is the main cause of the American farmer's troubles, according to James Helme, former dairy commissioner. Beginning, in the flush times of a few years ago, with the overproduction of notes for the purchase of automobiles, etc.

Two woodsmen at Petoskey who wanted to know what happens when a dynamite cap is placed on one rock and hit with another, tried the experiment, and one of them received a piece of metal in the fleshy part of his leg. How interesting!

A St. Joseph dietitian says that in order to teach a child to clean the dish, you should have a picture on the bottom of the dish and urge the child to uncover it. But what do you do when the generous little boy wants to leave half the food for the doggie?

It is true, of course, that the person who sent us the over-ripe duck may have been mixed in his dates, and thought this was last Thanksgiving.

A fellow arrested at Port Huron on a charge of bootlegging was acquitted by the jury on that charge, and declared to be a fisherman. In the first degree.

Moreover, the excess of evergreen trees left on the lots on Christmas morning will probably show that, as usual, the conservationists have done their Christmas protesting early. In fact, too early.

"One thing we can not understand," says a Muskegon writer, "is the reason why the various big meetings scheduled at Ann Arbor always come at the same time as the home football games there." Well, for one thing, it has been found that big meetings scheduled for other dates are sometimes little meetings.

LAKE GROVE HOTEL BURNS AT WALLOON

Popular Walloon Lake Place Completely Destroyed Dec. 4

Lake Grove hotel, a summer place on the west arm of Walloon Lake, was completely destroyed by fire last Thursday morning with an estimated loss of $20,000. The cause of the fire is unknown, the hotel having been closed since November 1. The hotel was owned and operated by Mrs. Martha Rekhopf, whose home was located only about a hundred feet from the hotel building. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

The blaze started shortly after midnight and quickly burned off the telephone wires, cutting communication with the neighbors. Being located about a mile and a half from the nearest neighbors the fire was not noticed by residents of the region until too late to save anything. So rapidly did the wooden building burn that Mrs. Rehkopf and a young boy living with her, could do nothing to check it. There was a light northeast wind which kept the sparks and fire brands from the adjoining buildings.

The hotel was originally constructed by Edward Morford and later was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. John Rehkopf.

The M. E. Sewing Club will hold their annual Christmas sale on Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13. Place announced later.—47-t4.

JUNIOR BOYS FORM A S. S. BROTHERHOOD

Congregational Church Classes Are Organized

The Junior Boys Brotherhood of the Congregational Sunday school, consisting of classes from the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades, was organized last Thursday afternoon at the church.

The object of the organization is faithful attendance at Sunday school and service to the church, now and in the future.

The boys have adopted a yell, a motto and a song. Franklin Ross will be pianist. Both classes are organized, the officers being elected for each month.

These boys are all red-blooded Americans and have entered into the spirit of their club with a great amount of enthusiasm. The teachers, assisted by some of the mothers, had a supper at the church last Thursday evening. The regular meeting of the club will be the first Thursday of each month at four o'clock in the afternoon.

POLICE GET JEWELRY STORE ROBBER

Man Pawned One of the Watches in Cheboygan

Chief of Police Lou Holm, of Petoskey, has received word from Chief of Police Hansen, of Muskegon, that the police department of the southwestern Michigan port city is holding George Roy, wanted in Petoskey as the man who robbed the Searle jewelry store some days ago of several valuable watches. Roy was trailed from Petoskey to Pellston, Mackinac City, Cheboygan, Bay City and Muskegon.

It is understood from reports received from Muskegon where officers had been on the lookout for Roy for some days, that he was located through a letter from his sweetheart. Roy is said to have corresponded with a girl friend in Traverse City. Roy had a brother residing in Muskegon, but officers say he did not go near the brother's home, which was shadowed for a week.

None of the stolen watches were found on Roy. He carried a revolver and supply of ammunition.

LEGEND OF THE MISTLETOE

Yuletide Bough Was Responsible for Death of Balder, Son of Odin, an Old Story.

THE mistletoe bough, according to an old Scandinavian legend, was responsible for the death of Balder, the son of Odin, and the God of Eloquence and Poetry. Having informed his mother, Friga, that a dream had warned him of his imminent death she invoked all the powers of earth—fire, air, earth and water (including all animals and plants)—to come to his rescue, in the combats of the gods, therefore, he found himself uninjured.

But Loake, his deadly enemy, was determined to discover the secret of his invulnerability, and by judiciously flattering Friga, and praising the progess of her son, obtained from her the reason. But, she foolishly told him, there was one feeble little shoot she had not thought it necessary to invoke—the mistletoe.

The treacherous Loake immediately procured a branch of the mistletoe, and entering the assembly of gods presented an arrow made from it to blind Heda, with the words—"Balder is before thee. Shoot!" He shot and Balder fell, pierced and slain.

And countless thousands have since been "slain" and will be slain for ages to come with "darts" from the "mistletoe bough."

MYTHS OF CHRISTMAS SEASON

Among Some of Peasantry of France Is Belief That Bread Remains Fresh Ten Years.

LEGENDS and myths without number have become associated with the celebration of Christmas. Among some of the peasantry of France is a strong belief that loaves of bread baked at Christmas will remain fresh for ten years. It is also believed by some of the simple folk that during the whole of the Christmas holidays a portion of bread should be left on the table day and night because the Holy Mother may come to share it. For some reason not to be explained, there is a superstition among some French peasant wives that no bread must be baked between Christmas day and the Feast of the Circumcision, because an infraction of this rule will bring disaster on the household.

There is a peasant belief of age long standing that if the cattle on the farm be given drink immediately after the midnight mass of Christmas their health will continue good throughout the year. Another belief is that if seed of wheat be wrapped in a tablecloth which has been used for Christmas dinner, a profitable harvest will be insured. Another strange belief is that a cold bath taken on Christmas day will protect the bather against fevers and toothache throughout the year.

CHRISTMAS RIBBONS

IF CHRISTMAS ribbons could express themselves they would say that people were thrifty, for some ribbons claim to have been doing business every Christmas for many, many years. They are often pressed and made to look their best, but they're the same ones used again and again. However, if they could philosophize they would rejoice that they were the means of adding gaiety, color and cheer to Christmas packages year after year!

THE WILD BOAR'S HEAD FEAST

Animal of Woods in Early Days Provided One of the Most Popular Christmas Dishes.

IN MEDIEVAL England it was customary to commence all grand Christmas feasts by the solemn ceremony of bringing in the boar's head as the initial dish. The master cook, preceded by trumpeters and other men with boar spears and drawn falchions and pages carrying mustard, bore the smoking head aloft on a silver platter, which he deposited at the head of the table. The head was garnished and garlanded with rosemary and laurel, and a lemon, symbol of plenty, was placed between its grinning chops.

To the end of her life, Queen Victoria retained the ancient custom; also in many of the public schools and universities the boar's head is still the great dish of the Christmas banquet. On such occasions every diner rises and joins in the "Boar's Song," which has been sung for centuries. The words are set to the common chant of the prose version in cathedrals.

COLD WEATHER MOTOR PROTECTION

STUDEBAKER DEALERS GIVE TIMELY SUGGESTIONS

Explain Proper Care of Vital Parts of Motor, Chassis, Body and All Equipment

The average car owner is seldom in a position to know just what must be done to his car in the winter to approach as nearly as possible conditions as they exist in warm weather. For this reason, the following suggestions should be carefully observed by automobile owners.

Cooling System

Anti-free solution — Before any anti-freeze solution is used, the water circulating system should be inspected for leaks, and repairs made, if necessary. It is usually a good plan to replace hose connections at this time of the year. Do not use anti-freeze preparations containing calcium chloride or other similar compounds, as they corrode the inside of the radiator.

The only satisfactory solution of which we know is alcohol and water. Denatured alcohol is preferred, but wood alcohol can be used. Wood alcohol often contains free acetic acid and should never be used unless it is known to be free from acid. If acid is present, damage to the radiator will result.

The following table shows differently proportioned mixtures with temperature at which the solution will begin to freeze:

Alcohol 10 per cent, water 90 per cent, will freeze at 27 above; alcohol 20 per cent, water 80 per cent, will freeze at 19 above; alcohol 30 per cent, water 70 per cent, will freeze at 10 above; alcohol 40 per cent, water 60 per cent, will freeze at 2 below; alcohol 50 per cent, water 50 per cent, will freeze at 18 below.

Glycerine is sometimes used with alcohol to reduce the evaporation to a minimum. However, it is rather expensive and also has a tendency to damage the rubber hose connections. If glycerine is used, mix the alcohol and glycerine in equal proportions and use this mixture in the same percentage as alcohol in the above table.

It must be remembered that it is necessary to add alcohol from time to time to replace what is lost due to evaporation. Whenever necessary to fill the radiator, to replace loss by evaporation, use a mixture of 40 per cent water and 60 per cent alcohol.

Fan Belt Adjustment

During extremely cold weather the fan belt can be loosened, which will reduce the flow of air through the radiator and thereby allow motor to run warmer than it otherwise would.

Radiator Cover

It will assist greatly in approximating the summer temperature of the motor if a radiator cover is used. With a radiator cover that is adjustable, a large part of the radiator can be covered, allowing the motor to readily warm up, and then adjusted to a suitable opening to keep the motor running warm but still not allowing it to overheat.

Carburetor

To obtain maximum efficiency from the low gravity gasoline now being used, the air entering the carburetor should be moderately heated. In hot weather, the normal air temperature is high enough. Provision is made, however, for heating the air entering the carburetor, in cold weather. The temperature is regulated by a sleeve over the carburetor air intake, which should be closed during the winter months. It will assist greatly in approximating the summer temperature of the motor if the radiator cover is used as mentioned above.

In starting the motor, make sure that the choke is pulled all the way out until the motor starts, then push it in slightly until the motor warms up but do not have it even partly out longer than is necessary. Do not race an engine to warm it up, run it at an engine speed approximately 20 miles per hour.

Lubricating System

Always use a light, cold test motor oil in cold weather. The motor oil should be drained more frequently in winter than in summer, as the cold temperature aggravates the dilution of the oil by raw fuel, especially when the choke is kept closed too long. It is not advisable to drive a car until after the motor has been turning over at a rate of speed approximating 20 miles per hour long enough to give the oil a chance to get well into all the working parts.

We recommend under average conditions, the oil be drained approximately every 500 miles in order to guard against excessive wear of the bearings or cylinder walls.

Cars in short-trip service in cold weather, on account of extreme dilution of the oil, should have the motor oil changed every 300 to 500 miles. If the car is not driven this far in a month the oil should be changed once a month regardless of mileage.

The oil pan should be removed and washed out with kerosene occasionally in order to prevent any accumulation of sediment which might have a detrimental effect upon the bearings.

Another condition which must be guarded against in winter is the formation of water in the crankcase. A slight formation of water is something which is natural and cannot be prevented. It is aggravated, however, by the injudicious use of the choke, frequent starting and stopping the motor as might be occasioned by numerous short drives, and failure to change the motor oil at proper intervals.

Water, if allowed to collect in the oil circulating system, will pocket and freeze very readily, stopping the circulation of oil. A heavy sludge will also form which is very detrimental to the motor.

To prevent the evils of water accumulation, it is wise to drain a cupful of oil from the crankcase once or twice a week. This should be done while the motor is warm, but after is has been allowed to stand idle for about ten minutes. This is easily accomplished by means of the drain valve handle conveniently located in the right-hand side of the crankcase. Any water present will be thus removed.

Storage Battery

A vital point to remember in connection with the storage battery is that at a temperature of 10 degrees F. its efficiency drops about 50 per cent. Also, it is much more difficult to crank the motor because of the effect of the lower temperature on the lubrication. Because of the incomplete vaporization of the fuel when the motor is cold, slightly more cranking is required to start the motor.

Because of the heavier drain on the battery and its decreased efficiency in the winter, the energy taken from the battery should be conserved as much as possible. When starting the motor, throw out the clutch, which will prevent unnecessary turning of gears in the transmission (through congealed oil) and consequently reduce the load placed on the starting motor and battery. Also see that all connections are tight throughout the electrical system and that none of the wires are grounded or shorted.

Test the battery with a hydrometer every two weeks. If, on any two consecutive tests, the specific gravity is 1.200 or under, remove the battery from the car and have it charged and also see that the generator is charging properly.

When adding distilled water to the battery in freezing temperature, make sure that the motor is immediately run for a short time so as to charge the battery, thereby mixing the added water with the acid and preventing freezing.

A battery not properly charged will freeze and the specific gravity should be frequently checked. Tha following table will be found a convenient reference:

Specific gravity 1.290, fully charged, freeze at 90 below.

Specific gravity 1.250, three-quarters charged, freeze at 60 below.

Specific gravity 1.215, one-half charged, freeze at 25 below.

Specific gravity 1.180, one-quarter charged, freeze at 8 below.

Specific gravity 1.150, discharged, freeze at 5 above.

Ignition

A good hot spark is needed for starting in cold weather. Make sure

The Things I Have Not Had

I PRAY I may be glad
For the things I have not had;

Glad that somewhere they wait,
And that near, or far, or late

I shall find them, lingering so,
In the dawn or even glow

With never a trace of tears
Left by the passing years.

They know no time nor space,
For they have not taken place.

Love which I never knew,
Beautiful, pure and true,

Awaits, and the distant gleams
From the hearth fires of my dreams

Which will one day come to be
Such a bright reality.

Glad for the past am I,
And for today's blue sky.

But I am more than glad
For the things I have not had.

I DON'T SEE SANTA CLAUS

CHRISTMAS OPENS THE HEART

It Is the Gladsome Season When the Happiest People Are Those Who Give the Most.

CHRISTMAS is one of the words of the language that convey a suggestion, create a vision, project an atmosphere of glamour, romance and sentiment far greater than themselves.

To say Christmas is to open the eyes of the mind and the doors of the heart to the dearest recollections of our childhood; and these fond and shadowy remembrances mean little unless they create in us the desire to have Christmas mean as much to children today as it meant to us when we were tiny.

For Christmas, the birthday of an immortal child, was, is and must remain especially the festival of the bright innocence of infancy. That is why we resent it when some overliteral and painfully conscientious person rises up in duty bound to declare there is no Santa Claus. Such joy-killers, robbing the nursery of an illusion cherished, would take away the fairy tales and quell the spirit of adventure and flood every mystery of shadowland with the light of common day.

Let no improving modernist tamper with the old-time, traditional observance of Christmas. We need for the life of our own souls the Christmas tree and the Yule log at the domestic hearth, and the stockings hung a-row, and the joyful clatter of the great morning, and the dinner with the family gathered round in glad reunion.

We need the sweet custom of the interchange of tokens, when into that custom there creeps no accent of compulsion, no hint of a mercenary calculation. For we know that it is of the very essence of Christmas to give, not to receive. The blessing rests on those whose love, "great enough to hold the world," seeks outlet on this day to other lives—cramped and pinched, alone and poor, meager in comfort, facing the day without a smile and the night without the pillow of a hope.

It is a wretched celebration of the time to shut oneself in with a surfeit of a feast and a piled hoard of gifts and exult that we have so much. Those whose Christmas is the merriest, whose coming year is certain to be happiest, are those who give the most away, and in the giving give themselves.—Philadelphia Ledger.

KEEP PEACE AND GOOD WILL

Essence of the Spirit of Christmas Should Be Retained Throughout the Year.

ANNUALLY, the spirit of Christmas descends upon the world. For a little space the enmities and animosities, the trials and annoyances of workaday life, the sorrows and anxieties are forgotten. Humanity, prosperous, turns its thoughts to humanity in suffering, and seeks to bring to those in want and in distress at least a fragment of the spirit which is abroad throughout the land.

Then memory turns back to old friends, perhaps almost forgotten in the rush of the year's affairs, kindly thoughts and pleasant recollections fill the mind. One turns naturally to the greeting and the gift as a means of expressing the joy of Christmas which is in the heart, and on each of us is impressed anew the thought that it is more blessed to give than to receive, giving not only material gifts, but friendship, kindness and good will.

And then, when the brief holiday season is over, when the Christmas greets have disappeared and the world is again in its drab working clothes, the spirit of Christmas vanishes. Again the suspicions and jealousies and envy show themselves. Again we forget the old friends, and the happy memories of other days are submerged under the pressure of the business of today.

One cannot keep alive always a holiday spirit. If that were attempted, the work of the world would never be done. It is not desirable to attempt to keep with us for more than a few days each year the spirit of Christmas jollity and good cheer. That joyous atmosphere would lose its zest were we to try to live in it for long.

But perhaps the underlying spirit of Christmas could be kept alive more constantly in our hearts. Perhaps the love and friendliness, and the tendency to forget injuries and rise above the pettiness of life which manifest themselves at Yuletide, could be retained beyond Twelfth Night and made a part of our daily lives until next Christmas.

We need not exchange gifts or greetings. We need not go about with holiday jollity in our countenances. But we can keep and cherish and augment by daily use the ideal of peace and good will toward men, which is the essence of the Christmas spirit, and by so doing make the world a better place in which to live.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Christmas Spirit

By EMILY BURKS ADAMS

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"JOY to the World" is the first thought that comes to us as Christmas approaches. If the weather be fair we think it splendid; if chilling zero we like it just so. Christmas is, to us, a time for happiness, regardless of elemental conditions. As friends plan some gift remembrance for those they love, or for some one in need, there truly is joy in the world. How blessed that we get joy out of giving. We often wonder what we would do without Christmas and the privilege God has given us—making others happy. Hardly is the glad season over until we are planning for the next.

The Christmas season seems fuller of joy than any other season, and on every hand is the greeting, "Merry Christmas to you." God made a wonderful gift when He gave His Son, and rejoice as we may, we can never sing praises loud enough to compensate for the generous gift of Christ. Let us be glad; let us make merry, but ever keep in mind that Christ came to redeem man. We are His if we but will, and the spirit that He would have us manifest at this glad season is a stronger faith in His teachings and a firmer stand for His cause. Yes, this, too, is the Christmas spirit.

Carol

There as a Babe born under a Star
(Oh, see how bright the heavens are!)
Laid in a manger, in the sweet hay,
Under the Star's five-pointed ray.

The dumb cattle, they spoke that night
(From end to end the skies are bright)
And Three Wise Men to the Baby came,
For the sky was all song and silver flame.

They bore rich gifts, meet for a King
(Listen . . . the morning stars sing!)
To lay at those small, sorrowful Feet
Where the proud of earth with the humble meet.

—N. E. W.

The Boar's Head.

The old Christmas dishes were, of course, largely determined by the food material available for the Christmas board. The existence of thousands of wild boars in the woods made boar hunting one of the national sports, and the boar's head with its concomitant brawn, one of the most popular among Christmas dishes. The old custom of serving up this ancient dish at Queen's college, Oxford, is associated with a legend to the effect that in olden days one of the students, when attacked by one of these wild denizens of the woods, saved himself from its jaws by thrusting his Greek lexicon down its throat, with the ejaculation, "Graecum est" (It is Greek). Of course the beast was choked, the "choking" possibilities of such a dry-as-dust volume being generally understood.

A BIRD IN THE HAND

IT WAS the end of a perfect day. The glittering Christmas tree had been unloaded. All its lovely fruit had been distributed. All the packages had been opened. Never had there been such a sweet harvest. The great dinner, with the wonderful plum pudding at its close and the ice cream shapes for its company, was only a memory. The little friends had all gone home. Papers and popcorn, tinsel and toys were strewn about the room and Hilda was happy, but tired. In the dusk of evening and in the glimmering firelight she crept up a little closer to her grandfather's heart and said, "Do you want me very much? Well, I'm right here!"—Christopher P. Hazard.

From DECEMBER 20th to JANUARY 3rd, we will transfer a large portion of our Ann Arbor stock of English hand tailored suitings and foreign haberdashery to Charlevoix.

The prices on these clothes are perhaps a little higher than most people in Charlevoix ordinarily pay. However, these clothes will last twice as long and will always look infinitely better.

Everyone admires the wealthy resorters' clothes. Yet in the long run he pays no more for his clothes than you do. Just a matter of knowing where and how to buy. We are offering Charlevoix men this opportunity to purchase the same clothes that well dressed college men of Princeton, Michigan, Yale and Pennsylvania are wearing.

RAINBOW AROUND MOON

THE moon came up like a big gold plate. As it slowly mounted higher, the man in the moon looked down to see what people were going to get for Christmas. A lovely rainbow grew so interested, too, that it gathered in a beautiful circle around the moon and sailed up the sky with it, thinking of all the happy time below. Then a moonbeam fell upon the face of Tim Purdy, as he lay sleeping near his window, and was changed into a smile as it got into his dream. He thought he saw the very thing that he had wanted so much and so long, coming down to him through the air. As the moonbeam stayed until it awoke him, and as he looked up and saw the colored halo that crowned the moon's head, he exclaimed: "What a purty rainbow! Faith I think it means good luck for me!" He was right, it did. In the morning he found that some good fairy had found out and brought the very thing that he wanted.—C. G. Hazard.

Sunday School Christmas Tree

By Laura Elaine Cameron

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

DOROTHY HERNDON pleaded with her daddy a long time before she got him to consent to go with her and her mother to the church christmas tree, and when finally he did consent to do as she wished, his face wore such a martyr-like expression that Mrs. Herndon only saved herself from laughing aloud because Dorothy was present, and after the child had gone to bed she brought up the subject and insisted that she did not see why he could not have consented with a better grace. She also talked to him at some length about his unwillingness to go anywhere, telling him what a mistake he was making in acting thus, and how much happiness he was missing and depriving her and Dorothy of, too.

But her words were wasted upon George Herndon, for he had made up his mind that he was going to be bored to death with the whole affair, and he told her again that he was just going because of her and the child. "You know how much I care for such doings," he finished up.

George Herndon was the sort of husband that is known by the title of "good provider." He saw to it that his wife and child wanted for nothing; their every need was almost anticipated, and he was kind and loving at all times. But he had one great fault, which, of course, he himself did not admit was any fault at all, and that was he never seemed to think his wife and daughter needed any companionship or amusement outside of what was in the home. He felt that they ought to be content as he was, to sit and enjoy the evenings quietly, never stopping to think that even the softest and most comfortable nest in the world would grow tiresome, were the bird to remain there all the while.

But he had given his consent to go to Dorothy's party, so when Christmas Eve came he accompanied her and his wife to the church, still wearing the martyr-like look upon his face. He told himself as he went along that he had no business to come—that his wife and child could just as well have come without him, if they had insisted upon going.

The church was one of those neighborly little churches to be found in every city, where the stranger is made to feel at home and where the spirit of comradeship and good-fellowship is at its best. The minister was the sort of man who never permitted a stranger to take a back seat, and the moment his eyes fell upon George Herndon he came forward. He chatted pleasantly a few minutes and then, without waiting for a refusal, dragged him off to the quietest corner of the auditorium, where he left him to the mercy of half-a-dozen men, who piled him with work for the next hour.

That evening changed George Herndon, for he found that it was a sort of pleasant feeling to meet and mingle with people in a social way, and to know that he had worked and helped in a worthy cause. He found that it gave a fellow a sort of buoyant feeling to be called upon to lend a hand here and there, and the memory of the joy and delight that filled the children when Santa Claus finally came upon the scene remained with him a long time. For he came to the conclusion that evening that even such a good thing as sitting around the home fires can be overdone.

JUST TO HEAR YOU

"WHAT do you want, children?" said the awakened sleeper, in the early morning of Christmas day. "Oh nothing, only just to hear you," came the answer from the two little girls who had knocked upon grandfather's door. So easily is love satisfied. Such meaning expression has. Love goes out upon heartstones for lack of expression. Poverty of expression smothers its fire. Were we all dumb and deaf the world would be filled with silent spectres. Houses have ceased to be homes because so little is said. Like fragile flowers the affections must spring up in ever new manifestations, or we cease to have a garden. We know that others love us, but we forget it. What a pleasure it is just to hear them! —Christopher G. Hazard.

Gift Glints

CHILDREN like to own and use gifts like mother or father. Small girls like to wear a dainty morning caps or an apron to tie around as mother does; or a kimono; oversleeves; small bath towels or towels to place around their shoulders during hair combing; a brush, comb, mirror; a workbasket and embroidery outfit while stencils will delight any small daughter; as will a box of clothespins and clothes line for her dolls' washing; or a small cookbook with simple recipes; a box and files in which to keep recipes; paper flowers, ready to make; a calendar; sanitary dustcloth; small carpet sweeper; remnants for making doll clothes or other handwork such as doll's tablecloth. A flowering plant will please a little miss as will flower seeds and bulbs for her to plant; small manicure sets; wall pockets for her room.

Boys have use for large needles, paper for kites, bags of marbles, string, camping set of aluminum, tin plate, fork, spoon and skillet; pails; tools, boards and bath to make into animal traps; bird houses and houses for pets. Boys will appreciate bright clothes hangers with their names on; small umbrella, rubber boots, raincoat, bathrobe, army blanket, initial handkerchiefs, clothes brush, tie holders and pins with their birthstones, ball and bat, punching bag, skates, football; small garden tools will tempt a lad into the garden and lawn work; or a shoe holder to use when putting his shoes away.

Any child will appreciate a box or trunk with lock and key, a sandbox, sailboats to sail in a pan, materials for framing pictures, small kodak, books on how to feed birds in winter, materials for making food shelters, fountain, etc., for birds; small tennis racquet with balls, indoor table games, guns for shooting at marks, skewers for toasting marshmallows.

Live pets are useful for teaching children kindness and responsibility in caring for them.

One of the most useful gifts for children at home is a low table large enough for them to work on, with low chairs to sit upon. A blackboard saves paper and serves for jolly games aside from drawing and lessons.

HOME EDUCATION

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

A PLEA FOR SANTA CLAUS

Ethel Clark Bickel

Much has been said in the last few years for and against allowing children to believe in Santa Claus. Primary schools besides Sunday schools have taken up the subject of whether or not it is right to lead little folks into belief in the dear old saint. The first primary teacher in a certain well known school considers it very wrong and tells every one of her children "the real truth" as she sees it, and they rapidly spread the sad news to all their little friends. The superintendent of the Sunday school in another town is of similar opinion, and from every Christmas program in his school all illusion to Santa is omitted. No merry songs of mysterious sleigh-bells are heard there; no little red fireplaces, no tiny stockings ever decorate the stage for festivities in connection with that Sunday school.

I wonder how the readers of these columns feel on the subject? I for one am heartily in favor of Santa Claus. In my childhood, I happened to be one of a family of six children, and we were all told of "Santy" when we were scarcely out of babyhood. The happiness of Christmas time in our home will always be a cherished memory, and it was the "Santy" part of it that made it so joyous, for our gifts were never costly, in fact, compared with the toys that little folks receive nowadays, they were almost insignificant.

As for the "terrible disillusionment" that is so often suggested as the natural outcome of telling children of Santa Claus, we never suffered any such misfortune. As we grew older, and began to question, our mother explained to us very beautifully the real meaning of the dear old saint. "Santa Claus is the spirit of Christmas, somewhat as Jack Frost is the spirit of cold and frost," she told us. "Santa is the soul of good cheer and merriment, the spirit of loving and giving." Very easily she made us understand why we had been led to believe in him—just to make Christmas time more bright and gay. Following her explanation, we were always ready to help foster the belief in younger children.

Now I have a little daughter of my own. Her father and I led her to believe in "Santy," for surely we should have been selfish parents had we deprived her of a joy that meant so much to us. The year that Barbara was eight years old, I explained to her about "Santy." "Oh, Mother," she exclaimed happily, when she understood it all, "now this year I'll be Santy Claus to cousin John and Herbert and little Mary Elizabeth!" You see how thoroughly she grasped the meaning. No disillusionment, no feeling of having been hoodwinked!

Once, when Barbara was only a little over four, some child tried to shake her belief. "Well of course," answered Barbara, "if you don't believe in Santy Tau , there jus' isn't any Santy for you, that's all." Her father later confirmed her reply, and the danger of having to tell her at that tender age was averted.

"I have never favored "dressing up" to imitate Santa. Rather do I favor the keeping of his personality delightfully mysterious and vague. Let the kiddies get their impressions of the jolly old fellow from colored pictures and verbal descriptions rather than from masked men. Then, when the time of revelation comes, one can make the story more charming by comparing Santa's red cheeks to the bright Christmas holly, his white beard to the snow and frost; his little fat form may be symbolic of laughter and jollity, and so on. Even his mysterious method of coming down the chimney may be made to symbolize the fascinating secrecy of the Christmas-tide.

that all the electrical connections are tight and clean, that the distributor breaker points are clean and the opening set at .020. Also see that the spark plug gaps are set to .025.

Transmission

If the car has two-wheel brake equipment, with the coming of cold weather, the oil should be drained from the transmission and the case thoroughly flushed out with kerosene. It should then be filled with a mixture of 75 per cent light transmission grease and 25 per cent zero cold test motor oil. This mixture will flow more freely than the usual transmission grease and will assure proper lubrication.

Transmission grease or heavy oil must never be used, summer or winter, in a car with four-wheel brake equipment. In cold weather, the medium motor oil used in summer, must be drained out of the transmission. After flushing out the transmission case with kerosene, fill it with light, cold test motor oil. This is essential for the proper operation of the hydraulic brakes. Where temperature is consistently below zero add 10 per cent kerosene to the cold test motor oil.

Rear Axle

The rear axle, at this season of the year, should be drained of all grease and thoroughly flushed out with kerosene. Fill it with a mixture of 75 per cent light transmission grease and 25 per cent zero cold test motor oil. As in the two-wheel brake transmission, this mixture will flow more freely and will properly lubricate all parts in freezing temperature.

Miscellaneous

Adjust the brakes and fit new linings, if necessary. See that the brake shafts and such parts are oiled. It is highly essential that the steering gear be correctly ajusted and that the wheel alignment be correct. Slippery pavements make it essential that the brakes and the steering mechanism be in proper condition.

SHOWS RESULTS OF LABORS IN 1924

Advertising Methods of Last Year Will be Guide for the Coming Season

That the citizens of Charlevoix may know that the Charlevoix Association of Commerce has been busily engaged in boosting the city and its environments during the past year, we offer for your approval and consideration our financial report in conjunction with an outline of the work accomplished.

We have, as most of you know, carried on an extensive advertising campaign with a number of the largest newspapers in the country, partienlarly those in the middle west and in the south. We have expended about fifteen hundred dollars in this manner. In previous years we had been placing the fions share of our available funds with the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association for advertising our city. In 1923 the amount asked and paid into the treasury of the said Michigan Tourist and Resort Association was one thousand dollars, but in 1924 they levied an assessment of fifteen hundred dollars which we were unable to meet and do justice to our other branches of advertising and to carry on our information hureau, so we were obliged to withdraw from the association and step out for ourselves. This lead us into the newspaper advertising field on our own responsibility nnd we feel that this method has been highly successful, considering the weather conditions we were obliged to contend with this season.

The information bureau was opened in the Benjamin Brown building early in the season, in charge of Miss Doris Hammond, as assistant secretary of the Association of Commerce. Hundreds of inquiries were received during the season and as many as fifty letters received and answered in a single day. These letters contained questions of various kinds, such as inquiring of auto park, hotels, rooms, cottages, boating, climate, business possibilities, bathing, golf and others too numerous to mention. Practically all of them were answered by letter. Literature, maps, booklets, timetables, etc., were sent as the case demanded.

Our hotels were kept in daily touch with information advantageous to them as were the boat companies and railways, so that many of our inquiries were answered from several directions, and in this way the inquiry was answered in all completness.

We estimate that advertising matter was mailed or passed out as follows: nine thousand five hundred booklets, five thousand postal cards of aeroplane views, five hundred letters, nnd hundreds of sundry literature including maps and calendars.

Our newspaper advertising campaign was made possible by the hotels throwing their advertising funds into the association's treasury, with the business mens' contributions, which were sweetened by a contribution turned over by our city council. The hotel managers and proprietors, the city council and the association of commerce worked hand in hand the past season, and through this united effort the city of Charlevoix enjoyed at least a normal season, while every other resort center in the state complained of a poor season.

We should not be satisfied with a normal season but should bend every effort to make our most important industry, which is the RESORT BUSINESS, more successful in each succeeding year. This cannot be accomplished unless we have the full and complete consideration and backing of the entire community. The officers and committee workers of the association of commerce work without compensation and expect none, but we do hope for and expect a moral and financial assistance from everyone who is to profit by our labors.

We invite our citizens to take membership in our association which is only a consideration of $4.00 per yenr for dues, and then if you feel that we are accomplishing things for you, you have the privilege of contributing what you like to the special advertising fund. This city will be just what you wnuld like it to be, so do not wait for "GEORGE" to do it, but take off your coat and cooperate with us.

Below will be found the financial report covering the past year's activities, together with the names of those who have made it possible for the association of commerce to function for the past twelve months:

FOLK'S, LET'S HELP THE KIDS

GIVE THE YOUNGSTERS A GOOD TIME ON XMAS DAY

There Will Be Some Christmas Doings at the Palace If You'll Assist

Plans are now being made to hold a Kiddies' Christmas celebration, similar to the one put on last year by the merchants of the city for the children of Charlevoix and surrounding territory.

The date and hour is Christmas Day afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the Palace Theatre is the place. Walker Miles of the Palace, who with L. C. Hamlin, forms a committee of two to carry out the plan, has arranged for a special movie—an Andy Gump comedy, "What's the Use," which certainly ought to tickle the kids.

Santa Claus will be present in person to hand out the gifts to the little ones of Charlevoix city and the surrounding farm districts. A special invitation is extended to the farm children to join their city brothers and sisters on this joyful occasion.

The support of local merchants is earnestly solicited and, in fact, is necessary in order to make the enterprise a success. It is good business, too, because the kids of today are the consumers of tomorrow and the youngsters, as a rule, don't forget kindnesses shown to them. And their parents will appreciate it as well.

We don't do very much for the young folks here in Charlevoix, more's the pity, and this idea, which has worked out so successfully in the past, offers an excellent opportunity to make up, somewhat, for our general deficiency along this line. Now, then, altogether, put your shoulder to the wheel and HEAVE. Thanks, boys, that's fine business. Merry Christmas!

FIREMEN WILL HOLD A NEW YEAR'S DANCE

Come and Attend the Old Year's Wake

The boys of the Charlevoix fire department will hold a special New Year's eve dance at the Lakeside Pavilion Wednesday evening, December 31st. Durance's orchestra will furnish music calculated to make your toes tickle and a riprorious good time is guaranteed.

Come nnd dance the old year out and the New Year in. Enjoy yourself to the limit, and remember that you are helping the fellows who may have to make their next official call with the apparatus at your place. You never can tell.

DANCE TO HELP OUT THE BASKETBALLERS

Given by "C" Club Next Week at "The Oldham"

The "C" Club of Charlevoix high school will give a benefit dance at "The Oldham," on Tuesday evening, December 23rd, for the benefit of the basketball squad. The East Jordan orchestra will furnish the music and unique favors will be distributed to the dancers. This is a public dance, and it is hoped by the boys that the people of the city will lend their hearty support.

The "C" Club desires to thank most sincerely Mr. Harry L. Oldham for his kindness in donating the use of his building for this affair, which is the third of its kind that has been held on its incomparable dancing floor through the courtesy of its owner.

The west end of the Hooker garage has been rented for the use of the basketball squad this winter and the work of preparing the floor for play was commenced on Tuesday of this week. It is expected to have it ready by tomorrow (Thursday). To satisfy the fears of some who have expressed the thought that this building would be as cold a place to play or to sit and watch a game as was the old skating rink, we are asked to state that arrangements have been made to heat it adequately.

A game between the alumni and the 1924-25 quintet will be staged at Hooker's garage at seven o'clock, preceding the dance, according to latest advices.

DO YOU KNOW "SMOKY" THE DUCKLING

He and "Static" the Parrot Perform Nightly

Little Mary McSauhy, of Charlevoix, is now a member of the WLS Lullaby Listeners Club and wears the badge of the order.

The meetings of the novel organization are held every evening at seven o'clock over the radio from the Sears-Roebuck station in Chicago, with "Little" Glenn Rowell and "Big" Ford Rush in charge of the ceremonies. "Smoky" the duck and "Static" the parrot initiate the members and the Woodshed Theater has been organized for the entertainment of the club members.

Jest 'For Christmas

Father calls me William, sister calls me Will,
Mother calls me Willie, but the fellers call me Bill!
Mighty glad I ain't a girl—ruther be a boy,
Without them sashes, curls, an' things that's worn hy Fauntleroy!
Love to chawnk green apples an' go swimmin' in the lake—
Hate to take the castor-ile they give for belly-ache!
'Most all the time, the whole year round, there ain't no flies on me,
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Got a yeller dog named Sport, sick him on the cat;
First thing she knows she doesn't know where she is at!
Got a clipper sled, an' when us kids goes out to slide,
'Long comes the grocery cart, an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery man is worried an' cross,
He reaches at us with his whip, an' lsrups up his hoss,
An' then I laff an' holler, "Oh, ye never teched me!"
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Gran'ma says she hopes that when I git to be a man,
I'll be a missionarer like her oldest brother, Dan,
As was et up by the cannihuls that lives in Ceylon's Isle,
Where every prospeck pleases, an' only man is vile!
But Gran'ma she has never been to see a Wild West show,
Nor read the Life of Daniel Boone, or else I guess sho'd know
That Buff'lo Bill nn' cowhoys is good enough for me!
Excep' jest 'fore Christmas, when I'm good as I kin be!

For Christmas, with its lots an' lots of candies, cakes, an' toys,
Was made, they say, for proper kids an' not for naughty boys;
So wash yer face an' bresh yer hair, an' mind yer p's and q's,
An' don't bust uot yer pantaloons, and don't wear out yer shoes;
Say "Yessum" to the ladies, and "Yessur" to the men,
An' don't bust out yer pantaloons, an' don't wear out yer shoes;
But, thinkin' of the things yer'd like to see upon that tree,
Jest 'fore Christmas be as good as yer kin be!

DEBATING TEAM WON OVER CENTRAL LAKE

Local Trio Gets Decision in Friday Evening's Contest

The Charlevoix debaters carried off the honors last Friday evening when they met nnd defeated the strong Central Lake team at the high school auditorium.

As this wns the first debate of the season and furthermore, as it was the first time that any of our team had ever spoken on the forensic platform, we feel justly proud of their success.

Our first speaker was John Dutcher, who was followed by Donald Swinton and Henrietta Baldwin. The judges for the evening were Superintendent Duncanson of East Jordan, Superindentent Dumbrille of Bellaire and Miss Deal of Petoskey.

After the debate, the teams were entertained at the home of Mrs. Lisle Shanahan, where a pleasant evening was spent in dancing and discussing the debate.

On January 16th our affirmative team will meet Central Lake negative team at that place. Doris Hammond, Walter Bergeon and Freda McMillan are now working hard, confident that they, too, will carry off the laurels for Charlevoix.

JOSEPH JOHN KRULIK DEAD

CAME TO CHARLEVOIX ABOUT 37 YEARS AGO

Suffered for Many Months with Chronic Bronchial Asthma Which Caused Death

Joseph John Krulik, a resident of this city for the past thirty-seven years, died at his home on the north side last Sunday night at 11:50 o'clock in his sixty-sixth year.

Mr. Krulik, who suffered with chronic bronchial asthma of some three years standing, was confined to his bed by a severe attack of his malady; aggravated by a cold, about ten days ago and grew steadily worse until the end. He bore up bravely, however, and was confident up to the last that he would live to see another Christmas, but it was not to be.

Mr. Krulik was born at Harmstat, Bohemia, on March 7, 1859. He came to Charlevoix from the old country in 1888 and for many years was an employee of the late John Nicholls in the latter's mill in this city. Besides his widow, Mrs. Philomene Krulik, he leaves six children: James Krulik, now in St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. Rose Herrick of Chicago; Mrs. Lillian Evans of Milltown, N. J.; Miss Lulu Krulik of Detroit and Mrs. Christine Kowalske and Mrs. Hilda Sturgell, both of Charlevoix. He is also survived by two brothers, Rudolph, of Detroit, and Frank, of Charlevoix, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Farmer, of Norwood township.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning from the house at 414 Prospect avenue, Rev. Quant of the local M. E. church officiating. Interment will be made at Brookside cemetery.

Miss Lulu Krulik is here, also the deceased's brother, Rudolph. James Krulik and Mrs. Lillian Evans are not able to be present. Other out-of-town members of the family have been notified but have not as yet replied definitely as to whether or not they can come.

RUNS INTO SLEIGHS CUTTING SCALP OPEN

Little John Zeitler in a Coasting Accident

Last Sunday morning at ten o'clock, John, Jr., eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zeitler of 215 West Upright avenue, this city, while sliding on his sled down the Burdick hill, ran into a pair of sleighs lying by the roadside and cut his scalp open from crown to forehead.

The little fellow was taken to his home and medical aid summoned. Four stitches were taken in the cut and he is now getting along nicely at this writing.

LOCAL W. C. T. U. HAS GOOD YEAR

REPORT SHOWS MANY THINGS ACCOMPLISHED

Membership in this Community Totals 131—Mrs. Simmons Heads Organization

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. for 1924 was held at the home of Mrs. H. B. Jacobs on Friday, December 12th.

The union has a membership of 131. It has held eleven regular, one special and three executive board meetings during the year. The work has been taken up through eleven departments, which has included activities in political and civic enterprises, having been of assistance in organizing the League of Women Voters for the county and entertained the county and district conventions.

This union was represented at the state convention by Mrs. Kaye Buttars and at the National Jubilee convention in Chicago by Mrs. Lois Campbell. It assisted on Hospital Tag Day with a pie booth, conducted a membership campaign in behalf of the Million member contest, which went over the top by several hundred. It held the "Golden Rule Tea" in behalf of the Near East Relief work in this community.

Mrs. Buttar's report shows a membership in Michigan of 13,990. Eighty-five per cent of the industries in Michigan favor prohibition. Mrs. Buttars also brought back many helpful plans that will be taken up in this year's work.

Mrs. H. S. Harsha presented many items of interest in her paper, "The Outlook for Prohibition Enforcement for 1925." One item of much importance is that $94,000,000 has been saved to the taxpayer during the past year through prohibition.

Mrs. Jennie Alcox, honorary president of the local union, who has gained this title by twenty-one years of faithful service in city, county and district W. C. T. U. work, receives special mention for her able assistance during the year. Mrs. Alcox was chairman of the program committee for the local union and also for both county and district conventions this year.

Mrs. Alcox, as president of the county W. C. T. U., presided at the county convention in May, in a very charming manner. As vice president-at-large of the district, she very ably assisted Mrs. Niles, the district president during the district meeting held here in October.

In the local union, Mrs. Alcox had entire charge of the June program, which was given in the interests of the flower mission work. The select readings were those which are dear to the hearts of us all.

Mrs. Alcox also had charge of the December program at the home of Mrs. H. B. Jacobs, introducing four of our high school boys, Dean Davenport, Clare Usher, Clayton Dutcher and Gilbert Saltonstall, who sang two very pleasing numbers with Miss Clarke at the piano. The mothers of all four boys are active members of the union.

The local union has contributed to the Frances Willard and Lillian M. Stevens memorial funds. They have sent flowers or fruit to the sick and shut-ins and remembered Mrs. P. J. Howard with a Christmas gift. They have had Mrs. Norma F. Mudge, state secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Niles, district president; Miss Margaret Bilz and V. K. Beshgetoor for public addressos during the year. They also contributed $15.00 to the support of the Child Welfare center at Detroit this year.

Mrs. Leah Simmons was elected president of the local union; Mrs. A. J. Usher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kaye Buttars, recording secretary; Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, treasurer.

The M. E., Congregational and Baptist churches have given the use of their rooms for the meetings since last May, free of charge, for which the union is very grateful.

Mrs. E. E. Cross,
Secretary.

BAD BACK TODAY?

Then Find the Cause and Correct It As Other Charlevoix Folks Have

There's little rest or peace for the backache sufferer.
Days are tired and weary—
Night brings no respite.
Urinary troubles, headaches, dizziness and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep.
Why continue to be so miserable?
Why not use a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys?
Use Doan's Pills.
Your neighbors recommend Doan's.
Read this Charlevoix case:

Robert Mitchell, 809 State St., says: "I had a dragging ache through the small of my back and when I bent over, sharp, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Mornings my back was lame and sore and as time passed, I felt all out of sorts. My kidneys were weak and I often had to get up several times during the night to pass the secretions. After using Doan's Pills, from the Central Drug Store, I was cured."

AT THE MOVIES

Viola Dana Teaches Glenn Hunter Secrets of Screen

Viola Dana is Glenn Hunter's tutor in the secrets of the screen.

Her strong right arm bears him up when he is weak from hunger; her trusty make-up box is his magic password with harsh studio gatemen; her fund of Hollywood knowledge puts his awkward feet on the road to fame and she stands beside him at the last out in the great open spaces where men are men.

In other words, Miss Dana is featured in the leading feminine role in "Merton of the Movies," starring Glenn Hunter. Miss Dana plays Sally Montague, known to all of movieland as "Flips," and wise in picture lore beyond her tender years.

James Cruze produced "Merton," originally a novel by Harry Leon Wilson and one of the story hits of recent years.

There is a strong supporting cast in "Merton of the Movies," which is shown at the Palace Theatre next Friday, December 19th.

Who Is He?

In Clara Beranger's mystery play, "The Bedroom Window," a William de Mille production for Paramount, a player is accused of murdering a banker and is finally trapped. In the closing scenes, when the slayer is led out to his doom by a detective and a police officer, he almost collapses, the player giving a performance which strikes n sympathetic chord in the audience.

Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edeson and George Fawcett all have featured roles in "The Bedroom Window," which will be the feature at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, December 20 and 21. Which of these is the guilty one? The picture tells. May McAvoy and Ethel Wales are also featured in principal roles.

"Welcome Stranger" is a Knockout On the Screen

What is known in the vernacular of the show business as a "knockout" will take place at the Palace Theatre on Thursday evening, December 25th, where "Welcome Stranger" gives its initial presentation to local audiences.

With as fine a cast as we have seen in a picture in a blue moon, a story that effervesces with clean-cut comedy, real honest-to-goodness characters that you meet in every-day life, and a plot that sustains interest throughout, "Welcome Stranger" is just what its title implies. It's certainly welcome in these days of drab sexy plays and forced humor. It's entertainment plus and leaves a good taste in the show palate after the final fadeout.

If there is a finer piece of character portrayal than that of "Isadore Solomon" by Dore Davidson, we have not seen it on the screen since "Potash and Perlmutter." Wherever Solomon is, there in genuine "human" interest.

A jury at Charlotte refused to return a verdict of guilty against a Lansing motorist who had disobeyed the stop law, because "the stop law is being violated so generally that it would not be fair to single out a stranger for punishment." Shucks, haven't they learned what a stranger is for yet?

The rush on a sale of 98 cent dictionaries at Ionia cleaned out the entire shipment before noon. Everyday people are demanding more and more of these volumes, in hopes of finding a word used in a crossword puzzle which may also be used in writing or conversation.

McDONALD ON NEW ARLINGTON STAFF

Frank Is One of Three Assistant Managers

In the building of the New Arlington hotel at Hot Springs, Arkansas, a modern miracle in the world of big building construction has been accomplished. Six of the largest contractors in the United States said, "It can't be done!"—referring to the short time limit set for its completion but the Little Rock firm of Ault & Burden believed they could do it—and they did. They finished their work 17 days ahead of schedule, winning a bonus of $17,000.

No resort hotel in America is any finer than the New Arlington and the amount of material used in its construction is staggering. It is to be opened on January 1, 1925, and our old friend, Frank L. McDonald, who has for several years past so ably assisted A. I. Creamer in the management of the Inn and was himself manager of that hostelry during the season of 1923, appears as one of the New Arlington's staff of three assistant managers. This is a much deserved "step-up" for Mr. McDonald, whose wide experience in the hotel business, good judgment and unfailing courtesy have found in the appointment to his new position a recognition of fitting proportions.

SHORTEST DAY TO BE JAN. 24

ECLIPSE OF SUN WILL CUT HOUR OF DAYLIGHT

Charlevoix People Will Be Abe to See Eclipse in Early Morning

The shortest day in many years will come for northern Michigan January 24 when the sun rise will be delayed until 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

The total eclipse of the sun, scheduled for that date, will affect parts of the upper peninsula and the northern tip of the lower peninsula. Partial eclipse will be visible in all parts of Michigan.

The moon in its orbit will pass between the earth and the sun, completely shutting off direct rays along a path from Duluth, Minn., to New Haven, Conn.

In Michigan the line runs from Au Sable point on the northeast to Northport on the west. A strip forty miles wide on either side of the line marking the center of the eclipse will be in the total phase area. The center line runs through Antrim, Crawford, Oscoda and Iosco counties, with Emmet in the north.

Degree of obstruction in the rest of the state will vary with distance from this area. Ann Arbor, representing an average location, will experience a 98 percent eclipse.

The total darkening of the sun will last two minutes in the total eclipse area, beginning at 7:01, central standard time. The degree of eclipse will gradually diminish until two and a half hours after sun rise when the moon will be entirely clear of the path of the sun rays.

Since total eclipse occures exactly at the hour of sun rise, it probably will not be discernable, according to D. A. Seeley, head of the government weather bureau. At this time of year, it is probable cloudy conditions will prevail, making it impossible to see the phenominon at any time.

In case of clear weather, however, the partial eclipse can be observed without use of a telescope. In the total phase area, the corona, rose colored rays sent off by the sun, may be visible.

This light is always present around the sun but is invisible because of stronger direct rays except during a total eclipse.

Seeley fears observers will miss the eclipse because it occurs early in the morning and atmospheric conditions will probably be unfavorable. Occuring in the middle of the day, with a clear sky, the corona presents a gorgeous spectacle, according to astronomers.

The last total eclipse in Michigan occurred in 1900 and the next one will come in 1932.

H. E. HUTTON PASSES AWAY

For Ten Years Supervisor of South Arm Township

Hanson Edward Hutton, aged 69 years, passed away at his farm home 4 miles north of East Jordan, in South Arm township, Sunday afternoon, December 7th, after an illness of several years' duration, from heart trouble.

Mr. Hutton was born in southern Michigan and, with his family, came here from Vanderbilt, some 17 years ago, and has since resided on his farm in South Arm township.

He has held the office of director of Rock Elm school for the past 17 years, and supervisor of South Arm township for ten years.

He leaves, besides his wife, the following sons and daughters, Mrs. Frank Poquette, Clive Hutton and Mrs. Wesley Sudman, all of Boyne City, and the Misses Ina and Fern Hutton at home.

Funeral services were held from his late home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Henry Hiles of the East Jordan Methodist church. Interment at Sunset Hill.

Hens Will Lay The Year Around

Give a hen the right materials and she will turn out plenty of eggs and do it in fall and winter. Thousands are getting full egg baskets, keeping their hens on full time schedules the year around, making real profits, by feeding correctly. They are feeding the world's best known, highest quality egg making feed.

Blatchford's
"Fill the Basket"
Egg Mash

Why experiment? The Blatchford factory has done that for you. They have been making commercial feeds for over 125 years. Their Egg Mash is a guaranteed feed. Contains 17 ingredients—25 per cent of them milk and meat products. That's why it makes hens lay.

Ask us to name some others who have tried it with gratifying results. We stake our reputation on it. Take home a trial bag and watch results.

JOHN ZEITLER SUFFERS SEVERE SHOCK

Finds Live Light Wire Possesses a Kick

John Zeitler of this city was the victim, last Friday morning, of a distressing accident which, under some circumstances, might easily resulted in his death.

While working at the job of making interior changes in the rooms occupied by the local post office in the Van Pelt building, John in some way got hold of a live light wire and received its full charge of from 115 to 118 volts. He fell to the floor unconscious and it was only after the most vigorous efforts on the part of Dr. McMillan that he was revived sufficiently to be removed to his home. Had his heart been weak or conditions been more favorable for the passage of the current through his body, such as a wet floor or a contact with metal, Mr. Zeitler might not be with us at this writing.

The reduction on drugs at Metcalf's is large. Selling out.—Adv. 51-tf pd.

Gratitude

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS Christmas time at the Saunders home.

"I've discovered something awfully important," said Mrs. Saunders.

"What is it?" asked her husband, helping himself to three pancakes and plenty of syrup.

"It's this: Some people need gratitude."

Mr. Saunders paused with his fork lifted half way to his mouth. "Need gratitude. Now what do you mean by that?"

"It's a kind of nourishment for the soul. The spirit feeds on it."

"Do I have to hear a sermon with pancakes?" demanded Mr. Saunders a trifle testily.

"It's not a sermon: it's a plain fact. And if more people understood it, the world would run more smoothly. I really think," Mrs. Saunders spoke with slow conviction, "that a great deal of Christmas giving comes from the desire for being thanked. Of course no one would admit it: it sounds so selfish. But after all, there are many sides to the human make-up. If we take trouble to make a gift, with a real thought of the recipient when we do it, there is a kind of law of compensation in looking for some show of appreciation. Only a perfect saint could exist without some gratitude here and there. Just think it over for a minute."

Mr. Saunders blinked rapidly once or twice, and made great headway with his pancakes. "They're tip-top, this morning, Jane," he mumbled. "You're a boss cook, and no mistake."

Mrs. Saunders dimpled. "Thank you, John. You have demonstrated my theory right there. There would not be any fun at all in making the best pancakes in the world, if you didn't like them and say so!"

Mr. Saunders grinned. "I get you, Jane! And so you apply the same rule to Christmas. Well, all I've got to say is, that if you don't faint from joy over the present I've got for you this year, then I'll never give you another!"

"I bet I faint all over the place!" laughed Mrs. Saunders. "John," she said more soberly, "let's try to be particularly grateful to Uncle Cyrus this year. We know what we're going to get; there's never any surprise about it. But we can surprise him by being awfully pleased. We always take his presents so much for granted. He probably will just lap up gratitude as a kitten does milk. He needs it. There isn't much else he can take without indigestion."

"All right; I'm with you, Jane. I'll tell him that a porch chair is the one thing that makes me completely happy. He's given us five, but they're handy on summer evenings. More strip, please, and don't be so stingy with the butter."

Christmas Don'ts

Don't hunt for price marks on the presents you receive.

Don't wait till Christmas for the purpose of being kind.

Don't present your Christmas gift as if you were conferring a favor.

Don't, if the present you are sending away was expensive, fail to remove the price tag.

Don't give merely for the purpose of creating the impression that you are generous.

Don't forget that the clerk who has been working long hours for many weeks is human.

Don't let your left pocket know what your right pocket gives for friendship, for love or for charity.—Marilyn Baptist.

A MERRY XMAS AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

LOUIS S. ORLOWSKI

M. E. CHURCH

This is Christmas Sunday, December 21.

10:30 a very large part of the service will be given by the choir. The address will consider "Our White Gift" which is the church's appellation for the support of our Children's Homes. We consider that the thought of the Christ Child can be best expressed in our gift for the needy children of our church.

Hundreds of needy little children thank you, good people of the Detroit area, because you, through your gifts, have opened wide to them the portals of a greater and a better life.

In a great, moiling, toiling, soiling city like Detroit, there are, there must be, many backwaters of poverty and want. There are hundreds of lonely children who need care. And it is for these children that the Methodist Children's Home has opened its doors and arms.

From its modest beginning, the Home has grown and grown. In one single month of this year, the Home cared for 157 children, bringing them into better living conditions, giving them a better chance to develop into christian manhood and womanhood.

Your donations have helped in this splendid work. Your dollars are bringing the bloom of health to wan cheeks; the sparkle of youth to tired eyes. You realize this, when you know that:

$5 will give a baby a home for one week; $10 will provide a needy baby with clothing for one month; $20 will give a six-year-old girl a home for five weeks; and $25 will clothe a ten-year-old boy for three months.

Is it not a wonderful thing, to realize that such splendid things can be accomplished for the future men and women of America?

As the Methodist Children's Home has grown, it has broadened out. From the first, it was realized that the children who have been ground between the millstones of poverty and ignorance, needed close medical examination.

Bring your offering this Sunday. It is most worthy. Some self-denial gift may save some child's life.

At this morning service a class of fourteen boys will be received into the church membership.

Sunday school at 12 o'clock. The banners for offering and attendance last Sunday went to Mrs. Poole's class of boys. Look over the possibilities of your class and increase your attendance. Listen! There are two people in Charlevoix that do not go to church or Sunday school for every one who does. Lots of room for busy workers.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. This group of bustlers do additional work to the Sunday school. This is a splendid field to take some special project of service, in Children's Home work. Encourage the juniors by your interest.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. If some Methodist young folks have not been at this meeting for a while you will be surprised when you come at the present interest. Stormy weather makes little difference to this bunch. Get into this crowd. Splendid social events are being planned for the winter months.

7:00 p. m. The evening service this Sunday will exhibit the slides of the "Passion Play of Obermmangau." There can be no doubt about the interest manifest in this lecture. The slides are here now. Special advertising and a special invitation to all to come. An offering will be taken.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read 22nd chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. Come to prayer meeting.

Monday next 22nd Christmas "Grab Bag" party for the Epworth League. Boyne City leaguers will be our guests if the weather man does not hinder. Leaguers! This is what we want you to do. Buy some gift costing 25 cents. Wrap it. These gifts will all go into one bag. You get the one you draw. Note: Everyone brings one and everyone gets one.

Christmas eve exercises Wednesday 24th, at 7:30 p. m. The pageant "The Dream of Santa Claus" will be given by the Sunday school under the direction of Beginners department. There are two hundred boxes of candy and nuts to be distributed among the Sunday school scholars. Let's have a good time.

The Ladies' Aid Society has begun an autograph quilt which is to be completed by Easter. Everyone of the nine divisions are at work.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday, 10:30 a. m., call to worship with a full chorus choir and Christmas sermon by pastor.

Sunday, 12:00 m., the church school, A. F. Bridge superintendent.

Sunday, 6:00 p. m., Y. P. S. C. E. The attendance and interest is good. Come!

Sunday 7:00 p. m., call to worship. The men, yes, the big men, both in stature and point of service make up the choir and help mightily towards making this meeting a success. Short and timely sermon by the pastor.

The Sunday school is planning a Christmas program to be given on Christmas eve in the auditorium of the church, with the usual music by the children and Santa Claus party. You will enjoy to hear and see, so come and join the merry company.

Keep your ear out for the adult chorus choir of the church. They will be heard Christmas eve.

Thursday, Christmas Day, at 4:00 p. m., the chorus choir will render a Choral Vesper service in the auditorium of the church. If you know this choir, you will put yourself out of the way to be present.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society this Friday, 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Wm. Parmalee. All members be present.

BAPTIST CHURCH

10:30 a. m., preaching service—"A Christmas Study," by the pastor.

12:00 m., Bible school—God's gift to the world—John 1:14-18.

7:00 p. m., Christmas exercises. It is suspected that Santa will be there, or will send his gifts.

Wednesday evening—the usual mid-week service has been held on this evening, but will hereafter be held on Thursday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Burns will leave Monday to spend the holidays with their children in Detroit and at their home in Cassopolis.

On account of the bad roads the B. Y. P. U. did not hold their service at Boyne City last Sunday as they have been doing the past two months. They had a delightful social and business meeting at the home of James Meggison, south of town, last Friday evening. The house was filled and the bostess and her daughters served a bountiful repast to all present.

(Last Week's Missing Letter)

Read VanDerArk & Co.'s ad. in this issue of the Courier.

Dr. Beuker was called to Central Lake on Saturday, to attend Mrs. L. VanSkiver, who is quite ill.

B. F. Wilson, of Central Lake, was in town on business the first of the week.

Mrs. Emery Wilson is clerking at the VanDerArk & Co. store during the holiday rush.

Howard Sweet, of Lansing, bought and shipped a carload of hogs here the first of the week.

Rev. Dolfin, of Muskegon, occupied the pulpit at the Christian Reformed church on Sunday.

Fred Steiner, of Alden, visited at the Geo. Liberty home on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

The L. A. S. realized nearly sixty dollars from their bazaar and supper at the Blue Hall on Friday evening of last week.

Fred Schuler is at home again after a month spent at Buffalo taking treatments at the Pierce hospital. He is much improved in health.

W. F. Donaldson, of Petoskey, was in town over Sunday. He left on Monday with the Elzinga brothers for a ten day's fox hunting trip over in the Black and Pigeon river country.

Bernie Klooster has sold his interest in the firm of Klooster and VanDerArk to August VanDerArk of the same firm. Mr. Klooster will remain as salesman for a time at least.

Ira Springstead, of East Jordan, who purchased the S. G. Thompson property some time ago, has opened a first class restaurant and lunch room and is also prepared to furnish lodging for a limited number of guests.

Andrew Essenberg's auto was badly damaged on Monday evening when he collided with a runaway team belonging to Hans DeYoung. The collision occurred near the Henry Reamsma home on the Ellsworth-Atwood road. Mr. Essenberg was driving into town and the team, which had started from the sheds in the rear of the VanDerArk & Co. store, were headed for home with a part of the wagon and were going at full speed. Both horses were slightly injured and the car will need about fifty dollars in repairs.

A. W. Carr, of Sunfield, was in town on Monday of this week.

Geo. Turcott, of Boyne City, was in town on business on Friday of last week.

Don't forget the Xmas program at the M. E. church on Tuesday evening, December 23rd.

Ennes Schafer spent from Thursday until Monday on a business trip to Grand Rapids and Casnovia.

Wm. Kooyer is at the Charlevoix hospital, recuperating from an operation performed last week by Drs. Parks and McMillan.

C. W. McPhail, of Grand Rapids, and W. S. Richardson, of Charlevoix, were in town on business on Tuesday of last week.

Miss Emily Brosche returned to her home at Traverse City the first of the week, after a two week's visit with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Ely.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons attended a golden wedding anniversary at the Dan Himebauch home at Charlevoix, on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Himebauch were at Bellaire on Wednesday of last week, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Wilfred Louisell, who died in Detroit.

Geo. Nelson, Chas. Edson, L. O. Isaman and Arthur Gidley attended a radio lecture at the Masonic hall at East Jordan on Wednesday evening of last week.

The party of fox hunters who have been spending the past week in the Black river country, returned on Sunday and show the same secrecy as to results obtained as did the local deer hunters who journeyed north earlier in the season.

A White Gift Christmas program, the pageant, "The Meaning of the Manger," will be given at the Ellsworth Methodist church on Tuesday evening, December 23rd. An offering will be taken for the Methodist Children's Home at Farmington. Everyone invited.

Section crews from Alden and Bellaire assisted the Ellsworth crew on Thursday in repairing the damage done by the stone train south on Wednesday night. One set of trucks of a box car left the rails due to a broken arch bar and, although the accident occurred about a mile north of town, it was not discovered until the train reached the station here.

Ellsworth and Bellaire will clash in the first basketball game of the season here on Thursday evening of this week, and corking good games are expected. The Ellsworth boys appear to be the best team which has represented Ellsworth in a number of years and, although they will be out-weighed in this contest, they hope to make up in speed what they lack in weight. Owing to lack of material for a complete high school girls team, both the local and visiting team will be augmented by independent players and the three old high school stars, Pearl and Emily Johnstone and "Sis" Elzinga, will be in the game for Ellsworth. This alone assures a clean, fast, scrappy game and one well worth the small admission charge. Don't fail to be on hand when the games start at eight o'clock.

STORM OF WEEK END A BAD ONE

PETOSKEY LOSES HER PIER-HEAD LIGHT

Big Freighter Goes Down in Gale Off Eagle Harbor—Believe Thirty Drowned

The terrific "norwester" that hit this region last Friday night culminating in a 75 mile gale Sunday forenoon wrought much havoc along the shores of the Great Lakes, according to press reports that reached us yesterday.

At Petoskey the lighthouse on the breakwater, which has withstood hundreds of fierce Lake Michigan winter storms, was completely wrecked and blown off into the bay last Sunday morning in one of the worst storms in the memory of the "oldest inhabitants." The waves dashed to a height of thirty feet over the breakwater and slowly pounded the lighthouse timbers and steel to pieces. Lake front residents of our neighbor city on the north, early Sunday morning, saw the lighthouse structure crack and crumble under the steady pounding of tremendous seas. The steel frame was torn loose from the timbered top of the breakwater and it is believed that some of the timbers to which the structure was bolted may have been rotted.

The light has been discontinued for the winter season, having been shut off on December 3rd. It was an automatic affair, needing attention only enough to keep it supplied with fuel and was cared for by the keeper of the light at Harbor Point. The lighthouse will probably be rebuilt during the winter or early next spring.

Advices from Sault Ste. Marie, under date of December 15th, are to the effect that beaches along Lake Superior's shores were being combed on that date for bits of wreckage and bodies from a freighter believed to have sunk with a crew of thirty men and officers off Eagle Harbor, Michigan, in a gale Saturday night or Sunday.

Wood hatches, spars, rigging and other bits of wreckage that were carried ashore were found Saturday afternoon and Sunday. Wreckage indicated that the boat had foundered and probably carried a crew of approximately thirty men and officers, so coast guards said.

The gale abated somewhat on Monday and small craft that were reported missing in the storm of the two days previous were still unaccounted for. Fear was expressed at the coast guard station at Harbor Point that some may have gone down in the gale, although many were believed to have sought shelter at isolated points along the lake shore.

All of the crew of the steamer that foundered are believed to have drowned, although the name of the vessel cannot be discovered from the wreckage that has so far been found.

Due to its natural protection, Charlevoix harbor suffered but little, although effects of the weather were observed in the deserted condition of the streets, falling off of business in the stores and diminished church attendance.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON FOR MRS. McDONALD

Given by Baptist Aid Society to Departing Member

The Baptist Aid Society gave a surprise luncheon on December 10th, to Mrs. A. McDonald, who expects soon to move with her son, M. A. McDonald, retiring Register of Deeds, to Grand Rapids. Early in the afternoon the Milner home, next door to the McDonald home filled with a company of her old friends to whom she has endeared herself during her residence in Charlevoix, and after the president, Mrs. Bearss, had presented her with a silk neck scarf in behalf of the society a short program consisting of a solo by Mrs. Correll, recitations by Mrs. Shearer, Miss Correll, and Mrs. Metcalf followed.

A bountiful lunch was then served and the remaining time spent in a social hour that will be long remembered. The best wishes of a host of friends will follow her as she leaves us. Her cheery disposition and genial ways will doubtless soon gather about her a company of new friends who will esteem and love her as her Charlevoix friends do. Au Revoir.—Contributed.

If Sandy Claws Was Pa

I'd often thought what fun 'twould be
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He surely would be good to me,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He'd let me see the million toys
He makes fer little girls and boys;
An' every single winter's day
I'd kotch onto the reindeer sleigh,
An' he'd be good an' wouldn't mind,
But jes p'tend that he was blind,
An' wouldn't never whip behind,
If Sandy Claws was pa.

The reindeer'd take us 'way up high,
If Sandy Claws was pa
They'd trot right through the air an' sky
If Sandy Claws was pa
An' pa would tell me how the deer
Could do things so awful queer
An' why they stay up in the air
Without balloons to keep 'em there,
He'd tell me how they fly all night
Up past the stars so big an' bright,
Without a single wing in sight,
If Sandy Claws was pa

The pole explorers would be blue,
If Sandy Claws was pa,
We'd find the pole before they do,
If Sandy Claws was pa,
For we'd go there jes like a streak;
It wouldn't take us half a week
To make the trip, ner half a day,
Ner half a night while on the way.
It's great ole time them reindeer make
When their allm legs git wide awake—
Not half an hour it wouldn't take,
If Sandy Claws was pa.

Each night there'd be a Chris'maas tree,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
An' one each day besides fer me,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He'd tell me how he climbs right down
The red-hot chimneys in the town,
An' how he ever, ever learnt
To never git his whiskers burnt,
But what's the use of thinkin' so?
These dreams is nice, but they don't go
Fer pa ain't Sandy Claws, you know,
An' Sandy Claws ain't pa.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Friday, December 19th

Glenn Hunter and Viola Dana in the Paramount picture, "MERTON OF THE MOVIES." A James Cruze production. If grade, a comedy, genuine novelty and wholesome love-interest appeal to you in a picture, this one's made to order for you. Given for the benefit of the normal class.

Saturday and Sunday, December 20 and 21

"THE BEDROOM WINDOW," starring May McAvoy. What happened the night Martin was killed? Who killed him—and why? We know—but mum's the word! But this much is no secret—this mystery-thriller has everything. And you'll be surprised. We also show No. 11 of the Telephone Girl.

Tuesday and Wednesday, December 23 and 24

"TIGER LOVE," starring Antonio Moreno and Estelle Taylor. The title of this picture suggests the type. There is good plot and acting throughout the whole play, which holds the interest to the last. We also show No. 6 of the "Go-Getters," title, "MISS IN THE DARK."

Christmas Afternoon, December 25th

All the children of this city and surounding territory are invited to a free show at the Palace Theatre at 2:30 p. m. Santa Claus will be there with a pack on his back.

Thursday, December 25th

"WELCOME STRANGER," with an all-star east. This picture was booked especially for Christmas night. A gripping story proving that all the pep isn't in the big city. Life in a small New England town can be mighty, goshdurned exciting! Also Jimmie Adams in "ROLL ALONG." This is a Christy comedy.

Advertising Methods of Last Year Will be Guide for the Coming Season

That the citizens of Charlevoix may know that the Charlevoix Association of Commerce has been busily engaged in boosting the city and its environments during the past year, we offer for your approval and consideration our financial report in conjunction with an outline of the work accomplished.

We have, as most of you know, carried on an extensive advertising campaign with a number of the largest newspapers in the country, particularly those in the middle west and in the south. We have expended about fifteen hundred dollars in this manner. In previous years we had been placing the lions share of our available funds with the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association for advertising our city. In 1923 the amount asked and paid into the trensury of the said Michigan Tourist nnd Resort Association was one thousand dollars, but in 1924 they levied an assessment of fifteen hundred dollars which we were unable to meet and do justice to our other branches of advertising and to carry on our information bureau, so we were obliged to withdraw from the association and step out for ourselves. This lead us into the newspaper advertising field on our own responsibility and we feel that this method has been highly successful, considering the weather conditions we were obliged to contend with this season.

The information bureau was opened in the Benjamin Brown building early in the season; in charge of Miss Doris Hammond, as assistant secretary of the Association of Commerce. Hundreds of inquiries were received during the season and as many as fifty letters received and answered in a single day. These letters contained questions of various kinds, such as inquiring of auto park, hotels, rooms, cottages, boating, climate, business possibilities, bathing, golf and others too numerous to mention. Practically all of them were answered by letter. Literature, maps, booklets, timetables, etc., were sent as the case demanded.

Our hotels were kept in daily touch with information advantageous to them as were the boat companies and railways, so that many of our inquiries were answered from several directions, and in this way the inquiry was answered in all completness.

We estimate that advertising matter was mailed or passed out as follows: nine thousand five hundred booklets, five thousand postal cards of aeroplane views, five hundred letters, and hundreds of sundry literature including maps and calendars.

Our newspaper advertising campaign was made possible by the hotels throwing their advertising funds into the association's treasury, with the business mens' contributions, which were sweetened by a contribution turned over by our city council. The hotel managers and proprietors, the city council and the association of commerce worked hand in hand the past season, and through this united effort the city of Charlevoix enjoyed at least a normal season, while every other resort center in the state complained of a poor season.

We should not be satisfied with a normal season but should bend every effort to make our most important industry, which is the RESORT BUSINESS, more successful in each succeeding year. This cannot be accomplished unless we have the full and complete consideration and backing of the entire community. The officers and committee workers of the association of commerce work without compensation and expect none, but we do hope for and expect a moral and financial assistance from everyone who is to profit by our labors.

We invite our citizens to take membership in our association which is only a consideration of $4.00 per year for dues, and then if you feel that we are accomplishing things for you, you have the privilege of contributing what you like to the special advertising fund. This city will be just what you would like it to be, so do not wait for "GEORGE" to do it, but take off your coat, and cooperate with us.

Below will be found the financial report covering the past year's activities, together with the names of those who have made it possible for the association of commerce to function for the past twelve months:

FOLK'S, LET'S HELP THE KIDS

GIVE THE YOUNGSTERS A GOOD TIME ON XMAS DAY

There Will Be Some Christmas Doings at the Palace If You'll Assist

Plans are now being made to hold a Kiddies' Christmas celebration, similar to the one put on last year by the merchants of the city for the children of Charlevoix und surrounding territory.

The date and hour is Christmas Day afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the Palace Theatre is the place. Walker Miles of the Palace, who with L. C. Hamlin, forms a committee of two to carry out the plan, has arranged for a special movie—an Andy Cump comedy, "What's the Use," which certainly ought to tickle the kids.

Santa Claus will be present in person to hand out the gifts to the little ones of Charlevoix city and the surrounding farm districts. A special invitation is extended to the farm children to join their city brothers and sisters on this joyful occasion.

The support of local merchants is earnestly solicited and, in fact, is necessary in order to make the enterprise u success. It is good business, too, because the kids of today are the consumers of tomorrow and the youngsters, as a rule, don't forget kindnesses shown to them. And their parents will appreciate it as well.

We don't do very much for the young folks here in Charlevoix, more's the pity, and this idea, which has worked out so successfully in the past, offers an excellent opportunity to make up, somewhat, for our general deficiency along this line. Now, then, altogether, put your shoulder to the wheel and HEAVE. Thanks, boys, that's fine business. Merry Christmas!

FIREMEN WILL HOLD A NEW YEAR'S DANCE

Come and Attend the Old Year's Wake

The boys of the Charlevoix fire department will hold a special New Yenr's eve dance at the Lakeside Pavilion Wednesday evening, December 31st. Durance's orchestra will furnish music calculated to make your toes tickle and a riproarious good time is guaranteed.

Come and dance the old year out and the New Year in. Enjoy yourself to the limit, and remember that you are helping the fellows who may have to make their next official call with the apparatus at your place. You never can tell.

Notice to Taxpayers

I will be at the County Bank, December 27th and January 3rd and 9th, to receive taxes. H. E. Cunningham, Marion township treasurer.—Adv. 51-t1 pd.

DANCE TO HELP OUT THE BASKETBALLERS

Given by "C" Club Next Week at "The Oldham"

The "C" Club of Charlevoix high school will give a benefit dance at "The Oldham," on Tuesday evening, December 23rd, for the benefit of the basketball squad. The East Jordan orchestra will furnish the music and unique favors will be distributed to the dancers. This is a public dance and it is hoped by the boys that the people of the city will lend their hearty support.

The "C" Club desires to thank most sincerely Mr. Harry L. Oldham for his kindness in donating the use of his building for this affair, which is the third of its kind that has been held on its incomparable dancing floor through the courtesy of its owner.

The west end of the Hooker garage has been rented for the use of the basketball squad this winter and the work of preparing the floor for play was commenced on Tuesday of this week. It is expected to have it ready by tomorrow (Thursday). To satisfy the fears of some who have expressed the thought that this building would be as cold a place to play or to sit and watch a game as was the old skating rink, we are asked to state that arrangements have been made to heat it adequately.

A game between the alumai and the 1924-25 quintet will be staged at Hooker's garage at seven o'clock, preceding the dance, according to latest advices.

DO YOU KNOW "SMOKY" THE DUCKLING

He and "Static" the Parrot Perform Nightly

Little Mary McSauby, of Charlevoix, is now a member of the WLS Lullaby Listeners Club and wears the badge of the order.

The meetings of the novel organization are held every evening at seven o'clock over the radio from the Sears-Roebuck station in Chicago, with "Little" Glenn Rowell and "Big" Ford Rush in charge of the ceremonies. "Smoky" the duck and "Static" the parrot initiate the members and the Woodshed Theater has been organized for the entertainment of the club members.

Sold to Cheboygan Horseman

"Scotty" McLeod, Cheboygan horseman, has purchased Miss Dixie, a fast pacer who went lame a year or two ago, and hopes to cure the sprained tendon and have the racer in shape for next autumn's racing meets in northern Michigan. The horse was brought north last summer to Charlevoix by Frank Welch and later sold to Jerry Clemens, of Onaway.

Jest 'For Christmas

Father calls me William, sister calls me Will,
Mother calls me Willie, but the fellers call me Bill!
Mighty glad I ain't a girl—ruther be a boy,
Without them sushes, curls, an' things that's worn by Fauntleroy!
Love to chawnk green apples an' go swimmin' in the lake—
Hate to take the castor-ile they give for belly-ache!
Most all the time, the whole year round, there ain't no flies on me,
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Got a yeller dog named Sport, sick him on the cat;
First thing she knows she doesn't know where she is at!
Got a clipper sled, an' when us kids goes out to slide,
'Long comes the grocery cart, an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery man is worried an' cross,
He reaches at us with his whip, an' larups up his hoss,
An' then I laff an' holler, "Oh, ye never teched me!"
But jest 'fore Christmns I'm as good as I kin be!

Gran'ma says she hopes that when I git to be a man,
I'll be'n missionarer like her oldest brother, Dan,
As was et up by the cannibula that lives in Ceylon's Isle,
Where every prospeck pleases, an', only man is vile!
But Gran'mn she has never been to see a Wild West show,
Nor read the Life of Daniel Boone, or else I guess sho'd know
That Buff'lo Bill an' cowboys is good enough for me!
Excep' jest 'fore Christmas, when I'm good as I kin be!

For Christmas, with its lots an' lots of candies, cakes, an' toys,
Was made, they say, for proper kids an' not for naughty boys;
So wash yer face an' bresh yer hair, an' mind yer p's and q's,
An' don't bust uot yer pantaloons, and don't wear out yer shoes;
Sny "Yessum" to the ladies, and "Yessur" to the men,
An' don't bust out yer pantaloons, an' don't wear out yer shoes;
But, thinkin' of the things yer'd like to see upon that tree,
Jeat 'fore Christmas be as good as yer kin be!

DEBATING TEAM WON OVER CENTRAL LAKE

Local Trio Gets Decision in Friday Evening's Contest

The Charlevoix debaters carried off the honors last Friday evening when they met and defeated the strong Central Lake team at the high school auditorium.

As this was the first debate of the season and furthermore, as it was the first time that any of our team had ever spoken on the forensic platform, we feel justly proud of their success.

Our first speaker was John Dutcher, who was followed by Donald Swinton and Henrietta Baldwin. The judges for the evening were Superintendent Duncanson of East Jordan, Superindentent Dumbrille of Bellaire and Miss Deal, of Petoskey.

After the debate, the teams were entertained at the home of Mrs. Lisle Shanahan, where a pleasant evening was spent in dancing and discussing the debate.

On January 16th our affirmative team will meet Central Lake negative team at that place. Doris Hammond, Walter Bergeon and Freda McMillan are now working hard, confident that they, too, will carry off the laurels for Charlevoix.

JOSEPH JOHN KRULIK DEAD

CAME TO CHARLEVOIX ABOUT 37 YEARS AGO

Suffered for Many Months with Chronic Bronchial Asthma Which Caused Death

Joseph John Krulik, a resident of this city for the past thirty-seven years, died at his home on the north side last Sunday night at 11:50 o'clock in his sixty-sixth year.

Mr. Krulik, who suffered with chronic bronchial asthma of some three years standing, was confined to his bed by a severe attack of his malady, aggravated by a cold, about ten days ago and grew steadily worse until the end. He bore up bravely, however, and was confident up to the last that he would live to see another Christmas, but it was not to be.

Mr. Krulik was born at Harmstat, Bohemia, on March 7, 1859. He came to Charlevoix from the old country in 1888 and for many years was an employee of the late John Nicholls in the latter's mill in this city. Besides his widow, Mrs. Philomene Krulik, he leaves six children: James Krulik, now in St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. Rose Herrick of Chicago; Mrs. Lillian Evans of Milltown, N. J.; Miss Lulu Krulik of Detroit and Mrs. Christine Kowalske and Mrs. Hilda Sturgell, both of Charlevoix. He is also survived by two brothers, Rudolph, of Detroit, and Frank, of Charlevoix, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Farmer, of Norwood township.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning from the house at 474 Prospect avenue, Rev. Quant of the local M. E. church officiating. Interment will be made at Brookside cemetery.

Miss Lulu Krulik is here, also the deceased's brother, Rudolph. James Krulik and Mrs. Lillian Evans are not able to be present. Other out-of-town members of the family have been notified but have not as yet replied definitely as to whether or not they can come.

RUNS INTO SLEIGHS CUTTING SCALP OPEN

Little John Zeitler in a Coasting Accident

Last Sunday morning at ten o'clock, John, Jr., eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zeitler of 215 West Upright avenue, this city, while sliding on his sled down the Burdick hill, ran into a pair of sleighs lying by the roadside and cut his scalp open from crown to forehead.

The little fellow was taken to his home and medical aid summoned. Four stitches were taken in the cut and he is now getting along nicely at this writing.

LOCAL W. C. T. U. HAS GOOD YEAR

REPORT SHOWS MANY THINGS ACCOMPLISHED

Membership in this Community Totals 131—Mrs. Simmons Heads Organization

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. for 1924 was held at the home of Mrs. H. B. Jacobs on Friday, December 12th.

The union has a membership of 131. It has held eleven regular, one special and three executive board meetings during the year. The work has been taken up through eleven departments, which has included activities in political and civic enterprises, having been of assistance in organizing the League of Women Voters for the county and entertained the county and district conventions.

This union was represented at the state convention by Mrs. Kaye Buttars and at the National Jubilee convention in Chicago by Mrs. Lois Campbell. It assisted on Hospital Tag Day with a pie booth, conducted a membership campaign in behalf of the Million member contest, which went over the top by several hundred. It held the "Golden Rule Tea" in behalf of the Near East Relief work in this community.

Mrs. Buttar's report shows a membership in Michigan of 13,990. Eighty-five per cent of the industries in Michigan favor prohibition. Mrs. Buttars also brought back many helpful plans that will be taken up in this year's work.

Mrs. H. S. Harsha presented many items of interest in her paper, "The Outlook for Prohibition Enforcement for 1925." One item of much importance is that $94,000,000 has been saved to the taxpayer during the past year through prohibition.

Mrs. Jennie Alcox, honorary president of the local union, who has gained this title by twenty-one years of faithful service in city, county and district W. C. T. U. work, receives special mention for her able assistance during the year. Mrs. Alcox was chairman of the program committee for the local union and also for both county and district conventions this year.

Mrs. Alcox, as president of the county W. C. T. U., presided at the county convention in May, in a very charming manner. As vice president-at-large of the district, she very ably assisted Mrs. Niles, the district president during the district meeting held here in October.

In the local union, Mrs. Alcox had entire charge of the June program, which was given in the interests of the flower mission work. The select readings were those which are dear to the hearts of us all.

Mrs. Alcox also had charge of the December program at the home of Mrs. H. B. Jacobs, introducing four of our high school boys, Dean Davenport, Clare Usher, Clayton Dutcher and Gilbert Saltonstall, who sang two very pleasing numbers with Miss Clarke at the piano. The mothers of all four boys are active members of the union.

The local union has contributed to the Frances Willard and Lillian M. Stevens memorial funds. They have sent flowers or fruit to the sick and shut-ins and remembered Mrs. P. J. Howard with a Christmas gift. They have had Mrs. Norma F. Mudge, state secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Niles, district president; Miss Margaret Bilz and V. K. Beshgetoor for public addresses during the year. They also contributed $15.00 to the support of the Child Welfare center at Detroit this year.

Mrs. Lelah Simmons was elected president of the local union; Mrs. A. J. Usher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kaye Buttars, recording secretary; Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, treasurer.

The M. E., Congregational and Baptist churches have given the use of their rooms for the meetings since last May, free of charge, for which the union is very grateful.

Mrs. E. E. Cross,
Secretary.

BAD BACK TODAY?

Then Find the Cause and Correct It As Other Charlevoix Folks Have

There's little rest or peace for the backache sufferer.

Days are tired and weary—

Night brings no respite.

Urinary troubles, headaches, dizziness and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep.

Why continue to be so miserable?

Why not use a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys?

Use Doan's Pills.

Your neghbors recommend Doan's.

Read this Charlevoix case:

Robert Mitchell, 809 State St., says: "I had a dragging ache through the small of my back and when I bent over, sharp, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Mornings my back was lame and sore and as time passed, I felt all out of sorts. My kidneys were weak and I often had to get up several times doring the night to pass the secretions. After using Doan's Pills, from the Central Drug Store, I was cured."

AT THE MOVIES

Viola Dana Teaches Glenn Hunter Secrets of Screen

Viola Dana is Glenn Hunter's tutor in the secrets of the screen.

Her strong right arm bears him up when he is weak from hunger; her trusty make-up box is his magic password with harsh studio gatemen; her fund of Hollywood knowledge puts his awkward feet on the road to fame and she stands beside him at the last out in the great open spaces where men are men.

In other words, Miss Dana is featured in the leading feminine role in "Merton of the Movies," starring Glenn Hunter. Miss Dana plays Sally Montague, known to all of movieland as "Flips," and wise in picture lore beyond her tender years.

James Cruze produced "Merton," originally a novel by Harry Leon Wilson and one of the story hits of recent years.

There is a strong supporting cast in "Merton of the Movies," which is shown at the Palace Theatre next Friday, December 19th.

Who Is He?

In Clara Beranger's mystery play, "The Bedroom Window," a William de Mille production for Paramount, a player is accused of murdering a banker and is finally trapped. In the closing scenes, when the slayer is led out to his doom by a detective and a police officer, he almost collapses, the player giving a performance which strikes a sympathetic chord in the audience.

Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edeson and George Fawcett all have featured roles in "The Bedroom Window," which will be the feature at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, December 20 and 21. Which of these is the guilty one? The picture tells. May McAvoy and Ethel Wales are also featured in principal roles.

"Welcome Stranger" is a Knockout On the Screen

What is known in the vernacular of the show business as a "knockout" will take place at the Palace Theatre on Thursday evening, December 25th, when "Welcome Stranger" gives its initial presentation to local audiences.

With as fine a cast as we have seen in a picture in a blue moon, a story that effervesces with clean-cut comedy, real honest-to-goodness characters that you meet in every-day life, and a plot that sustains interest throughout, "Welcome Stranger" is just what its title implies. It's certainly welcome in these days of drab sexy plays and forced humor. It's entertainment plus and leaves a good taste in the show palate after the final fadeout.

If there is a finer piece of character portrayal than that of "Isadore Solomon" by Dore Davidson, we have not seen it on the screen since "Potash and Perlmutter," Wherever Solomon is, there in genuine "human" interest.

A jury at Charlotte refused to return a verdict of guilty against a Lansing motorist who had disobeyed the stop law, because "the stop law is being violated so generally that it would not be fair to single out a stranger for punishment." Shucks, haven't they learned what a stranger is for yet?

The rush on a sale of 98 cent dictionaries at Ionia cleaned out the entire shipment before noon. Every day people are demanding more and more of these volumes, in hopes of finding a word used in a crossword puzzle which may also be used in writing or conversation.

McDONALD ON NEW ARLINGTON STAFF

Frank Is One of Three Assistant Managers

In the building of the New Arlington hotel at Hot Springs, Arkansas, a modern miracle in the world of big building construction has been accomplished. Six of the largest contractors in the United States said, "It can't be done!"—referring to the short time limit set for its completion but the Little Rock firm of Ault & Burden believed they could do it—and they did. They finished their work 17 days ahead of schedule, winning a bonus of $17,000.

No resort hotel in America is any finer than the New Arlington and the amount of material used in its construction is staggering. It is to be opened on January 1, 1925, and our old friend, Frank L. McDonald, who has for several years past so ably assisted A. I. Creamer in the management of the Inn and was himself manager of that hostelry during the season of 1923, appears as one of the New Arlington's staff of three assistant managers. This is a much deserved "step-up" for Mr. McDonald, whose wide experience in the hotel business, good judgment and unfailing courtesy have found in the appointment to his new position a recognition of fitting proportions.

SHORTEST DAY TO BE JAN. 24

ECLIPSE OF SUN WILL CUT HOUR OF DAYLIGHT

Charlevoix People Will Be Abe to See Eclipse in Early Morning

The shortest day in many years will come for northern Michigan January 24 when the sun rise will be delayed until 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

The total eclipse of the sun, scheduled for that date, will affect parts of the upper peninsula and the northern tip of the lower peninsula. Partial eclipse will be visible in all parts of Michigan.

The moon in its orbit will pass between the earth and the sun, completely shutting off direct rays along a path from Duluth, Minn., to New Haven, Conn.

In Michigan the line runs from Au Sable point on the northeast to Northport on the west. A strip forty miles wide on either side of the line marking the center of the eclipse will be in the total phase area. The center line runs through Antrim, Crawford, Oscoda and Iosco counties, with Emmet in the north.

Degree of obstruction in the rest of the state will vary with distance from this area. Ann Arbor, representing an average location, will experience a 98 percent eclipse.

The total darkening of the sun will last two minutes in the total eclipse area, beginning at 7:01, central standard time. The degree of eclipse will gradually diminish until two and a half hours after sun rise when the moon will be entirely clear of the path of the sun rays.

Since total eclipse occures exactly at the hour of sun rise, it probably will not be discernable, according to D. A. Seeley, head of the government weather bureau. At this time of year, it is probable cloudy conditions will prevail, making it impossible to see the phenominon at any time.

In case of clear weather, however, the partial eclipse can be observed without use of a telescope. In the total phase area, the corona, rose colored rays sent off by the sun, may be visible.

This light is always present around the sun but is invisible because of stronger direct rays except during a total eclipse.

Seeley fears observers will miss the eclipse because it occurs early in the morning and atmospheric conditions will probably be unfavorable. Occuring in the middle of the day, with a clear sky, the corona presents a gorgeous spectacle, according to astronomers.

The last total eclipse in Michigan occurred in 1900 and the next one will come in 1932.

H. E. HUTTON PASSES AWAY

For Ten Years Supervisor of South Arm Township

Hanson Edward Hutton, aged 69 years, passed away at his farm home 4 miles north of East Jordan, in South Arm township, Sunday afternoon, December 7th, after an illness of several years' duration, from heart trouble.

Mr. Hutton was born in southern Michigan and, with his family, came here from Vanderbilt, some 17 years ago, and has since resided on his farm in South Arm township.

He has held the office of director of Rock Elm school for the past 17 years, and supervisor of South Arm townsbip for ten years.

He leaves, besides his wife, the following sons and daughters, Mrs. Frank Poquette, Clive Hutton and Mrs. Wesley Sudman, all of Boyne City, and the Misses Ina and Fern Hutton at home.

Funeral aervices were held from his late home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Henry Hiles of the East Jordan Methodist church. Interment at Sunset Hill.

JOHN ZEITLER SUFFERS SEVERE SHOCK

Finds Live Light Wire Possesses a Kick

John Zeitler of this city was the victim, last Friday morning, of a distressing accident which, under some circumstances, might easily resulted in his death.

While working at the job of making interior changes in the rooms occupied by the local post office in the Van Pelt building, John in some way got hold of a live light wire and received its full charge of from 115 to 118 volts. He fell to the floor unconscious and it was only after the most vigorous efforts on the part of Dr. McMillan that he was revived sufficiently to be removed to his home. Had his heart been weak or conditions been more favorable for the passage of the current through his body, such as a wet floor or a contact with metal, Mr. Zeitler might not be with us at this writing.

Gratitude

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS Christmas time at the Saunders home.

"I've discovered something awfully important," said Mrs. Saunders.

"What is it?" asked her husband, helping himself to three pancakes and plenty of syrup.

"It's this: Some people need gratitude."

Mr. Saunders paused with his fork lifted half way to his mouth. "Need gratitude. Now what do you mean by that?"

"It's a kind of nourishment for the soul. The spirit feels on it."

"Do I have to hear a sermon with pancakes?" demanded Mr. Saunders a trifle testily.

"It's not a sermon: It's a plain fact. And if more people understood it, the world would run more smoothly. I really think," Mrs. Saunders spoke with slow conviction, "that a great deal of Christmas giving comes from the desire for being thanked. Of course no one would admit it: It sounds so selfish. But after all, there are many sides to the human make-up. If we take trouble to make a gift, with a real thought of the recipient when we do it, there is a kind of law of compensation in looking for some show of appreciation. Only a perfect saint could exist without some gratitude here and there. Just think it over for a minute."

Mr. Saunders blinked rapidly once or twice, and made great headway with his pancakes. "They're tip-top this morning, Jane," he mumbled. "You're a boss cook, and no mistake."

Mrs. Saunders dimpled. "Thank you, John. You have demonstrated my theory right there. There would not be any fun at all in making the best pancakes in the world, if you didn't like them and say so!"

Mr. Saunders grunted. "I get you, Jane! And so you apply the same rule to Christmas. Well, all I've got to say is, that if you don't faint from joy over the present I've got for you this year, then I'll never give you another!"

"I bet I faint all over the place!" laughed Mrs. Saunders. "John," she said more soberly, "let's try to be particularly grateful to Uncle Cyrus this year. We know what we're going to get; there's never any surprise about it. But we can surprise him by being awfully pleased. We always take his presents so much for granted. He probably will just lap up gratitude as a kitten does milk. He needs it. There isn't much else he can take without indigestion."

"All right; I'm with you, Jane. I'll tell him that a porch chair is the one thing that makes me completely happy. He's given us five, but they're handy on summer evenings. More sirup, please, and don't be so stingy with the butter."

Christmas Don'ts

Don't hunt for price marks on the presents you receive.

Don't wait till Christmas for the purpose of being kind.

Don't present your Christmas gifts as if you were conferring a favor.

Don't, if the present you are sending away was expensive, fail to remove the price tag.

Don't give merely for the purpose of creating the impression that you are generous.

Don't forget that the clerk who has been working long hours for many weeks is human.

Don't let your left pocket know what your right pocket gives for friendship, for love or for charity.—Maritime Baptist.

A MERRY XMAS AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

LOUIS S. ORLOWSKI

M. E. CHURCH

This is Christmas Sunday, December 21.

10:30 a very large part of the service will be given by the choir. The address will consider "Our White Gift" which is the church's appellation for the support of our Children's Homes. We consider that the thought of the Christ Child can be best expressed in our gift for the needy children of our church.

Hundreds of needy little children thank you, good people of the Detroit area, because you, through your gifts, have opened wide to them the portals of a greater and a better life.

In a great, moiling, toiling, soiling city like Detroit, there are, there must be, many backwaters of poverty and want. There are hundreds of lonely children who need care. And it is for these children that the Methodist Children's Home has opened its doors and arms.

From its modest beginning, the Home has grown and grown. In one single month of this year, the Home eared for 157 children, bringing them into better living conditions, giving them a better chance to develop into christian manhood and womanhood.

Your donations have helped in this splendid work. Your dollars are bringing the bloom of health to wan eheeks; the sparkle of youth to tired eyes. You realize this, when you know tbat:

$5 will give a baby a home for one week; $10 will provide a needy baby with elothing for one month; $20 will give a six-year-old girl a home for five weeks; and $25 will clothe a ten-year-old boy for three months.

Is it not a wonderful thing, to realize thut such splendid things can be accomplished for the future men and women of Ameriea?

As the Methodist Children's Home has grown, it has broadened out. From the first, it was realized that tbe children who have been ground between the millstones of poverty and ignorance, needed close medical examination.

Bring your offering this Sunday. It is most worthy. Some self-denial gift may save some child's life.

At this morning service a class of fourteen boys will be received into the church membership.

Sunday school at 12 o'clock. The banners for offering and attendance last Sunday went to Mrs. Poole's class of boys. Look over the possibilities of your class and increase your attendance. Listen! There are two people in Charlevoix that do not go to church or Sunday school for every one who does. Lots of room for busy workers.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. This group of hustlers do additional work to the Sunday school. This is a splendid field to take some special project of service in Children's Home work. Encourage the juniors by your interest.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. If some Methodist young folks have not been at this meeting for a while you will be surprised when you come at the present interest. Stormy weather makes little difference to this bunch. Get into this crowd. Splendid social events are being planned for the winter months.

7:00 p. m. The evening service this Sunday will exhibit the slides of the "Passion Play of Obermmangau." There can be no doubt about the interest manifest in this lecture. The slides are here now. Special advertising and a special invitation to all to come. An offering will be taken.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read 22nd chapter of the Aets of the Apostles. Come to prayer meeting.

Monday next 22nd Christmas "Grab Bag" party for the Epworth League. Boyne City leaguers will be our guests if the weather man does not hinder. Leaguers! This is what we want you to do. Buy some gift eosting 25 cents. Wrap it. These gifts will all go into one bag. You get the one you draw. Note: Everyone brings one and everyone gets one.

Christmas eve exercises Wednesday 24th, at 7:30 p. m. The pageant "The Dream of Santa Claus" will be given by the Sunday school under the direction of Beginners department. There are two hundred boxes of candy and nuts to be distributed among the Sunday school scholars. Let's have a good time.

The Ladies' Aid Society has begun an autograph quilt which is to be completed by Easter. Everyone of the nine divisions are at work.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday. 10:30 a. m., call to worship with a full chorus choir and Christmas sermon by pastor.

Sunday. 12:00 m., the church school. A. F. Bridge superintendent.

Sunday. 6:00 p. m., Y. P. S. C. E. The attendance and interest is good. Come!

Sunday 7:00 p. m., call to worship. The men, yes, the big men, both in stature and point of service make up the choir and help mightily towards making this meeting a success. Short and timely sermon by the pastor.

The Sunday school is planning a Christmas program to be given on Christmas eve in the auditorium of the church, with the usual music by the children and Santa Claus party. You will enjoy to hear and see, so come and join the merry company.

Keep your ear out for the adult chorus choir of the church. They will be heard Christmas eve.

Thursday, Christmas Day, at 4:00 p. m., the chorus choir will render a Choral Vesper service in the auditorium of the church. If you know this choir, you will put yourself out of the way to be present.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society this Friday, 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Wm. Parmalee. All members be present.

Everything must go. Metcalf, the Druggist.—Adv. 51-t1 pd.

BAPTIST CHURCH

10:30 a. m., preaching service—"A Christmas Study," by the pastor.

12:00 m., Bible school—God's gift to the world—John 1:14-18.

7:00 p. m., Christmas exercises. It is suspected that Santa will be there, or will send his gifts.

Wednesday evening—the usual mid-week service has been held on this evening, but will hereafter be held on Thursday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Burns will leave Monday to spend the holidays with their children in Detroit and at their home in Cassopolis.

On account of the bad roads the B. Y. P. U. did not hold their service at Boyne City last Sunday as they have been doing the past two months. They had a delightful social and business meeting at the home of James Meggison, south of town, last Friday evening. The house was filled and the bostess and her daughters served a bountiful repast to all present.

(Last Week's Missing Letter)

Read VanDerArk & Co.'s ad in this issue of the Courier.

Dr. Beuker was called to Central Lake on Saturday, to attend Mrs. L. VanSkiver, who is quite ill.

B. F. Wilson, of Central Lake, was in town on business the first of the week.

Mrs. Emery Wilson is clerking at the VanDerArk & Co. store during the holiday rush.

Howard Sweet, of Lansing, bought and shipped a carload of hogs here the first of the week.

Rev. Dolfin, of Muskegon, occupied the pulpit at the Christian Reformed church on Sunday.

Fred Steiner, of Alden, visited at the Geo. Liberty home on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

The L. A. S. realized nearly sixty dollars from their bazaar and supper at the Blue Hall on Friday evening of last week.

Fred Schuler is at home again after a month spent at Buffalo taking treatments at the Pierce hospital. He is much improved in health.

W. F. Donaldson, of Petoskey, was in town over Sunday. He left on Monday with the Elzinga brothers for a ten day's fox hunting trip over in the Black and Pigeon river country.

Bernie Klooster has sold his interest in the firm of Klooster and VanDerArk to August VanDerArk of the same firm. Mr. Klooster will remain as salesman for a time at least.

Ira Springstead, of East Jordan, who purchased the S. G. Thompson property some time ago, has opened a first class restaurant and lunch room and is also prepared to furnish lodging for a limited number of guests.

Andrew Essenberg's auto was badly damaged on Monday evening when he collided with a runaway team belonging to Hans DeYoung. The collision occurred near the Henry Reamsma home on the Ellsworth-Atwood road. Mr. Essenberg was driving into town and the team, which had started from the sheds in the rear of the VanDerArk & Co. store, were headed for home with a part of the wagon and were going at full speed. Both horses were slightly injured and the car will need about fifty dollars in repairs.

A. W. Carr, of Sunfield, was in town on Monday of this week.

Geo. Turcott, of Boyne City, was in town on business on Friday of last week.

Don't forget the Xmas program at the M. E. church on Tuesday evening, December 23rd.

Ennes Schafer spent from Thursday until Monday on a business trip to Grand Rapids and Casnovia.

Wm. Kooyer is at the Charlevoix hospital, recuperating from an operation performed last week by Drs. Parks and McMillan.

C. W. McPhail, of Grand Rapids, and W. S. Richardson, of Charlevoix, were in town on business on Tuesday of last week.

Miss Emily Brosche returned to her home at Traverse City the first of the week, after a two week's visit with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Ely.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons attended a golden wedding anniversary at the Dan Himebauch home at Charlevoix, on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Himebauch were at Bellaire on Wednesday of last week, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Wilfred Louisell, who died in Detroit.

Geo. Nelson, Chas. Edson, L. O. Isaman and Arthur Gidley attended a radio lecture at the Masonic hall at East Jordan on Wednesday evening of last week.

The party of fox hunters who have been spending the past week in the Black river country, returned on Sunday and show the same secrecy as to results obtained as did the local deer hunters who journeyed north earlier in the season.

A White Gift Christmas program, the pageant, "The Meaning of the Manger," will be given at the Ellsworth Methodist church on Tuesday evening, December 23rd. An offering will be taken for the Methodist Children's Home at Farmington. Everyone invited.

Section crews from Alden and Bellaire assisted the Ellsworth crew on Thursday in repairing the damage done by the stone train south on Wednesday night. One set of trucks of a box car left the rails due to a broken arch bar and, although the accident occurred about a mile north of town, it was not discovered until the train reached the station here.

Ellsworth and Bellaire will clash in the first basketball game of the season here on Thursday evening of this week, and corking good games are expected. The Ellsworth boys appear to be the best team which has represented Ellsworth in a number of years and, although they will be out-weighed in this contest, they hope to make up in speed what they lack in weight. Owing to lack of material for a complete high school girls team, both the local and visiting team will be augmented by independent players and the three old high school stars, Pearl and Emily Johnstone and "Sis" Elzinga, will be in the game for Ellsworth. This alone assures a clean, fast, scrappy game and one well worth the small admission charge. Don't fail to be on hand when the games start at eight o'clock.

STORM OF WEEK END A BAD ONE

PETOSKEY LOSES HER PIER-HEAD LIGHT

Big Freighter Goes Down in Gale Off Eagle Harbor—Believe Thirty Drowned

The terrific "norwester" that hit this region last Friday night culminating in a 75 mile gale Sunday forenoon wrought much havoc along the shores of the Great Lakes, according to press reports that reached us yesterday.

At Petoskey the lighthouse on the breakwater, which has withstood hundreds of fierce Lake Michigan winter storms, was completely wrecked and blown off into the bay last Sunday morning in one of the worst storms in the memory of the "oldest inhabitants." The waves dashed to a height of thirty feet over the breakwater and slowly pounded the lighthouse timbers and steel to pieces. Lake front residents of our neighbor city on the north, early Sunday morning, saw the lighthouse structure crack and crumble under the steady pounding of tremendous seas. The steel frame was torn loose from the timbered top of the breakwater and it is believed that some of the timbers to which the structure was bolted may have been rotted.

The light has been discontinued for the winter season, having been shut off on December 3rd. It was an automatic affair, needing attention only enough to keep it supplied with fuel and was cared for by the keeper of the light at Harbor Point. The lighthouse will probably be rebuilt during the winter or early next spring.

Advices from Sault Ste. Marie, under date of December 15th, are to the effect that beaches along Lake Superior's shores were being combed on that date for bits of wreckage and bodies from a freighter believed to have sunk with a crew of thirty men and officers off Eagle Harbor, Michigan, in a gale Saturday night or Sunday.

Wood hatches, spars, rigging and other bits of wreckage that were carried ashore were found Saturday afternoon and Sunday. Wreckage indicated that the boat had foundered and probably carried a crew of approximately thirty men and officers, so coast guards said.

The gale abated somewhat on Monday and small craft that were reported missing in the storm of the two days previous were still unaccounted for. Fear was expressed at the coast guard station at Harbor Point that some may have gone down in the gale, although many were believed to have sought shelter at isolated points along the lake shore.

All of the crew of the steamer that foundered are believed to have drowned, although the name of the vessel cannot be discovered from the wreckage that has so far been found.

Due to its natural protection, Charlevoix harbor suffered but little, although effects of the weather were observed in the deserted condition of the streets, falling off of business in the stores and diminished church attendance.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON FOR MRS. McDONALD

Given by Baptist Aid Society to Departing Member

The Baptist Aid Society gave a surprise luncheon on December 10th, to Mrs. A. McDonald, who expects soon to move with her son, M. A. McDonald, retiring Register of Deeds, to Grand Rapids. Early in the afternoon the Milner home, next door to the McDonald home filled with a company of her old friends to whom she has endeared herself during her residence in Charlevoix, and after the president, Mrs. Bearss, had presented her with a silk neck scarf in behalf of the society a short program consisting of a solo by Mrs. Correll, recitations by Mrs. Shearer, Miss Correll, and Mrs. Metcalf followed.

A hountiful luneh was then served and the remaining time spent in a social hour that will be long remembered. The best wishes of a host of friends will follow her as she leaves us. Her cheery disposition and genial ways will doubtless soon gather about her a company of new friends who will esteem and love her as her Charlevoix friends do. Au Revoir.—Contributed.

CEMENT PLANT FOR BOYNE CITY

Company is Being Formed with W. H. White as President

There is in process of organization at Boyne City a new cement company to be known as the Boyne City Portland Cement company and with a capital stock of $2,000,000. Temporary officers include W. H. White, president; L. W. Seigel, secretary and treasurer, and these directors: Joseph Dunn and W. M. Martin of Boyne City; William J. Pearson, Boyne Falls, and John Yuill, of Vanderbilt.

Articles of incorporation have been filed and work of organization etc., is moving smoothly: Officers of the company hope to have work well along during the present week.

If Sandy Claws Was Pa

I'VE often thought what fun 'twould be
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He surely would be good to me,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He'd let me see the million toys
He makes for little girls and boys;
An' every single winter's day
I'd ketch onto the reindeer sleigh,
An' he'd be good an' wouldn't mind,
But jes p'tend that he was blind,
An' wouldn't never whip behind,
If Sandy Claws was pa

The reindeer'd take us way up high,
If Sandy Claws was pa
They'd trot right through the air an' sk
If Sandy Claws was pa.
An' pa would tell me how the deer
Could do things so awful queer
An' why they stay up in the air
Without balloons to keep 'em there.
He'd tell me how they fly all night
I'p past the stars so big an' bright,
Without a single wing in sight,
If Sandy Claws was pa.

The pole explorers would be blue,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
We'd find the pole before they do,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
For we'd go there jes like a streak;
It wouldn't take us half a week
To make the trip, nor half a day,
Nor half a night while on the way.
It's great ole time them reindeer make
When their slim legs git wide awake—
Not half an hour it wouldn't take,
If Sandy Claws was pa.

Each night there'd be a Chris'mas tree,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
An' one each day besides fer me,
If Sandy Claws was pa.
He'd tell ma how he climbs right down
The red-hot chimneys in the town,
An' how he ever, ever learnt
To never git his whiskers burnt.
But what's the use of thinkin' so?
These dreams is nice, but they don't go
Fer 'pa ain't Sandy Claws, you know,
An' Sandy Claws ain't pa.

FRIENDS CELEBRATE HER BIRTHDAY DATE

Mrs. Herbert Alcox Surprised With Potluck

Last Wednesday evening, Mrs. Herbert Alcox was happily surprised when a group of relatives and friends arrived at her home, carrying mysterious packages of all shapes and sizes to assist her in the observance of her birthday.

A delicious potluck supper was served and a pleasant evening enjoyed by all present.

THREE DAYS BLIZZARD CAUSED MUCH HAVOC

Train and Wire Service Paralyzed Throughout Middle West—Cost Nineteen Lives

Nobody is going to have to complain of a green Christmas this year. All doubts on this point were effectually dispelled on last Friday afternoon when the mereury began to volplane to the bottom and King Winter was ushered in on the wings of a raw, cutting gale from the northwest. It commenced to snow then and since that time up to Monday night has done nothing else but.

Sunday afternoon barred the humble Lizzie and many of her more powerful brethren from the country roads and hy-paths. Some venturesome souls started out but soon returned. Others reported having to dig themselves out of engulfing drifts.

The Western Union and Michigan Bell Telephone local offiees report no trouble to speak of due to the ravages of the storm, although wire communiention in other portions of the state has been seriously hampered. The Pere Marquette reports but little damage or delay from the storm, although their trains have been delayed in some instances from two to three hours due to the enormous parcel post and express business, which, as usual, crowds into the last few days before Christmas. When will we folks learn to obey the Yuletide slogan, "Do your shopping early" and thereby save thousands of tired brains and feet and millions in dollars!

Our sufferings from the storm, however, are as nothing to what the southeastern part of the state and other portions of the middle west have experieneed. But once during the whole period of three days has the mercury stood as low as zero in this region. Zero weather and sleet and heavy snow, raising havoc with roads, streets, telephone and telegraph wires have brought things practieally to a standstill in the more southerly districts.

The thermometer stood at seven above in Detroit Saturday forenoon and the wires were heavily coated with sleet. Then the wind whipped up and wires crossed and grounded and poles came down. All schedules for bus serviee were cancelled due to impassable roads and train operations seriously hampered.

In the Chicago area, six deaths were accredited to the cold. More than one hundred fires, due to overheated heating apparatus, occurred there during Friday night, when the thermometer ranged from 5 to 12 degrees below zero. Traffic suffered serious interruption.

In Ohio, temperatures dropped as much as 40 degrees during the night

WOOD BROS. SELL OUTFIT TO LOCAL GARAGEMAN

Hardware and Electrical Concern Planning Extensive Chaoges In Store

Horace S. Fowler, of this city, Hudson-Essex dealer for Charlevoix and surrounding territory, and operator of a bus line between Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs, has purchased from Wood Brothers of this city their entire stock of batteries, parts and charging apparatus and is now in a position to give to his customers satisfactory service along this line. Added to his fine line of cars and prosperous bus business, Mr. Fowler should find his new acquisition a very acceptable asset.

Wood Bros. were influenced in selling out their battery business by a desire to reduce their store space and arrange their hardware and electrical stocks in a more compact and easily handled manner. To this end, they are planning to vacate the north section of their store on Mason Street, now occupied by their hardware stock, and close it off from the other portion by a partition. This vacated part will then be for rent, we are informed.

The present partition between the electrical supply room and the former battery and repair shop will be torn down and the main store room thereby lengthened to 110 feet. The room is 26½ feet wide and this will provide a commodious display space for the two lines of goods, the hardware cases being arranged along the south side of the room and the electrical supplies on the north side. From a point about half way back in this room a mezzanine or second floor will be built along both sides and the rear end, reached by stairways at each end of the floor. This mezzanine space will be used for articles of heavy hardware, such as refrigerators, stoves, washing machines, etc. Under the mezzanine in the extreme rear of the room and lighted by the windows in the rear of the building will be located the electrical repair shop, a department that has hitherto been shrouded in more or less gloom but will now be adequately lighted. This repair shop will be separated from the main store by a partition reaching to the mezzanine floor above. The little alcove or jog in the north rear of the building where the double entrance doors to the former battery depot are located, will be turned into a receiving room for freight. This room will have access to the main store and the repair shop through archways. The office for the store will be located in the southwest corner of the main floor.

EMMET COUNTY ROADS ARE BEING OPENED

Big Plows Started Out Tuesday Afternoon

Robert Tripp, county highway engineer of Emmet county, started two plows out Tuesday afternoon to clear the highways north of the city of the snow. In several places the roads are nearly blocked by deep drifts and these will be cleared away and roads opened to automobile travel.

Mr. Tripp, with the county owned tractor plow, started out on M-11, while the cement plant plow was started on M-13.

Other roads will also be opened.

BAIRD HAS CHOSEN A NEW FISH CULTURIST

Westerman Replaces Stewart in State Department

We note the following item in the columns of one of the Grand Rapids papers, regarding change in the office of state fish culturist.

"Fred Westerman, of Harrietta, Friday was appointed state fish culturist to succeed A. T. Stewart of Oakland county. The appointment was announced by John Baird, head of the state department of conservation, who is here attending a meeting of the Saginaw Field and Stream club. Mr. Westerman has been in charge of the state fish hatchery at Harrietta for some time. Mr. Baird stated the change was necessary because Stewart was not in sympathy with the policy of the state department."

While we do not desire to criticise the action of the state conservation department in making this appointment, still, we cannot help observing that in our opinion and that of many others, A. T. Stewart is as good a man as they could have had in the position. He was formerly in the government fisheries service and held in high esteem by both his superiors and the men who worked with and for him. We would like to see him back on the job for Uncle Sam again.

GAS FLARES UP OVER 200 FEET

ENORMOUS GAS POCKET TAPPED NEAR HILLMAN

Torch of Flame Lights Up Country Side for Miles—Largest Pocket Found So Far

The Boyne Citizen in a recent issue published the following article concerning drilling operations now being carried on in the district around Hillman and Alpena:

"A roaring torch of flame, mounting 200 feet into the air and 10 feet in diameter, fed by gas from what was intended to be a water well, lighted up the country side for miles about the John Wilders farm one mile west of Hillman where the gas came to the surface with unprecedented force at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 14th, endangering the lives of drillers and blowing the 1,000 pound drill fifty feet out of the six-inch pipe which was being put down for water.

So violent was the unexpected explosion that it startled all within rnnge.

The gas that first hissed forth was of such an appearance, that the men doubted it was gas and to convince themselves, a match was touched to it.

Instantly the huge torch flared up and grew to alarming dimensions, threatening to set fire to farm buildings nearby. The drillers tried in vain to cap it. A request for help was sent to the gold diggers near the Farman farm in Alpena county.

After night fell, those who had not heard the explosion were aroused to unusual happenings by the red glare on the horizon which was visible at n great distance.

Volunteers labored until 9 o'clock that night before they succeeded in capping the well, and now they are debating what to do with the surprising find.

It has not been uncommon for COMMERCIAL ASS'N. ELECTS OFFICERS

Results of 1924 Advertising Justify a Larger Fund—Park Plans Discussed

At the regular annual meeting of the Charlevoix Commercial Association, held last Wednesday evening at the council rooms in the library building, Fred E. Cartier was elected president of the organization; Archie Livingston, 1st vice president; A. J. Usher, 2nd vice president and Kaye H. Buttars, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Cartier still holds his place as chairman of the advertising committee, in which he has done such excellent work.

A resolution of thanks and appreciation was extended by the members of the association to the retiring officials; especially to Dr. W. W. Mitchell and Charles H. Emrey for the highly efficient manner in which the work of their respective offices has been conducted during the period of their incumbency.

Reports were read by the retiring secretary and the chairman of the advertising committee which showed gratifying progress throughout the year which is now rapidly drawing to a close. The report of the secretary appeared in last week's issue of the Courier and therefore needs no further comment. The report of the advertising committee shows that greater results were obtained through the association's independent advertising in the big dailies of the country and other methods used last season than ever resulted from Charlevoix's membership in the Michigan Tourist nnd Resort Association, to whom the local association did not contribute last year, preferring to "go it alone." It was urged at last Wednesday's meeting that the appropriation for 1925 advertising he increased by a substantial figure and thnt the campaign commence earlier in the season, concentrating first on the cottage business, especially in papers of the south, where the summer is fairly begun before the ice has left Lake Michigan and coming in strong both in the south and farther north with both cottage and hotel advertising later in the season, when people are planning a few weeks' escape from the heat of the big cities to the south of us.

The association is at the present time preparing facts and figures on the results obtained from last and previous years' advertising which they will present to the public at a

Some Changes Lately Made in Buoys and Lake Lights

The U. S. navy branch hydrographic office, 481 Federal building, Chicago, Ill., winds up the navigation season on Lake Michigan with the following important information:

Milwaukee Harbor: Milwaukee south point gas and bell buoy 1, and breakwater construction gas buoy 2, have been changed to spars for winter.

Chicago Harbor: About January 15, 1925, the luminous power of the light at Chicago Harbor light station will be increased to 40,000 cp. for the red and 140,000 cp. for the white flash. The fog signal will be changed to an air diaphone to sound a group of 2 blasts every 20 seconds. If the diaphone is disabled a 12-inch steam whistle will sound 1 blast every 30 seconds.

HURRY UP CALL FOR STOVE FROM SUNNY FLORIDA

One of our local business men received a prepaid telegram Tuesday morning from Miami, Florida, contnining the following request:

"Crate and express stove, oven and asbestos rings. Make hurry up shipment."

Wonder what the weather is down there nnyway? The request for stove and oven leads one to believe the sender was badly in need of some kind of heating apparatus. But what gets us is the request for asbestos rings.

If they have the same brand of weather there as we have been having in Charlevoix for the past week, they surely have use for the stove and oven. But what use will they apply the rings to is a problem to us.

VOICES A PLEA FOR THE CHILD

EAST JORDAN WOMAN URGES NATIONAL LABOR ACT

Claims State Laws are Inadequate and Quotes Dean Pound of Harvard

The following article was recently submitted to the Courier for publication by Mrs. Mabel Secord, president of the County League of Women Voters, who resides at East Jordan:

"Christmas is here again, bringing to us thoughts of the Christ Child; thoughts, too, of His special care of and for little children and His solemn warning; 'Whose shall offend one of these little ones,' reminds us that it is our duty to think and act for the children of our own, and coming generations.

After years of bitter warfare and weary labor the 18th and 19th amendments were written into our federal constitution. These were problems dealing essentially with maturity while the proposed 20th amendment is to benefit a class unable to demand or enforce legislation for its benefit. Opposing it, is the strength of great textile manufacturers and interests, as well as other branches of industry depending in a large measure on commercialized child labor.

The result of the Massachusetts referendom bears eloquent testimony to the use of paid propaganda and shows the need for people to inform themselves on the subject and urge their legislatures to ratify the Childrens' Amendment that passed both houses in Washington last summer. If less than 36 states fail to ratify it this coming year, two years must pass before it will be voted on again. A canvass of Michigan legislators thia fall showed 58 representatives and 36 senators favoring ratification; one senator (B. L. Case of Ithaca) against it; 11 representativea and two senators were uninformed and 28 representatives and 10 senntors made no reply. Heavy pressure will be brought to bear on these people from outside, as well as local interests, and it is up to us to demand that they vote for the proteetion of the children of the nation.

State laws are not adequate. We may havr a state law in Michigan that protects the children working in our sugar beet fields, but what protection will it afford them when these families at the end of the season migrate to the Texas onion fields? Only federal regulation and supervision can protect children in states that refuse to protect their own. The first child labor law (1916) was based on congressional power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce. This power had been upheld by the U. S. supreme coort in pronouncing valid such laws as the Pure Food and Drugs Act and the White Slave Trnffic Act, but when the Child Labor Act of 1916 was tested the supreme court held by a 5 to 4 decision that it was not a lawful exercise of congressional authority.

In 1919 congress again sought to protect the children, this time through its taxing power. Congress was upheld by the supreme court in taxing State bank notes out of existence, plncing a prohibitive tax on oleomargerine colored to imitate butter and regulating the sale of and use of narcotics, but by an 8 to 1 decision it said that in the "Child Labor Tax Act," congress had exceeded its constitutional powers. Thus it would appear that federal regulation is possible only through a constitutional nmendment, which is, in effect, an enabling act, giving congress the authority to pass a federal child labor law.

All state legislatures already have the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of peraons under 18 years of age. The adoption of the amendment would merely substitute the action of one legislature, congress, for the action of 48 legislatures. Are the men we send to congress less equipped to deal with our problems in a reasonable way than the men we are sending to the state legislatures? The text of the Childrens' Amendment was drawn by some of the ablest constitutional lawyers in the United States after prolonged study and conference.

Dr. Roscoe Pound, dean of the law school of Harvard University, in a recent letter answers three of the most frequent arguments against it, a part of his answers are as follows: 1. Will it interfere with state rights? The amendment is meant to fit into the constitution as a whole, and the bill of rights provides that the federal government shall not deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law. 2. Will the supreme court allow educational control to be implied from the amendment? The amendment says nothing whatever about education. The matter of educating children rests with the state, exactly as the matter of protecting them from being run over by automobiles in the streets does. 3. Will the amendment give congress a power more extensive than that now possessed by the states? The power given by this amendment is less than the power actually possessed by every state in the union at present. Failure to secure ratification this winter will enable manufacturers and mill owners to go to our state legislatures and say 'Behold, the people are opposed to child labor legislation. Now let us repeal existing laws on that subject.'

Dean Pound's closing words are: 'Moreover, as between trusting the manufacturers' association and trusting congress, I much prefer to trost the latter. Obnoxious acts of congress can be repealed, but wrecking lives of coming generations can never be repealed.'"

NERVES ALL UNSTRUNG?

Charlevoix Folks Should Find the Cause and Correct It.

Are you all worn out? Feel tired, nervous, half-sick? Do you have a constant backache; sharp twinges of pain, too, with dizzy spells and annoying urinary disorders? Then there's cause for worry and more cause to give your weakened kidneys prompt help. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys.

Charlevoix folks recommend Doan's for just such troubles.

Mrs. Mabel Bassett, 110 Wood St., Charlevoix, says: "I had bearingdown pains in the small of my back and when I stooped to do my housework, knife-like twinges caught me across my kidneys. I felt worn out and gradually became nervous and all out of sorts. My kidneys didn't act regularly, either, but after using Doan's Pills, from Fessenden's Drug Store, I was cured."

My Best Christmas

By Emily Burks Adams

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

EARLY Christmas as it approaches, I think, surely, it's the best, and how perfectly delightful each one has been, and yet all so different. The best of all was, I'm sure, if there can be a best, was the Christmas that mother, dad, and I spent down at Aunt Mary's.

We had, during the year, met with many reverses, and father said a few days before Christmas, that our Christmas would be slim; that we couldn't have any of our relatives come, could have no tree, and we'd give each other only necessary clothing as gifts. I couldn't conceive of a necessity as a gift, and it was a joy-killer for me to be sure.

Mother and I talked it over. "Well, mother, Christmas won't be Christmas if I can't buy for you and daddy, and I surely expect something."

"Now, my dear," said mother, we must consider dad. He knows when we can give and when we shouldn't. He's always been most generous with us, and maybe something will turn up, and we don't want a moment of Christmas time spent lamenting over what we can't have. Christmas is a time to be happy; Santa Claus knows when and how to call. Maybe something unexpected will happen, and this prove the best Christmas of all."

"Oh! Mother, you are some poet, and very optimistic." We both laughed.

I heard the car door slam and father rushed in the front door beaming.

"Well, dene, its all fixed; Aunt Mary has invited us down for Christmas, providing there won't be any exchanging of gifts. Wonder how she knew we were so deuced hard up."

There Were Boxes and Boxes and Boxes.

We started early Christmas morning; the air was crisp; furs felt good, and the car sped along as if keeping time to the Christmas music, which seemed to permeate the air. A distance of fifty miles, but so happy were we the distance was soon covered.

Aunt Mary and Uncle John met us at the door, beaming. The fire was cheery. I peeped in but didn't see the usual laden table. I was hungry, too.

Aunt Mary talked so fast—"so glad to see you. A Merry Christmas—this is to be a different Christmas; no hurry, no worry, and no stuffing. We're going to have a simple dinner and take time to tidak and visit."

She rushed us into the drawing room, and there were boxes and boxes and boxes! "Oh, dear, auntie! What's all this! Your Christmas presents eh! Now that isn't fair."

Auntie smiled. "No, Jene, all my friends and I decided we wouldn't give useless gifts, costly gifts, and gifts that weren't needed, so we put in our time gathering these for Hope's orphanage, and I've planned for you, Jene, and brother and sister to help distribute them."

Oh! It was fon, and that was real Christmas, carrying joy to those who find so little, and we spent several most happy hours delivering those boxes that were jammed full of Christmas cheer to the little ones in the great orphanage.

Come into the next room, readers. I see we was right. That wasn't his fiancee, at all, although it was a sort of ex-fiancee, 'cause he's her lesser half.

CANDLES OF BAYBERRY WAX

Important and Decorative Yuletide Accessory May Be Made With Little Effort.

BAYBERRY candles for the Yuletide season were the pride of colonial dames. Then they went out completely and no one ever heard of home-made bayberry candles until a few years ago saw a revival of the art, when one found them again in arts and crafts shops, writes Helen Harrison in the New York Post. Amateurs began to experiment, and they learned that candle making is not a difficult art.

The amateur experimenter found that brass or copper kettles used for melting wax made the gray-green of bayberry wax much greener.

The old-fashioned candle dip method is simple, or one can construct molds of heavy paper if regular forms are not available.

One quart measure of berries will make a medium-sized candle. The old-fashioned candle molds are large and require about two quarts of berries for one candle.

The berries should be covered with water and set over the fire to melt off the wax coating. As twigs and leaves get in with the berries, it is necessary to strain the wax through a sieve at first. After the first straining the wax should be reheated and then strained again through coarse cheesecloth.

When ready to mold, fasten lengths of candlewick through each mold, knotting the wick at the mold's point and tying the other end around a stick that will rest across the top of the mold.

Heating the wax again, fill in each mold, making sure that the wick is taut. To remove from mold without cracking, warm it slightly in hot water before slipping the candle from each form.

Heavy paper can be sewed or pasted into mold forms and a bottom glued to each, leaving a small hole in the center of the bottom, through which the wick can be slipped and knotted. It is a slower process, but satisfactory as a makeshift.

To make candle dips fasten two or three pieces of wick to a stick and far enough apart to prevent touching but not too far to extend beyond the sides of the kettle holding the wax. Dip into hot wax repeatedly, as each coat chills, until desired size has been obtained.

Christmas and Twelfth Day.

The festival of the Nativity was never held on any other day than the 25th day of December. The ancient observance of the feast, however, continued for 12 days, or in ecclesiastical language, "an octave and a half," other festival days having an "octave" or eight days of observance only. Hence, the last day of the feast was termed Twelfth day, Little Christmas (among the French) and Old Christmas day in some parts of England. It was in 813 A. D. that the Epiphany was first celebrated as a distinct festival, at the end of the Christmas celebration proper. The day has its own observances, twelfth day cake, king of the feast, the navy bean in the cake, etc., etc., but is now usually celebrated as "le jour de roi," by the French people, or as the festival of the Epiphany, the Greek word for manifestation of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles.

COUNTY AGENT'S ANNUAL REPORT

SYNOPSIS OF WORK CARRIED OUT DURING YEAR

Report Reveals Wide Range of Work and Accomplishments of Value to Agriculturists

Annual narrative report of county agricultural agent, B. O. Mellencamp, Charlevoix county, Boyne City, Michigan, June 1, 1924 to December 1, 1924:

Status of County Extension Organization

Extension work in Charlevoix county is organized and conducted under the plan which has been in operation for the past two years; namely, an executive board consisting of eleven members which forms the county committee. Each township, at present, forms a local unit, and is represented at the annual meetings on the basis of one from each unit, and an additional representative on the ratio of one from each twenty-five members or a major portion thereof. They serve for terms of one year or until their successor is qualified. They are elected annually by the members of the respective units of the associations. The executive committee of the executive boards consists of nine members of which three are supervisors. This executive board meets quarterly and at other times when important matters need to be discussed.

The general policies of this organization have been such that it very cordially invites and solicits the cooperation of all other associations in the county, such at the Rotary Clubs, Bankers' Associations, Chambers of Commerce, Grangers and Gleaners.

Program of Work

At a conference held early in the year, the state county agent leader requested that each county agent submit to him, an outline of his program of work. In order to make these reports uniform, the state agent in charge, gave each county agent, a suggested outline. As a result of this action, the program of work for Charlevoix county for the year of 1924 as outlined by B. O. Hagerman early this spring was carried out along those lines and inasmuch as your present agent entered his work on the first of June, he realized it would be out of the question to formulate a new one, so accordingly he has carried this program of work to completion as far as possible, handicapped as he has been by being a stranger in this county and as a result not knowing the needs and demands of the farmers as accurately as one acquainted with local conditions would. In carrying on this work he also found it to be a big drawback in not knowing the location of the farms and their type of farming.

The methods employed in an attempt to put this program across, have been several and varied. However, the foremost idea in the agent's mind was that which would tend toward the development of community leadership. Whenever and wherever possible, instead of an individual doing a piece of work that could be done cooperatively, the latter methods were employed, using as leaders the ones who displayed the most ability.

Project Activities and Results

Knowing that statistics and data are tiresome, your agent herewith presents a brief and condensed table showing the distribution of his time for the period from June 1 to December 1.

Live Stock Improvement

Your agent has spent more time in live stock development than any one other activity as the 42.8% time devoted to it will show.

The most important accomplishment was the re-organization of the Charlevoix cow-testing association for its second year. More and more the dairymen are realizing their possibilities in dairying and with that realization, are demanding some agency whereby they can learn the facts concerning their cows. The cow-testing association conforms to this demand in every respect as it enables the dairymen to know exactly what each of his cows is producing in pounds of milk and butterfat, what his income is from the sale of the product, what it costs to feed the animal, how much feed the individual consumes, and finally what each of his cows is making in dollars and cents. The association had its re-organziation meeting at Rock Elm Grange on August 18, and consists of twenty-five farmers. In the writer's estimation, dairying is the thing that we should encourage more than anything else and the large amount of time devoted to this phase of work is justifiable.

The following farmers constitute its membership: Wm. Withers, Charlevoix; Orchard Bay Farm, Charlevoix; George Meggison, Charlevoix; Elmer Ingalls, Charlevoix; Ecklund Bros., Charlevoix; Frank Supernaw, Charlevoix; John Struthers, Charlevoix; Arthur Shepard, East Jordan; Orvie Gunsolns, East Jordan; Dan Swanson, East Jordan; Wm. Murphy, East Jordan; Craig Bros., East Jordan; Vernon Vance, East Jordan; Elmer Murray, East Jordan; Wm. Severance, East Jordan; Will Shepard, East Jordan; Frank Shepard, East Jordan; Bert Waterman, East Jordan; Frank Behling, Boyne City; Chas. Knop, Boyne City; F. Bergman and Son, Boyne City; Breezy Point Farm, Ironton; Clinton Binnehard, Phelps.

Realizing that the pure-bred sire is half of the herd and that it is surely the first step to take in improving the dairy herds of the county, five pure-bred sires have been purchased by several farmers cooperatively and are in use today.

The value of these animals is not appreciated at present but in the future their benefits in grading up the cows will be highly noticeable. The following are keepers of these several animals:

Arthur Shepard, East Jordan, Holstein; Albert West, Boyne City, Guernsey; Carl Clark, Boyne Falls, Guernsey; Ray Kerchner, Boyne City, Holstein; David Smith, Charlevoix, Durham.

In addition, steps have been taken for the organization of two more pure-bred sire associations in Charlevoix county as well as two in Antrim county with the assistance of L. L. Drake, their county agent. The two communities in question are the territory surrounding George Meggison, south of Charlevoix and the territory around Arthur Shepard and Dan Swnnson near East Jordan. While the organization is not complete as yet the plans are for the placing of Jersey sires in these localities.

Another feature of the dairy work was a cow-testing association tour of the county held on July 19th. This tour was not only intended for members of the association, but for all dairymen in the county who were interested in better and more profitable cows. Considering the busy season of the year, the attendance was all that could be expected. Five stops were made during the day at the following farms: Arthur Shepard, East Jordan; Breezy Point Farm, Ironton; Orchard Bay Farm, Charlevoix; Wm. Withers, Charlevoix and George Meggison, Charlevoix.

A basket dinner was enjoyed at the Orchard Bay Farm. We were fortunate to have with us that day, J. G. Hayes, dairy specialist, from our college who took charge of the meeting at each of the stops. The dairymen received a lot of valuable pointers along dairy lines and several had an altogether different attitude of the dairy business when the day was concluded. Seeing what the other fellow is doing sometimes produces greater efforts. It is hoped that the tour will be an annual affair.

Due to the splendid financial cooperation of the several banks in the county, it was made possible to have a cow-testing association exhibit at our County Fair. The exhibit was open to all cows in the association, grade or pure-bred, and having an association record back of them. A prize of $25.00 was donated for the grand champion cow of all breeds and one of $5.00 for second place. It was mighty pleasing to me as well as to some three hundred people who were interested enough to see the selecting of the grand champion out of a ring of thirteen association cows. This is the first time in many years that a crowd of that size ever watched the judging and it is an indication to me that the association was producing results. When we stop to consider that only approximately 5% of our stock is pure-bred and that in the past only pure-bred animals were eligible to compete at the Fair, is it not only fair that the grades be given some consideration? However to eliminate scrubs showing limit them to association cows. It is also interesting to note that the two prize winners were grades.

Your agent feels amply repaid for his spending every day and night at the Fair in getting the stock there with trucks, caring for them, and finally getting them back home again. We have also had the assurance from the County Fair officials that this work will be enlarged next year and larger premiums offered. This approximately completes the agent's activities in live stock improvement.

Crop Improvement

Most of the agent's time under this head was spent with potato growers. This year fourteen men applied for inspection and certification of their seed. Following is a list of the applicants: Edward and August Jensen, Walloon Lake; H. A. Webster, Boyne City; W. A. Pette, Boyne City; Terry Barber, Boyne City; Harry Behling, Boyne City; Charles Koteskey, Boyne City; Frank Fox, Boyne City; Howard Stevens, Boyne City; Eugene Stroud, Charlevoix; Floyd Bartholomew, Charlevoix; Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix; George Meggison, Charlevoix; and W. K. Straw, Charlevoix. Of this number nine were accepted for certification.

The agent spent two days on two different occasions in visiting these fields with the inspector. At least one visit, and in many cases, two and three visits were made with each of the growers assisting the men routing out diseased and and undesirable hills. The weather conditions this year were such that a disease called "masais" was present and more time had to be spent with the potato men than in the past years, as many had never had any experience with it.

An alfalfn tour of the county was held on the 14th of August. Three stops were made at the following places: Frank Bird, Charlevoix; Emil Nasson, Charlevoix, and B. Waterman, East Jordan, with an attendance of forty-five. It was planned to have Mr. Rather of the Michigan Crop Improvement Association with us, but at the last minute he was unable to come. Notwithstanding, the tour was held as scheduled and much benefit received by the interested farmers.

Charlevoix county can be justly proud of the large acreage of alfalfn being grown and its advantages over other hays is being widely advertised.

Owing to the lateness of the season, it is impossible to present data on the many demonstrations and variety tests being carried on in the county. It might be well in this connection to state that there are the following demonstrations.

Corn Variety tests on three farms; Alfalfa Variety tests on three farm, as well as lime fertilizer tests! Soy Beans on one farm; Potato tests on six farms; Robust Bean tests on six farms; Pruning and Grafting demonstrations on two farms; and Cherry demonstrations on two farms on spraying.

Soil Improvement

The agent's work in soil improvement has consisted largely in testing soil for acidity. Numerous tests of soil have been made with the soil test outfit put up by the soils department of our college. As a rule, it has been found that most of the land in this county is well fitted for the growth of sweet clover and alfalfa, but in many cases, however, the farmers have a field or two that is acid and therefore not adapted for legumes.

Your agent has been endeavoring to get a sufficient number of farmers interested in securing a carlond of lime, but as yet that has not been completed. Several Soiltex outfits have been distributed to interested farmers in the county. Also several samples of marl have been sent to the college for analysis of lime content. There are several excellent beds of marl in the county which test around 90% lime.

Marketing

Little time has been devoted to the subject of marketing as the marketing problems have been adequately taken care of by the three thriving Co-operative marketing associations located at Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

With the assistance of F. E. Fogle, Farm Mechanics Specialist famous college, an advanced study of warehouse storage radiation is being made by Boyne City and Charlevoix. These experiments are for the purpose of studying the varying conditions in which potatoes are stored over the winter in various warehouses in the state with the anticipation of discovering under just what conditions potatoes can be kept with the least shrinkage and of the best quality. The two managers have agreed to cooperate fully in the work and no doubt valuable information will be obtainable in the near future.

Although it is evident that all cooperative organizations have their limitations, I am sure from hearing the financial reports that they are functioning successfully and giving very good satisfaction. The fact that the memberships are constantly increasing is a mighty good indication that the organizations are rendering satisfaction.

Poultry Improvement

The most important work accomplished in the field was a series of culling demonstrations conducted in the county on July 24, 25 and 26, by Mr. Hannah, poultry specialist of our college. The eight demonstrations held were so arranged that meeting to be held some time in the spring in an effort to have voted an additional ¼ mill for advertising purposes.

PLAN BIG PROJECTS FOR '25

This year's total city tax was 14 mills. Out of this 14 mills, and not in addition to it as has been erroneously supposed by many, ¾ mills were appropriated for an advertising fund, representing a sum of about $2,500. The proposed ¼ mill extra it is proposed to take from the other present city funds and appropriate to advertising purposes. This, we can readily see, does not involve an additional tax on the people, but resolves itself to merely taking the money out of one of the city's pockets and putting it into another. As things stand now, the advertising fund is inadequate and it simply means that the business people have to go down in their jeans and make up the deficiency. This is not fair. It is not right to ask any one particular group of the city's population, as the merchants, for instance, to bear an excess burden. It is fair, however, to distribute it over the entire assessed valuation of the city, as all benefit either directly or indirectly from an increase of business resulting from our advertising. The ¼ mill thus to be appropriated will not create a deficit in the other city fouds and will increase the advertising fuod to $3,500, which is thought to be ample to take care of next season's needs.

The matter of a downtown park was brought up and thoroughly discussed. Two general plans were outlined—one contemplating the purchase of a block or two or a short strip on the east side of Bridge street, including lake frontage, and improving it for a city park, perhaps erecting a new city hall or a bandstand. The other, a more comprehensive and forward-looking proposition, contemplates engaging the services of a city-planning engineer and the ultimate conversion of the entire east side of Bridge street from the pavement to the lake and from the channel to Belvedere avenue, according to a definite and uniform plan of construction; the property to be acquired in parcels, bit by bit, year after year and developed in accordance with the engineer's detailed drawings. This plan, of course, will take somewhat longer but, at the same time, the expense will be distributed over a greater period of time and rest more lightly, therefore, on the shoulders of each generation enjoying its benefits. And in the end we shall have a real park which will prove one of the city's greatest drawing cards. It will also permit the widening of Bridge street to safe traffic width and allow for sufficient parking space within the limits of the park to take care of our terribly congested summer traffic. The much-discussed extension of Park avenue to the lake can be made a part of this plan and fitted into it in a way that will not look like piece work but a portion of the city's intelligent development.

This matter will also be put up to the people at the spring meeting, in all probability. The scheme above outlined has been successfully carried out in various resort cities of the south and there is no reason why it could not be done here. There is no doubt but what it would be fully justified by the results in increased summer patronage.

WHEAT PRICE ENCOURAGES FARMER

WILL RESULT IN GREATLY INCREASED ACREAGE

Government Report Reveals Condition of Michigan Crops and Season's Prospects

The excellent yields and satisfactory prices of the 1924 wheat crop have revived the interest in wheat growing. This has resulted in an increased acreage being sown this fall in Michigan and throughout the country, according to the official estimate issued recently by L. Whitney Watkins, commissioner of agriculture and Verne H. Church, U. S. agricultural statistician for Michigan, the acreage seeded to wheat by Michigan farmers is 968,000, a gain of 46,000, or five per cent, over last year. The dry weather that prevailed throughout the fall months was unfavorable for vigorous growth, especially where the crop was sown late, and has gone into the winter in many sections with a light top growth. In other localities the condition is fairly good. For the state as a whole, crop correspondents report an average condition of 83 per cent as compared with 91 per cent last year and a ten-year average of 90 per cent on December 1. Some damage by Hessian fly was reported from several southern and southwestern counties.

The area sown throughout the United States is estimated at 42,317,000 acres as compared with 39,749,000 one year ago, an increase of approximately 6.5 per cent. The condition reported is 81 per cent, which is seven per cent below that of the same date last year and 5.5 per cent below the ten-year average.

The acreage of rye in Michigan, which showed a marked decrease last year, has made a further decline of six per cent. The amount seeded this fall is estimated at 342,000 acres, or 22,000 less than last year's final figures. The December 1 condition was 86 per cent of oormal, six per cent below that of one year ago and the ten-year average.

For the country as a whole, the acreage shows but little change from last year according to the preliminary estimate, it being 4,206,000 as compared with 4,173,000 sown in the fall of 1923. The prospective outlook is represented by a condition figure of 87.3 per cent. The average on the same date last year was 89.9 which was the same as the ten-year average.

The supply of farm labor has increased to 87 per cent of normal and the demand has fallen to 79 per cent of normal, the change in each case being one per cent during the month of November. This increases the ratio of supply to demand to 110 per cent as compared with 108 per cent on November 1.

Order your stove repairs right now. Time will soon be here to start up that heating stove that is in need of repairs. Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 37-tf.

OH YES—THE OIL WAS HEATED SOME

And So was the "Jane," for a While, Around the Galley

The fire alarm sounded in a queer fashion Monday afternoon at about 3:15 o'clock. First the warning blast, followed by the signal for the 1st ward. Then a long paose and two blasts, signifying the second ward.

The reason for these peculiar antics on the part of the whistle were soon understood when it was discovered that the fire was neither in one ward nor the other, but lay betwixt and between. It was the "Jane," the all-steel steam barge owned by Irving Myers of Chicago, which is tied up at the lumber company's dock in Round Lake.

It seems that Captain M. J. Bonner, who has charge of the vessel during the winter, and a helper were heating engine oil on the galley stove, planning to pour it into the keel pipe and thaw out the seacocks. This might have worked all right had not the bottom burned out of the five gallon oil tin in which they were heating the stuff, bringing the latter in too close proximity with the top of the stove. Away she went and in a moment of time the sheet-metal galley was a roaring furnace.

When the department arrived, the chemical was brought into play and it wasn't long before the flames subsided. Not much damage was done, in fact could be done on such a boat, but all of Captain Bonner's oil was ruined completely.

CARD GAMES AT CHRISTMAS

Thin Pasteboards Afforded Means of Entertainment in England During Yuletide Season.

A UNIVERSAL Christmas custom of England in olden times was playing at cards. Persons who never touched a card at any other season of the year felt bound to play a few games at Christmas.

A prohibitory statute of Henry VII's reign forbade card playing save during the Christmas holidays. Of course this prohibition extended only to persons of humble rank.

Sir Roger De Coverley took care to provide both creature comfort and amusement for his neighbors at Christmas by sending "a string of hog's puddings and a pack of cards" to every poor family in the parish.

Even the pulpit comes in for its share of anecdotes regarding playing cards. Fuller gives an example of a clergyman preaching from Romans 12:3, "As God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." The reverend gentleman in question adopted as an illustration of his discourse, the metaphor of "dealing" as applied to cards, reminding his congregation that they should follow suit, ever play above board, improve the gifts dealt out to them, take care of their trumps, play promptly when it came their turn, etc.

Short notes were frequently written on the backs of playing cards. In an old collection of poetry is found the following lines:

"To a Lady Who Sent Her Compliments to a Clergyman on the Ten of Hearts.

"Your compliments, dear lady, pray forbear,
"Old English services are more sincere;
"You send ten hearts—the tithe is only mine,
"Give me but one and burn the other nine." Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE SANTA CLAUS MYTH

Manthei Howe

Snowflakes sifted down softly. Now and then the silence was broken by the jingle of a passing sleigh-bell or the protesting snort of a motor trying to buck the drifts.

In the living room Stancia was elbow deep in tissue paper. She was doing up the parcels that were to be sent out of town. There came a bang of the door, the stamping of feet, and little Delicia stood in the doorway.

"Oh mother," and she sniffed appreciatively, "it smells lovely in here."

Stancia Varney smiled. "It's the sachet in the present for Aunt May. Just think how busy old Santa Claus must be these days."

Little eight-year-old Delicia paused a moment, then hurled her bomb: "Oh mother dear, there isn't a Santa Claus, now is there? Jane says there isn't, and last year Alice SAW her mother and father trim the tree!"

For one panicky second Stancia Varney felt the smart of tears. It had come—the end of Delicia's babyhood, the time when she no longer believed in Santa Claus.

Now Stancia had been reading of the blow dealt to a child's trust when he discovered there was no Santa Claus. She had been worried by the article's prophecy that she would see in her child's eyes the dawning of distrust of Mother; a look of anguished disillusionment at such rank betrayal by an adult. At the memory of that article, Stancia quailed. Then she beckoned to Delicia.

"Come here, Delicia." Mother's manner was delightfully mysterious and important. "I'm glad you asked me about Santa Claus, darling. There is a Santa Claus but not the kind you have thought. That's where the surprise comes in. You see, mothers and daddies tell their little children about the Santa Claus that comes with reindeer and sleigh. It's a lovely make-believe story, just like when you play school with little Ted."

Delicia's eyes were fixed on her mother's in interested wonder.

"The real Santa Claus," smiled Mother, "is right here." She placed her hand on Delicia's thumping little heart. "It's the love you have for other people. It's the thing that makes you want to be kind and to make others happy."

Mother paused impressively. "This is the big surprise. You and Mother and Daddy and Aunt May, and all children who are big enough, and all the grown-ups are the Santa Clauses. Instead of just one Santa Claus there are millions. But you won't tell that secret to little Ted, will you?"

"No," promised Delicia breathlessly, "no, I won't."

"You see," Mother was careful to explain, "Ted isn't big enough yet to understand. We'll have to wait a year or two before we tell him, and won't he be surprised!"

—Delicia's eyes were twin blue stars.

"And now, you new young Santa Claus, get busy," ordered Mother. "You'll have to help me now with the Christmas work. Just put your finger on that string while I tie the knot."

And Delicia, almost bursting with happy importance, pressed her chubby finger on the gold cord.

The Santa Claus myth had been explained without unhappiness or disillusionment for Delicia. Something worth while had been given to take the myth's place.

Judge Alfred J. Talley when welcoming Judge William Allen to the bench of the Court of General Sessions had sad information to convey. "You will be heartbroken," his Honor said, "at discovering that the vast majority of defendents are under nineteen or twenty years old. That is going to be your most distressing problem."

But the problem really is for us who have it in our power to see that children have proper moral training. Are the little ones in your neighborhood forced to get their first lessons of life on the streets or is a kindergarten provided, with a happy, wholesome atmosphere where right principles are being inculated?

Anyone interested in having a kindergarten established can get free information and advice on the subject by writing to the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York.

everyone in the county was in a position to attend at least one of them. The following flocks were visited and culled: James Heeres, Norwood; Hiram Potter, Phelps; Wilbur Spidle, East Jordan; Edward Hunt, Boyne City; Breezy Point Farm, Ironton; Ben Gardner, Boyne City; Allen Sherk, Walloon Lake; and Arthur VanAmburg, Horton Bay. At each of these demonstrations, all questions regarding poultry work were freely asked and discussed. The manner in which the specialist conducted the culling work was especially commendable, as each of the poultry enthusiasts held a hen and could follow the points discussed by the specialist by actual contact with the individual.

After these demonstrations, each of the hundred twenty-seven people in attendance, felt able to go home and cull out the individuals in their flocks which were being fed and cared for at a loss, and the benefit in dollars and cents can hardly be estimated. These demonstrations were so enthusiastically received, many requests have been received urging the agent to make plans for a similar series of culling demonstrations for another year. Following this, your agent has culled several flocks of poultry in the county. One of the outgrowths of the culling demonstration was the location of four poultry demonstration farms in the county. These are for the purpose of having locally a place where good pedigreed stock can be obtained by poultrymen and also where accurate records can be noted on the cost of production, etc. This project started the 1st of November and will continue for at least a year and includes three breeds, White Leghorns, Barred Rocks and Rhode Island Reds.

Boy's and Girl's Club Work

One of the features of this year's county fair, was an exhibit of the Boy's and Girl's Pig club. The members last year started with a pure-bred gilt selected from the Loeb Farms. This year, that gilt became a sow and as a result, the work was continued as a sow and litter project. Mr. Davis from Loeb Farms and your agent, visited every member of the club and outlined plans for the continuance of the work this year. Owing to the fact that the conditions were decidedly different in many cases, it was deemed undesirable to keep records and that the club activities would be concluded with an exhibit at the fair. However, it being such a difficult matter to transport the sow and litter to the fair, the number of exhibitors was smaller than was expected. For those who felt unable to bring the entire sow and litter, a class was made for the showing of a pure-bred gilt in addition to the sow and litter class. First prize of $10.00 in the sow and litter class was won by Robert Winnick, Charlevoix, with a litter of twelve pigs. First prize of $10.00 in the gilt class was won by Theodore LaCroix of East Jordan. The litter of Winnick's won a lot of favorable comment from the many visitors. It is my pleasure to state that the two Winnick's raised twenty pigs without a single loss. Many other litters were raised of from six to nine pigs each.

The educational value of this can be readily seen, not only from the standpoint of the club member, but also from the benefit of the parents.

The Pig Club project was so successful and favorably commented upon that your agent is organizing a similar club for this year only it will be a Calf Club instead of a Pig Club. The plans, briefly, call for a membership of about 15 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 15, who can choose what breed and age of animal desired, keeping production records, and showing at the county fair next year in the Calf Club exhibit. Suitable premiums will be offered. It is the intention of your agent to secure calves out of tested dams and bred to a pure-bred sire. At this time the membership has been signed up and only the purchasing and delivering of the calves remains before the successful completion of the club.

Organization

Under this head nothing of a definite nature has been attempted. It took some little time for your agent to become acquainted with the data, records, and files of the office, also in meeting many men in the county such as newspaper editors and bankers, etc., whom it was necessary to know in order to accomplish the work most efficiently and effectively.

Also the agent changes offices the 1st of October, moving from the chamber of commerce to the Boyne City Co-ops, and the time necessary in so doing was charged to organization.

The time spent in this manner was placed under organization.

Your agent attended a county agent's conference at Lansing on the 14th of June, a county agent's demonstration at Howard City on August 27th, and an agent's conference at Mancelona on July 28th. Many new ideas were received at these conferences and which have been of much value to your agent in his work.

Miscellaneous Projects

Through the courtesy and cooperation of the business men of the three cities of this county, it has been possible to secure a moving picture machine. Advertising slides were sold at $15.00 a slide to be shown at each and every time the films were shown and the cost of the machine will be taken care of from the sale of slides in this manner. In this way no individual in the county is paying a single cent toward the maintenance of the outfit.

Plans for sixteen meetings have been held for the purpose of showing these pictures and they have been very enthusiastically received.

The agent has found this outfit of great value in putting his work across, as he can reach more people in this way than in any other manner and at the same time give them good, clean entertainment of a constructive nature. The films are secured from the Office of Motion Pictures, Washington, and are free, excepting that the user has to pay express charges both ways. These films are engaged for periods of from two to four weeks and can be shown as often as wished during the periods. They are on all subjects pertaining to agricultural education.

The following films have been used in this county: Seeing Washington; Fire—The Prairie Demon; How and Why of Spud; A Tale of Two Bulls; Bill Jones—Club Champion; Better Seeds—Better Crops; Great Dairy Sires; Putting Your Uncle Sam to Work; Speeding Through Dixie; Potato Diseases and Their Control.

It has been the agent's idea to show these pictures at least once in every township and then if time is available to show them to smaller groups and gatherings. This has been carried out as planned, and has accomplished much good. In the month of July, ten meetings were held, nearly an average of one meeting every other night. The attendance has averaged nearly fifty people at each of these meetings and is mighty good, considering the busy season of the year in which they were given.

Charlevoix County Picnic

The second annual Charlevoix County picnic was held on Labor Day with an estimated attendance of 4,000 people. The attendance was kept down considerably by the rainy weather in the afternoon. Your agent was not at all hesitant about devoting some of his time in arranging the program for the day. Through his efforts Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the farm crops department was secured as one of the speakers and his address proved to be of exceptional value. A picnic of this kind surely is narrowing the gap between the city and the country.

Canning Factory

Plans are under way at the present time to locate a canning factory at Boyne City. The capital for this concern will be furnished entirely by outside individuals. In order to find out just how interested the farmers were a questionaire was sent out to the entire mailing list and the replies received indicated that there would be no trouble in getting the desired acreage. Handicapped as we are from a market standpoint but possessing the natural climate and soil conditions to raise fruits and vegetables a concern of this nature will be of great benefit to the county.

During the month of August, two inspectors from the state apiary inspection department were in the county, inspecting colonies of bees for foul-brood. It is hoped that this condition has been completely cleaned up as this is the second time the work has been carried on.

On the 24th of September, your agent was selected to judge live stock at Alpena county fair, held at Alpena.

Attended Top O' Michigan potato show at Gaylord on the 6th of November and a potato meeting at Cadillac on the 25th.

In conclusion I will briefly summarize the accomplishments during the four months from June 1st to December 1st:

Cow-testing association consisting of 25 members.

5 pure-bred sire associations completed.

2 pure-bred sire associations being organized.

Cow-testing association tour of the county.

Cow-testing association exhibit at County Fair.

14 certified seed potato growers.

Alfalfa tour of county.

3 Corn variety tests.

3 alfalfa variety tests.

1 soybean test.

6 potato demonstrations.

6 robust bean demonstrations.

3 cherry spraying demonstrations.

3 days' poultry culling campaign in county.

8 demonstrations given.

4 poultry demonstration farms located in county.

Boy's and Girl's Pig club.

Boy's and Girl's Pig club exhibit at Fair.

Boy's and Girl's Calf club nearly competed.

2 Co-ops conducting experiments on potato storage problems.

Attended three county agent conferences.

Sixteen motion picture meetings held.

Charlevoix county picnic.

Efforts for securing a canning factory being made.

State apiary inspection for foul-brood.

Judged at Alpena county fair.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS CARD

First Decorated Yuletide Greeting Was Made for Sir Henry Cole in 1843.

ENGLISH NOTES AND QUERIES has the names of three men who at one time or another have been credited with designing the first Christmas card. W. C. T. Dobson has some claim to making the first Christmas card in 1841, but John C. Horsley made a Christmas card for Sir Henry Cole in 1843 and later began the publication of such cards.

But there is nothing particularly new in the origin of pictures sent to remind friends of some particular event. The custom was very old in China, from which country so many customs came to be known as very old after they were established in Europe. In the Chinese laundries pictures in red and black used to be familiar to the man going for his weekly wash. They were Chinese New Year cards which remained on the walls until the next New Year came around. But the sale of Christmas cards as a business came in about 1845 or 1846. The American-made cards some years later have the credit for introducing quality and artistic design into Christmas card printing.

On New Year's day Japanese merchants send their patrons cards with greetings of the season. An elaborate symbolism is used in conveying the Japanese messages, and when it is known the stork is supposed to live a thousand years and the turtle ten thousand, their significance on the cards is readily understood; they say to the recipient, "We wish you a long life." The pine tree, everlastingly green, is a symbol of good fortune; the fan means increasing good fortune.

The seven gods of good fortune occupy prominent places on the New Year's cards. They are Ebisu, happiness; Daikoku, prosperity; Benten, music; Fotei, charity; Hiro, long life; Fukuroku, good luck and Bishamna, protection against evil.

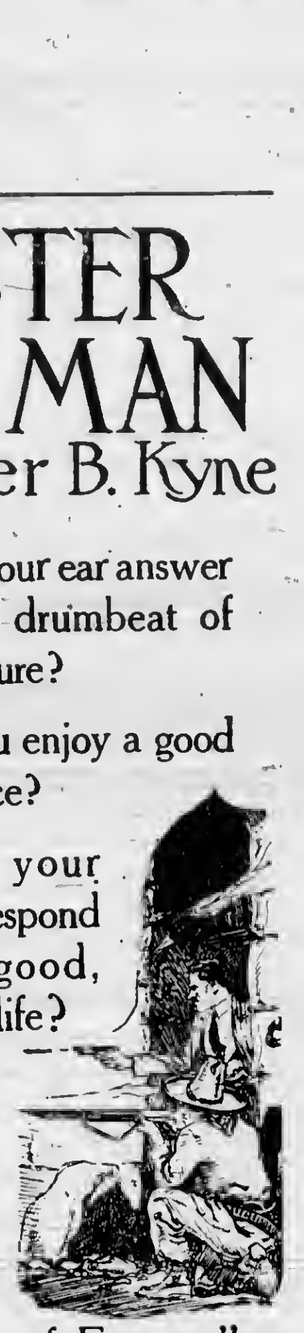
WEBSTER -MAN'S MAN

by Peter B. Kyne

Does your ear answer to the drumbeat of adventure?

Do you enjoy a good romance?

Does your pulse respond to a good, story of out-door life?



If the answer is "yes," then "Webster—Man's Man" was written for you. Not since "Soldiers of Fortune," by Richard Harding Davis, has there been anything like it—or anything of the kind so good.

"Merry Christmas"

Of Christmas past let us remember now
Only the smiles, forgetting all the tears,
Only the hopes, forgetting all the fears;
Life's way is all too long, that we should bow
Beneath the ancient burdens of dead years.

Of Christmas in the future let us speak
Only with courage looking for the best,
Only with hope, leaving to faith the rest!
Life's way is all too short that we should seek
To dim its brightness at our own behest.

And in the present Christmas, let us give
A helo, from care the suffering to release,
All zeal, to share our happiness and peace!
For life is long enough for love to live,
And short enough for bitterness to cease.

The Window Lookers

By Mary Graham Bonner

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

AGAINST the window of a big store was a row of small faces. The children who owned these faces were pressed close, close against it. They seemed to think that the closer they were to it the more they could see.

They were very excited. Their coats were not all that respectable boots should be, their coats were not all that respectable and warm coats should be.

But more than that, their eyes were not all that the eyes of children at Christmastime should be.

She noticed it at once. There was something hungry about their eyes. Something there, too, which looked so strange and unnatural.

She had finished her Christmas shopping. Every one on her list now had a present wrapped up and awaiting delivery. She had saved a little of her Christmas money, too, and she was going to buy herself one of those pretty many-colored silk scarfs, and a gold headband. She had always wanted these, and they were too elaborate to ask her friends to give them to her for Christmas. She was going in this store to purchase them when the children attracted her attention. She stood by them, watching them, listening to them. They weren't paying any attention to her.

"Santy won't come to us this year, mamma says," one child spoke. "Mamma says he's awful hard up this year, just as folks get hard up."

"My papa says that, too," the second said.

"I didn't know Santy ever was hard up," said a third, "but I guess he has had times, too."

She would try out the wild scheme which had just come to her.

"Children," she said, "I am a niece of Mr. Santa Claus, and he told me you would be here—he looked into your homes this afternoon—just peeped in—I don't believe even your mothers saw him, but he heard where you had gone—and he asked me to take you in and buy you each a Christmas present from him.

"He has had a busy time and he isn't as well off this year as usual, but he has something for each of you."

Yes, it was all right. Nothing was too wonderful for children to believe! They went in—all of them.

And each had a present which they fondly clung to and which drove that strange, hungry look from their eyes.

They sent many thanks to Santa Claus, these grateful little window-lookers. Curious, she thought to herself, that she had ever thought of spending that extra money on a scarf and headband!

St. Nick for the Table.

St. Nick's head is a walnut, his body a rosy apple, his arms nee of raisins, his legs macaroni and his shoes Brazil nuts. A hole is bored into each nut to set in the macaroni legs. His beard is of absorbent cotton, his lips of sealing wax, his eyes of apple seeds, while his reindeer are long sweet potatoes with realistic antlers of raisins. A wonderful Santa who serves as a "party" when all the other Christmas goodies are gone! Do you want to make such a St. Nick?—Grit.

Lady Finger Cake.

One cupful brown sugar, 1 cupful white sugar, 1 cupful butter or butter substitute, 3 eggs, 1½ cupfuls milk, 1½ cupfuls flour, 1½ cupfuls nuts, chopped fine; 20 grained crackers, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 1 teaspoonful vanilla flavor.

Mix in order given. Cream butter and sugar; add eggs and milk and beat. Then add the dry ingredients and mix well. Bake in a moderate oven from 30 to 40 minutes in two layers.

Mr. Goodwill Ends War

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE fields sparkled as though covered with diamond dust. The hills looked like big frosted cakes and, as the wind chased them about, the snow particles gleamed like winter fireflies or tiny meteors. It was a brightly beautiful December morning.

But Mr. Goodwill was not looking at the pictures that Mr. Frost had painted upon his windows, or, through as much clear glass as was left, upon the white landscape; his eyes were fixed upon the paper that lay before him upon his desk, and his thoughts searched for an illustration of the idea that he strove to express. For Frank Goodwill was at work upon the article that was not only to win an offered prize but also to end war.

He was not in a peaceful state of mind, for destiny, which had run him up against several disagreeable people of late, had ruffled him again that morning by confronting him at the post office with the most disagreeable one of them all. Wondering why he had so often to meet people whom he wanted to avoid, he had almost quenched the Christmas glow that had begun in existence his heart.

It was not, therefore, with pleasure that he greeted a visitor when the door opened and admitted Hiram Grudge, for Hiram and he had not been upon speaking terms for years and there was still an unspeakable objection to him as he stood there, uninvited to have a seat.

But there seemed to be something unusual the matter with Hiram as he attempted to speak, halted and was silent and downcast, and there began to be something the matter with Lawyer Goodwill as, with broken voice and hesitating utterance, his enemy laid a burden of trouble before him. There came into the lawyer's mind one of the treasured sayings of a wise man of the past, "I know that the man does not love me, but I am resolved to wish him well until I get the better of him," and he rose and took his adversary by the hand.

Returning to his task, Mr. Goodwill discovered that he had found his illustration!

The Indian Christmas Box

By ELEANOR E. KING

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

MRS. NELSON was entertaining friends at luncheon. They were discussing local affairs when Mrs. Nelson suddenly exclaimed:

"I want to read you a letter I received from Mrs. Tweedy yesterday. Every year about July, I send out a plea to my friends to come and donate to my Indian Christmas box. Perhaps I never really made clear that this Mrs. Tweedy to whom the box goes, over in India, is my schoolgirl chum. She married a doctor and together they went to India to spend their money in trying to help those people. They built one of those queer houses high up from the ground, because of the many insects, snakes, and monkeys that infest the island."

"Just imagine," put in one woman, "giving up your friends and conveniences at home, to live in a place like that."

They Made a Pathetic Picture Sitting There.

"This is what she wrote about the Christmas box we sent last July:

"'Dearest Gertrude: I want to thank you and your friends for the lovely things you sent. You surely filled the list and then some.'

"You see," explained Mrs. Nelson, "I asked me to give me a list of things she needed."

"You probably thought I was crazy, asking for bolts of the cheapest, brightest materials you had. I will explain: Every year I have as many mothers as I can accommodate, over to a Christmas party. They are really only girls fourteen or fifteen years old. They simply love bright-colored cloth. I cut up the cloth into usable lengths and give such as I think is needed. The rest I make into little children's garments which I have occasion to give out through the year.

"The dolls you sent were clever. The mothers fairly pounced upon them. They were intended for the children when sent, I am sure, but they never reached their destination, for the little child-mothers had never owned dolls, and they idolized these cunning things. They made a pathetic picture sitting there on the floor, cuddling and loving their dolls, hugging their beautiful pieces of colored cloth, and their bar of soap. This bar of soap is so reverenced and idolized by them that it is placed upon a shelf in their home, an object of beauty to remain there as a precious morsel never to be touched.

"At the end she says: 'Thanking you again for the Christmas box. Show the snapshots to your friends, too. My Indian mothers think you veritable angels.'"

"Our families ought to enlighten them," laughed one lady.

"Say," broke in another above the babble, "I can get some cloth wholesale from my brother for our next box."

"I have a friend," put in another, "who could get a price on the canned goods and soap."

"Won't this be wonderful," burst forth Mrs. Nelson. "I will write Mrs. Tweedy tonight, and tell her what is in store for her in the next Indian Christmas box."

"Puck, puck, puck, pucKAYah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that ANY "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to ADVERTISE the fact.

A duck egg MIGHT be just as good, but the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't ADVERTISE, and duck eggs have no market.

MORE CARS CROSS STRAITS

INCREASE OF 100 PER CENT OVER LAST YEAR

Jumps from 7,000 in 1918 to 38,600 During 1924. Had 110,000 Passengers

More than 38,600 automobiles carrying tourists into northern Michigan were carried across the Straits of Mackinaw this year as compared to 19,802 in 1923, according to figures received by G. E. Bishop, of Marquette, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau, from Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner and C. E. Lytle, general superintendent of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway company.

In 1918, when only 700 cars crossed the straits into the upper peninsula, northern Michigan was scarcely known to tourists, but since the roads and ferry service have improved, traffic is growing by leaps and bounds annually. Mr. Rogers anticipates that motor travel over the straits in 1925 will approach the 60,000 mark and is of the opinion that another state ferry will have to be added to the present fleet if traffic is to be handled properly.

The number of cars crossing the straits into the upper peninsula each year since 1918 follows: 1918, 700; 1919, 1,600; 1920, 3,472; 1921, 4,731; 1922, 9,326; 1923, 19,802 and 1924, 38,681.

"Tourist traffic this year brought an immense amount of money into the upper peninsula," declared Geo. E. Bishop, commenting on the figures from the highway commission and discussing the development bureau's plans for increasing its tourist advertising activities in 1925.

"It is conservatively figured that an average of three persons rode in every car, ferried across the Straits of Mackinac this year, that they remained in the upper peninsula five days and that each one spent an average of $5 a day. If these figures are conservative, as I believe they are, tourists crossing the straits spent $2,901,000 in the upper peninsula.

"This is by no means the extent of the peninsula's tourist business because thousands of motor travelers entered this part of the state over the M-15 from Chicago and over other routes. It is estimated by some students of the business that the traffic across the straits represents not more than one-half of the total movement of tourists into the peninsula."

M. E. CHURCH

This is the last Sunday of the old year. 1924 has its record. It can surely be said of each one of us: "What I Have Written, I Have Written."

This Sunday—10:30 worship. The pastor's subject is "Lessons Learned Looking Backward." Now that real winter is here, let us not allow the church attendance to lag. The storm of last Sunday made no perceptable difference with church attendance.

12 o'clock Sunday school. Good lessons and good interest. The boy's class carried off both banners again, offering and attendance. What a Sunday school we would have if every class showed the interest these boys are showing. There is room. Many an adult and youngster not attending anywhere.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. The young folks like this service and show much interest.

6:00 p. m., Epworth League. Good meeting every time. The fine attendance encourages the leader. The officers are planning another concert to occur January 28th. The blizzard of Monday night kept our Boyne City leaguers at home. We were sorry, but we had the "Grab Bag" party just the same.

7:00 p. m., worship. Evening service. A splendid crowd saw the passion play pictures last Sunday night. We will hope for better weather the next time. Come and hear the sermon this week.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30. This Christmas night we will spend an hour in prayer. Read Acts 23. Come in and see us.

On New Year's eve, next Wednesday evening, the Epworth Leaguers will have a sleigh ride leaving from the church at seven o'clock. Three teams and sleighs are arranged for. Earl Shapton, Arthur Edwards and H. B. Hooker drivers. Returning to the church hot coffee and doughnuts will be served. Young people, this is your outing. At least sixty can go. At ten o'clock will begin the Watch night service and lasting until a few minutes after twelve. The whole church and community are invited to participate in the Watch Night service. People of the church and community let us make this a service of full consecration for the new year and all the year.

Special events now planned mark your calendar as follows:

January 8, church night. All the families and all of each family together. Every society to tell of the year's project.

January 14, annual banquet of Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club.

January 28, second number of Epworth League concert course.

The supreme lesson which Christ came to teach was that no man liveth to himself; that we who are strong ought to bear the burdens of the weak. If there is yet one higher joy than that of paying the debt we owe, surely it is that of paying others their debt which we do not owe. Alone of all great teachers, He came to add this to the beauty, dignity and joy which this brief life affords us. Christ offered this supreme possibility to you—even so far you may have the joy of walking in His footsteps. Honor and lasting joy will come to you only as you pay and in proportion to the amount the payment costs you.—William Fred T. Grenfell.

A Happy New Year to you all.

in many parts of the state. Traction lines and trains were behind schedule, on account of the high wind and snows.

The victims of the storm throughout the storm swept area which centered in the middle west totaled 19 deaths on Saturday of last week. Four persons were killed in Milwaukee, five in Oklahoma, two in St. Louis, two in Chicago and four in Michigan (including two babies burned to death and three other children seriously burned in a fire resulting from an overheated stove in Detroit), one in Kansas City, Mo., and one in Kansas. Causes of death were fires from overheated stoves, falls, traffic accidents and exhaustion from the cold. Over the radio came the news to this city Monday night that in Missouri rainstorms turning to sleet had tied up all telegraphic and telephone communications and trains and that trains were at a standstill.

The storm here continued with almost unabated fury up until Monday night, when the wind dropped and the temperature with it. Tuesday was quiet and somewhat warmer, with signs of a considerable rise in temperature. Weather predictions for the balance of the week are, however, clear and continued cold.

OLD RESIDENT OF CHARLEVOIX DIES

Mrs. Ada Monty of Grand Rapids Left Here Ten Years Ago

Mrs. Ada Monty, a resident of this city for about thirty years, died last Tuesday evening, December 16, at the Soldier's Home in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Monty, who was eighty-four years of age at the time of her death, was born in Richmond, County of Surrey, England, in the year 1840 and came to Michigan some forty years ago. About ten years ago, her health failed her and she entered the Soldier's Home, where as in Charlevoix, she made many sincere friends, for she possessed a pleasing and winning personality. She is survived by two sister, Mrs. Frank Saunders, of Toronto, Canada, who is the mother of Mrs. Rosa Nettleton of this city and Mrs. Nuria Withers of Charlevoix.

The remains were brought here on Thursday of last week, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Trimble and daughter, Pearl, of Middleville, Mich. Mrs. Trimble was a foster daughter of the deceased and was known to Charlevoix people during her stay in this city as Kate Monty.

The funeral was held on last Friday morning at ten-thirty o'clock from the Nettleton home on the north side, Rev. W. J. Datson of Emmanuel Episcopal church, Petoskey, officiating. The interment was at Brookside. Besides the niece of the deceased, Mrs. Nettleton, at whose home the funeral took place, there were present Mr. and Mrs. Trimble and daughter, Edward Pearson of St. Louis, Mich., and Mrs. Nellie Fields of St. Louis, an adopted daughter of Mrs. Mouty.

HELD PRISONERS IN ICE FOR NINE DAYS

Capt. John O'Neill And Crew Had No Food Nor Fuel

Captain John O'Neill of this city and his crew of two, Edward Eagleton and Charles Bissell, with the tug, Fountain Brothers, reached this port last night, after being held in the ice at Fox Island for the past nine days without food or fuel.

Although they lost all their nets, the castaways managed to bring back a good sized load of fish and in spite of a heavy sea and roaring southwest wind extricated themselves from a very ticklish situation by the exercise of good seasmanship and stout hearts. Captain O'Neill says that the ice carried his boat in a circle around the island for seven times before they could break loose times before they could break loose.

The Beaver Island fishermen have lost a lot of nets in the recent storm. The Cross brothers are broken down in Cole's harbor with their boat and will have to remain there until they can get their engine repaired.

AT THE MOVIES

Six Famous Film Actors in "Six Days"

Charles Brabin, in his production of Elinor Glyn's sensational story, "Six Days," which comes to the Palace theatre next Monday and Tuesday, spent more than a month in choosing players for the cast.

Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo, who head the brilliant list, have long been stars in their own right. Mayo started pictures in 1912, playing the leading role in a picture produced in England. Corinne Griffith made her bow to the screen in 1917, when she played the feminine lead in a picture called "Bitter Sweet."

A Real Oldtimer

Few screen players can boast of longer experience before the camera than David Torrence, featured with Jacqueline Logan and Raymond Griffith in the George Melford Paramount production, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," which will be the feature at the Palace theatre on Thursday, January 1.

For Torrence played the role of Black Michael in "The Prisoner of Zenda," the second feature length vehicle made by what is now the Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is a story of the underworld of London, adapted from Frances Hodgson's novel and play of the same name.

Rudolph Valentino's first week in a motion picture studio since 1922 was a strenuous one. Out at the Paramount Long Island studio, where he made "Monsieur Beaucaire" under the direction of Sidney Olcott, the popular star was besieged by friends who wanted to wish him well and to witness the launching of the picture, which brings Valentino back under the Paramount banner.

Forty newspaper men and magazine writers were guests at a luncheon at the studio, given as a welcome to the star. In spite of all visitors director Olcott succeeded in working every day and scene after scene were completed in rapid succession until now the picture, the greatest thing Valentino has ever attempted, is ready for the picture public and opens a two days' run next Saturday and Sunday, December 27 and 28, at the Palace Theatre.

MASONIC ORDERS WILL HOLD NEW YEAR REVEL

Dance for Next Thursday Night Has Been Called Off

The old time potluck supper held at the Masonic temple last Thursday evening, December 18th, by the Masons, the Stars and their wives, husbands and sweethearts was well attended and everyone pronounced the affair the "best ever." Cards, chess, billiards and dancing followed the supper and nobody had an idle moment, nor needed to have. One of the novel and much enjoyed features of the evening was the Virginia reel, in which the older folks were able to show the youngsters a thing or two.

The dance scheduled for next Thursday has been called off, as the "C" Club dance at "The Oldham" takes place on Tuesday evening and the Masons desire to give the boys all the encouragement and support possible.

There will, however, be a big Masonic party at the temple on New Year's eve. The four-piece East Jordan orchestra has been secured for the evening's music and a "large" time is expected.

MISS HODGE WEDS C. W. ESHELMAN

Bride Was Employed at Fessenden's Last Summer

In Coopersville, Michigan, on Saturday afternoon of last week there occurred the marriage of Miss Harriet M. Hodge, of Central Lake, and Clarence W. Eshelman, a former druggist of the place last named. Rev. C. S. Jenkins, who was at one time pastor of the Central Lake Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Eshelman was employed at the Fessenden Drug Store in this city during the past summer and part of the fall, having received her experience in this line in the Schoolcraft Drug Store of Central Lake, of which Mr. Eshelman was formerly manager. He resigned recently to take a responsible position in Grand Rapids, where the newly-wedded couple will make their home.

Both of the young people are graduates of the Central Lake high school and have many friends in that city and Mrs. Eshelman has made many friends in Charlevoix during the period of her employment here, who with the Courier join in wishing for herself and her husband the best of good fortune.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Thursday and Friday, December 25 and 26

"WELCOME STRANGER," with an all-star cast. This picture was booked especially for Christmas night. A gripping story, proving that all the pep isn't in the big city. Life in a small New England town can be goshdurned exciting. Also Jimmie Adams in "ROLL ALONG." This is a Christy comedy.

Saturday and Sunday, December 27 and 28

Rudolph Valentino in "MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE." This picture brings the great lover back to the screen greater than ever. The romantic hero of Booth Tarkington's immortal story of throbbing hearts and clashing swords in the reign of Louis XV of France. The most amazingly beautiful romance in screen history. Also a good comedy, "WIDE OPEN."

Monday and Tuesday, December 29 and 30

"6 DAYS," with Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo. What a picture!— you'll say so when you see the great explosion that imprisons two young people in a deserted dugout in France. She thought she was all ready to marry someone else—but six days of love changed her mind. Story by Elinor Glyn, the author of "Three Weeks."

Thursday, January 1st

"THE DAWN OF A TOMORROW," with Jacqueline Logan and David Torrence. The heart-gladdening story of an optimistic waif of the London slums, and her great adventure in happiness with England's greatest man. A picture that thrills with its strong melodrama and cheers with its beautiful sentiment. Also a good comedy, "NO BODY TO LOVE."

BOYNE CEMENT MILL ASSURED

SECURITIES COMMISSION APPROVES ORGANIZATION

Site Is Von Platen Saw Mill Property, with Rail and Boat Facilities

Charlevoix county is to have a cement plant, this fact heing attested by the recent action of the securities commission at Lansing, which has formally approved the plan of organization and granted permission for the development nf the enterprise.

The site of the new plant is the Godfrey von Platen mill property and the initial capacity will be 2,500 barrels of cement per day. Provisions will be made for doubling this capacity should the need arise. The preliminary work is now under way and ground will be broken in the spring at the plant site and a railroad grade constructed to the shale beds on Vogel street.

F. B. Gerard is the general manager and chief engineer of the new company and has already taken up his residence in Boyne City. He is a man of wide experience, having been in the industry for over eighteen years and engaged during that period in the design and construction of several successful plants, such as the Iola Portland Cement company, Iola, Kansas; Burt Portland Cement company, Bellevue, Mich.; German-American Portland Cement company, La Salle, Ill.; Austin Bros., Clevelund, Ohio; Pilkington Bros., Throld, Ont., and St. Helen, Lancashire, England. He comes to his new wnrk with high recommendations. He has heen in and out of Boyne City for some weeks, familiarizing himself with conditions as they exist locally and perfecting plans for the approaching construction period which will follow the sale of the balance of the stock.

The name of the new concern is the Bnyne City Portland Cement Company of Boyne City, Michigsn, incorporated under the laws of this state. Its total authorized capital stock at the present time is $2,000,000, all common stock, of which 150,000 shares at $10.00 each are nnw being offered for sale. There will be no promotion stock. The trust fund depository for the company is the National Bank of Commerce, Boulevard Branch, Detroit, Mich.

The directors and officers of the new organization are all men of recognized probity, financial standing and experience in business affairs. They are W. H. White of Boyne City, president and chairman of the board; L. W. Siegel of Boyne City, secretary and treasurer; W. L. Martin of Boyne City; Hon. W. J. Pearson of Boyne Falls, and John Yuill, of Vanderbilt, Mich. Mr. Gerard is also a member of the board of directors. Mr. White is president of the White Brothers Lumber Company of Boyne and of the B. C. G. & A. R. R. Mr. Siegel is a well-known hardware merchant of Boyne and was formerly connected with the Charcoal Iron Company of America. Mr. Martin is secretary and treasurer of the Boyne City Lumbering Company. Mr. Pearson is a retired lumberman and state senator, now representing the 29th senatorial district of Michigan. Mr. Yuill is a successful merchant and lumberman.

The charter of the company authorizes it to conduct the business of manufacturing, selling and dealing in Portland cement; to quarry, mine screen and crush stone and lime rock; and to own and operate railroad or steamship lines in connection with the economical pursuit of their business.

The proceeds of the sale of stock, less selling expense and necessary incidental expense, is to be deposited in a trust fund with the depository above mentioned until in the judgment of the directors a sufficient amount has been raised to assure the financing of the company before sny building operations are commenced or contracts entered into for the purehase of machinery.

The property on which the plant will be located was donated to the company and the harbor on the

PIONEER WOMAN IS DEAD

MRS. FRANCIS DUNLEVY PASSES AT AGE 70

Was the Mother of Eleven Children and Experienced Many Perils of the Early Days

Frank Left's tug, the Link, left this port Monday for Beaver Island, besring the body of Mrs. Francis Dunlevy of St. James, which arrived here Tuesday evening, December 23rd, from Chicago, accompanied by three sons, two daughters, a sister and a brother of the deceased. The Link had made several ineffectual attempts to leave the harbor during the past week, but not until Monday were weather conditions safe for the trip.

Mrs. Dunlevy, who had been in poor health for the past year, left her home in St. James about three weeks ago for Chicago, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Earl Miller of this city. The trip was made for the purpose of seeking surgical rélief, but Mrs. Dunlevy visited in Grand Rnpids for a time before going on to the John B. Murphy Hospital, where she died on Monday of last week, three days after an operation for stomach obstruction had been performed. Blood poisoning setting in was the immediate cause of death. She was seventy years of age.

Mrs. Dunlevy, whose mniden nnme was Gallagher, was born in Ireland in 1854 and came to this country in infancy. While a resident of Beaver Island, she was married to Francis Dunlevy fifty years ago last February, and has lived on the island continuously since that time, where her charity and gracious hospitality has endeared her to many.

The deceased is survived by her husband and ten children: Dan, John and Joseph Dunlevy, of Chicago, and Francis Dunlevy of St. James; Mrs. J. C. O'Donnell of Escanaba; Mrs. Enrl Miller, of Charlevoix; Miss Sadie Dunlevy, of Chicago, and Mrs. Frank Left, Mrs. Mike McCann and Mrs. Francis McCafferty of St. James. She also leaves three brothers, Owen Gallagher, of Grand Haven, Peter Gallagher, of Ludington, and Dominick Gallsgher, of St. James, and three sisters, Mrs. Con McCauley, of Chicago, Mrs. Ellen O'Donnell, of Iron Mountain, and Mrs. Dan Boyle, of St. James. A son died when a child.

The funeral will probably be held today (Wednesday) at Holy Cross church on the island, Rev. Fr. Leo McManmon officiating. A number of the relatives returned to St. James on the Link Monday. Those of the relatives who were able to come here for the funeral from out of town are Mrs. McCauley, Jack, Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dunlevy, Mr. and Mrs. John C. O'Donnell, Miss Sadie Dunlevy, Mrs. Ellen O'Donnell and Owen Gallagher.

Predicts Old Fashioned Winter

"Three months hard winter," says one of our local old-timers. He bases his statement on the moving weather and low temperature December 20, 21 and 22. An old Indian told him 20 or 30 years ago to watch the weather after the sun crosses the line, and he says he never knew it to fail.

WILL LOCAL RADIO BUGS COME TO THIS?

An Ashland, Wisconsin news dispatch says:

" 'Radio madness' has at last become manifest in this part of the state with the finding, Saturday, by two Indian police, of J. F. Hopkins, white woodsman, who claims that he can send and receive messages through the tips of his fingers.

Hopkins was found near Birch, about 30 miles east of Ashland, and brougbt to the Ashland county jail here. When he was taken into the jail he commented forcibly on the way in which the Indians had interfered with his receiving and broadcasting.

Offered food at the jail he said, 'Don't bother me now, can't you see I'm trying to get Buffalo? Ah! I've got it. Now go away and I'll eat as soon as I get through talking to them.' "

Take warning, you local hugs. Colonel, Art, Charlie, Bob—hit the downy couch at the usual hour or some form of madness may afflict you.

My New Year Prayer

From Mother's Magazine

I do not ask that either wealth or fame
Shall be my portion down life's troubled way;
I only ask that there be given me
The needed strength for work from day to day.
Just strength, that with the morning's fresh, sweet dawn
I may arise, and fully rest be,
Renewed my mind and body so that I
May do the waiting day's work cheerily;
The strength to meet the fretting little cares
And trials, so prone to vex, with sunny smile.
And grace to say the gentle, kindly word
To those I love and patient be the while;
The grace to let the hasty angry tone go by unheeded, and to ever be
So strong that in confusion and distress
I may be helpful, yet go quietly.

MISS PEG JOHNSON IS NOW MRS. FORD

Newlyweds Will Make Their Home in Grand Rapids

Miss Margaret Johnson, dsughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Johnson of this city and former telephone operator at the local exchange, who has been working in Grand Rapids since early in the fall, sprung a considerable surprise on her many friends here when she returned last week to spend Christmas with her parents and announced herself as Mrs. Ford.

The wedding took place on Monday, December 15th, at Grand Rapids, we are informed, where Mr. Ford has a position as body maker in the plant of the Fischer Body Corporation and where they will make their home. Mrs. Ford returned to Grand Rapids lnst Friday with the congratulations and best wishes of her Charlevoix friends.

WAITS SANG ON CHRISTMAS EVE

CHORUS CHOIR REVIVES OLD ENGLISH CUSTOM

Visits Hospital and Brings Christmas Cheer to the City's Shut-ins

On Christmas Eve an old English custom was revived in a delightful manner by the chorus choir of the Congregational church, under the leadership of their preceptor and organist, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham.

At half past seven a sleigh from Hooker's livery stable, carpeted with straw and equipped with a small parlor organ and a pole carrying a gasoline lamp to assist the singers in following their notes, set out from the Oldham residence on Park avenue with fourteen members of the choir, Mrs. Oldham at the organ and Mr. Oldham directing the expedition. The first stop was made at the hospital, where the organ was carried into the hallway and the choir lined up around it to sing "The First Noel," "Silent Night" an anthem, "Arise and Shine" and a splendid hymn of praise, "Crown Him King of Kings." Mrs. Archie Livingston also sang as a solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," a program which was much appreciated by the patients and their visiting relatives.

Then the party "entrained" again and visited the hnmes of several shut-ins and invalids on the south side where they repeated their carols, thence to the home of W. H. Miller, one of the wardens of the Congregational church, next to Fessenden's drug store and then back to the church, where they went in and got warmed up before starting out for the north side. The bitter temperature, seriously hampered the organist, shortened the evening's program somewhat and all returned to the home of R. F. Sloan on State street, where a delicious oyster supper awaited the "waits" who did ample justice to the hospitality prnvided by their host and hostess.

On Christmas afternoon a fine program was rendered hy the chorus choir at the church, including three anthems, a number of hymns, two solos by Mrs. Jack Superpaw, and solos by Mrs. Livingston and young William Fessenden, whose clear, boyish soprano delighted the audience. Rev. Long voiced an appreciation of the faithful work of the choir during the fall and winter months and the patient and self-sacrificing work of their leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Oldham.

Last Sunday was the Rev. Mr. Long's last official appearance as pastor of the local Congregational church. His plans for the future are not as yet definite and therefore cannot be announced. During his pastorate here, in our opinion, he has done most excellent work in putting his church on the map. He is distinctly a man among men; the type of minister who understands the needs and the aspirations of all classes of people and can the better meet them on their nwn ground. His going is a distinct loss to the community as it will be the gain of that in which he may next locate.

ALBERT WIDDIFIELD HONORED AT CHICAGO

Holds Three Journalistic Jobs at the University

The Courier received a visit last week from Albert Widdifield, last year's editor-in-chief of the Chanticleer, who has been visiting his parents here over the holidays.

Albert has just finished the first semester of his freshman year at the University of Chicago, and has already been made chairman of the Student Council, publicity manager of the freshman class and a member nf the editorial staff of the university paper, The Daily Maroon. We'd eall that going some!

He commends the present staff of the Chanticleer on their excellent work in getting out what he believes is a better publication than last year's. In behalf of the student staff and ourselves, thanks, old top, but we miss you. Widdy, just the same.

FOOD FISH ARE GROWING SCARCE

MICHIGAN FISHERMEN ALARMED OVER LAKE CONDITIONS

Claimed Industry Has Been Game of Take Everything and Put Nothing Back

The following article taken from the St. Ignace Enterprise may prove of interest to commercial fishermen of this section:

"Killing the goose that laid the golden egg" has been in vogue among the commercial fishermen of Michigan these many years past. Since the establishment of their industry dependent entirely upon the fish fertility of the Great Lakes, it has been a game of take everything and put nothing back, with the result that the great hauls of former years are no more.

Fishermen have become alarmed at the growing scarcity of food fish on their fishing grounds says the Detroit News. They have at stake millions in equipment and buildings. The future of the industry is seriously threafened. Many of the smaller operators have discontinued, being unable to make even a fair living. And so, when one of the largest of the operators suggests that the legislature enact a tonnage tax law to be levied upon the catch of the fishermen of the Great Lakes and the funds received to be used in restoring the fertility of these waters, a note of hopefulness is injected into the situation.

This suggestion coming as it does from William H. Wallace, chairman of the Michigan Conservation Commission, and owner of an extensive fishing industry covering the Saginaw Bay district, is not a new one. It was suggested two years ago hut from a hostile legislature and an efficient fisherman's lobby against it. It was proposed to levy a tax ranging from $2.50 a ton on herring up to $13.00 a ton on whitefish. Based upon the total catch of 1922, this would bave brought a fund of $53,000 into the state treasury for the operation and maintenance of fish hatcheries devoting their efforts entirely to the propagation and planting of fond fish in the commercial fishing waters. This amount would take care of at least five hatcheries and under efficient administration within three years would show results in increased stock of our edible fish.

Why there should be any opposition to the plan upon the part of any commercial fisherman is a mystery. They surely recognize the futility of trying to continue to harvest without sowing any seed.

SANTA CLAUS WAS STALLED IN SNOW

But Sunday School Kids Got Their Candy Just the Same

One of the best programs ever given hy the Congregational Sunday school was presented on Christmas eve in the form of a pageant, portraying the Nativity in a series of tableaux with appropriate songs and scripture messages interspersed.

Santa Claus was delayed by the bad roads, but, fortunately, had sent the boxes of candy on ahead and there was one for every child in the large audience.

KING BOREAS' COHORTS FLED

STORM'S FURY ABATES AS NEW YEAR NEARS

Sub-Zero Temperatures Started on Up-grade Monday and Peace Now Reigns

Old King Boreas, familiarly styled Jack Frost, marshaled his hosts of ice and snow and wind, his frigid shock tronps of the north, and descended upon us for a second time on Christmas Day. In fact his outposts were busy Christmas eve driving good folks indoors who hsd planned to take a last look over the stocks of Christmas gifts displayed by the merchants of the city up to the eleventh hour and sending the merrymakers and sight seers huddling to their home fires.

And speaking of home fires—every householder sure had his hands full keeping them "burning" on Christmas Day. The mereury, whieh was plenty low-down enough the night before, dropped steadily all day until at six o'clock it was close to five degrees above zero. And, as if to add insult to injury, a cold nor'wester from the Canadian wilds hlew all day, filling the highways with snow and drifting in the country rosds.

The cold wave and storm was felt generally all over the state. On Friday, Grand Haven reported the lowest temperature in the state, with ten below zero. It was four below at Detroit and Lansing, zero at Saginaw and Alpena and two below at Port Huron. In Chicago on the same day four persons died as the result of the intense cold and numerous fires were caused hy overheated stoves and furnaces. Fire in a hotel drove scores of guests to the streets in night attire. Considerable suffering from the poorer sections where lack of fuel drove families to the police stations for help.

In Alberta, Canada, near the source of the storm wave, the temperature at different points ranged from 30 to 40 below. This, however, is not unusual for that section, where low temperatures are the rule rather than the exception during the winter season.

Saturday night the lowest temperature reported here was twn above zero. A local radio fan picked up the temperatures for various widely scattered localities on that evening—Chicago, at eight o'clock, reporting 7 below; Peoria, 9 below; Springfield, Ohio, 4 below; Beaverson, Wisconsin, 18 below; Menominee, Mich., 28 below; Davenport, Ia., 9 below (with temperature steadily dropping and expected from predic-

McHUGH STORE IS A MASS OF RUINS

Caught Fire Early This Morning From Unknown Cause

The racket store of H. E. McHugh on Bridge street caught fire at shortly before 12:30 o'clock this morning, from causes unknown, and now stands a mere sheil of tattering timhers.

The alarm was turned in hy Ralph Burns, who was passing the building on the way home and saw the smoke and flame within. He ran back down the street to Mont's restaurant and told Chief of Police Weikel, who in turn called up the department.

Though the department responded promptly, as usual, the store was beyond the possibility of being saved from destruction and all the firemen could sensibly do was tn wet down the Young building on the nnrth side of the doomed structure and Wood's (now O'Neill's) barn to the south of it. Three streams were played on the blazing mass and the flames held in eheck. The stock of notions, small hardware, toys, etc., was a total loss.

There was some insurance on the stock snd the huilding which was the property of Mr. McHugh, but the full amount cannot be ascertained st this writing.

Martin Staley, who occupied the upper portion of the building, lost quite a few valuable personal effects in the fire, but managed to escape himself without injury.

What caused the fire is not known, although it seemed to have started in the partition hetween the store and the back room which was used as a storeroom.

Webster —Man's Man

CHAPTER II

to conceal Mr. Webster momentarily in a cloud of dust, the while in a bellowing baritone he sang:

"His father was a hard-rock miner,
His mother from my home Iowa—"

"Jack Webster! The devil's own kin!" shouted Neddy Jerome. He swept the cards into a heap and waddled across the room to meet this latest assailant of the peace and dignity of the Engineers' club. "You old, worthless, cussery, no-good son of a lizard! I've never been so glad to see a man that didn't owe me money. I've been combing the whole civilized world for you, for a month, at least. Where the devil have you been?"

John Stuart Webster beamed happily upon his friend. "Well, Neddy, you old shocking knitter," he replied quizzically, "since that is the case, I'm not surprised at your failure to find me. You've known me long enough to have remembered to confine your search to the uncivilized trenches."

"Well, you're here, at any rate and I'm happy. Now you settle down."

"Hardly, Neddy. I'm young yet, you know—only forty. Still a real live man and not quite ready to degenerate into a card-playing, eat-drink-and-be-merry, die-of-dumbbism, sink-to-oblivion and go-to-h — — freshore spirit!" And he prodded Jerome in the short ribs with a tentative thumb that caused the old man to wince. He permitted his friend to drag him downstairs to the deserted lounge, where Jerome paused in the middle of the room and renewed his query:

"Where have you been, I ask?"

"Out in Death Valley, California, trying to pry loose a fortune."

"Did you pry it?"

John Stuart Webster arched his eyebrows in mock reproach. "And you can see my new suit, Neddy, my sixteen-dollar, made-to-order shoes and my horny hoof's encased in silken hose—and ask that question? Freshly shaved and ironed and almost afraid to sit down and get wrinkles in my trousers! Smell that!" He blew a cloud of cigar smoke into Jerome's smiling face. The latter sniffed. "It smells expensive," he replied.

"Yes, and you can bet it tastes expensive, too," Webster answered. Lending his cigar-case to his friend.

Jerome bit the end of his cigar and spat derisively. "How much have you made?" he demanded bluntly.

"It's none of your business, but I'll tell you because I love you, Neddy. I've made one hundred thousand dollars."

"Chicken-feed," Jerome retorted. "Johnny, I've been combing the mineral belt of North and South America for you for a month."

"Why this sudden belated interest in me?"

"I have a fine job for you, John—"

"King's X," Webster interrupted, and showed both hands with the fingers crossed. "No plotting against my peace and comfort, Neddy. Haven't I told you I'm all dressed up for the first time in three years, that I have money in my pocket and more in bank? Man, I'm going to tread the primrose path for a year before I get back into the harness again."

Jerome waved a deprecatory hand, figuratively brushing aside such feeble and inconsequential argument. "Are you footloose?" he demanded.

"I'm not. I'm bound in golden chains—"

"Married, eh? Great Scott, I might have guessed it. So you're on your honeymoon, eh?"

"No such luck, you whisky-drinking iconoclast. If you had ever gotten far enough from this club during the past fifteen years to get a breath of real fresh air, you'd understand why I want to enjoy civilization for a week or two before I go back to a mine superintendent's cabin on some bleak hill. No, sir-ee. Oh Jeremiah Q. Work and I have had a falling out. Dad burn your picture, Neddy, I want some class! I've been listening to a dago shift-boss playing the accordeon for three years—and he could only play three tunes. Now, I want Sousa's band. I've been bathing in tepid, dirty water in a redwood sluice-box, and now I desire a steam room and a needle shower and an osteopath. I've been bossing Greasers and Italians and was forced to learn their language to get results, and now I want to speak my mother tongue to my old friends. By thunder I'm going to have a new deal all around."

"Very well, Jack. Don't excite yourself. I'll give you exactly thirty days to sicken of it all—and then I shall come and claim my property."

"Neddy, I'll not work for you. I'm mad. I won't play."

"You're it. I just tagged you."

"I require a rest—but unfold your proposition, Neddy. I was born a poor, weak vessel consumed with a curiosity that was ever my undoing. I can only protest that this is no way to treat a friend."

"Nonsense! My own brother wants this job, and I have refused to give it to him. Business is business and I've saved it for you."

Jerome leaned forward and laid his finger confidentially on Webster's knee; whereat the light-hearted wanderer carefully lifted the finger, brushed an imaginary speck of dirt from it, and set it down again. "Be serious, you ingrate," Jerome protested. "Listen: I've been working for two years on a consolidation up near Telluride, and I've just put it across, Jack. It's the biggest thing in the country. Colorado Consolidated Mines Company, Limited. English capital, Jack. Pay 'em 6 per cent. and they'll call you blessed. There's twenty-five thousand a year in it, with a house and a good cook and an automobile and a chauffeur, and you can come to town whenever you please, provided you don't neglect the company's interests—and I know you're not that kind of an engineer."

"Do I have to put some money into it, Neddy?"

"Not necessarily, although I should advise it. I can let you in on the ground floor for that hundred thousand of yours, guarantee you a handsome profit and in all probability a big cleanup."

"I feel myself slipping, Neddy. Nevertheless, the tail goes with the hide. I'm not in the habit of asking my friends to guarantee my investments, and if you say it's right, I'll spread what I have left of the hundred thousand when I report for duty."

"It's been a tremendous job getting this consolidation over, Jack. When—"

"In pity's name! Spare me. I've heard all I want to hear about your confounded consolidation. —News? News! Give me news! I have to beg for a drink— Mose, you black sinner, how dare you appear before me without bringing a drink?"

Mose, the aged colored porter of the Engineers' club, flashed a row of ivories and respectfully returned the obsequious greeting.

"Letter for you, suh. The secretary told me to give it to you, Mistah Webster."

"Thank you, Mose. Speak up, Neddy, and tell me something. Ever hear anything of Billy Geary?"

He was tearing the edge of the envelope the while he gazed at Jerome, who was rubbing his fat hands together after the fashion of elderly men who are well pleased with themselves.

"You have a chance to become one of the greatest and richest mining engineers in the world, Jack," he answered, "now that you've cut loose from that young crook Geary. I don't know what's become of him, and neither does anybody else. For that matter, nobody cares."

"I do—and you can take the lefter end of that lie for your last white chip. Don't let me hear you or anybody else say anything against Billy Geary. That boy goes for my money, every turn in the box. Don't make any mistakes about that, old timer."

Webster's face suddenly was serious; the bantering intonation in his voice was gone, and a new, slightly strident note had crept into it. But Jerome waved his hand soothingly.

"All right, old Johnny Peppercorn, have it your own way. Nevertheless, I'm a little mystified. The last I knew of you two, you had testified against him in the high-grader trials at Cripple Creek, and he had pulled out under a cloud, even after his acquittal."

"Give a dog a bad name, and it will stick to him." Webster retorted. "Of course I testified against him. As engineer for the Mine Owners' association, I had to. The high-grade ore was found in his safe office, and the circumstantial evidence was complete—and I admit Billy was a sullen, moody lout so I and others could not swear positively that the ore came from any certain claim. It was the same old story. N. G. You can be morally certain that high-grade ore has been stolen from your mine, but unless you catch the one thief in the act, how can you prove it? I suppose you read the newspaper reports and believed them, just as everybody else does."

"Well, forget it, Jack. It's all over long ago, and buried."

"It wasn't all over so long ago as you seem to think. I suppose you know the Holman gang was afterward sent to the penitentiary for those same high-grade operations? Billy Geary's acquittal didn't end my interest in the case, not by a jugful. I fought the cuss against the friends of the Holman crew among the mine owners themselves; and it cost me my good job, my prestige as a mining engineer, and thirty thousand dollars of money that I'd slaved to get together. Of course you never knew this, Neddy, and for that matter, neither does Geary. I wish he did. We were good friends once. I certainly was mighty fond of that boy."

He drew the letter from the envelope and slowly opened it.

"And you never heard what became of Geary?"

"Not a word. I was too busy wondering what was to become of me. I couldn't get a job anywhere in Colorado, and I moved to Nevada. Made a million in Goldfield, dropped it in the panic of 1907, and had to start again—"

HOME EDUCATION

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

CHILDISH IMITATORS

Josephine Weymen

"Never mind, nobody'll know," said Mother with a smile at Aunt Edith as she picked up the biscuit which had fallen on the perfectly clean kitchen floor and put it back on the plate. "Never mind, nobody know," echoed little Caroline later, picking up a small piece of bread from the floor of the cafe and putting it on the bread plate.

"That child is a born imitator," you will sometimes hear a parent say, and then watch amazedly as mother or father do or say something which they certainly would not want imitated!

All children are natural imitators. How much harder the parents' task would be if the child did not so unconsciously teach himself!

I know of no other method of so easily giving children the right standards of growth and development than suggestion and example. Here undoubtedly lie the father's and mother's joy and duty. It is for them to suggest in stories, in pictures, in play, as well as in their own personal lives, just what they wish their children to be. Let them wish it hard enough, have faith enough to try hard enough for it, and, as in the old magic tales, the wish is bound to become reality!

Have you ever heard a kindergartner ask, "What does the Little Pig do with his two little ears?"—and the children eagerly respond, "Why, he listens, he hears, with his two little ears!"? How much easier, then, for the teacher to obtain and keep the attention of her class!

Dr. Dewey, of Columbia University, tells of a child who quickly picked up a doll's dress from the floor: "I'm not going to teach my child to throw her clothes on the floor," she said. So very often the children play with their dolls, which to them are so actually identified with themselves, will present the opportunity for a suggestion of lasting value. "How sorry Dolly will be to have to sleep in such a rumpled bed!" or "I am sure that Dolly must like the nice way her things are put away."— For this reason the wise mother will provide a box of the proper convertible shape if her little girl has no trunk for dolly's clothes. What little girl doesn't long for a trunk for her baby's small belongings?

Stories and pictures are particularly valuable for right suggestions. Not that every story must have a moral, but rather that good stories invariably suggest a nobler, lovelier way of living, an act of courage, a gentle thoughtfulness, or a sustained endeavor which at the story's end will bring its own deserved reward. If parents only realized how susceptible children are to such suggestions, that they could accomplish much by merely presenting the right pictures and stories, certainly they would examine more carefully the books and pictures placed before them.

"O, Robert," don't do that!" exclaimed a mother when she discovered her small son distorting his face before the mirror.

"I'm trying to look like the boy in the picture," he answered pointing to the colored supplement.

Duncan came to dinner recently with a big bump over his eye. "No, I haven't been fighting," he said in answer to his mother's inquiring look. "I interfered and the fellow I wanted to help didn't understand and struck me. He doesn't seem to know much anyway. He's a great big chap and only in the second grade. The fellows were going to punish him for throwing stones at them."

"Why did you want to prevent them?" asked his mother.

"I felt sorry for him. Somehow he always makes me think of Patsy."

"The Patsy of Kate Douglas Wiggin's story?"

"Yes, he looks like him only he's older. Poor kid, I guess he must have lost some years like Patsy."

"Have you read the story recently?"

"No, you read it to me when I was a little chap; don't you remember?"

"Yes," answered his mother thoughtfully.

WEBSTER -MAN'S MAN

by Peter B. Kyne

Does your ear answer to the drumbeat of adventure?

Do you enjoy a good romance?

Does your pulse respond to a good, story of out-door life?

If the answer is "yes," then "Webster—Man's Man" was written for you. Not since "Soldiers of Fortune," by Richard Harding Davis, has there been anything like it—or anything of the kind so good.

Will Be Printed Soon as a Serial in This Paper!

AT THE MOVIES

"Heroes of the Street" is, briefly, the story of Mickey Callahan, who finds life one fight after another with the kids of his neighborhood. His father, a policeman, suddenly loses his life at the hands of a mysterious gang of crooks. And, after Wes and his mother are plunged in black grief, the lad sets about sleuthing for the man who made him an orphan. We won't tell you how he does it, but we will let you into the secret sufficiently to say that it is done through a number of the most comic escapades and hair-breadth adventures ever imagined.

A beautiful romance is interwoven through the picture. The combination of irrepressible fun-loving Wes as a dectective and Marie Prevost as the innocent actress in the power of a sinister plotting producer is unbeatable, and makes this Warner Brothers production the best that has come here for many a moon.

"Heroes of the Street" will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Wednesday evening, Janusry 7th, with Wes Barry in the leading role.

The "Night Hawk"

It is the story of "Panther" Gann, a gentleman crook, whom circumstances force to leave the underworld of the East and go West in the role of an avenger. He soon perceives that his victim, Sheriff Hilton, is innocent and because Gsan falls in love with Hilton's daughter Clia, he becomes Hilton's ally instead of his enemy. This results in many thrilling complications in the straightening of which, Gann gains new self-respect and the promise of Clia's aid in living on honest life.

"The Night Hawk" has some good fights, breath-taking rescues, and an appealing love strain. You'll be sorry if you miss it.

The "Night Hawk" comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday evenings, January 3rd and 4th.

COW TESTING HELPS FARMER

SHOWS HIM HOW TO SAVE ON FEEDING

Results Obtained Through Accurate Knowledge Fully Justify the Work

During the last two months, much checking up of the feeds has been done. The cheaper sources of food were sought to lower cost of production. Alfalfa, ensilage and clover hay offer the heat and least expensive source of protein and total digestible nutrients. This is shown by the following table:

Cost of 1 lb. of:	Protein	T. D. N.
Alfalfa (s. c.) $12 ton	$.054	.0115
Clover Hay ..$10 ton	.065	.01
Cornstover ....$ 4 ton	.119	.005
Silage .....$ 4 ton	.20	.015
Rye .....$42 ton	.212	.0259
Corn .....$52 ton	.353	.0311
Oats .....$44 ton	.226	.0314
Bran .....$36 ton	.144	.0300
C. S. M. .....$58 ton	.077	.0359
O. N. L.....$58 ton	.092	.0354

This table gives some light on the economy of silage, alfalfa and clover. Nobody can afford not to fill the silo.

In November the 271 cows in the association averaged 439 pounds of milk and 19.46 pounds of butterfat—a profit of $1.19 per cow (butterfat at $.42 per pound), while in October the same 271 cows averaged 450 pounds of milk and 19.56 pounds of butterfat—a profit of $2.33 above cost of feed per cow (butterfat at $.35 per pound). The high profits in October, above cost of feed, went to H. Bearss, whose eight cows averaged $5.35; Mettue Rubingh's 9 cows, $5.26; A. Elzinga's 19 cows, $4.56; Robert Watson's 6 cows, $3.99 and J. Hennep's 9 cows, $3.92.

In November, E. Burns's 7 cows averaged a profit of $5.30 per cow, after deducting cost of feed; Nick Dekkinga's 8 cows, $3.70; County Poor Farm's 9 cows, $3.51; J. B. Osterbaan's 9 cows, $3.29 and H. Hoogewerf's 7 cows, $3.00.

The following shows high herds in the association for October and November, 1924:

October

CHRISTMAS OF PRESENT TIME

Despite Methods of Travel and the Ease of Making Long Journeys, Home Holiday Best.

WHEN Christmas began its gay pilgrimage down the years society was stationary. Today families and individuals are constantly on the move. Modern means of transportation have abolished distance. The family today scatters to all quarters of the earth. One brother stays on the Atlantic coast, the other migrates to the Pacific seaboard, but then they are "only four or five days apart." In England sons and daughters find their way in all parts of an empire that covers the globe; it is nothing for the cabled Christmas salutations of a single family to travel between Montreal, Melbourne, Calcutta, Cape Town and London.

When Irving wrote "Bracebridge Hall," the little journey into the country was itself an adventure. The ease of travel nowadays has taken the edge from all such jaunts. Everybody travels. And increasing numbers use the modern transport system to leave home at Christmas time. It may be heresy, but the custom of spending Christmas at an inn is gaining ground. Congestion of population in great cities has narrowed the dimensions of the metropolitan home, and not many apartments can comfortably accommodate the family reunion and the preparation and setting of the Christmas dinner. So when the trip to the country fails the city family goes holiday-making in an hotel. If hotels once were lonely places at Christmas they are far from lonely now, and many seek them both for dinner and frolic.

These are tendencies, variations upon the old theme. The theme, however, remains unchanged. It will not change. The great majority will still keep Christmas at home. Where there are children the proper paraphernalia and the time-honored observances will hold the family at home. No substitute fully satisfies. At best the away-from-home Christmas is only a substitute for the genuine article. So long as children come to enrich the lives of men and women Christmas will remain essentially a home holiday. The organization of modern life brings some compensations to the absent and the homeless, but the fullness of Christmas satisfaction is only to be had at the family hearth.

"TENDERING" THE SHEEP

SOMETIMES the thoughts of little folks are far deeper than our own. They are unconsciously nearer to the soul of things and more in the divine secrets. Few of us but would give much could we feel again the romantic atmosphere that used to be such a delightful fog at Christmas time. No later imaginations have equaled those which once strained our ears as we sat up in bed, listening for the reindeer upon the roof, the sleigh bells of Santa Claus. With what ecstatic joy we used to explore the stuffed stockings! There are Christmas expressions that still exist in faded note books, taken down childlike remarks that bring back happy days of Christmas associations. "I know a Christmas carol," said little Rose, "It's about the Good Shepherd, tendering the sheep."—C. G. Hazard.

EVERY CHRISTMAS IS BIGGER

Day Means More to Greater Number of People—Boundaries Extended Year After Year.

IN uncounted pulpits and on a multitude of printed pages this Christmas day will be made the subject of glowing pictures of the progress of the world toward peace, and peace with honor and justice.

In some features the holiday of giving, the day set apart for rejoicing over the birth of the most potent apostle of peace mankind has ever known, wears a more nobly prophetic aspect this year than it has had in a century or a millennium, and thrilling appeals to the faith and brotherly love of good people can be made without in the least overstepping the bounds of truth. The facts are rich in promise, beyond the realization of many eyes weary of long strife and repeated disillusionment. There will be comparatively little danger of exaggeration in the praise of Christmas this glorified day which finds the world scarce able to grasp the full meaning of great events.

But there is another phase of Christmas which is always well worth noting, and especially so when the pace of human progress is quickened by momentous changes toward peace and good will. This is the constant widening and unending conquests of the best of holidays.

Every Christmas is bigger than the one before it. Always the day means more to a greater number of human beings. Year after year its boundaries are extended. Year by year its sunshine is shed upon more of the earth's inhabitants.

This does not necessarily mean the gains of the Christian religion, for Christmas is wider than Christianity. The day of the coming of Jesus is cherished by many millions who have no connection with Christian churches or the faith they profess. The holiday is dear to all who live in lands where Christians are most numerous. It wins the devotion of little children and holds their affection as they grow older. For multitudes its observance is not in any sense a rite of belief, but a manifestation of rejoicing in the love of fellow-dwellers in a world which at best has too little of the sunshine of kindness and affection.

There is no reason to fear that this growth of Christmas will cease. There is nothing to indicate that it will ever fail to widen the realm of bright hopes and radiant thoughts, shining children's eyes and smiling older faces, when winter days are briefest and darkest, in the more populous half of the earth, and nature leaves most for man to do, in making the world cheerful and life worth while.—Cleveland News-Leader.

A NEW DAY OF PEACE AND DEVELOPMENT

They were strong words which Owen D. Young used regarding the Dawes plan in the first speech he has made in America since he returned there from Europe some three weeks ago. This scheme, he declared, successfully worked out, has brought the world to the threshold of a new day of peace and development. He was the guest at a dinner given in his honor by the business men of that city, and before he began to speak Gen. A. Brouzet, acting French consul, pinned on his breast the cross of a Commander of the Legion of Honor, presented as an appreciation of his reparations work by the French government. And President Coolidge sent a message in which he stated that the commission's work is now recognized as a great contribution to the re-establishment of economic order in Europe, and expressed the "gratitude of the people on both sides of the Atlantic" for the part which Mr. Young played in that reorganization.

Hence there was no doubt that even before he started to speak Mr. Young had the satisfaction of knowing that his work was to quite an extent, at any rate, appreciated by both his audience and by those whom they represented in the various countries which it touched. It is especially noteworthy therefore, that he emphasized the fact that the plan cannot succeed without the co-operation of the people of America, and bluntly asked the question, "Have we at last realized the responsibilities which are the counterpart of our own riches?" This question he answered himself to a certain extent, when he affirmed that the agencies of the United States must all co-operate in support of the plan if it is to be the success which it should, and declared that to this same end the nation's men of commerce, industry, agriculture and finance, including the federal reserve system, must aid in the restoration of the credit and currencies of the principal commercial nations. That is to say, America must continue in the course in which it has taken already the first few steps, to insure that that new day of peace and development which has dawned shall progress to its high noon of accomplishment.

In this connection, Mr. Young did not hesitate to state his personal opinion regarding the policy which the United States should pursue. "We may debate political participation in the affairs of the world as we will," he urged, "but we must participate in its business, and business knows no political boundaries, and in its dictionary there is no such word as isolation." In other words, if permanent peace is to be established in the world, it will be established, not by coercive measures, but by the application of that great fundamental of loving one's neighbor as oneself. This regulatory dictum is no mere theory; it is no hypothetical statement of abstract morality. It is a declaration of law, the law of peace and harmony, the law which must become operative throughout the world before the era of peace and development will be a concrete reality, and the law which without a doubt is coming to be recognized more and more as the fundamental rule of conduct among nations.—Christian Science Monitor.

SECOND CLASS MAIL

Newspapers tread on eggshells, of course, when they discuss mail rates on second class matter, in which they are themselves interested in behalf of the reading public. But Postmaster General New's counter report and counter bill—aimed apparently to kill the real postal increase bill remaining for congressional disposal—contains assertions which newspapers are not disposed to accept unchallenged.

Chief of these is the declaration by Mr. New that the government loses $74,712,863 a year on the second class mail business, and only $6,916,753 on parcel post.

The New York Times speaks out for newspapers and their readers everywhere when it declares:

"There will be many who will want to know how this loss said to be due to the handling of second class matter has increased so tremendously since the inception of the parcel post service. Has there been a fair distribution of costs as between the fourth class, in which virtually every parcel must be individually weighed and handled, and, on the other hand, newspapers weighed, sacked, routed and delivered to the train at an expense to the publishers of millions of dollars? These are facts which should be known."

A revelation of the bookkeeping by which Mr. New arrived at these rather remarkable figures would interest. There is no field offering greater opportunities for error, for easy throwing of sums here and there, than that of cost accounting. —Grand Rapids Press.

Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Charlevoix people. Profit by this Charlevoix resident's experience:

Mrs. H. H. Eales, 110 Robinson St., says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I tried to do anything around the house that required stooping, cutting pains darted across my kidneys. Then as time passed, my eyes were blurred with little, flickering specks. At first my kidneys were weak and then they became sluggish and failed to act often enough. Two boxes of Doan's Pills were all I needed to rid me of the trouble."

Acid Phosphate on Wheat Is Favored

Mixing With Limestone Involves Serious Danger.

Since acid phosphate on wheat is gaining wider use and with all spreading of limestone on wheat ground being common practice, the question has often been asked, whether one might not mix the limestone and acid phosphate and apply these two soil treatments at the same time.

Though labor might be saved by mixing, such a practice involves serious danger. Laboratory experiments as well as field results show that, when mixed with limestone, the soluble phosphorus reverts or changes to an insoluble form and its beneficial effects are largely lost. This change goes on more rapidly as the amount of limestone in proportion to the phosphate becomes greater. So, where one ton of stone is mixed with only one hundred pounds of phosphate—which is about the common ratio of application—the loss of soluble phosphate is rapid.

Rather than apply the two in a mixture, the limestone can be spread after plowing and worked into the soil during preparation of the seedbed. When this is done early, as is commonly recommended, and the phosphate put on with the wheat seeding, the time between the applications is sufficient to let the lime act partly on the soil, and the chance for intimate mixture of lime and phosphate becomes so small that the danger is negligible. Even when the lime goes on just shortly before seeding there is little danger as long as it is worked into the soil ahead of the phosphate.

In applying these soil treatments it is well to remember that any method of handling them which prohibits their intimate mixing avoids the danger of reverting the phosphate and losing the usual profit from its use.

Keeping Seed Potatoes to Prevent Sprouting

Potatoes kept for seed should not be allowed to grow long white sprouts. Such sprouts can be broken off and new sprouts will come; but the potato that must feed the new plant until it gets a root system of its own will be greatly weakened by long sprouts. To prevent this undesirable sprouting keep the potatoes at a temperature of 35 or 40 degrees and treat the seed early for scab, then as planting time arrives spread them in the light where they will grow short strong sprouts. These sprouts are not disturbed by planting, nor killed by the formaldehyde treatment, having been previously treated. They grow fast when planted, for the seed has not been weakened.

Reason for Damp Houses

Many poultry houses are damp because the ground on which they stand is not well drained. This is probably the most common cause of dampness and one that is most easily corrected. A small job of tiling may do the work. The tile should be laid clear around the house and a connecting line or two under it. With plenty of fall and a clear outlet such a job will effectively remove the cause of excess moisture, unless the house is situated in too low a place, in which case it should be moved to higher ground.

Winter Feed for Bees

For winter food bees need a good quality of honey, which is just as free as possible of indigestible waste matter. During prolonged cold spells they may be confined to the hive for weeks at a time when they are unable to take flights and empty their intestines of accumulated waste matter. Honeydew honey and other low grade honeys are unfit as winter food for bees. If the stores are faulty or insufficient a sirup of clean granulated cane sugar should be fed to the colony in the fall.

Tourists Repay Canada for Cost of Good Roads

Canada has spent $191,000 in building good roads in the last five years, according to John B. Harkin, Dominion commissioner of parks.

"The Dominion has received $118,000,000 in revenue from foreign tourist traffic in the same period," Mr. Harkin said. "Improvement of highways has been a big factor in the development of Canada's touring trade. The Dominion knows it is not spending money on roads, but merely investing it. Good roads mean general prosperity. They save farmers millions of dollars in hauling costs annually."

Good Road Hints

The annual highway expenditures are approximately $1,000,000,000.

The famous old Roman road, Via Appia, is 2,000 years old, and is still in a marvelously good state of repair.

In the last 13 years investments in automobiles have increased about 2,700 per cent and highway expenditures have in the same time increased about 600 per cent.

• • •

It is believed that the states in co-operation with the federal authorities should work out some system whereby more of the highway appropriations may be utilized in constructing farm-to-market roads.

Good roads, canals and navigable rivers by diminishing the expense of carriage, put the remote parts of a country nearly on a level with those in the neighborhood of a town; they are, upon that account, the greatest of all improvements.—Adam Smith.

More and more good roads and better motor cars are making touring one of the favorite American pastimes.

It is felt that in order to increase the efficiency of motor truck transportation federal aid will have to be extended to the farm-to-market roads.

Remains of the first recorded roads are still in existence. They were built by the Assyrian empire about 1900 B. C., and like the spokes in a wheel, radiated from Babylon to the corners of the empire.

E. C. CHEW OF BAY TOWNSHIP IS DEAD

Prominent Farmer is Taken at Close of Long Illness

E. C. Chew, prominent farmer and supervisor of Bay township, died last Sunday at his home four miles west of Boyne City on the old main road, between Boyne City and Horton Bay, at the close of a long period of declining health, arterio sclerosis being the cause of his death.

Mr. Chew, who was born in Darke county, Ohio, in 1856, came to this county 45 years ago. He was married to Miss Minnie Safford of Horton Bay 41 years ago and four children were born to them of whom a daughter, Mrs. Harry Fitzpatrick, of Boyne City, only survives. He also leaves four brothers and two sister, and a large number of nephews and nieces, among whom are numbered Jacob and M. K. Chew of this county.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the home of the deceased, Rev. Miller of Boyne City officiating with members of the Odd Fellow and Masonic lodges of which the deceased was a member, acting as pall bearers. Interment was made in Evangeline cemetery.

SOME EXCITEMENT, ANYHOW

ROBBERIES, ESCAPES AND HOOTCH RAIDS

Mid-Winter Monotony is Broken by Episodes of Human Depravity

In the midst of the general depression and extreme quiet enforced by the recent rigorous weather, some little excitement has developed, though not of a character that can be recommended to our citizens as an antidote for winter monotony.

To begin with, James Wyers' cigar store was entered early Christmss morning and $31.00 abstracted from the till. The robber evidently had "fixed" the door lock in order to gain access to the store. He also rummaged in the safe, but the money drawer was locked and he did not take the trouble to go any further. Jim thinks he knows who it is but there is no definite clue as yet.

Episode number two is the thrilling (?) escape of two gentlemen incarcerated in the county bastile who were let out in the jail yard to sift ashes and took French leave. The sheriff brought one of them back, and the other, whose time was up in a day or two anyway and who is described as being a trifle "balmy in the bean" has not as yet been located.

Number three is the arrest on a charge of larceny of a certain young local gent., who has bound over to the circuit court and instructed to procure bail in the amount of $500. Failing in this, he will become the guest of the county over New Year's and then some.

Number four in our little gallery of horrors is the discovery by the authorities of Boyne City this morning of 40 quarts of Scotch, which were promptly arrested and brought together with their guardian, one, John Melano, by name (on whose truck they were found near the B. C. G. & A. depot), to this city where the lock was turned on them. This is serious. It may be necessary to draw a cordon of armed guards around the court house as soon as this reaches the eye of the public.

DEATH PENALTY AGAIN SOUGHT

BILL WILL BE INTRODUCED IN 1925 LEGISLATURE

Nearly Three-Quarters of a Century Since Capital Punishment was Abolished in State

Advocates and opponents of a bill to restore capital punishment in Michigan for first degree homicide are collecting material for another contest to be waged in the legislative session that starts January 7.

It is nearly three-quarters of a century since capital punishment was abolished in the state. Four or five times futile efforts have been made in legislative sessions to revive the death penalty. It was done in the 1921 session and again in 1923.

The capital punishment bill, it is said, will be reintroduced early in the 1925 session. It is not yet certain who will introduce it. One of the leaders in opposition to restoration of the death penalty is Senator-elect Howard F. Baxter, of Grand Rapids, who, as a member of the house at the 1923 session, contributed to its defeat at that time. Senator Baxter stresses the argument used effectively every time the bill has appeared in the legislature that capital punishment in the states where it is the law is not a deterent to homicide because only a very small percentage of first degree slayers go to the scaffold or the electric chair, and so the purposes of the law are not attained.

At his request Commissioner Fred E. Jannette, of the state pardon and parole division, has compiled statistics showing the number of lifers committed to the Michigan state prison at Jackson, the Marquette prison, the Michigan reformatory at Ionia and the Detroit house of correction since 1848, when life imprisonment for first degree homicide was decreed by the legislature to be the penalty, what disposition has been made of them, and some other data.

These statistics, Senator Baxter reasons, prove that, contrary to a general impression that only a comparatively small number are held in the prison until the end of their lives—the large majority having their sentences commuted or being pardoned the official records proved that only about 32 per cent are so favored. Many of this 32 per cent have their sentences commuted upon representation by the trial judge and the prosecuting attorney that their crimes were manslaughter or less than first degree homicide for which the penalty is less than life. Judge and prosecutors sometimes reach this conclusion after the trial.

Here are statistics the pardon and parole division have compiled which will be used when the capital punishment bill comes up for consideration in the 1925 legislative session:

Number of lifers committed to Jackson since the death penalty was ended to December 1, 1924, 532; to Marquette, 258; to the Detroit house of correction, 19; to Ionia, 1; total, 810.

The disposition of these 810 lifers was as follows: died in prison, 107; transferred to the hospital for criminal insane, 67; transferred to other institutions, that is other prisons than the one to which they were sentenced, 40; escaped and not recaptured, 13; released for new trial and not returned, 40; deported, 2; received from other institutions, 40; disposition not shown by the old records, 12; number pardoned or whose sentences were commuted, 266; still serving, 299.

From Jackson 43, mostly women lifers, were transferred to the Detroit house of correction. Under the statutes the courts sentence women lifers to Jackson, but they have never been received there, being taken directly after sentence to the Detroit prison, where the state pays for their keep at the rate fixed by the legislature in the act creating the Detroit house of correction, which is $1 a week. Commissioner Jannette says $1 a week is the rate the state pays for the keep of each of the 78 women prisoners, including lifers, who are classed as state prisoners.

The crimes for which the 810 lifers were committed are: First degree slaying, 627; second degree slaying, 27; assault with intent to kill, 38; crimes against women, 70; armed robbery, 19; arson, nine; train wrecking, 2; burglary while armed, 6; bank robbery, 1; miscellaneous crimes, 11.

In the first year, 1848, that life instead of capital punishment was the highest penalty that could be inflicted by a Michigan court, three offenders were given the maximum. In 1849-50 there were nine sentenced for life. During the succeeding 15 years, the highest number sentenced in any one year for life was in 1854. The number that year was six. During each of six of these 15 years the number given life was two. From 1861 to the end of '65, which included the Civil war period, the total number was 13. Yet, in 1866, the year following the close of the Civil war, the number was 16. It can only be conjectured at this time what was the reason for this large increase in 1866, and the conjecture is that a crime wave followed the war.

In 1867 the number of lifers committed dropped to three. From 1868 to '83, the highest number in any one year was eight. In '83 it was three; the year following, 12; then, in 1885, down to seven, and in '86 up to 18. In 1891 it was 12, and the folluwing year but one. Yet, in '93, when a panic struck the country 15 went up for life. The numbers committed for life in the succeeding years were:

In 1894, 7; 1895, 12; 1896, six; 1897, 16; 1898, 4; 1899, 8; 1900, 4; 1901, 9; 1902, 10; 1903, 14; 1904, 18; 1905, 12; 1906, 12; 1907, 15; 1908, 13; 1909, 15; 1910, 14; 1911, 16; 1912, 17; 1913, 15; 1914, 20; 1915, 17; 1916, 20; 1917, 22; 1918, 25; 1919, 31; 1920, 32; 1921, 65; 1922, 42; 1923, 29; to December 1, 1924, 22.

shores of which it is situated is a land-locked bay of Pine Lake, giving protected water in all weather. The original dock used by the Von Platen company is still standing and will be rebuilt to suit the needs of the cement business, which, it is stated, will entail but a nominal expense.

The deposit of raw limestone which will be used by the new concern in its operations is comprised in a six mile strip of Lake Michigan border land, formerly known as the Nash property, lying between the Norwood dock and a point about opposite Fisherman's Island, about half way between Charlevoix and Norwood. It contains 1,700 acres, a large portion of which is limestone located near the shore of the lake and admitting of easy transportation to the plant by water route.

One of the best shale deposits in the state of Michigan is located within one mile of the plant site and is owned by the Boyne City Portland Cement company, which is thus assured of an unlimited supply of this material, economically quarried and transported, which gives the Boyne City concern a decided advantage over many of their competitors, who must bring their shale from a considerable distance.

All the vast stores of present available knowledge about the cement industry will be drawn on in the construction of the plant and its operation to make it as highly efficient as is humanly possible. The so-called "wet" process will be employed in connection with the utilization of waste heat as applied to boilers in the power plant. This will not only simplify operation methods and reduce cost of manufacture, but also will insure absolute uniformity in the quality of the product, a point which is immensely important to the consumer. It will also eliminate the undesirable "dust" feature of the old style dry process, with its resultant loss.

As regards transportation facilities, the new plant will be exceptionally favorably located. A large portion of its product can be shipped by water, which is considered as the most economical method of transportation for low valued cummodities. The plant will also have railroad connections with the Pennsylvania system, the Michigan Central and the Detroit & Mackinac, through the B. C. G. & A., which intersects all these systems.

Furthermore, the grade of raw materials in deposit in this region is of the very highest, having been tested repeatedly by the state's geologists and pronounced A-1, especially the lime rock which tests almost pure calcium, the latter being the element on which the adhesive quality of the cement mainly depends. This is the cream of lime producing districts of a state which has long been recognized as a leader among cement manufacturing regions and which numbers many successful companies within its borders.

This is truly the "Cement Age." The reports of the United States geological survey show a large and constant growth, year by year, in the demand for Portland cement. The average production for the ten year period from 1872 to 1882 was 9,000 barrels per year—the production for the year 1924 alone is estimated at 150,000,000 barrels. Prospects for the success of the new company, under its able management, are therefure most excellent.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 4th

10:30 a. m., worship. Pastor will preach subject "The Value of Prayer in One's Life." Put into your New Year's resolutions the revival within yourself of regular, sincere and earnest prayer—the family prayer, secret prayer and the prayer meeting.

12 o'clock Sunday school: This quarter continues studies in the life of Christ. The boys of our school throw out a challenge to the girls and to the adults. One class of boys seventeen in number still holds the banner for attendance. Have you figured out what it would mean if every class had as many as that in attendance? Mothers need not hesitate about sending the little unes to Sunday school. We will have the rooms warm for them.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. The studies being used are "Preparatory Lessons for Church Membership." Youth is the time to get these lessons. Allow your buys and girls to come tu these meetings.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. This good live bunch of young folks want others to mingle with them in their meeting. Thirty-five came together last Sunday. The boys were well represented. This is a religious meeting, but we have social gatherings at other times.

7:00 p. m. evening worship. We give the evangelistic emphasis. Be free to come into our services and take some active part in them.

There will be no prayer meeting this week. The Watch Night on Wednesday takes its place.

On the 8th inst. the prayer meeting will take the form of a church family night. We will meet at the supper for the evening meal after which we will hold family worship, singing the old hymns. We will hold the official board and Sunday school board, and receive reports from the various societies uf the church regarding their prospected work for the new year. Remember the date—January 8.

Read the bible through this year. Note—read three chapters every week day and five every Sunday and you will read the bible through this year.

This is the new year's motto of action:

Hear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. Gal. 6:2.

Give, and it shall be given unto you good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over.—Luke 6:38.

Make to your selves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness: that, when ye fail, they may receive you unto everlasting habitations. Luke 16:9.

But who hath this worlds goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? 1. Jno. 3:17.

For the people had a mind to work. Neh. 4:6.

In what place therefor ye hear the sound of a trumpet, resort ye thither unto us: our God shall light for us. Neh. 5:20.

Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself the peculiar people, zealous of good works? Titus 2-14.

Wool socks, mittens, gloves, underwear, pants, shirts. Wear wool and keep warm and healthy. We have your size. Benj. Brown.—Ad. 41-tf.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

10:30 a. m., January 4, 1925, call to worship. Members of the church and friends who are moved by the spirit of christian fellowship and love for God are called together to celebrate the Lord's supper. The late pastor, Rev. Clarence W. Long, will conduct the service and the chorus choir will sing. A special program of music is being arranged.

The church school meets at 12 m., A. F. Bridge, superintendent.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meets for bible study and worship at 6:00 p. m., Sunday.

No Sunday evening preaching service.

CHAPTER I.

When John Stuart Webster, mining engineer and kicker-upper-dust on distant trails, flagged the S. P., L. A. & S. L. Limited at a blistered board station in Death valley, California, he had definitely resolved to do certain things. To begin, he would invade the dining car at the first call to dinner and order approximately twenty dollars' worth of ham and eggs, which provender is, as all who know will certify, the pinnacle of epicurean delight to an old sour-dough coming out of the wilderness with a healthy bankroll and a healthier appetite.

Following the ham and eggs, Mr. Webster planned to saturate himself from soul to vermiform appendix with nicotine, which he purposed obtaining from tobacco with nicotine in it. It was a week since he had smoked anything with an odor even remotely like tobacco, for the August temperature in Death valley is no respecter of moisture in any man or his tobacco. Upon arrival in Salt Lake City his spree would really begin. Webster designed chartering a taxicab and proceeding forthwith to a hotel where he would engage a sunny room with a bath, fill the bathtub, climb blithely in and soak for two hours at least, for it was nearly eight months since he had had a regular bath and he purposed making the most of his opportunity. His long-drawn ablutions at length over, he would don a silken dressing-gown and slippers, order up a barber and proceed to part with enough hair and whiskers to upholster an automobile, and upon the completion of his torsorial adventures he would encase his person in a suit of mauve-colored silk pajamas, climb into bed and stay there for forty-eight hours, merely waiting long enough to take another bath, order up periodical consignments of ham and eggs, and incidentally, make certain that a friendly side-winder or chuckwalla hadn't crawled under the blanket with him.

So much for John Stuart Webster's plans. Now for the gentleman himself. No one—not even the Pullman porter, shrewd judge of mankind that he was—could have discerned in the chrysalis that dagged the Limited the butterfly of fashion that was to be. As the ebony George raised the vestibule platform, opened the car door and looked out, he had no confidence in the lean, sun-baked big man standing by the train. Plainly the fellow was not a first-class passenger but a wandering prospector, for he was dog-dirty, a ruin of rags and hairy as a tarantula. The only clean thing about him was a heavy-calibered automatic pistol of the army type, swinging at his hip.

"Day coach on' tourist up in front," the knight of the whiskbroom announced in disapproving tones and started to close down the platform.

"So I perceived," John Stuart Webster replied blandly. "I also observed that you failed to employ the title 'sir' when addressing a white man. Put that platform back and hop out here with your little stool, you saddle-colored son of Senegambia, or I'll make you a hard porter to catch."

"Yassah, yassah!" the porter sputtered, and obeyed instantly. Mr. Webster handed him a disreputable-looking suitcase and stepped aboard in state, only to be informed that there wasn't a vacant first-class berth on the train.

"Yes, I know I'm dirty," the late arrival announced cheerfully, "but still, as Bobby Burns once remarked, 'a man's a man for a' that'—and I'm not unsanitary."

"I'm very sorry," the conductor replied perfunctorily and endeavored to pass on, but Webster secured a firm grip on his lapel and frustrated the escape.

"You're not sorry," the ragged wanderer declared, "not one little bit. You're only apprehensive. However, you needn't be. There is no wild life on me, brother, I assure you."

"But I tell you, the train is full up. You'll have to roost in the day coach or the tourist. I'm very sorry——"

"Nevertheless, despite your deep grief, something tells me you're spoofing, so while I must, of necessity, accept your suggestion, said acceptance will be but temporary. In about two hours, young fellow, you're going to make the alarming discovery that you have bats in your belfry." And with a whiskery grin which, under the circumstances, was charming in its absolute freedom from malice, Mr. Webster departed for the day coach.

Two hours later the conductor found him in the aforementioned day coach, engaged in a mild game of poker with a mule-skinner, a Chinaman, an aged prospector, and a half-breed Indian, and waited until Mr. Webster, on a bob-tailed flush, bluffed the Chinaman out of a dollar-and-a-half pot.

"Are you Mr. John S. Webster?"

"Your assumption that I am that person is so eminently correct that it would be a waste of time for me to dispute it," Webster replied quizzically. "However, just to prove that you're not the only clairvoyant on this train, I'm going to tell you something about yourself. In your pocket you have a telegram; it is from Chicago, where your pay-check originates; it is short, sweet and comprehensive, containing an order which you are going to obey. It reads somewhat as follows:

"'My friend, John S. Webster, wires me from Blank that he boarded train at Blank and was refused first-class accommodation because he looked like a bum. Give him the best you have in stock, if you have to throw somebody off the train to accommodate him.' Signed, 'Sweeney.'

"Do I hit the target?"

The conductor nodded. "You win, Mr. Webster," he admitted.

"Occasionally I lose, old timer. Well?"

"No offense, Mr. Webster, no offense, I can let you have a stateroom——"

"That's trading talk. I'll take it."

The conductor gave him his receipt and led him back to the stateroom in the observation car. At the door Webster handed him a five-dollar bill. "For you, son," he said gently, "just to take the sting out of what I'm about to tell you. Now that I possess your receipt and know that ten men and a boy cannot take it away from me, I'm going to tell you who Sweeney is."

"Who is he?" the conductor queried. Already he suspected he had been outgeneraled.

"Sweeney," said Mr. Webster, "is the chief clerk in one of Chicago's most pretentious hotels and a young man who can find all the tangles of a situation without working it out in logarithms. I wired him the details of my predicament; he heard the Macedonian cry and kicked in. Neat, is it not?"

The conductor grinned. "I hate to take your money," he declared.

"Don't. Just at present I'm very flush. Yes, sir, I'm as prosperous as a yearling burro up to his ears in alfalfa and the only use I have ever found for money is to make other people happy with it, thereby getting some enjoyment out of it myself. When I'm broke I'll make some more."

And Mr. Webster retired to his hard-won sanctuary, where he removed as much alkali and perspiration as he could, carded his long hair and whiskers, manicured his finger nails with a jack-knife, changed his shirt, provided five minutes of industry for George, with his whiskbroom and brush, and sat himself patiently to await the first call to dinner.

Presently a pink-jowled, well curried, flashily dressed big man, of about Webster's age, passed in the corridor, going toward the head of the train. An instant later a woman's voice said very distinctly:

"I do not know you, sir; I do not wish to know you, and it is loathsome of you to persist in addressing me. If you do not stop your annoying attentions, I shall call the conductor."

"Ah! Beauty in distress," John Stuart Webster soliloquized. "I look so much like an Angora goat I might as well butt in." He stepped to the door of his stateroom. A girl stood in the vestibule, confronting the man who had just passed Webster's door. Webster bowed.

"Madame, or mademoiselle, as the case may be," he said, "unlike this other male biped, my sole purpose in presuming to address you is to suggest that there is not the slightest necessity for taking this matter up with the conductor. I am here and very much at your service."

The girl turned—and John Stuart Webster's heart flopped twice in rapid succession, like a trout newly grassed. She was as lovely as a royal flush. Her starry glance began at his miner's boots, traveled up his old solled, wide-cord trousers, over his light blue chambray shirt and found the man behind the whiskers. She favored him with a quick, curious scrutiny and a grave, sweet smile. "Thank you so much, sir," she answered, and passed down the corridor to the observation car.

"Well, old-timer," Webster greeted the fellow who had been annoying her, "how about you? What do you think we ought to do about this little affair?"

"The sensible thing would be to do—nothing. You might start something you couldn't finish."

"That's a dare," Webster declared brightly, "and wasn't it the immortal Huckleberry Finn who remarked that anybody that'd take a dare would suck eggs and steal sheep?" He was silent a few seconds, appraising his man. "I suppose you commenced operations by moving into her section and asking if she would like to have the window open and enjoy the fresh air. She resented you, but being a persistent devil, you followed her into the observation car, and in all probability you aged her at luncheon and ruined her appetite. And just now, when you met her in this vestibule, you doubtless jostled her, begged her pardon and without waiting to be introduced asked her to have dinner with you this evening."

"Well?" the fellow echoed belligerently.

"It's all bad form. You shouldn't try to make a mash on a lady. I don't know who she is, of course, but she's not common and for the sake of the mother that bore me I always respect and protect a good woman and white——— out of those that do not."

He reached inside his stateroom and pressed the bell. The porter arrived on the run.

"George," said Mr. Webster, "in a few minutes we're due at Smithville. If my memory serves me aright, we stop five minutes for water and orders."

"Yassah."

"Remain right here and let me off as soon as the train comes to a stop."

When the train slid to a grinding halt, and the porter opened the car door, Webster pointed. "Out!" he said. "This is no nice place to pull off a scrap."

"See here, neighbor, I don't want to have any trouble with you——"

"I know it. All the same, you're going to have it—or come with me to that young lady and beg her pardon."

"All right. I'll apologize," and he started forward as if to pass Webster in the vestibule, on his way to the observation car, whither the subject of his annoying attention had gone. Two steps brought him within striking distance of his enemy, and before Webster could dodge, a sizzling right-handed blow landed on his jaw and set him back on his haunches in the vestibule.

It was almost a knockout—almost, but not quite. As Webster's body struck the floor the big automatic came out of the holster; swinging in a weak circle, it covered the other.

"That was a daisy," Webster mumbled, "If you move before my head clears, I'll put four bullets into you before you reach the corridor."

He waited about a minute, then with the gun he pointed to the car door and the masher stepped out. Webster handed the porter his gun and followed; two minutes later he returned, dragging his assailant by the collar. Up the steps he jerked the big battered hulk and tossed it in the corner of the vestibule, just as the girl came through the car, making for the diner up ahead.

Again she favored him with that calm, grave, yet vitally interested gaze, nodded appreciatively, made as if to pass on, changed her mind, and said

"You Are a Very Courtly Gentleman."

very gravely: "You are—a very courtly gentleman, sir."

He bowed. There was nothing else to do, nothing that he could say under the circumstances. To use his chivalry as a wedge to open an acquaintance never occurred to him—but his whiskers did occur to him. Hastily he backed into his stateroom and closed the door, presently he rose and surveyed himself critically in the small mirror over the washstand.

"No, Johnny," he murmured, "we can't go into the diner now. We're too blamed disreputable. We were bad enough before that big swine hung the shanty on our right eye, but whatever our physical and personal feelings, far be it from us to parade our iridescent orb in public. Besides, one look at that queen is enough to do us for the remainder of our natural life, and a second look, minus a proper introduction, would only drive us into a suicide's grave." He sighed, rang for the porter and told him to send a waiter for his order, since he would fain break his fast in the privacy of his stateroom. And when the waiter came for the order, such was Mr. Webster's mental perturbation that ham and eggs were furthest from his thoughts. He ordered a steak with French fried potatoes.

* * * * * * *

John Stuart Webster passed a restless night. Sleep came to him in hourly installments, from which he would rouse to ask himself whether it was worth while to continue to go through the motions of living, or might at the next station, seek a lonely and unfrequented spot and there surrender to outrageous fortune. It was altogether damnable. In a careless moment, Fate had accorded him a glimpse of the only woman he had ever met and desired to meet again—for Webster was essentially a man's man, and his profession and environment had militated against his opportunities for meeting extraordinary women; and extraordinary women were the only kind that could hope to challenge his serious attention. Fate had accorded him a signal opportunity for knighty combat in the service of this extraordinary woman, and in the absence of a formal introduction, what man could desire a finer opportunity for getting acquainted! If only their meeting had not been the latest two weeks, ten days, a week! Clean of his ugly covering of rags and whiskers, the butterfly Webster would not have hesitated one brief instant to inform himself of that young lady's address, following his summary disposal of her tormentor.

But in all things there is a limit, and John Stuart Webster's right eye constituted a deadline beyond which as a gentleman, he dared not venture; so with a heavy heart he bowed to the inevitable. Brilliant and mysterious as a meteorite she had flashed once across his horizon and was gone.

In the privacy of his stateroom Webster had ham and eggs for breakfast. He was lighting his second cigar when the porter knocked and entered with an envelope.

"Lady in the observation-car asked me to deliver this to you, sah," he announced importantly.

It was a note, freshly written on the train stationery. Webster read:

"The distressed lady desires to thank the gentleman in stateroom A for his chivalry of yesterday. She is profoundly sorry that in her service the gentleman in stateroom A was so unfortunate as to acquire a red eye with blue trimmings."

John Stuart Webster swore his mightiest oath, "By the twelve apostles, Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James, Jude and Simon, and not omitting Judas Iscariot, the scaly scoundrel who betrayed his Lord and Master!" He scorched through an old waller until he discovered a fairly clean, professional card, across the bottom of which he wrote, "Thank you. J. S. W." and sent it to the no-longer-distressed lady.

"The most signal adventure of my life is now over," he soliloquized and turned to his cigar, "For the sake of my self-respect, I had to let her know I'm not a hobo! And now to the task of framing up a scheme for future acquaintance. I must learn her name and destination; so as a preliminary I'll interview the train conductor."

He did and under the ameliorating influence of a five-dollar bill the conductor lent a respectful ear to the Websterian message.

"In Car Seven," he began, "there is a young lady. I do not know what section she occupies neither do I know her name and destination. I only know what she looks like."

The conductor nodded. "And you want to ascertain her name and destination?"

"I do."

"All right. I have the unused portion of her transportation to return to her before we hit Salt Lake; her name is on the ticket and the ticket indicates her destination. I'll make a mental note of both as soon as I've identified her ticket."

A few hours later the conductor came to Webster's stateroom and handed him a card upon which was written:

"Dolores Rhey. From Los Angeles via San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake, to Salt Lake City, Denver & Rio Grande to Denver, Burlington to St. Louis, Illinois Central to New Orleans. Stopover at Denver."

John Stuart Webster studied the name after the conductor withdrew. "That's a Spanish name," he soliloquized, "but for all that, she's not a parakeet. All things considered, I guess I'll take a chance and investigate.

CHAPTER II.

Webster's dreams of bliss had, with very slight variations, come true as per schedule. In Salt Lake City he abandoned the beefsteak on his damaged eye for two hushmesslike leeches, which quickly reduced the nocturne effect around his orb, enabling him, the third day, to saunter forth among his fellowmen. By the end of the week he was a being reincarnated, and so he packed a huge new wardrobe-trunk with his latest purchases and journeyed on to Denver. Coincident with his arrival there, we again take up the thread of our story.

One hour after his trunk arrived the gentleman from Death Valley might have been observed standing before a cheval glass looking long and earnestly at the reflection of his middle-aged person, the while he marked the fit of his new raiment. John Stuart Webster was all dressed up for the first time in three long, labor-ridden years, and was tremendously glad of it. He lighted a cigar and stepped forth into Seventeenth street, along which he strolled until he came to a certain building into the elevator of which he entered and was whisked to the twelfth floor, where he alighted and found himself before a wide portal which bore in gold letters the words: "Engineers' Club."

The Engineers' club was the closest approach to a home that John Stuart Webster had known for twenty years, and save for the slight fish of kalsomining which Father Time had done on the edges of the close-cropped Webasterian mustache, the returned prodigal might have stepped out of the club but yesterday. He would not have taken the short end of a modest bet that even a fresh log had been placed on the fire or that the domino-players over against the wall had won or lost a drink or two and then resumed playing—although perchance there were a few more gray hairs in the thickly thatched head of old Neddy Jerome, sitting in his favorite seat by the window and hurling the cards in his eternal game of solitaire, in blissful ignorance that John Stuart Webster stood within the portals of home and awaited the fatted calf.

Webster struck the upholstery of an adjacent chair a terrific blow with his stick—the effect of which was to cause everybody in the room to start and

VESSELS BATTLE WITH ICE

CAR FERRIES ARE HAVING A TOUGH TIME

Lines Manage to Keep Running, However, Though at Great Expense

The storm of the past ten days has taken its toll of shipping on the lakes as well as wreaking havoc on the land.

Pere Marquette car ferry No. 19, which went hard aground off Grand Haven harbor last Friday, on a sandbar off the harbor entrance, was released shortly before 4 o'clock, Monday afternoon. Two other car ferries, the Milwaukee and the Grand Haven of the Grand Trunk line, worked on the stranded vessel since early Monday morning. The two ferries broke a way through the ice around the imprisoned "19," churned up the sand with their propellers and put lines aboard. Then both vessels heaved ahead and pulled their unfortunate sister off the bar. The "19" had 20 freight cars aboard of her.

The steamer F. B. Squire, last of the grain fleet en route from Fort William, Ont., for Buffalo, with the last cargo of grain to pass through the Soo locks this season, had to call on the steamer Essex of the Walkerville and Detroit ferry company to help her break a channel through the ice. The tug, A. C. Harding of the Great Lakes Towing company spent three days, trying to break channel fast enough through the wind blown ice in the mouth of the lake to keep it open, but without avail.

On December 26th, the car ferry, Chief Wawatam, held fast in the ice for several hours off St. Ignace, freed herself and made port. A field of ice, 20 feet deep in places, was reported moving through the straits.

Farther south, conditions are better. Frankfort harbor is open and Ann Arbor R. R. Co. car ferries are making regular trips across Lake Michigan. Car ferry No. 7 will not be launched until December 31st (today) at Manitowoc.

At Holland, the Goodrich line steamer, Wisconsin, held by ice at the mouth of Black Lake channel since Sunday morning, was freed through the efforts of the Alabama of the same line and proceeded on her way to Chicago on Monday.

No marine disasters, resulting in loss of life on the lakes during the storm period, have as yet been reported.

Many are now forming the splendid New Year's resolution never to spend so much Christmas money again until next Christmas.

It is very seldom that a curly-haired woman is sued for divorce, according to a court authority. Evidently the curling iron is an even better weapon of intimidation than the rolling pin.

A witness in a divorce suit at Bessemer testified that the man at one time offered to sell his wife for $1,000; but he may have been trying to raise money on a mortgage, to buy her a fur coat.

A husband at Houghton is accused of going into a fit of temper one morning and smashing the cook stove with an axe. Others completely lose all self control and hurl the cold buckwheat cakes right back at it.

About half the heat from an ordinary furnace goes up the chimney, experiment shows. In that case, it might have been a good idea for Santa Claus to slip in a ton or two of something through the coal cellar window.

The first intimation that a Sault Ste. Marie woman had been married for two years came last week when she was granted a divorce. It only shows that, sooner or later, some evidence of a domestic life is bound to leak out.

"Aristocrats of the egg world will be entered in competition in the M. A. C. show ring in the first annual egg show February 2," says an item from Lansing. There is nothing that arouses our sporting blood so quickly as the sight of a fine spanking team of them on a piece of toast.

Although reports are coming in at a remarkable early date that ice on the lakes is four and five inches thick, we don't think it necessary for all those skaters to drop their entire bodies through, just to prove it.

The owner of a mule at Kalamazoo, aided by the police, spent two hours one day last week trying to get the animal to stand on its feet. Those who know how long a mule can keep its feet in the air will not be surprised.

It was brought out at a meeting of the board of education in Flint that a born in the high school band has 17 dents because there is no case in which to keep it. But we didn't suppose any one ever attacked a horn when it was resting, anyway.

EDWARD WILLIAMS PASSES ON

FORMER LOCAL DRUGGIST DIES IN FLORIDA

Worked Here for Vern Cook, Later Opening His Own Store In Chicago

Edward Williams, a former resident of this city, died at his home in Helen Lake, Florida, December 23, 1924.

Mr. Williams, who was 50 years old at the time of his death, was born on a farm near Ironton, September 8, 1874. He was a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and later graduated from the pharmacy department of the University of Chicago. While in this city he was employed in the drug establishment of Vern Cook. This was some 15 or 16 years ago and he will very likely be remembered by members of the older generation of our residents.

Mr. Williams was married in 1902 to Miss Emma Zepp of Chicago. To this union three children were born, one dying in infancy. He leaves a widow and a daughter, Charlotte, who was married last August to Lewis Palson, of Deland, Fla. Mrs. Williams and the surviving son, Edward, will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Palson in Deland for a time. Mrs. George McMulkin, of Ironton, is a sister of the deceased.

Mr. Williams owned a drug store on Spaulding avenue in Chicago for a number of years until the encroaching ravages of his malady, diabetes, forced him to retire. The family moved to Helen Lake in 1923, thinking that a change in climate would benefit his health, which, however, gradually failed until the end came last week.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge in Chicago and while in Charlevoix was an active member of the local M. E. church. He made many friends, carrying his religion and its principals all through life, doing good where he could, with a smile and a pleasant word for everyone.

The funeral and interment were conducted at Deland by the Masons of that city.

NOTED MICHIGAN LUMBERMAN DEAD

Godfrey von Platen Succumbs to Typhoid in Chicago

Godfrey von Platen, one of Michigan's best known lumbermen, died Christmas night at St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, of typhoid fever. He was taken ill in Iron Mountain, where he and his wife and son were on an inspection trip, looking over his large mills and timber holdings. About ten days after he was stricken, he was removed to Chicago. The funeral was held Saturday in Grand Rapids and the remains placed in a vault, from which they will later be removed for interment in Greenwood cemetery at Petoskey, in which later city the deceased had made his home for many years.

Mr. von Platen started in the lumber business at Advance, about three miles from Boyne City, and later built a mill in Boyne, developing one of the largest and most successful lumber operations in northern Michigan. A number of years ago, he moved to Grand Rapids, where he became president of the Widdicomb Furniture Company and a director of the Michigan Trust Company. The Boyne City mill was closed some years ago and the equipment moved to Iron Mountain, where Mr. von Platen had large timber holdings, as well as in Wisconsin and Oregon.

He was a member of the Petoskey Presbyterian church and a member of the various Masonic bodies of that city, enjoying a large circle of friends. He is survived by his wife and one son, Karl von Platen and a daughter, Mrs. Pauline Avery, of Grand Rapids.

Christmas Weather.

For Christmas the weather should be of that Pickwickian kind in which the grass is "crisp and frosty," the air has a "fine, dry, bracing coldness," and the day is one "that might induce a couple of elderly gentlemen in a lonely field to take off their great-coats and play at leapfrog in pure lightness of heart and gayety."—Youth's Companion.

BOYNE CEMENT MILL ASSURED

SECURITIES COMMISSION APPROVES ORGANIZATION

Site Is Von Platen Saw Mill Property, with Rail and Boat Facilities

Charlevoix county is to have a cemenf plant, this fact being attested by the recent action of the securities commission at Lansing, which has formally approved the plan of organization and granted permission for the development of the enterprise.

The site of the new plant is the Godfrey von Platen mill property and the initial capacity will be 2,500 barrels of cement per day. Provisions will be made for doubling this capacity should the need arise. The preliminary work is now under way and ground will be broken in the spring at the plant site and a railroad grade constructed to the shale beds on Vogel street.

F. B. Gerard is the general manager and chief engineer of the new company and has already taken up his residence in Boyne City. He is a man of wide experience, having been in the industry for over eighteen years and engaged during that period in the design and construction of several successful plants, such as the Iola Portland Cement company, Iola, Kansas; Burt Portland Cement company, Bellevue, Mich.; German-American Portland Cement company, La Salle, Ill.; Austin Bros., Cleveland, Ohio; Pilkington Bros., Throld, Ont., and St. Helen, Lancashire, England. He comes to his new work with high recommendations. He has been in and out of Boyne City for some weeks, familiarizing himself with conditions as they exist locally and perfecting plans for the approaching construction period which will follow the sale of the balance of the stock.

The name of the new concern is the Boyne City Portland Cement Company of Boyne City, Michigan, incorporated under the laws of this state. Its total authorized capital stock at the present time is $2,000,000, all common stock, of which 150,000 shares at $10.00 each are now being offered for sale. There will be no promotion stock. The trust fund depository for the company is the National Bank of Commerce, Boulevard Branch, Detroit, Mich.

The directors and officers of the new organization are all men of recognized probity, financial standing and experience in business affairs. They are W. H. White of Boyne City, president and chairman of the board; L. W. Siegel of Boyne City, secretary and treasurer; W. L. Martin of Boyne City; Hon. W. J. Pearson of Boyne Falls, and John Yuill, of Vanderbilt, Mich. Mr. Gerard is also a member of the board of directors. Mr. White is president of the White Brothers Lumber Company of Boyne and of the B. C. G. & A. R. R. Mr. Siegel is a well-known hardware merchant of Boyne and was formerly connected with the Charcoal Iron Company of America. Mr. Martin is secretary and treasurer of the Boyne City Lumbering Company. Mr. Pearson is a retired lumberman and state senator, now representing the 29th senatorial district of Michigan. Mr. Yuill is a successful merchant and lumberman.

The charter of the company authorizes it to conduct the business of manufacturing, selling and dealing in Portland cement; to quarry, mine screen and crush stone and lime rock; and to own and operate railroad or steamship lines in connection with the economical pursuit of their business.

The proceeds of the sale of stock, less selling expenae and necessary incidental expense, is to be deposited in a trust fund with the depository above meutioned until in the judgment of the directors a sufficient amount has been raised to assure the financing of the company before any building operations are commeneed or contracts entered into for the purchase of machinery.

The property on which the plant will be located was donated to the company and the harbor on the

WILL LOCAL RADIO BUGS COME TO THIS?

An Ashland, Wisconsin news dispatch says:

" 'Radio madness' has at last become manifest in this part of the state with the finding, Saturday, by two Indian police, of J. F. Hopkins, white woodsman, who claims that he can send and receive messages through the tips of his fingers.

Hopkins was found near Birch, about 30 miles east of Ashland, and brought to the Ashland county jail here. When he was taken into the jail he commented forcibly on the way in which the Indians had interfered with his receiving and broadcasting.

Offered food at the jail he said, 'Don't bother me now, can't you see I'm trying to get Buffalo? Ah! I've got it. Now go away and I'll eat as soon as I get through talking to them.' "

Take warning you local bugs. Colonel, Art, Charlie, Bob—hit the downy couch at the usual hour or some form of madness may afflict you.

PIONEER WOMAN IS DEAD

MRS. FRANCIS DUNLEVY PASSES AT AGE 70

Was the Mother of Eleven Children and Experienced Many Perils of the Early Days

Frank Left's tug, the Link, left this port Monday for Beaver Island, bearing the body of Mrs. Francis Dunlevy of St. James, which arrived here Tuesday evening, December 23rd, from Chicago, accompanied by three sons, two daughters, a sister and a brother of the deceased. The Link had made several ineffectual attempts to leave the harbor during the past week, but not until Monday were weather conditions safe for the trip.

Mrs. Dunlevy, who had been in poor health for the past year, left her home in St. James about three weeks ago for Chicago, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Earl Miller of this city. The trip was made for the purpose of seeking surgical relief, but Mrs. Dunlevy visited in Grand Rapids for a time before going on to the John B. Murphy Hospital, where she died on Monday of last week, three days after an operation for stomach obstruction had been performed. Blood poisoning setting in was the immediate cause of death. She was seventy years of age.

Mrs. Dunlevy, whose maiden name was Gallagher, was born in Ireland in 1854 and came to this country in infancy. While a resident of Beaver Island, she was married to Francis Dunlevy fifty years ago last February, and has lived on the island continuously since that time, where her charity and gracious hospitality has endeared her to many.

The deceased is survived by her husband and ten children: Dan, John and Joseph Dunlevy, of Chicago, and Francis Dunlevy of St. James; Mrs. J. C. O'Donnell of Escanaba; Mrs. Earl Miller, of Charlevoix; Miss Sadie Dunlavy, of Chicago, and Mrs. Frank Left, Mrs. Mike McCann and Mrs. Francis McCafferty of St. James. She also leaves three brothers, Owen Gallagher, of Grand Haven, Peter Gallagher, of Ludington, and Dominick Gallagher, of St. James, and three sisters, Mrs. Con McCauley, of Chicago, Mrs. Ellen O'Donnell, of Iron Mountain, and Mrs. Don Boyle, of St. James. A son died when a child.

The funeral will probably be held today (Wednesday) at Holy Cross church on the island, Rev. Fr. Leo McManmon officiating. A number of the relatives returned to St. James on the Link Monday. Those of the relatives who were able to come here for the funeral from out of town are Mrs. McCauley, Jack, Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dunlavy, Mr. and Mrs. John C. O'Donnell, Miss Sadie Dunlevy, Mrs. Ellen O'Donnell and Owen Gallagher.

Predicts Old Fashioned Winter

"Three months hard winter," says one of our local old-timers. He bases his statement on the moving weather and low temperatura December 20, 21 and 22. An old Indian told him 20 or 30 years ago to watch the weather after the sun crosses the line, and he says he never knew it to fail.

My New Year Prayer

From Mother's Magazine

I do not ask that either wealth or fame
Shall be my portion down life's troubled way;
I only ask that there be given me
The needed strength for work from day to day.

Just strength, that with the morning's fresh, sweet dawn
I may arise, and fully rest be,
Renewed my mind and body so that I
May do the waiting day's work cheerily;

The strength to meet the fretting little cares
And trials, so prone to vex, with sunny smile,
And grace to say the gentle, kindly word
To those I love and patient be the while;

The grace to let the hasty angry tone go by unheeded, and to ever be
So strong that in confusion and distress
I may be helpful, yet go quietly.

MISS PEG JOHNSON IS NOW MRS. FORD

Newlyweds Will Make Their Home in Grand Rapids

Miss Margaret Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Johnson of this city and former telephone operator at the local exchange, who has been working in Grand Rapids since early in the fall, sprung a considerable surprise on her many friends here when she returned last week to spend Christmas with her parents and announced herself as Mrs. Ford.

The weddiug took place on Monday, December 15th, at Grand Rapids, we are informed, where Mr. Ford has a position as body maker in the plant of the Fischer Body Corporation and where they will make their home. Mrs. Ford returned to Grand Rapids last Friday with the congratulations and best wishes of her Charlevoix friends.

WAITS SANG ON CHRISTMAS EVE

CHORUS CHOIR REVIVES OLD ENGLISH CUSTOM

Visits Hospital and Brings Christmas Cheer to the City's Shut-ins

On Christmas Eve an old English custom was revived in a delightful manner by the chorus choir of the Congregational church, under the leadership of their preceptor and organist, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham.

At half past seven a sleigh from Hooker's livery stable, carpeted with straw and equipped with a small parlor organ and a pole carrying a gasoline lamp to assist the singers in following their notes, aet out from the Oldham residence on Park avenue with fourteen members of the choir, Mrs. Oldham at the organ and Mr. Oldham directing the expedition. The first stop was made at the hospital, where the orgon was carried into tha hallway and the choir lined up around it to sing "The First Noel," "Silent Night" an anthem, "Arise and Shine" and a splendid hymn of praise, "Crown Him King of Kings." Mrs. Archie Livingston also sang as a solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," a program which was much appreciated hy the patients and their visiting relatives.

Then the party "entrained" again and visited the homes of several shut-ins and invalids on the south side where they repeated their carols, thence to the home of W. H. Miller, one of the wardens of the Congregational church, next to Fessenden's drug storo and then back to the church, where they went in and got warmed up before starting out for the north side. The bitter temperaturc, seriously hampered the organist, shortened the evening's program somewhat and all returned to the home of R. F. Sloan on State street, where a delicious oyster supper awaited the "waits" who did ample justice to the hospitality provided by their host and hostess.

On Christmas afternoon a fine program was rendered by the chorus choir at the church, including three anthems, a number of hymns, two solos by Mrs. Jack Supernaw, and solos by Mrs. Livingston and young William Fessenden, whose clear, boyish soprano delighted the audience. Rev. Long voiced an appreciation of the faithful work of the choir during the fall and winter months and the patient and self-sacrificing work of their leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Oldham.

Last Sunday was the Rev. Mr. Long's last official appearance as pastor of the local Congregational church. His plans for the future are not as yet definite and therefore cannot he announced. During his pastorate here, in our opinion, he has done most excellent work in putting his church on the map. He is distinctly a man among men; the type of minister who understands the needs and the aspirations of all classes of people and can the better meet them on their own ground. His going is a distinct loss to the community as it will be the gain of that in which he may next locate.

ALBERT WIDDIFIELD HONORED AT CHICAGO

Holds Three Journalistic Jobs at the University

The Courier received a visit last week from Albert Widdifield, last year's editor-in-chief of the Chanticleer, who has been visiting his parents here over the holidays.

Albert has just finished the first semester of his freshman year at the University of Chicago, and has already been made chairman of the Student Council, publicity manager of the freshman class and a member of the editorial staff of the university paper, The Daily Maroon. We'd call that going some!

He commends the present staff of the Chanticleer on their excellent work in getting out what he believes is a better publication than last year's. In behalf of the student staff and ourselves, thanks, old top, but we miss you, Widdy, just the same.

FOOD FISH ARE GROWING SCARCE

MICHIGAN FISHERMEN ALARMED OVER LAKE CONDITIONS

Claimed Industry Has Been Game of Take Everything and Put Nothing Back

The following article taken from the St. Ignace Enterprise may prove of interest to commercial fishermen of this section:

"Killing the goose that laid the golden egg" has been in vogue among the commercial fishermen of Michigan these many years part. Since the establishment of their industry dependent entirely upon the fish fertility of the Great Lakes, it has been a game of take everything and put nothing back, with the result that the great hauls of former years are no more.

Fishermen have become alarmed at the growing scarcity of food fish on their fishing grounds says the Detroit News. They have at stake millions in equipment and buildings. The future of the industry is seriously threatened. Many of the smaller operators have discontinued, being unable to make even a fair living. And so, when one of the largest of the operators suggests that the legislature enact a tonnage tax law to be levied upon the catch of the fishermen of the Great Lakes and the funds received to be used in restoring the fertility of these waters, a note of hopefulness is injected into the situation.

This suggestion coming as it does from William H. Wallace, chairman of the Michigan Conservation Commission, and owner of an extensive fishing industry covering the Saginaw Bay district, is not a new one. It was suggested two years ago but from a hostile legislature and an efficient fisherman's lobby against it. It was proposed to levy a tax ranging from $2.50 a ton on herring up to $13.00 a ton on whitefish. Based upon the total catch of 1922, this would have brought a fund of $53,000 into the state treasury for the operation and maintenance of fish hatcheries devoting their efforts entirely to the propagation and planting of food fish in the commercial fishing waters. This amount would take care of at least five hatcheries and under efficient administration within three years would show results in increased stock of our edible fish.

Why there should be any opposition to the plan upon the part of any commercial fisherman is a mystery. They surely recognize the futility of trying to continue to harvest without sowing any seed.

SANTA CLAUS WAS STALLED IN SNOW

But Sunday School Kids Got Their Candy Just the Same

One of the best programs ever given by the Congregationol Sunday school was presented on Christmas eve in the form of a pageant, portraying the Nativity in a series of tableaux with appropriate songs and scripture messages interspersed.

Santa Claus was delayed by the bad roads, but, fortunately, had sent the boxes of candy on ahead and there was one for every child in the large audience.

KING BOREAS' COHORTS FLED

STORM'S FURY ABATES AS NEW YEAR NEARS

Sub-Zero Temperatures Started on Up-grade Monday and Peace Now Reigns

Old King Boreas, familiarly styled Jack Frost, marshaled his hosts of ice and snow and wind, his frigid shock troops of the north, and descended upon us for a second time on Christmas Day. In fact his outposts were busy Christmas eve driving good folks indoors who had planned to take a last look over the stocks of Christmas gifts displayed by the merchants of the city up to the eleventh hour and sending the merrymakers and sight seers huddling to their home fires.

And speaking of home fires—every householder aure had his hands full keeping them "burning" on Christmas Day. The mercury, which was plenty low-down enough the night before, dropped steadily all day until at six o'clock it was close to five degrees above zero. And, as if to add insult to injury, a cold nor'wester from the Canadian wilds blew all day, filling the highways with snow and drifting in the country roads.

The cold wave and storm was felt generally all over the state. On Friday, Grand Haven reported the lowest temperature in the state, with ten below zero. It was four below at Detroit and Lansing, zero at Saginaw and Alpena and two below at Port Huron. In Chicago on the same day four persons died as the result of the intense cold and numerous fires were caused by overheated stoves and furnaces. Fire in a hotel drove scores of guests to the streets in night attire. Considerable suffering from the poorer sections where lack of fuel drove families to the police stations for help.

In Alberta, Canada, near the source of the storm wave, the temperature at different points ranged from 30 to 40 below. This, however, is not unusual for that section, where low temperatures are the rule rather than the exception during the winter season.

Saturday night the lowest temperature reported here was two above zero. A local radio fan picked up the temperatures for various widely scattered localities on that evening—Chicago, at eight o'clock, reporting 7 below; Peoria, 9 below; Springfield, Ohio, 4 below; Beaverton, Wisconsin, 18 below; Menominee, Mich., 28 below; Davenport, Ia., 9 below (with temperature steadily dropping and expected from predic-

McHUGH STORE IS A MASS OF RUINS

Caught Fire Early This Morning From Unknown Cause

The racket store of H. E. McHugh on Bridge street caught fire at shortly before 12:30 o'clock this morning, from causes unknown, and now stands a mere shell of tottering timbers.

The alarm was turned in by Ralph Burns, who was passing the building on the way home and saw the smoke and flame within. He ran back down the street to Mont's restaurant and told Chief of Police Weikel, who in turn called up the department.

Though the department responded promptly, as usual, the store was beyond the possibility of being saved from destruction and all the firemen could sensibly do was to wet down the Young building on the north side of the doomed structure and Wood's (now O'Neill's) barn to the south of it. Three streams were played on the blazing mass and the flames held in check. The stock of notions, small hardware, toys, etc., was a total loss.

There was some insurance on the stock and the building which was the property of Mr. McHugh, but the full amount cannot he ascertained at this writing.

Martin Staley, who occupied the upper portion of the building, lost quite a few valuable personal effects in the fire, but mnnaged to escape himself without injury.

What caused the fire is not known, although it seemed to have started in the partition between the store and the back room which was used as a storeroom.

Webster =Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

To counsel Mr. Webster momentarily in a cloud of dust, the while in a bellowing baritone he sang:

"His father was a hard rock miner;
He comes from the hoosier town—"

"Jack Webster! The devil's own kin!" shouted Neddy Jerome. He swept the girl's slim form breathless and waddled across the floor to face this latest assailant of the peace and dignity of the Engineers' club. "You old, worthless, unlucky, no-good son of a lizard! I've never been so glad to see a man that didn't owe me money. I've been combing the whole civilized world for you, for a month, at least. Where the devil have you been?"

John Stuart Webster beamed happily upon his friend. "Well, Neddy, you old stocking-knitter," he replied quizzically, "since that is the case, I'm not surprised at your failure to find me. You've known me long enough to have remembered to confine your search to the uncivilized reaches."

"Well, you're here, at any rate and I'm happy. Now you settle down."

"Hardly, Neddy. I'm young yet, you know—only forty. Still a real live man and not quite ready to degenerate into a card-playing, eat-drink-and-be-merry, die-of-inanition, sink-to-oblivion and go-to-h— fireplace sprig." And he prodded Jerome in the short ribs with a tentative thumb that caused the old man to wince. He permitted his friend to drag him downstairs to the deserted lounge, where Jerome paused in the middle of the room and renewed his query:

"Where have you been, I ask?"

"Out in Death valley, California, trying to pry loose a fortune."

"Did you pry it?"

John Stuart Webster arched his eyebrows in mock reproach. "And you can see my new suit, Neddy, my silk hat, my seven-dollar, made-to-order shoes and my horny hoofs encased in silken hose—and ask that question? Freshly shaved and ironed and almost afraid to sit down and get wrinkles in my trousers' Smell that!" He blew a cloud of cigar smoke into Jerome's smiling face. The latter sniffed. "It smells expensive," he replied.

"Yes, and you can bet it tastes expensive, too," Webster answered, handing his cigar-case to his friend.

Jerome bit the end of his cigar and spat derisively. "How much have you made?" he demanded bluntly.

"It's none of your business, but I'll tell you because I love you, Neddy. I've made one hundred thousand dollars."

"Chicken-feed," Jerome retorted. "Johnny, I've been combing the mineral belt of North and South America for you for a month."

"Why this sudden belated interest in me?"

"I have a fine job for you, John—"

"King's X," Webster interrupted, and showed both hands with the fingers crossed. "No plotting against my peace and comfort, Neddy. Haven't I told you I'm all dressed up for the first time in three years, that I have money in my pocket and more in bank? Man, I'm going to tread the primrose path for a year before I get back into the harness again."

Jerome waved a deprecatory hand, figuratively brushing aside such feeble and inconsequential argument. "Are you foot-loose?" he demanded.

"I'm not. I'm bound in golden chains—"

"Married, eh? Great Scott, I might have guessed it. So you're on your honeymoon, eh?"

"No such luck, you vichy-drinking iconoclast. If you had ever gotten far enough from this club during the past fifteen years to get a breath of real fresh air, you'd understand why I want to enjoy civilization for a week or two before I go back to a mine superintendent's cabin on some bleak hill. No, sir-ee. Old Jeremiah Q. Work and I have had a falling out. Dad burn your picture, Neddy, I want some class! I've been listening to a dago shift-boss—playing the accordion for three years—and he could only play three tunes. Now I want Sousa's band. I've been bathing in tepid, dirty water in a redwood sluice-box, and now I desire a steam room and a needle shower and an osteopath. I've been bossing Greasers and Italians and was forced to learn their language to get results, and now I want to speak my mother tongue to my old friends. By thunder I'm going to have a new deal all around."

"Very well, Jack. Don't excite yourself. I'll give you exactly thirty days to sicken of it all—and then I shall come and claim my property."

"Neddy, I'll not work for you. I'm mad. I won't play."

"You're it. I just tagged you."

"I require a rest—but unfold your proposition, Neddy. I was born a poor, weak vessel consumed with a curiosity that was ever my undoing. I can only protest that this is no way to treat a friend."

"Nonsense! My own brother wants his job, and I have refused to give it to him. Business is business and I've saved it for you."

Jerome leaned forward and laid his finger confidentially on Webster's cuff. Whereat the high-hearted wanderer carefully lifted the finger, furnished an imaginary speck of dirt from it, and set it down again. "Be serious you degrade," Jerome protested. "Listen! I've been working for two years on a consolidation up near Telluride, and I've just put it across. Jack, it's the biggest thing in the country. Colorado Consolidated Mines Company, Limited. English capital, Jack. Pay 'em 6 per cent. and they'll call you blessed. There's twenty-five thousand a year in it, with a house and a good cook and an automobile and a chauffeur, and you can come to town whenever you please, provided you don't neglect the company's interests—and I know you're not that kind of an engineer."

"Do I have to put some money into it, Neddy?"

"Not necessarily, although I should advise it. I can let you in on the ground floor for that hundred thousand of yours, guarantee you a handsome profit and in all probability a big cleanup."

"I feel myself slipping, Neddy. Nevertheless, the rail goes with the hide. I'm not in the habit of asking my friends to guarantee my investments, and if you say it's right, I'll spread what I have left of the hundred thousand when I report for duty."

"It's been a tremendous job getting this consolidation over, Jack. When—"

"In pity's name! Spare me. I've heard all I want to hear about your confounded consolidation. News! News! Give me news! I have to beg for a drink— Mose, you black sinner, how dare you appear before me without bringing a drink?"

"Mose, the aged colored porter of the Engineers' club, flashed a row of ivories and respectfully returned the demonetrable greeting.

"Letter for you, sah. The secretary told me to give it to you, Mistah Webster."

"Thank you, Mose. Speak up, Neddy, and tell me something. Ever hear anything of Billy Geary?"

He was tearing the edge of the envelope the while he gazed at Jerome, who was rubbing his fat hands together after the fashion of elderly men who are well pleased with themselves.

"You have a chance to become one of the greatest and richest mining engineers in the world, Jack," he answered, "now that you've cut loose from that young crook Geary. I don't know what's become of him, and neither does anybody else. For that matter nobody cares."

"I also said you can take the brief end of that slur for your last white chip. Don't let me hear you or anybody else say anything against Billy Geary. That boy owes me money, every farm in this box. Don't make any mistakes about that, old timer."

Webster's face suddenly was set; the bantering intonation in his voice was gone and a new, slightly strident note had crept into it. But Jerome waved his hand soothingly.

"All right, old Johnny Peppercloss, it's your own way. Nevertheless, I'm a little mystified. The last I knew of you two you had testified against him in the high-grader trials at Telluride Creek, and he had pulled one night a stunt, even after his acquittal."

"After a fight a bad name, and it will stick, to him," Webster retorted. "He copper-fastened it one time when I was on dinner for the Mine Owners' association. I had ace. The high-grade ore was found in his safe, office, and the circumstantial evidence was complete and I admit Billy was railroaded merely because I and others could not swear positively that the ore found was certain mine. It was the same old story, Neddy. You can be morally certain that high-grade ore has been stolen from your mine, but unless you catch the ore thief in the act, how can you prove it? I suppose you read the newspaper reports and believed them, just as everybody else does."

"Well, forget it, Jack. It's all over long ago, and forgiven."

"It wasn't all over so long ago as you seem to think. I suppose you knew the Holman gang was after send me to the penitentiary for those same high-grade operations? Billy Geary's agent did right and my interest in the case me by a jury. I fought the case against the friends of the Holman crew among the mine owners themselves; and it cost me my good job, my prestige as a mining engineer, and thirty thousand dollars of money that I'd slaved to get together. Of course you never knew this, Neddy, and for that matter, neither does Geary. I wish he did. We were good friends once. I certainly was mighty fond of that boy."

He drew the letter from the envelope and slowly opened it.

"And you never heard what became of Geary?"

"Not a word. I was too busy wondering what was to become of me. I couldn't get a job anywhere in Colorado, and I moved to Nevada. Made a million in Goldfield, dropped it in the panic of 1907, and had to start again—"

CHILDISH IMITATORS

Josephine Weyman

"Never mind, nobody'll know," said Mother with a smile at Aunt Edith as she picked up the biscuit which had fallen on the perfectly clean kitchen floor and put it back on the plate. "Never mind, nobody know," echoed little Caroline later, picking up a small piece of bread from the floor of the cafe and putting it on the bread plate.

"That child is a born imitator," you will sometimes hear a parent say, and then watch amazedly as mother or father do or say something which they certainly would not want imituled!

All children are natural imitators. How much harder the parents' task would be if the child did not so unconsciously teach himself!

I know of no other method of so easily giving children the right standards of growth and development than suggestion and example. Here undoubtedly lie the father's and mother's joy and duty. It is for them to suggest in stories, in pictures, in play, as well as in their own personal lives, just what they wish their children to be. Let them wish it hard enough, have faith enough to try hard enough for it, and, as in the old magic tales, the wish is bound to become reality!

Have you ever heard a kindergartner ask, "What does the Little Pig do with his two little ears?"—and the children eagerly respond, "Why, he listens, he hears, with his two little ears!"? How much easier, then, for the teacher to obtain and keep the attention of her class!

Dr. Dewey, of Columbia University, tells of a child who quickly picked up a doll's dress from the floor: "I'm not going to teach my child to throw her clothes on the floor," she said. So very often the children play with their dolls, which to them are so actually identified with themselves, will present the opportunity for a suggestion of lasting value. "How sorry Dolly will be to have to sleep in such a rumpled bed!" or "I am sure that Dolly must like the nice way her things are put away." For this reason the wise mother will provide a box of the proper convertible shape if her little girl has no trunk for dolly's clothes. What little girl doesn't long for a trunk for her baby's small belongings?

Stories and pictures are particularly valuable for right suggestions. Not that every story must have a moral, but rather that good stories invariably suggest a nobler, lovelier way of living, an act of courage, a gentle thoughtfulness, or a sustained endeavor which at the story's end will bring its own deserved reward. If parents only realized how susceptible children are to such suggestions, that they could accomplish much by merely presenting the right pictures and stories, certainly they would examine more carefully the books and pictures placed before them.

"O, Robert, don't do that!" exclaimed a mother when she discovered her small son distorting his face before the mirrar.

"I'm trying to look like the boy in the picture," he answered pointing to the colored supplement.

Duncan came in dinner recently with a big bump over his eye. "No, I haven't been fighting," he said in answer to his mother's inquiring look. "I interfered and the fellow I wanted to help didn't understand and struck me. He doesn't seem to know much anyway. He's a great big chap and only in the second grade. The fellows were going to punish him for throwing stones at them."

"Why did you want to prevent them?" asked his mother.

"I felt sorry for him. Somehow he always makes me think of Patsy."

"The Patsy of Kate Douglas Wiggin's story?"

"Yes, he looks like him only he's older. Poor kid, I guess he must have lost some years like Patsy."

"Have you read the story recently?"

"No, you read it to me when I was a little chap; don't you remember?"

"Yes," answered his mother thoughtfully.

At the kindergarten age the child is impressionable; it is then that American ideals should be taught. Then kindergarten teacher knows this and has been trained for her work. AT THE MOVIES

"Heroes of the Street" is, briefly, the story of Mickey Callahan, who finds life one fight after another with the kids of his neighborhood. His father, a policeman, suddenly loses his life at the hands of a mysterious gang of crooks. And, after Wes and his mother are plunged in black grief, the lad sets about sleuthing for the man who made him an orphan. We won't tell you how he does it, but we will let you into the secret sufficiently to say that it is done through a number of the most comic escapades and hair-breadth adventures ever imagined.

A beautiful romance is interwoven through the picture. The combination of irrepressible fun-loving Wes as a dectective and Marie Prevost as the innocent actress in the power of a sinister plotting producer is unbeatable, and makes this Warner Brothers production the best that has come here for many a moon.

"Heroes of the Street" will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Wednesday evening, January 7th, with Wes Barry in the leading role.

The "Night Hawk"

It is the story of "Panther" Gann, a gentleman crook, whom circumstances force to leave the underworld of the East and go West in the role of an avenger. He soon perceives that his victim, Sheriff Hilton, is innocent and because Gann falls in love with Hilton's daughter Clia, he becomes Hilton's ally instead of his enemy. This results in many thrilling complications in the straightening of which, Gann gains new self-respect and the promise of Clia's aid in living on honest life.

"The Night Hawk" has some good fights, breath-taking rescues, and an appealing love strain. You'll be sorry if you miss it.

The "Night Hawk" comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday evenings, January 3rd and 4th.

COW TESTING HELPS FARMER

SHOWS HIM HOW TO SAVE ON FEEDING

Results Obtained Through Accurate Knowledge Fully Justify the Work

During the last two months, much checking up of the feeds has been done. The cheaper sources of food were sought to lower cost of production. Alfalfa, ensilage and clover hay offer the best and least expensive source of protein and total digestible nutrients. This is shown by the following table:

Cost of 1 lb. of:	Protein	T. D. N.
Alfalfa (s. c.) $12 ton	$.054	.0115
Clover Hay ..$10 ton	.065	.01
Cornstover ....$ 4 ton	.119	.005
Silage .....$ 4 ton	.20	.015
Rye .....$42 ton	.212	.0259
Corn .....$52 ton	.353	.0311
Oats .....$44 ton	.226	.0314
Bran .....$36 ton	.144	.0300
C. S. M. .....$58 ton	.077	.0359
O. N. I.....$58 ton	.092	.0354

This table gives some light on the economy of silage, alfalfa and clover. Nobody can afford not to fill the silo.

In November the 271 cows in the association averaged 439 pounds of milk and 19.46 pounds of butterfat—a profit of $1.19 per cow (butterfat at $.42 per pound), while in October the same 271 cows averaged 450 pounds of milk and 19.56 pounds of butterfat—a profit of $2.33 above cost of feed per cow (butterfat at $.35 per pound). The high profits in October, above cost of feed, went to H. Bearss, whose eight cows averaged $5.35; Mettue Rubingh's 9 cows, $5.26; A. Elzinga's 19 cows, $4.56; Robert Watson's 6 cows, $3.99 and J. Hennep's 9 cows, $3.92.

In November, E. Burns's 7 cows averaged a profit of $5.30 per cow, after deducting cost of feed; Nick Dekkinga's 8 cows, $3.70; County Poor Farm's 9 cows, $3.51; J. B. Osterbaan's 9 cows, $3.29 and H. Hoogewerf's 7 cows, $3.00.

The following shows high herds in the association for October and November, 1924:

October

Owner	No. Cows	Breed	lbs. Milk	lbs. B. F.
D. H. Brat	8	Hol.	743	28.21
J. B. Osterbaan	9	Jersey	575	27.26
H. Bearss	8	Jersey	501	26.43
N. Dekkinga	8	Jersey	583	26.41
John Jansen	5	Jersey	521	24.76

November

Owner	No. Cows	Breed	lbs. Milk	lbs. B. F.

CHRISTMAS OF PRESENT TIME

Despite Methods of Travel and the Ease of Making Long Journeys, Home Holiday Best.

WHEN Christmas began its gay pilgrimage down the years society was stationary. Today families and individuals are constantly on the move. Modern means of transportation have abolished distance. The family today scatters to all quarters of the earth. One brother stays on the Atlantic coast, the other migrates to the Pacific seaboard, but then they are "only four or five days apart." In England sons and daughters find their way in all parts of an empire that covers the globe; it is nothing for the added Christmas salutations of a single family to travel between Montreal, Melbourne, Calcutta, Cape Town and London.

When Irving wrote "Bracebridge Hall," the little journey into the country was itself an adventure. The ease of travel nowadays has taken the edge from all such jaunts. Everybody travels. And increasing numbers use the modern transport system to leave home at Christmas time. It may be heresy, but the custom of spending Christmas at an inn is gaining ground. Congestion of population in great cities has narrowed the dimensions of the metropolitan home, and not many apartments can comfortably accommodate the family reunion and the preparation and setting of the Christmas dinner. So when the trip to the country fills the city family goes holiday-making in an hotel. If hotels once were lonely places at Christmas they are far from lonely now, and many seek them both for dinner and frolic.

These are tendencies, variations upon the old theme. The theme, however, remains unchanged. It will not change. The great majority will still keep Christmas at home. Where there are children the proper paraphernalia and the time-honored observances will hold the family at home. No substitute fully satisfies. At best the away-from-home Christmas is only a substitute for the genuine article. So long as children come to enrich the lives of men and women Christmas will remain essentially a home holiday. The organization of modern life brings some compensations to the absent and the homeless, but the fullness of Christmas satisfaction is only to be had at the family hearth.

"TENDERING" THE SHEEP

SOMETIMES the thoughts of little folks are far deeper than our own. They are unconsciously nearer to the soul of things and more in the divine secrets. Few of us but would give much could we feel again the romantic atmosphere that used to be such a delightful fog at Christmas time. No later imaginations have equaled those which once strained our ears as we sat up in bed, listening for the reindeer upon the roof, the sleigh bells of Santa Claus. With what ecstatic joy we used to explore the stuffed stockings! There are Christmas expressions that still exist in faded note books, taken down childlike remarks that bring back happy days of Christmas associations. "I know a Christmas carol," said little Rose. "It's about the Good Shepherd, tendering the sheep."—C. G. Hazard.

EVERY CHRISTMAS IS BIGGER

Day Means More to Greater Number of People—Boundaries Extended Year After Year.

IN uncounted pulpits and on a multitude of printed pages this Christmas day will be made the subject of glowing pictures of the progress of the world toward peace, and peace with honor and justice.

In some features the holiday of giving, the day set apart for rejoicing over the birth of the most potent apostle of peace mankind has ever known, wears a more nobly prophetic aspect this year than it has had in a century or a millennium, and thrilling appeals to the faith and brotherly love of good people can be made without in the least overstepping the bounds of truth. The facts are rich in promise, beyond the realization of many eyes weary of long strife and repeated disillusionment. There will be comparatively little danger of exaggeration in the praise of Christmas this glorified day which finds the world scarce able to grasp the full meaning of great events.

But there is another phase of Christmas which is always well worth noting, and especially so when the pace of human progress is quickened by momentous changes toward peace and good will. This is the constant widening and unending conquests of the best of holidays.

Every Christmas is bigger than the one before it. Always the day means more to a greater number of human beings. Year after year its boundaries are extended. Year by year its sunshine is shed upon more of the earth's inhabitants.

This does not necessarily mean the gains of the Christian religion, for Christmas is wider than Christianity. The day of the coming of Jesus is cherished by many millions who have no connection with Christian churches or the faith they profess. The holiday is dear to all who live in lands where Christians are most numerous. It wins the devotion of little children and holds their affection as they grow older. For multitudes its observance is not in any sense a rite of belief, but a manifestation of rejoicing in the love of fellow-dwellers in a world which at best has too little of the sunshine of kindness and affection.

There is no reason to fear that this growth of Christmas will cease. There is nothing to indicate that it will ever fail to widen the realm of bright hopes and radiant thoughts, shining children's eyes and smiling older faces, when winter days are briefest and darkest, in the more populous half of the earth, and nature leaves most for man to do, in making the world cheerful and life worth while.—Cleveland News-Leader.

THE LITTLE RED HEN--

"Puck, puck, puck, pucKAYah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that ANY "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to ADVERTISE the fact.

A duck egg MIGHT be just as good, but the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't ADVERTISE, and duck eggs have no market.

To be absolutely sure in buying ANY merchandise, stick to the advertised brands. For their manufacturers believe in them and tell you about them daily in the advertising columns of this newspaper, over their signatures.

The duck-egg brands MIGHT be just as good, but you cannot be sure, if the manufacturers themselves will not admit it!

A NEW DAY OF PEACE AND DEVELOPMENT

They were strong words which Owen D. Young used regarding the Dawes plan in the first speech he has made in America since he returned there from Europe some three weeks ago. This scheme, he declared, successfully worked out, has brought the world to the threshold of a new day of peace and development. He was the guest at a dinner given in his honor by the business men of that city, and before he began to speak Gen. A. Brouzet, acting French consul, pinned on his breast the cross of a Commander of the Legion of Honor, presented as an appreciation of his reparations work by the French government. And President Coolidge sent a message in which he stated that the commission's work is now recognized as a great contribution to the reestablishment of economic order in Europe, and expressed the "gratitude of the people on both sides of the Atlantic" for the part which Mr. Young played in that reorganization.

Hence there was no doubt that even before he started to speak Mr. Young had the satisfaction of knowing that his work was to quite an extent, at any rate, appreciated by both his audience and by those whom they represented in the various countries which it touched. It is especially noteworthy therefore, that he emphasized the fact that the plan cannot succeed without the co-operation of the people of America, and bluntly asked the question, "Have we at last realized the responsibilities which are the counterpart of our own riches?" This question he answered himself to a certain extent, when he affirmed that the agencies of the United States must all co-operate in support of the plan if it is to be the success which it should, and declared that to this same end the nation's men of commerce, industry, agriculture and finance, including the federal reserve system, must aid in the restoration of the credit and currencies of the principal commercial nations. That is to say, America must continue in the course in which it has taken already the first few steps, to insure that that new day of peace and development which has dawned shall progress to its high noon of accomplishment.

In this connection, Mr. Young did not hesitate to state his personal opinion regarding the policy which the United States shouhl pursue. "We may debate political participation in the affairs of the world as we will," he urged, "but we must participate in its business, and business knows no political boundaries, and in its dictionary there is no such word as isolation." In other words, if permanent peace is to be established in the world, it will be established, not by coercive measures, but by the application of that great fundamental of loving one's neighbor as oneself. This regulatory dictum is no mere theory; it is no hypothetical statement of abstract morality. It is a declaration of law, the law of peace and harmony, the law which must become operative throughout the world before the era of peace and development will be a concrete reality, and the law which without a doubt is coming to be recognized more and more as the fundamental rule of conduct among nations.—Christian Science Monitor.

SECOND CLASS MAIL

Newspapers tread on eggshells, of course, when they discuss mail rates on second class matter, in which they are themselves interested in behalf of the reading public. But Postmaster General New's counter report and counter bill—aimed apparently to kill the real postal increase bill remaining for congressional disposal—contains assertions which newspapers are not disposed to accept unchallenged.

Chief of these is the declaration by Mr. New that the government loses $74,712,863 a year on the second class mail business, and only $6,916,753 on parcel post.

The New York Times speaks out for newspapers and their readers everywhere when it declares:

"There will be many who will want to know how this loss said to be due to the handling of second class matter has increased so tremendously since the inception of the parcel post service. Has there been a fair distribution of costs as between the fourth class, in which virtually every parcel must be individually weighed and handled, and, on the other hand, newspapers weighed, sacked, routed and delivered to the train at an expense to the publishers of millions of dollars? These are facts which should be known."

A revelation of the bookkeeping by which Mr. New arrived at these rather remarkable figures would interest. There is no field offering greater opportunities for error, for easy throwing of sums here and there, than that of cost accounting. —Grand Rapids Press.

GET AT THE CAUSE!

Many Charlevoix Folks are Showing How to Avoid Needless Suffering

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Charlevoix people. Profit by this Charlevoix resident's experience:

Mrs. H. H. Fales, 110 Robinson St., says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I tried to do anything around the house that required stooping, cutting pains darted across my kidneys. Then as time passed, my eyes were blurred with little, flickering specks. At first my kidneys were weak and then they became sluggish and failed to act often enough. Two boxes of Doan's Pills were all I needed to rid me of the trouble."

Acid Phosphate on Wheat Is Favored

Mixing With Limestone Involves Serious Danger.

Since acid phosphate on wheat is gaining wider use and with fall spreading of limestone on wheat ground being common practice, the question has often been asked, whether one might not mix the limestone and acid phosphate and apply these two soil treatments at the same time.

Though labor might be saved by mixing, such a practice involves serious danger. Laboratory experiments as well as field results show that, when mixed with limestone, the soluble phosphorus reverts or changes to an insoluble form and its beneficial effects are largely lost. This change goes on more rapidly as the amount of limestone in proportion to the phosphate becomes greater. So, where one ton of stone is mixed with only one hundred pounds of phosphate—which is about the common ratio of application—the loss of soluble phosphate is rapid.

Rather than apply the two in a mixture, the limestone can be spread after plowing and worked into the soil during preparation of the seedbed. When this is done early, as is commonly recommended, and the phosphate put on with the wheat seeding, the time between the applications is sufficient to let the lime act partly on the soil, and the chance for intimate mixture of lime and phosphate becomes so small that the danger is negligible. Even when the lime goes on just shortly before seeding there is little danger as long as it is worked into the soil ahead of the phosphate.

In applying these soil treatments it is well to remember that any method of handling them which prohibits their intimate mixing avoids the danger of reverting the phosphate and losing the usual profit from its use.

Keeping Seed Potatoes to Prevent Sprouting

Potatoes kept for seed should not be allowed to grow long white sprouts. Such sprouts can be broken off and new sprouts will come; but the potato that must feed the new plant until it gets a root system of its own will be greatly weakened by long sprouts. To prevent this undesirable sprouting keep the potatoes at a temperature of 35 or 40 degrees and treat the seed early for scab, then as planting time arrives spread them in the light where they will grow short strong sprouts. These sprouts are not disturbed by planting, nor killed by the formaldehyde treatment, having been previously treated. They grow fast when planted, for the seed has not been weakened.

Reason for Damp Houses

Many poultry houses are damp because the ground on which they stand is not well drained. This is probably the most common cause of dampness and one that is most easily corrected. A small job of tiling may do the work. The tile should be laid clear around the house and a connecting line or two under it. With plenty of fall and a clear outlet such a job will effectively remove the cause of excess moisture, unless the house is situated in too low a place, in which case it should be moved to higher ground.

Winter Feed for Bees

For winter food bees need a good quality of honey, which is just as free as possible of indigestible waste matter. During prolonged cold spells they may be confined to the hive for weeks at a time when they are unable to take flights and empty their intestines of accumulated waste matter. Honeydew honey and other low grade honeys are unfit as winter food for bees. If the stores are faulty or insufficient a strip of clean granulated cane sugar should be fed to the colony in the fall.

Tourists Repay Canada for Cost of Good Roads

Canada has spent $191,000 in building good roads in the last five years, according to John B. Harkin, Dominion commissioner of parks.

"The Dominion has received $118,000,000 in revenue from foreign tourist traffic in the same period," Mr. Harkin said. "Improvement of highways has been a big factor in the development of Canada's touring trade. The Dominion knows it is not spending money on roads, but merely investing it. Good roads mean general prosperity. They save farmers millions of dollars in hauling costs annually."

Good Road Hints

The annual highway expenditures are approximately $1,000,000,000.

The famous old Roman road, Via Appia, is 2,000 years old, and is still in a marvelously good state of repair.

In the last 13 years investments in automobiles have increased about 2,700 per cent and highway expenditures have in the same time increased about 600 per cent.

• • •

It is believed that the states in co-operation with the federal authorities should work out some system whereby more of the highway appropriations may be utilized in constructing farm-to-market roads.

Good roads, canals and navigable rivers by diminishing the expense of carriage, put the remote parts of a country nearly on a level with those in the neighborhood of a town; they are, upon that account, the greatest of all improvements.—Adam Smith.

More and more good roads and better motor cars are making touring one of the favorite American pastimes.

It is felt that in order to increase the efficiency of motor truck transportation federal aid will have to be extended to the farm-to-market roads.

• • •

Remains of the first recorded roads are still in existence. They were built by the Assyrian empire about 1900 B. C., and like the spokes in a wheel, radiated from Babylon to the corners of the empire.

E. C. CHEW OF BAY TOWNSHIP IS DEAD

Prominent Farmer is Taken at Close of Long Illness

E. C. Chew, prominent farmer and supervisor of Bay township, died last Sunday at his home four miles west of Boyne City on the old main road, between Boyne City and Horton Bay, at the close of a long period of declining health, arterio sclerosis being the cause of his death.

Mr. Chew, who was born in Darke county, Ohio, in 1856, came to this county 45 years ago. He was married to Miss Minnie Safford of Horton Bay 41 years ago and four children were born to them of whom a daughter, Mrs. Harry Fitzpatrick, of Boyne City, only survives. He also leaves four brothers and two sister, and a large number of nephews and nieces, among whom are numbered Jacob and M. K. Chew of this county.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the home of the deceased, Rev. Miller of Boyne City officiating with members of the Odd Fellow and Masonic lodges of which the deceased was a member, acting as pall bearers. Interment was made in Evangeline cemetery.

SOME EXCITEMENT, ANYHOW

ROBBERIES, ESCAPES AND HOOTCH RAIDS

Mid-Winter Monotony is Broken by Episodes of Human Depravity

In the midst of the general depression and extreme quiet enforced by the recent rigorous weather, some little excitement has developed, though not of a character that can be recommended to our citizens as an antidote for winter monotony.

To begin with, James Wyers' cigar store was entered early Christmas morning and $31.00 abstracted from the till. The robber evidently had "fixed" the door lock in order to gain access to the store. He also rummaged in the safe, but the money drawer was locked and he did not take the trouble to go any further. Jim thinks he knows who it is but there is no definite clue as yet.

Episode number two is the thrilling (?) escape of two gentlemen incarcerated in the county hastile who were let out in the jail yard to sift ashes and took French leave. The sheriff brought one of them back, nnd the other, whose time was up in a day or two anyway and who is described as being a trifle "balmy in the bean" has not as yet been located.

Number three is the arrest on a charge of larceny of a certain young local gent., who has been bound over to the circuit court and instructed to procure bail in the amount of $500. Failing in this, he will become the guest of the county over New Year's and then some.

Number four in our little gallery of horrors is the discovery by the authorities of Boyne City this morning of 40 quarts of Scotch, which were promptly arrested and brought together with their guardian, one, John Melano, by name (on whose truck they were found near the B. C. G. & A. depot), to this city where the lock was turned on them. This is serious. It may be necessary to draw a cordon of armed guards around the court house as soon as this reaches the eye of the public.

DEATH PENALTY AGAIN SOUGHT

BILL WILL BE INTRODUCED IN 1925 LEGISLATURE

Nearly Three-Quarters of a Century Since Capital Punishment was Abolished in State

Advocates and opponents of a bill to restore capital punishment in Michigan for first degree homicide are collecting material for another contest to be waged in the legislative session that starts January 7.

It is nearly three-quarters of a century since capital punishment was abolished in the state. Four or five times futile efforts have been made in legislative sessions to revive the deoth penalty. It was done in the 1921 session and again in 1923.

The capital punishment bill, it is said, will be reintroduced early in the 1925 session. It is not yet certain who will introduce it. One of the leaders in opposition to restoration of the death penalty is Senator-elect Howard F. Baxter, of Grand Rapids, who, as a member of the house at the 1923 session, contributed to its defeat at that time. Senator Baxter stresses the argument used effectively every time the bill has appeared in the legislature that capital punishment in the states where it is the law is not a deterent to homicide because only a very small percentage of first degree slayers go to the scaffold or the electric chair, and so the purposes of the law are not attained.

At his request Commissioner Fred E. Jannette, of the state pardon and parole division, has compiled statistics showing the number of lifers committed to the Michigan state prison at Jackson, the Marquette prison, the Michigan reformatory at Ionia and the Detroit house of correction since 1848, when life imprisonment for first degree homicide was decreed by the legislature to be the penalty, what disposition has been made of them, and some other data.

These statistics, Senator Baxter reasons, prove that, contrary to a general impression that only a comparatively small number are held in the prison until the end of their lives—the large majority having their sentences commuted or being pardoned the official records proved that only about 32 per cent are so favored. Many of this 32 per cent have their sentences commuted upon representation by the trial judge and the prosecuting attorney that their crimes were manslaughter or less than first degree homicide for which the penalty is less than life. Judge and prosecutors sometimes reach this conclusion after the trial.

Here are statistics the pardon and parole division have compiled which will be used when the capital punishment bill comes up for consideration in the 1925 legislative session:

Number of lifers committed to Jackson since the death penalty was ended to December 1, 1924, 532; to Marquette, 258; to the Detroit house of correction, 19; to Ionia, 1; total, 810.

The disposition of these 810 lifers was as follows: died in prison, 107; transferred to the hospital for criminal insane, 67; transferred to other institutions, that is other prisons than the one to which they were sentenced, 40; escaped and not recaptured, 13; released for new trial and not returned, 40; deported, 2; received from other institutions, 40; disposition not shown by the old records, 12; number pardoned or whose sentences were commuted, 266; still serving, 299.

From Jackson 43, mostly women lifers, were transferred to the Detroit house of correction. Under the statutes the courts sentence women lifers to Jackson, but they have never been received there, being taken directly after sentence to the Detroit prison, where the state pays for their keep at the rate fixed by the legislature in the act creating the Detroit house of correction, which is $1 a week. Commissioner Jannette says $1 a week is the rate the state pays for the keep of each of the 78 women prisoners, including lifers, who are classed as state prisoners.

The crimes for which the 810 lifers were committed are: First degree slaying, 627; second degree slaying, 27; assault with intent to kill, 38; crimes against women, 70; armed robbery, 19; arson, nine; train wrecking, 2; burglary while armed, 6; bank robbery, 1; miscellaneous crimes, 11.

In the first year, 1848, that life instead of capital punishment was the highest penalty that could be inflicted by a Michigan court, three offenders were given the maximum. In 1849-50 there were nine sentenced for life. During the succeeding 15 years, the highest number sentenced in any one year for life was in 1854. The number that year was six. During each of six of these 15 years the number given life was two. From 1861 to the end of '65, which included the Civil war period, the total number was 13. Yet, in 1866, the year following the close of the Civil war, the number was 16. It can only be conjectured at this time what was the reason for this large increase in 1866, and the conjecture is that a crime wave followed the war.

In 1867 the number of lifers committed dropped to three. From 1868 to '82, the highest number in any one year was eight. In '83 it was three; the year following, 12; then, in 1885, down to seven, and in '86 up to 18. In 1891 it was 12, and the following year but one. Yet, in '93, when a panic struck the country 15 went up for life. The numbers committed for life in the succeeding years were:

In 1894, 7; 1895, 12; 1896, six; 1897, 16; 1898, 4; 1899, 8; 1900, 4; 1901, 9; 1902, 10; 1903, 14; 1904, 18; 1905, 12; 1906, 12; 1907, 15; 1908, 13; 1909, 15; 1910, 14; 1911, 16; 1912, 17; 1913, 15; 1914, 20; 1915, 17; 1916, 20; 1917, 22; 1918, 25; 1919, 31; 1920, 32; 1921, 65; 1922, 42; 1923, 29; to December 1, 1924, 22.

shores of which it is situated is a land-locked bay of Pine Lake, giving protected water in all weather. The original dock used by the Von Platen company is still standing and will be rebuilt to suit the needs of the cement business, which, it is stated, will entail but a nominal expense.

The deposit of raw limestone which will be used by the new concern in its operations is comprised in a six mile strip of Lake Michigan border land, formerly known as the Nash property, lying between the Norwood dock and a point about opposite Fisherman's Island, about half way between Charlevoix and Norwood. It contains 1,700 acres, a large portion of which is limestone located near the shore of the lake and admitting of easy transportation to the plant by water route.

One of the best shale deposits in the state of Michigan is located within one mile of the plant site and is owned by the Boyne City Portland Cement company, which is thus assured of an unlimited supply of this material, economically quarried and transported, which gives the Boyne City concern a decided advantage over many of their competitors, who must bring their shale from a considerable distance.

All the vast stores of present available knowledge about the cement industry will be drawn on in the construction of the plant and its operation to make it as highly efficient as is humanly possible. The so-called "wet" process will be employed in connection with the utilization of waste heat as applied to boilers in the power plant. This will not only simplify operation methods and reduce cost of manufacture, but also will insure absolute uniformity in the quality of the product, a point which is immensely important to the consumer. It will also eliminate the undesirable "dust" feature of the old style dry process, with its resultant loss.

As regards transportation facilities, the new plant will be exceptionally favorably located. A large portion of its product can be shipped by water, which is considered as the most economical method of transportation for low valued commodities. The plant will also have railroad connections with the Pennsylvania system, the Michigan Central and the Detroit & Mackinac, through the B. C. G. & A., which intersects all these systems.

Furthermore, the grade of raw materials in deposit in this region is of the very highest, having been tested repeatedly by the state's geologists and pronounced A-1, especially the lime rock which tests almost pure calcium, the latter being the element on which the adhesive quality of the cement mainly depends. This is the cream of lime producing districts of a state which has long been recognized as a leader among cement manufacturing regions and which numbers many successful companies within its borders.

This is truly the "Cement Age." The reports of the United States geological survey show a large and constant growth, year by year, in the demand for Portland cement. The average production for the ten year period from 1872 to 1882 was 9,000 barrels per year—the production for the year 1924 alone is estimated at 150,000,000 barrels. Prospects for the success of the new company, under its able management, are therefore most excellent.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 4th

10:30 a. m., worship. Pastor will preach subject "The Value of Prayer in One's Life." Put into your New Year's resolutions the revival within yourself of regular, sincere and earnest prayer—the family prayer, secret prayer and the prayer meeting.

12 o'clock Sunday school. This quarter continues studies in the life of Christ. The boys of our school throw out a challenge to the girls and to the adults. One class of boys seventeen in number still holds the banner for attendance. Have you figured out what it would mean if every class had as many as that in attendance? Mothers need not hesitate about sending the little ones to Sunday school. We will have the rooms warm for them.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. The studies being used are "Preparatory Lessons for Church Membership." Youth is the time to get these lessons. Allow your boys and girls to come to these meetings.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. This good live bunch of young folks want others to mingle with them in their meeting. Thirty-five came together last Sunday. The boys were well represented. This is a religious meeting, but we have social gatherings at other times.

7:00 p. m. evening worship. We give the evangelistic emphasis. Be free to come into our services and take some active part in them.

There will be no prayer meeting this week. The Watch Night on Wednesday takes its place.

On the 8th inst. the prayer meeting will take the form of a church family night. We will meet at the supper for the evening meal after which we will hold family worship, singing the old hymns. We will hold the official board and Sunday school board and receive reports from the various societies of the church regarding their prospected work for the new year. Remember the date—January 8.

Read the bible through this year. Note—read three chapters every week day and five every Sunday and you will read the bible through this year.

This is the new year's motto of action:

Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. Gal. 6:2.

Give, and it shall be given unto you good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over. Luke 6:38.

Make to your selves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness: that, when ye fail, they may receive you unto everlasting habitations. Luke 16:9.

WEBSTER —MAN'S MAN

CHAPTER I.

When John Stuart Webster, mining engineer and kicker-up-of-dust on distant trails, dugged the S. P., L. A. & S. L. Limited at a blistered board station in Death valley, California, he had definitely resolved to do certain things. To begin, he would invade the dining car at the first call to dinner and order approximately twenty dollars' worth of ham and eggs, which provender is, as all who know will certify, the pinnacle of epicurean delight to an old sour-dough coming out of the wilderness with a healthy bankroll and a healthier appetite.

Following the ham and eggs, Mr. Webster planned to saturate himself from soul to vermiform appendix with nicotine, which he purposed obtaining from tobacco with nicotine in it. It was a week since he had smoked anything with an odor even remotely like tobacco, for the August temperature in Death valley is no respecter of moisture in any man or his tobacco. Upon arrival in Salt Lake City his spree would really begin. Webster designed chartering a taxicab and proceeding forthwith to a hotel where he would engage a sunny room with a bath, fill the bathtub, climb blithely in and soak for two hours at least, for it was nearly eight months since he had had a regular bath and he purposed making the most of his opportunity. His long-drawn ablutions at length over, he would don a silken dressing gown and slippers, order up a barber and proceed to part with enough hair and whiskers to upholster an automobile, and upon the completion of his tonsorial adventures he would encase his person in a suit of mauve-colored silk pajamas, climb into bed, and stay there for forty-eight hours, merely waking long enough to take another bath, order up periodical consignments of ham and eggs, and indefatigably make certain that a friendly side-winder or chuckwalla hadn't crawled under the blanket with him.

So much for John Stuart Webster's plans. Now for the gentleman himself. No one—not even the Pullman porter, shrewd judge of mankind that he was—could have discerned in the chrysalis that flagged the Limited the butterfly of fashion that was to be. As the ebony George raised the vestibule platform, opened the car door and looked out, he had no confidence in the lean, sun-baked big man standing by the train. Plainly the fellow was not a first-class passenger but a wandering prospector, for he was dog-dirty, a ruin of rags and hairy as a tarantula. The only clean thing about him was a heavy-calibered automatic pistol of the army type, swinging at his hip.

"Day coach an' tourist up in front," the knight of the whiskbroom announced in disapproving tones and started to close down the platform.

"So I perceived," John Stuart Webster replied blandly. "I also observed that you failed to employ the title 'sir' when addressing a white man. Put that platform back and hop out here with your little stool, you saddle-colored son of Senegambia, or I'll make you a hard porter to catch."

"Yassah, yussah!" the porter sputtered, and obeyed instantly. Mr. Webster handed him a disreputable-looking suitcase and stepped aboard in state, only to be informed that there wasn't a vacant first-class berth on the train.

"Yes, I know I'm dirty," the late arrival announced cheerfully, "but still, as Bobby Burns once remarked, 'a man's a man for a' that'—and I'm not unsanitary."

"I'm very sorry," the conductor replied perfunctorily and endeavored to pass on, but Webster secured a firm grip on his lapel and frustrated the escape.

"You're not sorry," the ragged wanderer declared, "not one little bit. You're only apprehensive. However, you needn't be. There is no wild life oo me, brother. I assure you."

"But I tell you, the train is full up. You'll have to roost in the day coach or the tourist. I'm very sorry——"

"Nevertheless, despite your deep grief, something tells me you're spoofing, so while I must, of necessity, accept your suggestion, said acceptance will be but temporary. In about two hours, young fellow, you're going to make the alarming discovery that you have bats in your belfry." And with a whiskery grin which, under the circumstances, was charming in its absolute freedom from malice, Mr. Webster departed for the day coach.

Two hours later the conductor found him in the aforementioned day coach, engaged in a mild game of poker with a mule-skinner, a Chinaman, an aged prospector, and a half-breed Indian, and waited until Mr. Webster, on a bob-tailed flush, bluffed the Chinaman out of a dollar-and-a-half pot.

"Are you Mr. John S. Webster?"

"Your assumption that I am that person is so eminently correct that it would be a waste of time for me to dispute it," Webster replied quizzically. "However, just to prove that you're not the only clairvoyant on this train, I'm going to tell you something about yourself. In your pocket you have a telegram; it is from Chicago, where your pay-check originates; it is short, sweet and comprehensive, containing an order which you are going to obey. It reads somewhat as follows:

"'My friend, John S. Webster, wires me from Blank that he boarded train at Blank and was refused first-class accommodation because he looked like a hobo. Give him the best you have in stock. If you have to throw somebody off the train to accommodate him.' Signed, 'Sweeney.'

"Do I hit the target?"

The conductor nodded. "You win, Mr. Webster," he admitted.

"Occasionally I lose, old timer. Well?"

"No offense, Mr. Webster, no offense. I can let you have a stateroom——"

"That's trading talk. I'll take it."

The conductor gave him his receipt and led him back to the stateroom in the observation car. At the door Webster handed him a five-dollar bill. "For you, son," he said gently, "just to take the sting out of what I'm about to tell you. Now that I possess your receipt and know that ten men and a boy cannot take it away from me, I'm going to tell you who Sweeney is."

"Who is he?" the conductor queried. Already he suspected he had been outgeneraled.

"Sweeney," said Mr. Webster, "is the chief clerk in one of Chicago's most pretentious hotels and a young man who can find all the tangles of a situation without working it out in logarithms. I wired him the details of my predicament; he heard the Macedonian cry and kicked in. Neat, is it not?"

The conductor grinned. "I hate to take your money," he declared.

"Don't. Just at present I'm very flush. Yes, sir, I'm as prosperous as a yearling burro up to his ears in alfalfa and the only use I have ever found for money is to make other people happy with it, thereby getting some enjoyment out of it myself. When I'm broke I'll make some more."

And Mr. Webster retired to his hard-won sanctuary, where he removed as much alkali and perspiration as he could, corded his long hair, and whiskers, manicured his finger nails with a jack-knife, changed his shirt, provided five minutes of industry for George, with his whiskbroom and brush, and set himself patiently to await the first call to dinner.

Presently a pink-jowled, well curried, flashily dressed big man, of about Webster's age, passed in the corridor, going toward the head of the train. An instant later a woman's voice said very distinctly:

"I do not know you, sir; I do not wish to know you, and it is loathsome of you to persist in addressing me. If you do not stop your annoying attentions, I shall call the conductor."

"Ah! Beauty in distress," John Stuart Webster soliloquized. "I look so much like an Angora goat I might as well butt in." He stepped to the door of his stateroom. A girl stood in the vestibule, confronting the man who had just passed Webster's door. Webster bowed.

"Madame, or mademoiselle, as the case may be," he said, "unlike this other male biped, my sole purpose in presuming to address you is to suggest that there is not the slightest necessity for taking this matter up with the conductor, I am here and very much at your service."

The girl turned—and John Stuart Webster's heart flopped twice in rapid succession, like a trout newly grassed. She was as lovely as a royal flush. Her stormy glance began at his miner's boots, traveled up his old soiled, whipcord trousers, over his light blue chambray shirt and found the man behind the whiskers. She favored him with a quick, curious scrutiny and a grave, sweet smile. "Thank you so much, sir," she answered, and passed down the corridor to the observation car.

"Well," old-timer," Webster greeted the fellow who had been annoying her, "how about you? What do you think we ought to do about this little affair?"

"The sensible thing would be to do—nothing. You might start something you couldn't finish."

"That's a dare," Webster declared brightly, "and wasn't it the immortal Huckleberry Finn who remarked that anybody that'd take a dare would suck eggs and steal sheep?" He was silent a few seconds, appraising his man. "I suppose you commenced operations by moving into her section and asking if she would like to have the window open and enjoy the fresh air. She repuffed you, but being a persistent devil, you followed her into the observation car, and in all probability you ogled her at luncheon and ruined her appetite. And just now, when you met her in this vestibule, you doubtless jostled her, begged her pardon and without waiting to be introduced asked her to have dinner with you this evening."

"Well?" the fellow echoed belligerently.

"It's all bad form. You shouldn't try to make a monkey on a lady. I don't know who she is, of course, but she's not common mud for the sake of the number that bore me. I always respect and protect a good woman and whale the——— out of those that do not."

He reached inside his coat-sleeve and pressed the bell. The porter arrived on the run.

"George," said Mr. Webster, "in a few minutes we're due at Smithville. If my memory serves me aright, we stop five minutes for water and orders."

"Yassah."

"Remain right here and let me off as soon as the train comes to a stop."

When the train slid to a grinding halt and the porter opened the car door, Webster pointed. "Out," he said. "This is the nice place to pull off a scrap."

"See here, neighbor, I don't want to have any trouble with you——"

"I know it. All the same, you're going to have it—or come with me to that young lady and beg her pardon."

"All right. I'll apologize," and he started forward as if to pass Webster in the vestibule, on his way to the observation car, whither the subject of his annoying attention had gone. Two steps brought him within striking distance of his enemy, and before Webster could dodge, a sizzling right-handed blow landed on his jaw and set him back on his haunches in the vestibule.

It was almost a knockout—almost, but not quite. As Webster's body struck the door the big automatic came out of the holster; swinging in a wide circle, it covered the other.

"That was a dastardly," Webster mumbled. "If you move before my head clears, I'll put four bullets into you before you reach the corridor."

He waited about a minute, then with the gun he pointed to the car door and the masher stepped out. Webster handed the porter his gun and followed; two minutes later he returned, dragging his assailant by the collar. Up the steps he jerked the big battered hulk and tossed it in the corner of the vestibule, just as the girl came through the car, making for the diner up ahead.

Again she favored him with that calm, grave, yet vitally interested gaze, nodded appreciatively, made as if to pass on, changed her mind, and said

"You Are a Very Courtly Gentleman."

very gravely: "You are—a very courtly gentleman, sir."

He bowed. There was nothing else to do, nothing that he could say under the circumstances. To use his chivalry as a wedge to open an acquaintance never occurred to him—but his wishers did occur to him. Hastily he backed into his stateroom and closed the door, presently he rose and surveyed himself critically in the small mirror over the washstand.

"No, Johnny," he murmured, "we can't go into the diner now. We're too blamed disreputable. We were bad enough before that big swing hung the shanty on our right eye, but whatever our physical and personal feelings, for he it from us to parade our iridescent orb in public. Besides, one look at that queen is enough to do us for the remainder of our natural life, and a second look, minus a proper introduction, would only drive us into a suicide's grave." He sighed, rang for the porter and told him to send a waiter for his order, since he would fain break his fast in the privacy of his stateroom. And when the waiter came for the order, such was Mr. Webster's mental perturbation that ham and eggs were furthest from his thoughts. He ordered a steak with French fried potatoes.

* * * * * * *

John Stuart Webster passed a restless night. Sleep came to him in hourly lastallments, from which he would rouse to ask himself whether it was worth while to continue to go through the motions of living, or alight at the next station, seek a lonely and unfrequented spot and there surrender to outrageous fortune. It was altogether damnable. In a careless moment, Fate had accorded him a glimpse of the only woman he had ever met and desired to meet again—for Webster was essentially a man's man, and his profession and environment had militated against his opportunities for meeting extraordinary women; and extraordinary women were the only kind that could hope to challenge his serious attention. Fate had accorded him a signal opportunity for knightly combat in the service of this extraordinary woman, and in the absence of a formal introduction, what man could desire a finer opportunity for getting acquainted? If only their meeting had not been delayed four weeks, ten days, a week! Once free of his ugly raiment of rags and glitkers, the butterfly Webster would not have hesitated one brief instant to deform himself of that young lady's address, following his summary disposal of her former tar.

But in all things there is a fault, and John Stuart Webster's right eye constituted a deadline beyond which, as a gentleman, he dared not venture; so with a heavy heart he bowed to the inevitable. Brilliant and mysterious as a meteor, she had flashed once across his horizon and was gone.

In the privacy of his stateroom Webster had ham and eggs for breakfast. He was lighting his second cigar when the porter knocked and entered with an envelope.

"Lady in the observation-car asked me to deliver this to you, sah," he announced importantly.

It was a note, freshly written on the train stationery. Webster read:

"The distressed lady desires to thank the gentleman in stateroom A for his chivalry of yesterday. She is profoundly sorry that in her service the gentleman in stateroom A was so unfortunate as to acquire a red eye with blue trimmings."

John Stuart Webster swore his most ungodliest oath. "By the twelve apostles, Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James, Jude and Simon, and not omitting Judas Iscariot, the scaly scoundrel who betrayed his Lord and Master!" He searched through an old wallet until he discovered a fairly clean professional card, across the bottom of which he wrote, "Thank you. J. S. W." and sent it to the no-longer-distressed lady.

"The last signal adventure of my life is now over," he soliloquized and turned to his cigar. "For the sake of my self-respect, I had to let her know I'm not a hobo! And now to the task of framing up a scheme for future acquaintance, I must learn her name and destination; so as a preliminary I'll interview the train conductor."

He did and under the ameliorating influence of a five-dollar bill the conductor lent a respectful ear to the Websterian message.

"In Car Seven," he began, "there is a young lady. I do not know what section she occupies neither do I know her name and destination. I only know what she looks like."

The conductor nodded. "And you want to ascertain her name and destination?"

"I do."

"All right. I have the unused portion of her transportation to return to her before we hit Salt Lake; her name is on the ticket and the ticket indicates her destination. I'll make a mental note of both as soon as I've identified her ticket."

A few hours later the conductor came to Webster's stateroom and handed him a card upon which was written:

"Dolores Roxy. From Los Angeles, via San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake, to Salt Lake City, Denver & Rio Grande to Denver, Burlington to St. Louis, Illinois Central to New Orleans. Stop-over at Denver."

John Stuart Webster studied the name after the conductor withdrew. "That's a Spanish name," he soliloquized, "but for all that, she's not a parakeet. All things considered, I guess I'll take a chance and investigate.

CHAPTER II.

Webster's dreams of bliss had, with very slight variations, come true as per schedule. In Salt Lake City he abandoned the beefsteak on his damaged eye for two lamb-chops like leeches, which quickly reduced the nocturne effect around his orb, enabling him, the third day, to saunter forth among his fellowmen. By the end of the week he was a being reincarnated, and so he packed a huge new wardrobe trunk with his latest purchases and journeyed on to Denver. Friendless, with his arrival there, we again take up the thread of our story.

One hour after his trunk arrived the gentleman from Death Valley might have been observed standing before a cheval glass looking long and earnestly at the reflection of his middle-aged person. He while he marked the fit of his new raiment. John Stuart Webster was all dressed up for the first time in three long, labor-filled years, and was tremendously glad of it. He lighted a cigar and stepped forth into Seventeenth street, along which he strolled until he came to a certain building into the elevator of which he entered and was whisked to the twelfth floor, where he alighted and found himself before a wide portal which bore in gold letters the words: "Engineers' Club."

The Engineers' club was the closest approach to a home that John Stuart Webster had known for twenty years, and save for the slight job of kalsomining which Father Time had done on the edges of the close-cropped Websterian mustache, the returned prodigal might have stepped out of the club but yesterday. He would not have taken the short end of a modest bet that even a fresh log had been placed on the fire or that the domino-players over against the wall had won or lost a drink or two and then resumed playing—although perchance there were a few more gray hairs in the thickly thatched head of old Noddy Jerome, sitting in his favorite seat by the window and tending the cards in his eternal game of solitaire [illegible] ignorance that John Stuart Webster stood within the portals of home and awaited the fatted calf.

Webster struck the upholstery of an adjacent chair [illegible] with his stick—the effect of which was to cause everybody in the room to start and

DIVORCE CASE DRAWS CROWD

SCOTT FAMILY TROUBLES ARE AIRED IN COURT

Aceuse Eaeh Other of Mis-Conduct —Distriet Representative No Piker in Game of Two Pair

Alpena court followers are filling the court room in that city to capacity, the divorce case of our congressman, Frank D. Scott, being the chief drawing card. According to testimony already in, their married life to date has been just one darned rumpus after another. Friday's testimony reproduced below, is just a sample of each day's court proceedings:

The divorce hearing of Cong. and Mrs. Frank D. Scott took an added interest today when Miss Jane Kennedy, private secretary to Scott and referred to as the star witness took the stand in circuit court. She described in detail Mrs. Scott's alleged affairs with other men, including the cashier of the fashionable hotel apartment where she lived in Washington.

Miss Kennedy has been Scott's secretary for 15 years and furnished most of the evidence against Mrs. Scott.

Miss Kennedy testified that Mrs. Scott told her of her affair with Harry Wyckoff, the cashier, in which they used a telephone code, described by Scott when he was on the stand.

A tryst with Wyckoff in an empty apartment also was told to Miss Kennedy by Mrs. Scott, it was testified.

Admirers Jealous

"She warned me never to tell anyone about it," the witness said.

Miss Kennedy also testified that Mrs. Scott had told her she greatly admired Capt. "Jazzbo" Sumner and that Wyckoff was jealous of the captain.

"She said that was why she let Harry come up so late at night—because the other men were there so much at other hours," Miss Kennedy said.

Mrs. Scott once proposed that she and Wyckoff and Miss Kennedy and another man should take a trip to New York, the secretary testified.

The questioning of Miss Kennedy began after a deposition from Miss Johanna Fuchs, of New York, a nurse and close friend of Mrs. Scott had been introduced. The deposition was offered by Mrs. Scott's attorneys as evidence that gambling for big stakes is a practice among members of congress at Washington and that Rep. Scott participated in these games.

Tells of Gaming Losses

Miss Kennedy's testimony on many points was the same as that of Rep. Scott earlier in the week. She cited one occasion when she said she heard Mrs. Scott invite the hotel clerk to come to her apartment when he finished his work.

A deposition from Miss Fuchs described a gambling game on which Rep. Scott is said to have lost $3,000 in two nights.

Mrs. Scott was prostrated today in her room.

She made a statement, however, denying her husband's testimony concerning Harry Wyckoff.

"All that stuff about my affair with this clerk is silly," Mrs. Scott declared. "Do you suppose if I were doing anything so foolish as that I would tell my husband's secretary? Certainly not.

"When we went to Washington Mr. Scott wore $23 suits with padded shoulders. Now he has $170 suits. Our old apartment cost $55 and our furniture was terrible.

Sold Old Clothes

"Then I learned what the wives of a lot of other congressmen learned, that in Washington one can sell old clothes and furniture and get quite a price, especially in wartimes. I sold some of the furniture and bought one good piece after another. I did that with my clothes, too.

"Mr. Scott always wore out the seats of his trousers. He played cards too much. I am a good needlewoman, so I could darn them and sell them for $15 a suit. That's the way I got along. Then when I was put on the government payroll I got $120 a month and Mr. Scott gave me $80.

"Then my husband excluded from his friendship anybody that was not a millionaire. He gave Mrs. Moore a $40 bunch of roses for Christmas and I didn't get a Christmas card. On one occasion I had an interview with the president and he presented me with a picture, autographed. My husband's only comment on this honor was 'Did he kiss you?' I was furious.

Accuses Secretary

"Jane Kennedy, my friends tell me, has always been in love with my husband from the time she went to work for him."

It is expected that Mrs. Scott will take the stand in her own behalf some time Saturdsy.

WATCH YOUR STEP WHEN THAWING OUT WATER PIPES

Warnings are going out in many cities at this time about thawing out frozen water pipes. With the cold spell many pipes were frozen and a large number of people have been using fire as the means of thawing out the pipes. Several serious fires have been narrowly averted thus far because of people using this dangerous mesns of thswing out the pipes. Under no conditions should flames of any kind be used. Hot water applications is by far the snfest and best wny to thaw the pipes, it is explained. If this is remembered, there will be less dangerous results.

SNODGRASS TO QUIT PRISON

"KING OF THE IVORIES" TO BE FREE JAN. 14

Money Sent Him by Radio Fans Goes to His Wife and Son—May Go Into Vaudeville

Who among radio fans haven't tuned in on WOS, Jefferson City, Missouri, and onjoyed a part or the entire program given by Harry Snodgrass, "King of the Ivories?" The question frequently asked is: "Who is he, and what wns the cause of his imprisonment?" The following Jefferson City news item gives the answer:

"King of the Ivories" is about to get out of "stir."

In 1923 in St. Louis a couple of whiskey-frnntic robbers broke into a drug store and started a holdup.

There was a shooting and Joe Braitsch, one of the men was killed. The other one was caught and sentenced to three yenrs.

Harry Snodgrass, the other robber, was known as the "little half-pint guy" when he came to prison here. He didn't look the part of a bandit and spent every minute wardens would let him at the piano. He entertained for prison officials.

Then came the prison radio and Harry bloomed forth as "King of the Ivories," favorite entertainer of station WOS here and, recently was voted the most popular radio entertainer in the country. For this he got a gold medal.

Not long ago it was announced over WOS that "King of the Ivories" wns getting out of "stir" January 16. His three years with time off for good behavior were over.

Since that time money and gifts have been pouring in for Snodgrass. It is estimated that $2,000, ranging from one donation of $50 to small 50 and 25 cents donations, have been received by prison officials. Cakes, pies, fruits snd other unprison-like morsels have been received.

Also there were chnnces for the future. Kindly old ladies wrote asking to adopt Snodgrass. Vaudeville companies, music firms, others offered him contracts to play as "King of the Ivories."

The one-time bandit, now popular entertainer, however, is undecided as to the future except:

"I'm no robber and never was. Oh, sure, I pulled that job in St. Louis, but it was the first and I was drunk. I'm going atraight now.

"When I get out I'm going to give my wife and eight-year-old boy in St. Louis the money the 'listeners-in' have sent me in an attempt to repay them for the years of hardship they have gone through. Then I mny nccept n vaudeville contrnct."

Snodgrass' grand finale will be the night of January 14, shortly before he removes the prison denim and stnrts his come-back.

SHALL WE PAVE M-13 OR M-14

BURNING QUESTION NOW BEFORE STATE OFFICIALS

Both Highways Serve Important Regions, But Population Is in M-13's Favor

According to the Grand Rapids Herald, no definite decision has been made by the governor and the state highway commission on the paving program up through the center of the state during 1925.

There are two courses open—to pave M-13 or M-14. Both are trunk line highways, extending from the southern border of the state to connection with other lines reaching Mackinac City.

M-13 seems to be preferred over the other highway for the reasons that it is flanked by the larger population, and will serve a heavier traffic than M-14. And there are other definite and unanswersble arguments to support this contention. M-13 has its southern terminsl at White Pigeon; M-14 south of Hudson. Both serve industrial, farming and resort regions. But there is a disparity in the number of people served by the two roads of some 76,000, in favor of M-13. A glance at the highway map will show this.

According to the 1920 census, the total population of the towns on M-13 is 219,934, while the total of M-14's centers is only 143,870. Of course, it must be admitted that M-14 serves a considerable resort district around Houghton and Higgins Lakes, Grayling, etc., which, however, have practically no permanent population. But the same may be snid for M-13 with a continuous resort country from Cadillac north and no small summer population at points between Grand Rapids and Cadillac. Further, it is obvious that the big resort region that M-14 renches can as well be reached by M-13 to Cadillac and M-55, a fine gravel road to the east, as via M-14.

Perhaps it is true that, considering the ultimate advaotnge of the whole north half of the state, M-14 would be the logical route. But it is equally true thnt it will in all likelihood be many years before the population and the resort development which brings population will be suffieient to wnrrant the immediate paving of M-14 to the exclusion for a long period of time of M-13 which nlrendy has its resorts, and large population needing a first class trunk line.

From the standpoint of the advsntage to the towns along M-11, there can scnrcely by any argument. It is far more likely that a portion of the tourist traffic, which is rnpidly becoming the big factor in the resort business, might be diverted from M-13 to M-11 than from the other line so many more miles to the eastward and with its fewer connections with the west coast route.

It will not be diffieult, however, for the officials in charge of the paving program to, arrive at a fair decision if a careful comparison is made of the condition and settlement of the respective territories which the rivnl highways traverse.

The ladies of the W. R. C. will hold a baked goods sale on Snturday, January 10th, at the Chnrlevoix Hardwnre store.—Adv. 1-t1.

FEDERAL CENSUS OF FARMS

GOVERNMENT PLANS NEW AGRICULTURAL CHECK-UP

Figures of 1920 Enumeration No Longer Useful as Basis for Estimates

A great deal of interest and inquiry is being aroused regarding the special agricultural census which is now being taken and so perhaps a little explanation concerning this census might well be in order.

This is the first time that a census of agriculture has been taken midway between the regular censuses which are taken every ten years. The last general census of the United States was taken in 1920 and, of course, it included facts regarding agriculture. At this time, however, our agrieulture was in a state of readjustment following the war and the figures obtained from that census are now held to be far from accurate, as far as giving a true picture of our country's agriculture of today is concerned. Hence the last session of congress, at the urgent request of the U. S. department of agriculture, authorized the census bureau of the U. S. department of commerce to take this special census of agriculture to show the facts as of January 1, 1925.

It should not be thought that agriculture is being singled out for official scrutiny not given other industries. For a long time there has been a federal census of manufacturing taken every two years. It is felt that such bodies as congressional committees and the president's agricultural conference cannot do much toward recommending sound and fundamental remedies to help stabilize and improve agriculture unless they have the real facts regarding the farmers' actual condition.

In some communities farmers are failing to co-opernte with the census enumerators and are refusing to answer the questions asked. This is a very serious matter and under section 23 of the Federal Census Act of March 3, 1919, it is made a misdemeanor punishable hy fine of $100.

It should be pointed out that these reports are kept confidcotial and are not used in any way for taxation purposes. No supervisor or other assessing officer is eligible to act as a census enumerator. The census bureau will never divulge the information regardiog any individual farmer's business. It issues no reports based on any smaller unit than the county.

From the above statements it may be seen that Uncle Sam is trying to find out the exact condition of agriculture in the United States. For the next five years this census will be the basis of nll estimntes by the department of agrieulture regarding crops and livestock products worth over $10,000,000,000 a yenr. It will be the basis for many plans for the improvement of agricultural conditions. Therefore, do your part to make it accurate hy having the facts ready for your enumerator when he calls.

R. K. PADDOCK NOW A FIRST LIEUTENANT

Receivgs This Rank in Cavalry Unit At M. A. C.

Among the appointments as student officers made recently hy Lieut.-Col. T. L. Sherburne, commandant of the reserve officers' training corps at the Michigan Agricultural college, is that of R. K. Paddock of Charlevoix to the post of first lieutenant in the cavalry unit.

About a thousand of the men students at the Michigan Agricultural college are enrolled in the R. O. T. C., which is regarded as one of the ten best units of its kind in the United States. Recently the M. A. C. unit was given a rating as "distinguished" by the war department, and as a result is more favored than most R. O. T. C. units in securing equipment which is deemed necessary by the officers in charge.

After completion of four years work in the military division, cadets are given commissions as second lieutenants in the reserve officers corps. Between the third and fourth years of college, a summer training camp is attended by the student cadet, receiving officers' pay from the government in addition to all expenses. Membership in the R. O. T. C. during the junior and senior year is not compulsory.

WILL COME FOR WINTER SPORTS

DEFINITE INFORMATION ASKED BY SUMMER VISITORS

Resorters Want to Know When They Can Best Enjoy Ice Boating and Toboggans

Several members of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and proprietors of the city's summer hotels have recently received inquiries from a number of our resorter patrons in the south—one letter originating as far south as St. Louis, Mo. —asking what accommodations could be given parties of eight or twelve at some time during the winter here favorable for the enjoyment of winter sports—ice boating, tobogganing, skiing, etc. The communications indicate definite plans and much enthusiasm on the part of their writers at the prospect of returning to Charlevoix for a winter season.

The Association of Commerce is planning to take care of these inquiries and will advise the prospective visitors of the time most favorable for their coming and what accommodations can be provided in the way of winter sport facilities and equipment, as well as lodging.

This is a golden opportunity for Charlevoix, which has come to us on the wings of the New Year. If properly met and developed, it will very likely ultimately lead to the development of Charlevoix as a winter resort, similar to Lake Placid in New York State, or Steamboat Springs, Colorado. We have, though perhaps in a limited way, just as many natural advantages as these famous winter play-grounds. No lakes in the country could afford more to the ice boating fan than Pine Lake and in Mt. McSaubn we have a place for ski runs and toboggan slides second-to-none. We understand thnt a winter sports committee either has been or is to he appointed by the president of the Commercial Association. Our earnest advice to them, in the name of Charlevoix, is to hop to it!

CHICAGO LOSES DRAINAGE CASE

SUPREME COURT SUSTAINS THE INJUNCTION

Dougherty Warns People of Michigan to be on Guard—The Fight is Not Over

According to the Grand Rapids Press, the U. S. supreme court on last Monday sustained the injunction restraining the Chicago sanitary district from diverting more than 250,000 cubic feet of water per minute from Lake Michigan into the Chicago drainage canal.

The decision means victory for Michigan and other great lakes states in their ten year fight to halt Chicago's ever increasing diversions which, they contended, affected lake levels to the extent that shipping on inland waters was vitally affected.

The injunction now becomes operative within 60 days, without prejudice to any permit that may be issued by the secretary of war. Under an existing permit from the war department, the drainage district is authorized to withdraw from Lake Michigan not more than 4,187 cubic feet of water a second. Current withdrawals, however, exceed 10,000 cubic feet a second, the plaintiff states declared.

The supreme court's ruling means that the drainage district must provide a radically different method of disposing of its sewage, which it now flushes down the drainage canal and eventually into the Mississippi river. The decision affirms the position of the government, that such diversion is illegal, hut cannot possibly result in a remedying of matters in the 60 days given. The war department, having established its point that Chicago is not entitled to more than 4,187 cubic feet per second, doubtless will have to grant a temporary permit allowing the present diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second, pending the ndoption of other disposal methods.

Chicago, according to the Herald, adopted its present system of sewage disposal—the dilution of sewage hy Lake Michigan water and carrying it down the DesPlains and Illinois rivers to the Mississippi—in 1889 and built the sanitary cinal, heginning in 1892 and completing in 1900.

Before that time Chicago had been running its sewage into Chicago river, which carried it into Lake Michigan. This contaminated Chicago's water supply and made other means of disposal imperative.

The drainage cnnal, 28 miles long, was built to reverse the flow of Chicago river, carrying it back inland to the DesPlains river, then into the Illinois river and thence to the Mississippi. The government, through the war department, permitted the diverting of 4,187 cubic feet a second for this purpose. The sanitary district, however, deliherately took 10,000 cubic feet a second, despite the protest of the war department.

The sanitnry district is seeking congressional netion that will permit the diversion of 10,000 cubic feet a second, regardless of the court's decision. It based the congressional action upon the alleged need of the

PHANTOM CROOK FINALLY TAKEN

State Police Follow Alleged Criminal For Years to Solve Mystery Of Killing

A man hunt that reads like a page from Gaboriou ended when Inspector Fred Hessler of the Michigan State Police leaped on his man in a Chicago Y. M. C. A. and after a brief struggle snapped the handcuffs on his wrists and proved to the world that there was such a man as Harry Wade Hill, hi-jacker, bootlegger, suspected bank robber and accused of murder.

For nearly four years Hill has been known as the "phantom bandit." In fact a number of police officials have firmly believed that there was no such man—that he was the creature of the imagination of Leo Sauermaa and created only for the purpose of freeing Sauermaa from the life imprisonment he is now serving for murder.

It was in January, 1921, that four men rapped at the door of the farm house of Alex Dombrowski in the downriver district of Detroit, representing themselves as federal officers and demanding the right to search his premises. Suspecting that the men were hi-jackers, rather than federal officers, Dombrowski demanded to see their search warrant. A quarrel followed and during the quarrel Dombrowski was shot and killed.

Three men were arrested for the crime, Leo Sauerman, Homer Noel and Harry Brown. At the trial of Sauremaa he was positively identified by Mrs. Dombrowski and a young son of the murdered man as the man who fired the fatal shot and he was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in Jackson prison. Noel and Brown were convicted of complicity in the attempted robbery and the murder and given from 15 to 25 years in Jackson.

Sauerman stoutly insisted on his innocence of the murder although admitting that he was one of the gang. The shot, he declared, was fired by Harry Hill, and he told officers that there was a marked resemblance between him and Hill which caused his identification by widow and son of the murdered man.

Inspector Hessler and State Detective Ferguson finally traced Hill to Chicago from Battle Creek and Marshall, where he had been, and established a watch there. Hill was receiving mail from some of his women friends at a Chicago Y. M. C. A. and when he went there Hessler and Ferguson nabbed him.

To the officers Hill admitted he had been guilty of bootlegging and that after he had been made the victim of hi-jackers he turned to that pursuit himself. He denied all knowledge of the Dombrowski killing, however, claiming that while he knew Dombrowski he did not know anything about the killing until some months after it had happened and then learned of it through an old paper he picked up in Battle Creek.

With the styles as they are, the college boy who goes home for Xmas this year is placed at a distinct disadvantage. His pants are big enough to fit father.

The snake seen crawling in the snow and acting queerly was quite a puzzle to authorities at Saginaw until they reflected that a moonshine drinker may have bitten it.

The Genesee county woman who has received a 10-year sentence for holding up a man at the point of a butcher knife was only one of the new women who believe in carving out a fortune for themselves.

A resident of Grand Rapids, just returned safely from a 9,000 mile journey, slipped on the ice and fell as he was getting off the street car. Naturally, true Michigan hospitality expects such people to sit down and stay a while.

Missaukee county this winter will try the experiment of rolling down the snow on the highways instead of trying to remove it. For such a road, a procession of stalled cars, rolled well into the first snow, will make an excellent base.

The one hundred hunters of the Algoma Wolf Hunt club who slew 12 rabbits, all returned safe and sound, having kept close together so that none of them were attacked by a wounded and infuriated animal and forced to spend the night in a tree.

A package of woman's hair, wrapped in a newspaper, was found in a Jackson waiting room, left, presumably, by some one who had been waiting for a train. Her intention of wearing it on the journey was abandoned, of course, when she had plenty of time to grow another supply.

A letter enclosed in a bottle and dropped into Lake Michigan at Benton Harbor last June has drifted to the Straits of Mackinac and was picked up on a beach there last week. We still believe, however, that a letter sent in the regular way would make the trip even more quickly.

The first accurate map of the world, engraved in 1696, has been found in the library at the U. of M. and after the wars have stopped for a while, perhaps someone will make another.

A resident of Kalamazoo has been nabbed eight times in the last 18 months on a writ of attachment charging him with non-payment of alimony. Officers who have been investigating the case say they suspect that he does not want to pay.

A Lansing minister whose sermon was delivered by radio has received $2 from a man in Atoona, Pa., who heard the sermon and writes that it was a hummer. It must be quite an achievement to get off some hot shots that exactly hit a man's neighbor at that distance.

A resident of Port Huron who went hunting in the upper peninsula escaped from quicksand into which he had been accidentally sucked, and escaped after a hard fight from a pack of wolves which pursued him all night. We understand he even escaped from a band of murderous Indians who were out on one of their hellish raids there 100 years ago.

A NEW COACH

Recognizing the demand for a truly comfortable and economical car of the coach type, Dodge Brothers have provided it.

The new Coach reveals a characteristic maturity of design—in the low-swung lines of the body, in the arrangement of the interior for five-passenger comfort, and in the exceptional dimensions of the doors and windows.

The car is lacquer finished in Dodge Brothers blue with a body stripe of cartouche yellow. Fittings and fixtures are first quality throughout, and balloon tires are standard equipment.

So far as riding comfort and dependability are concerned, it is only necessary to add that the Coach is built on Dodge Brothers sturdy chassis and cushioned by Dodge Brothers underslung springs.

"What have you been doing lately?"

"Borax. Staked a group of claims down in Death valley. Rully ground, Neddy, and I was busted when I located them. Had to borrow money to pay the filing fees and incorporation, and did my own assessment work. Look!" Webster held up his hands, still somewhat grimy and calloused. "The Borax trust knew I was busted, but they never could quite get over the fear that I'd dig up some backing and give them a run—so they bought me out."

"Somebody told me Geary had gone to Rhodesia," Jerome continued unsmilingly, "or maybe it was Capetown. I know he was seen somewhere in South Africa."

"He left the Creek immediately after the conclusion of his trial. Poor boy! That dirty business destroyed the lad and made a tramp of him I guess. I tell you, Neddy, no two men ever lived who came nearer to loving each other than Billy Geary and his old Jack-pardner. We hunked the marks of men and went to sleep together hungry many a time during our five-year partnership. Why, Bill was like my own boy,' Jerome. I curse the day I took that boy out from underground and put him in the assay office to learn the business. How could I know that the Hobson gang had cached the stuff in his shack?"

"Well, it's too bad," Jerome answered dully. He was quite willing that the subject of conversation should be changed. "I'm glad to get the right dope on the boy, anyhow. Have another drink?"

"Not until I read this letter. Now who the dickens knew I was headed for Denver and the Engineers' club? I didn't tell a soul, and I only arrived this morning."

He turned to the last page to ascertain the identity of his correspondent, and his facial expression ran the gamut from surprise to a joy that was good to see.

John Stuart Webster read it deliberately, after which he sat in silent contemplation of the design of the carpet for fully a minute before reaching for the bell. A servant responded immediately.

"Bring me the time-tables of all roads leading to New Orleans," he ordered. "—also a cable blank."

Webster had reread the letter before the servant returned with the time-tables.

"August, you go out to the desk, like a good fellow, and ask the secretary to arrange for a compartment for me to New Orleans on the Gulf States limited, leaving at 10 o'clock tomorrow night." He handed the servant his card. "Now wait a minute until I write something." He seized the cable blank, helped himself, uninvited, to Neddy Jerome's fountain pen, and wrote:

"William H. Geary, Calle de Concordia No. 19, Buenaventura, Sobrante, C. A.

"Salute, you young jackass! Just received your letter. Cabling thousand for emergency roll first thing tomorrow. Will order machinery. Leaving for New Orleans tomorrow night, to arrive Buenaventura first steamer. Your letter caught me with a hundred thousand. We cut it two ways and take our chances. Keep a light in the window for your old

"JACK PARDNER."

"That's a windy cablegram," Neddy Jerome remarked as the servant bore it away. "Why all this garrulity? A cablegram anywhere generally costs at least a dollar a word."

"That's my delight of a shiny night, in the season of the year," quoted John Stuart Webster; "and why the devil economize when the boy needs cheering up?"

"What boy?"

"Billy Geary."

"Where is he?"

"Central America."

Neddy Jerome was happy. He was in an expansive mood, for he had, with the assistance of a kindly fate, rounded up the one engineer in all the world whom he needed to take charge of the Colorado Consolidated. So he said:

"Well, Jack, just to celebrate the discovery of your old pal, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll O. K. your voucher for the expense of bringing young Geary back to the U. S. A., and when we get him here, it will be up to you to find a snug berth for him with Colorado Consolidated."

"Neddy," said John Stuart Webster, "by my halidom, I love thee. You're a thoughtful, kindly old stick-in-the-mud—"

"No if's nor butt's. I'm your boss," Jerome interrupted, and waddled away to telephone the head waiter at his favorite restaurant to reserve a table for two.

Mr. Webster sighed. He disliked exceedingly to disappoint old Neddy, but— He shrank from seeming to think overwell of himself by declaring that there was one person in the world whom he loved more than Neddy Jerome, and that was Billy Geary. He knew that Billy would understand, and that Neddy would not. Besides, Billy was in trouble, and Neddy was not. Billy was a boy, and Neddy was not. Billy was a pal, and Neddy was not. Billy was a man, and Neddy was not. Billy was a gentleman, and Neddy was not. Billy was a scholar, and Neddy was not. Billy was a sportsman, and Neddy was not. Billy was a lover, and Neddy was not. Billy was a fighter, and Neddy was not. Billy was a hero, and Neddy was not. Billy was a martyr, and Neddy was not. Billy was a saint, and Neddy was not. Billy was a god, and Neddy was not. Billy was a devil, and Neddy was not. Billy was a man, and Neddy was not.

Jerome returned to his seat, the serious look in Webster's hitherto laughing eyes challenged his immediate attention.

"Neddy," said John Stuart Webster gently, "do you remember my crossing my fingers and saying 'King's X' when you came at me with that proposition of yours? It just breaks my heart to have to decline it, but the fact of the matter is, I think you'd better give that job to your brother after all. At any rate, I'm not going to take it."

"Why?" the amazed Jerome demanded. "Johnny, you're crazy in the head. Of course you'll take it."

For answer Webster handed his friend the letter he had just received.

"Read that, old horse, and see if you can't work up a circulation" he suggested.

Jerome adjusted his spectacles and read:

"Calle de Concordia 19, Buenaventura,
"Sobrante, C. A.

"Dear John: I would address you as 'dear friend John,' did I but possess sufficient courage. In my heart of hearts you are still that, but after three years of silence, due to my stupidity and hardness of heart, it is, perhaps, better to make haste slowly.

"To begin, I should like to be forgiven, on the broad general grounds that I am most almighty sorry for what I went and done! Am I forgiven? I seem to see your friendly old face and hear you answer 'Aye,' and with this load off my chest at last I believe I feel better already.

"Jack, you poor, deluded old piece of white meat, do you think for a moment that I held against you your testimony for the operators in Cripple Creek? I thought you believed the charges and that you testified in a firm belief that I was the guilty man as all of the circumstantial evidence seemed to indicate. I thought this for three long, meagre years, old friend, and I'm sorry. After that, I suppose there isn't any need for me to say more, except that you are an old fool for not saying you were going to spend your money and your time and reputation trying to put my halo back on straight! I doubt if I was worth it, and you knew that; but let it pass, for we have other fish to fry.

"The nubbin of the matter is this: There is only one good gold mine left in this weary world—and I have it. It's the sweetest wildcat I ever struck, and we stand the finest show in the world of starving to death if we tackle it without sufficient capital to go through. It will take at least thirty thousand dollars, and we ought to have double that to play safe. I do not know whether you have, or can raise, sixty cents, but at any rate I am going to put the buck up to you and you can take a look.

"This is a pretty fair country, Jack—if you survive long enough to get used to it. At first you think it's Paradise; then you grow to hate it and know it for hell with the lid off; and finally all your early love for it returns and you become what I am now—a tropical trump! There is only one social stratum lower than mine, and that's the tropical beachcomber. I am not that—yet; and will not be if my landlady will continue to listen to my blandishments. She is a sweet soul, with a divine disposition, and I am duly grateful.

"I would tell you all about the geography, topography, flora and fauna of Sobrante, but you can ascertain that in detail by consulting any standard encyclopedia. Governmentally the country is similar to its sister republics. It's a cold day indeed when two patriots, two viva's and a couple of old Long Tom Springfield rifles cannot upset the Sobrante apple cart. We haven't had a revolution for nearly six months, but we have hopes.

"I am addressing you at the Engineers' club, in the hope that my letter may reach you there, or perhaps the secretary will know your address and forward it to you. If you are footloose and still entertain a lingering regard for your old pal, get busy on this mining concession P. D. Q. Time is the essence of the contract, because I am holding on to the thin edge of nothing, and if we have a change of government I may lose even that. I need you, John Stuart Webster, worse than I need salvation. I enclose you a list of equipment required.

"If you receive this letter and can do anything for me, please cable. If you cannot, please cable anyway. Do let me hear from you, Jack, if only to tell me the old entente cordiale still exists. I know now that I was considerable of a heedless pup a few years ago and overlooked my hand quite regularly, but now that I have a good thing I've no use for any body with whom I care to share it except your own genial self. Please let me hear from you.

"Affectionately,
"BILLY."

Jerome finished reading this remarkable communication; then with infinite amusement he regarded John Stuart Webster over the tops of his glasses as one who examines a new and interesting species of bug.

"So Billy loves that dear Sobrante, eh?" he said with abysmal sarcasm. "Jack Webster, listen to a sane man and be guided accordingly. I was in this same little Buenaventura once. I was there for three days, and I wouldn't have been there three minutes if I could have caught a steamer out sooner. Of all the miserable, squalid, worthless, ornery, stinking holes on the face of God's green footstool, Sobrante is the worst—if one may judge it by its capital city. Are you going to chase off to this God-forsaken fever-hole at the behest of a lad scarcely out of his swaddling clothes? Jack Webster, surely you aren't going to throw yourself away, give up the sure thing I offer you—to join Billy Geary in Sobrante and finance a wildcat prospect without a certificate of title attached. Be reasonable. What did you wire that confounded boy?"

"That I was coming."

"Cable him you've changed your mind. We'll send him some money to come home, and you can give him a good job under you. I'll O. K. the voucher and charge it to your personal expense account."

"Cable Him You've Changed Your Mind."

"That's nice of you, old sport, and I thank you kindly. I'll talk to Billy when I arrive in Buenaventura, and if the prospect doesn't look good to me, I'll argue him out of it and we'll come home. Let me go. I might come back. But I must go. I want to see Billy."

"You just said a minute ago you'd turned the forty-year post," Jerome warned him. "And you're now going to lose a year or two more in which you might better be engaged laying up a foundation of independence for your old age. For Heaven's sake, man, don't be a fool."

"Oh, but I will be a fool," John Stuart Webster answered; and possibly, by this time, the reader has begun to understand the potency of his middle name—the Scotch are notoriously pig-headed, and Mr. Webster had just enough oatmeal in his blood to have come by that center fire name honestly. "And you, you poor old horse, you could not possibly understand why, if you lived to be a million years old."

He got up from his chair to the full height of his six-feet-one, and stretched 190 pounds of bone and muscle.

"And so I shall go to Sobrante and lose all of this all-important money, shall I?" he jeered. "Then by all the gods of the Open Country, I hope I may. Dad burn you, Neddy, I'm not a Methuselah. I want some fun in life. I want to fight and be broke and go hungry and then make money for the love of making it and spending it, and I want to live a long time yet. I want to see the mirage across the sagebrush and hear it whisper: 'Hither, John Stuart Webster! Hither, you fool, and I'll hornswoggle you again, as in an elder day I hornswoggled you before.'"

Jerome shook his white thatch hopelessly.

"I thought you were a great mining engineer, John," he said sadly, "but you're not. You're a poet. You do not seem to care for money."

"Well," Webster retorted humorously, "it isn't exactly what you might term a ruling passion. I like to make it, but there's more fun spending it. I've made $100,000, and now I want to go blow it—and I'm going to. Do not try to argue with me. I'm a lunatic and I will have my way. If I didn't go tearing off to Sobrante and join forces with Bill Geary, there to play the game, red or black, I'd feel as if I had done something low and mean and small. The boy's appealed to me, and I have made my answer. If I come back alive but broke, you know in your heart you'll give me the best job you have."

"You win," poor Jerome admitted.

"Hold the job open 30 days. At the end of that period I'll give you a definite answer, Neddy.

"I sniff excitement and adventure and profit in Sobrante and I've just got to look-see. I'm like an old burro staked out knee-deep in alfalfa just now. I won't take kindly to the pack—"

"And like an old burro you won't be happy until you've sneaked through a hole in the fence to get out into a stubble-field and starve." Jerome swore half-heartedly and promulgated the trite proverb that life is just one blank thing after the other an incoherent mass of fiver and disappointment."

"Do you find it so?" Webster queried sympathetically.

Suspecting that he was being twitted, Jerome looked up sharply, prepared to wither Webster with that glance. But no, the man was absolutely serious; whereupon Jerome realized the futility of further argument and gave John Stuart Webster up for a total loss. Still, he could not help smiling as he reflected how Webster had planned a year of quiet enjoyment and Fate had granted him one brief evening. He marveled that Webster could be so light-hearted and contented under the circumstances.

Webster read his thoughts. "Good-bye, old man," he said, and extended his hand. "Don't worry about me. Allah is always kind to fools, my friend; sorrow is never their portion. In answering Billy's call I have a feeling that I am answering the call of a great adventure."

He did not know how truly he spoke, of course, but if he had, that knowledge would not have changed his answer.

CHAPTER III.

The morning following his decision to play the role of angel to Billy Geary's mining concession in Sobrante, John Stuart Webster, like Mr. Pepys, was up betimes.

Nine o'clock found him in the office of his friend Joe Daingerfield, of the Bingham engineering works, where, within the hour, he had in his characteristically decisive fashion purchased the machinery for a ten stamp mill. It was a nice order, and Daingerfield was delighted.

"This is going to cost you about half your fortune, Jack," he informed Webster when the order was finally made up.

Webster grinned. "You don't suppose I'm chump enough to pay for it now, do you, Joe?" he queried.

"I'm going first to scout the country and in the meantime keep all this stuff in your warehouse until I authorize you by cable to ship, when you can draw on me at sight for the entire invoice with bill of lading attached. If, upon investigation, I find that this mine isn't all my partner thinks it is, I'll cable a cancellation, and you can tear that nice fat order up and forget it."

From Daingerfield's office Webster went forth to purchase a steamer trunk, his railway ticket and, sleeping car reservation—after which he returned to his hotel and set about packing for the journey.

Old Neddy Jerome, as sour and cross as a setting hen, accompanied him in the taxicab to the station, both to let him escape and pleading to the last, in a forlorn hope that Jack Webster's better nature would triumph over his friendship and boyish yearning for adventure. He clung to Webster's arm as they walked slowly down the track and paused at the steps of the car containing the wanderer's reservation, just as a porter, carrying some hand baggage, passed them by, followed by a girl in a green tailor-made suit. As she passed, John Stuart Webster looked fairly into her face, started as if bee-stung, and hastily lifted his hat. The girl briefly returned his scrutiny with sudden interest, decided she did not know him, and reproved him with a glance that even passe old Neddy Jerome did not fail to assimilate.

"Wow, wow!" he murmured. "The next time you try that, Johnny Webster, be sure you're right——"

"Good land o' Goshen, Neddy," Webster replied. "Fry me in bread crumbs, if that isn't the same girl! Let me go, Neddy. Quick! Good-bye, old chap. I'm on my way."

"Nonsense! The train doesn't pull out for seven minutes yet. What is she, John, and why does she excite you so?"

"Who is she, you ancient horse thief? Why, if I have my way—and I'm certainly going to try to have it—she's the future Mrs. W."

"Alas! Poor Yorick, I knowed him well," Jerome answered. "Take a tip from the old man, John. I've been through the mill and I know. Never marry a girl that can freeze you with a glance. It isn't safe. By the way, what's the fair charmer's name?"

"I've got it down in my memorandum book, but I can't recall it this minute—Spanish name."

"John, my dear boy, be careful," Neddy Jerome counseled. "Stick to your own kind of people—— Is this—a—er—a nice girl, John?"

"How do I know—I mean, how dare you ask? Of course, she's nice. Can't you see she is? And besides, why should you be so fearful——"

"I'll have you understand, young man, that I have considerable interest in the girl you're going to marry. By the way, where did you first meet this girl? Who introduced you?"

"I haven't met her, and I've never been introduced," Webster complained, and poured forth the tale of his adventure on the train from Death valley. Neddy was very sympathetic.

"Well, no wonder she didn't recognize you when you saluted her tonight," he agreed. "Thought you were another brute of a man trying to make a mash. By thunder, Jack, I'm afraid you made a mistake when you shed your whiskers and buried your old clothes."

"I don't care what she thinks. I found her. I lost her, and I've found her again; and I'm not going to take any farther chances."

CHICAGO LOSES DRAINAGE CASE

water diversion of the proposed lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

Andrew B. Dougherty, attorney general of Michigan, has issued a statement, warning the people of this state that while one victory has been won the fight is still on. "The sanitary district forces are extremely resourceful," he states. "There is no telling what action may be taken in a further attempt to divert large quantities of water to the detriment of the shipping and water-power development of the Great Lakes and connecting waters." He also urges: "The abstraction of excessive amounts of water from Lake Michigan materially reduces the levels of all the great lakes and connecting waters excepting Lake Superior. However, navigation on Lake Superior is materially affected by any lowering of the lower lakes, these determining the depths to which boats could be loaded in navigating to or from points on Lake Superior. It is undisputed that the abstraction of 10,000 cubic feet a second reduces the levels of the great lakes and connecting watera at various places from 4.5 to 6.9 inches. This reduction tends to nullify costly improvements heretofore maile throughout the great lakes to the amount of many millions of dollars as well as afflicting great loss on navigation and water power development." He asserted that the withdrawal of 10,000 cubic feet a second would seriously impair the development of waterpower on the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers.

Fire on Pine Lake

There were several children skating on Pine Lake Friday, January 3, at about 2 o'clock, near the Loeb Farms. There were two fish shanties belonging to Douglas Knudsen and Frank Erfourth. The hoys had gone to skate with the other children and left quite a hot fire in the stove. Some time afterwards they turned and saw one of the shanties ablaze. They all rushed over to save what they could of the fishing tackle and rubbers which they had left inside. Luckily everything was saved except the shanty, which burned to the ground.—Written by Alice Orvis.

Two Royal Oak men driving north for a hunting trip, and armed with two shotguns and a rifle, were held up by highwaymen near Flint and robbed of $22. It is estimated, however, that they were taken completely by surprise, and did not have an instant in which to mistake the highwaymen for something else..

PASSED ON OFFICERS' BONDS

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS CHECK IN NEW INCUMBENTS

Seven Banks Picked As Depositaries —Alexander Licensed to Sell Gas

The Board of Supervisors for Charlevoix county met in their regular adjourned session last Monday and Tuesday at the court house and transacted county business of various kinds, among which was the designating of county depositaries for the deposits of county funds, all of the seven banks of the county being so designated. These depositary banks are required to give bond to the county as its protection. An agreement was also entered into between the banks and the board of supervisors whereby the county is to receive 2% per annum as interest on commercial account and 3% on all savings accounts.

The new officers took their places in the court house Tuesday night with the exception of the county treasurer, who was checked in Wednesday morning. The incoming officers and the amounts of their bonds are as follows: Charles Novak, sheriff, $10,000.00; Charles H. Emrey, county clerk, $2,000.00; Joseph Wm. Flanders, county treasurer, $30,000; Frank F. Bird, register of deeds, $3,000.00; Arthur L. Fitch, prosecutor, no bond required, Lisle Shanahan, circuit court commissioner, $3,000.00; Archie Alcock, drain commissioner, $1,000.00; Dr. F. F. McMillan, coroner, bond not yet filed; E. A. Robinson, surveyor, no bond required; Samuel E. Rogers, road commisioner, $2,000.00, and Samuel Alexander, ferryman, $1,000.

The probate court petitioned the board of supervisors that a registrar be appointed for this court and the board authorized that the same be appointed at a salary of $10.00 per annum. This appointment is for the purpose of assisting the probate court in handling the probating of wills and estates of persons who reside outside of the state of Michigan, as, by having a registrar to sign up such records, the court is relieved of the necessity of procuring affidavits and makes for greater clarity in the recording of such cases.

The question of purchasing a new car for the sheriff was debated at length and it was finally decided to trade in the old car as part payment on a new one rather than put any considerable money into a general overhauling of the old car, as in that case the purchase of many new parts would be necessary.

Samuel Alexander, ferryman at the Ironton Ferry, was given permission by the board to carry on a private gasoline business and establish his own tank. In the past, in cases where motorists crossing the ferry have found themelves without sufficient gasoline to negotiate the steep hills in that district, Mr. Alexander has been in the habit of obliging them with gas from the county tank, which necessitated frequent reports and special trips to Charlevoix to turn the money over to the county treasurer. The new ruling will obviate this difficulty. It is expressly understood, however, that the ferryman shall not neglect the transportation of cars nor any of the duties connected with their transportation to sell gasoline to the public, but he is granted the right to make gasoline sales in his spare time.

A petition, signed by a number of citizens of Boyne City was presented to the board, praying that an investigation be made into the death of one, Henry Davis, son of H. E. Davis of Boyne City. The boy returned from the industrial school at Lansing, where he had been committed by the juvenile court and died a short time after arriving at his home in Boyne City. It is claimed in the petition that lack of care while in the institution and having been sent home in cold weather insufficiently clad and ill contributed to the boy's death. This matter was referred to the prosecuting attorney with instructions from the board of supervisors that a thorough and proper investigation be made of the matter without delay.

Owing to the death of supervisor H. E. Hutton of South Arm township, Charles T. Murphy attended the sessions of the board as supervisor from that district, while John Karcher of Bay township filled the vacancy caused by the death of the late E. C. Chew. Both Mr. Hutton and Mr. Chew were supervisors of long standing and held responsible committee stations on the board.

This is the first time in 15 years that "Bowery" Bill Gallagher has missed attending a January session. He said he would be there rain or shine, but the fates were "agin" him. His flying machine was out of order.

The board of supervisors worked diligently while attending this session, seventeen members being in attendance. They completed their work about eight o'clock Tuesday evening, which made the two day session a busy one.

OBITUARY

Edward Williams, a former resident of this city, died at his home in Lake Helen, Florida, December 24, 1924.

Mr. Williams, who was 50 years old at the time of his death, was born on a farm near Ironton, September 8, 1874. He was a grnduate of the Charlevoix high school and later graduated from the pharmacy department of the University of Chicago. While in this city he was employed in the drug establishment of Vern Cook. This wns some 25 or 26 years ago and he will very likely be remembered by members of the old generation of our residents.

Mr. Williams was married in 1902 to Miss Emma Zepp, of Chicago. To this union three children were born, one dying in infancy. He leaves a wife and a dnughter, Charlotte, who was married last August to Lewis Folsom, of Deland, Fla., and a son, Edwnrd at home. Besides his wife and family he lenves an aged mother, who lives in Eveline; six brothers, Will, of Sioux Look, Ont., Cannda, Frank of Quimbell, Can., Walter of Lamgan, Sask. Canada, Pierce of Detroit, George of Charlevoix, and Alfred of Eveline; three sister, Mrs. Lottie Tumath of Hermansville, Mich., Mrs. Mamie Straw, of Marion, and Mrs. Anna McMulkin of Ironton.

Mr. Williams owned a drug store on Spaulding avenue in Chicago for a number of years until the encroaching ravages of his malady, diabetes, forced him to retire. The family moved to Lake Helen in 1923, thinking that a change in climate would benefit his health, which, however, gradually failed until the end came last week.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge in Chicago and while in Charlevoix was an active member of the local M. E. church. He made many friends, carrying his religion and its principles all through life, doing good where he could, with a smile and a pleasant word for everyone.

The funeral and interment were conducted at Deland by the Masons of that city.—1-tf.

Might be a good idea to have the date when Congress meets in December set apart to observe as National Trouble Day.

Capt. James Martin with his tug, the Eveline M., arrived in this port Monday night, having landed 150 sacks of mail consigned to the Beavers on the ice about two miles out of St. James, where it was carried to shore by teams. He reports the tugs, A. & M. Link and Venus, still held in the ice two miles off the harbor.

Well, Well! We'll have to apologize to the folks who told us they saw robins. Here comes a tale from the north side about a family of bluejays that got their dates mixed and arrived here slightly ahead of the resort season. And do you notice how the days are getting longer? Must be spring is one the way.

LOS ANGELES IS FAR FROM DEAD

Publishers of Times Indignantly Deny Current Rumours

The editor of this paper has just received a copy of the mid-winter number of the Los Angeles Times, published New Year's day.

The publishers call it their 40th milestone, as it is the 40th year of its issue. Besides being attractively illustrated rotogrnvure, colors and half-tones, it is replete with information regarding Los Angeles, the doubling of its export trade, its increase in population and valuation, n building record of $150,000,000, new highways, great flood control and wnter conservation projects, new public facilities and utilities, harbor improvements, increase in factory output to more than $1,000,000,000 and all this in 1924—an overwhelming refutation, according to the publishers of the "unwarranted slurs on southern California circulated so extensively throughout the east and midde west during the year, 1924."

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 11

The pastor will preach at 10:30 a. m., on the theme: "Ultimate Triumph of Righteousness."

Sunday school at 11:45. Subject, "The Last Judgment."

Sunday evening service at 7:00 p. m. Sermon by the pastor.

B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6:00 p. m. The subject of "Helping the Needy" will be discussed. Leader—Mrs. Walter Smith.

Thursday evening, continuation of study of Christian Doctrine.

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Kingsnorth, Wednesday afternoon. Subject, "China."

The B. Y. P. U. monthly social and business meeting will be held at the home of Miss Kingsnorth, Friday evening, of this week.

BARNARD

A vast improvement of weather conditions.

Mrs. Gornell returned from her visit to Chicago, on Tuesday.

Gertrude Petter returned to her duties at the hospital on Saturday.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Wm. Burns next Wednesday, January 14th.

A fine new boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kloosterer on New Year's morning. He weighed ten pounds and will be called James.

Grange officers and members are urged to be present at the regular meeting on Friday night. The newly elected officers will be installed at that time.

On account of a delay in getting the furnace repairs, school did not re-open until Wednesday morning.

DAD FEIGHNER SURE CAN SAY A MOUTHFUL

We'll Admit That He Has This Time Anyway

Len Feighner of the Nashville News says: "Let's resolve right now that 1925 will be the biggest and best business year Nashville has ever had. It will be easy if we all get into the harness and pull together. It can't be done by each one pulling in a different direction. You can teach even a team of mules that much."

You're right, Dad, you're right, by gum! Truer words than them never was spoke. If ever Charlevoix needed a slogan it is expressed as per the above. Too little cooperation in public meetings on vital issues and too much cooperation on the street corners and back of the stove in the pool room has nearly been the death of us. Let's follow Len's advice.

ROAD COMMISSIONERS MET ON LAST TUESDAY

Thompson is Chairman and Rogers the New Member

The Board of County Road Commissioners met at the office of Clerk Ernest Peaslee in the court house last Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of reorganizing for 1925, for the transaction of minor matters of business and the formulation of plans for the coming road building season.

The present members of the board are F. E. Thompson of Boyne City, W. E. Byers of Charlevoix and Samuel E. Rogers of East Jordan. Mr. Rogers took his seat as a member of the board for the first time on Tuesday, having been elected to succeed Roscoe Mackey, the retiring member. Mr. Thompson was unanimously elected chairman of the board for the new year.

Birthday Surprise

Chris Lyngklip, of Ironton, was pleasantly surprised last Sunday night when twenty of his friends gathered at his home in honor of his birthday. A fine chicken supper was served and the balance of the evening spent at "500."

NEW PALACE THEATRE
ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, January 10 and 11

Dorothy Devore in "HOLD YOUR BREATH." Walter Heirs is also starred in this great comedy-drama. In this play you will "hold your breath" while the nerviest little girl reporter in captivity gives you a demonstration of a T-H-R-I-L-L! You'll gasp and you'll laugh until you cry—for more! Better and bigger than Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last."

Also Bobby Vernon in "RENO OR BUST," a matrimonial comedy worth seeing.

Wednesday, January 14

William Russell in "ALIAS THE NIGHT WIND." This is one of the latest and best Russell pictures of the day. The plot is clever and will hold the interest throughout.

We also have a good fast comedy, "COW BOYS."

CHAPTER III

The porter, having delivered his charge's baggage in her section, was returning for another lip. Webster reached out and arrested him.

"Henry," he said, "where did you stow that young lady's hand baggage?"

"Lower Six, Car Nine, sah."

"I have a weakness for colored boys who are quick at figures," Webster declared, and dismissed the porter with the gratuity. He turned to Jerome. "Neddy, I feel that I am answering the call to a great adventure," he declared solemnly.

"I know it, Jack. Good-bye, son, and God bless you. If your fit of insanity passes within 90 days, cable me; and if you're broke, stick the Colorado Cow for the cable tolls."

"Good old wagon!" Webster replied affectionately. Then he shook hands and climbed aboard the train. The instant he disappeared in the vestibule, however, Neddy Jerome waddled rapidly down the track to Car 9, climbed aboard, and made his way to Lower 6. The young lady in the green tailor-made suit was there, looking idly out of the window.

"I'm Old Enough to Be Your Father."

"Young lady," Jerome began, "may I presume to address you for a moment on a matter of great importance to you? Don't be afraid of me, my dear. I'm old enough to be your father, and besides, I'm one of the nicest old men you ever met."

She could not forbear a smile. "Very well, sir," she replied.

Neddy Jerome produced a pencil and card. "Please write your name on this card," he pleaded, "and I'll telegraph what I want to say to you. There'll be a man coming through this car in a minute, and I don't want him to see me here. Please trust me, young lady."

The young lady did not trust him, however, although she wrote on the card. Jerome thanked her and tied as fast as his fat old legs could carry him. Under the station arc he read the card.

"Henrietta Wilkins," he murmured. "By the gods, one would never suspect a name like that belonged to a face like this. By jingo, it would be strange if that madman persuaded her to marry him. I hope he does. If I'm any judge of character, Jack Webster won't be cruel enough to chain that vision to Sobrante; and besides, she's liable to make him decide who's most popular with him—Henrietta or Billy Geary. If she does, I'll play Geary to lose. Well! Needs must when the devil drives." And he entered the station telegraph office and commenced to write.

An hour later Miss Dolores Huey, alias Henrietta Wilkins, was handed this remarkably verbose and truly candid telegram:

"Miss Henrietta Wilkins, Lower 6, Car 9, on board train 24.

"Do you recall the bewhiskered, ragged individual you met on the S. P., L. A. & S. L. train in Death valley ten days ago? He lifted his hat to you tonight, and you almost killed him with a look. It did not occur to him that you would not recognize him disguised as a gentleman, and he lifted his hat on impulse. Do not hold it against him. The sight of you again set his reason tottering on its throne, and he told me his sad story.

"This man, John Stuart Webster, is wealthy, single, forty, fine and crazy as a March hare. He is in love with you. You might do worse than fall in love with him. He is the best mining engineer in the world, and he is now aboard the same train with you en route to New Orleans, there to take the steamer to Buenaventura Sobrante, C. A., where he is to meet another lunatic and hammer a hole in the ground. I do not want him to go to Sobrante. If you marry him, he will not. If you do not marry him, you still might arrange to make him listen to reason. If you can induce him to [illegible] for me within the next 60 days whether you marry him or not, I will give you $5,000 the day he [illegible] the job. Please bear in mind that I do this not [illegible] like. If he did he would kill me [illegible] is [illegible] not this is a plain business proposition. I am putting you to no cost and will know your power and capacities in if you care to use the money. If not, please forget about it. At any rate, please do me the favor to communicate with me on the subject. If at all interested [illegible] and I arrange President Colorado Consolidated Mines Ltd., Carlton Towers Club."

He read and pocketed the [illegible] gazed several times at [illegible] shook his head as he [illegible] around the corners of her adorable mouth.

"I believe that amazing old goat's mad is absolutely [illegible]," was the decision at which she arrived after [illegible] arrival and calling for [illegible] black, she wired Donald [illegible]:

"Have decided not to [illegible] Make it Sharon and I will [illegible] to deliver the mail with [illegible] stay on his train to New [illegible]

"HENRIETTA."

That telegram and the [illegible] beers' time about [illegible] and pair, smart to [illegible], to night barkeeper read it and passed the contents to Neddy Jerome who promptly telephoned his ready to the telegraph office and [illegible] on the edge of his bed sending his [illegible] meditating.

"That's a peach of a young woman," he decided, "and she's [illegible] her finger tips. Well, I've done my part, and it's hers up to [illegible] Wilkins or to protect [illegible] breakaways."

About daylight a wire [illegible] Neddy Jerome's party of eight [illegible] berth curtains to Dolores Huey. She read:

"Accept. Where you deliver the goods, communicate with me and get your money.

"HENRIETTA."

She snuggled back among the pillows and considered the various aspects of this amazing contract which she had undertaken with a perfect stranger. Hour after hour she lay there, thinking over this preposterous situation, and the more she weighed it, the more interesting and attractive the proposition appeared. But one consideration troubled her. How would the unknown knight manage an introduction? Or if he failed to manage it, how was she to overcome that obstacle?

"Oh, dear," she murmured, "I do hope he's brave."

She need not have worried. Hours before, the object of her thought had settled all that to his own complete satisfaction, and as a consequence was sleeping peacefully, and gaining strength for whatever of fortune, good or ill, the morrow might bring forth.

AT THE MOVIES

Aeroplane Crash Furnishes Thrills

Among the numerous thrills pictured in the Al Christie feature "Hold Your Breath," playing at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, January 10 and 11, is a realistic scene of an aeroplane crashing in a crowded New York street. For this scene a real Thomas-Morse scout plane, one of the speediest types used in the aviation camps during the war, fell to the street in a nose-dive while hundreds of terror-stricken spectators rushed for safety.

Interspersed with many salient thrills are bursts of humor that issue forth with the same gusto and effectiveness as the spectacular crash of the aeroplane. The story "Hold Your Breath" was written by Frank Roland Conklin, author of numerous successful Christie plots, and in this newest Christie feature he has proven that he is a master at developing hilarious situations.

A wonderful comedy cast interprets the breezy tale. Dorothy Devore, Walter Hiers, Tully Marshall, Jimmie Adams, Priscilla Bonner, Jimmie Harrison and Lincoln Plumer have prominent roles.

Bobby Vernon and Duane Thompson will be seen at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, January 10 and 11 in Christie's latest two reel farce, "Reno or Bust," a comedy based on the present day divorce craze.

In line with Christie's recent policy of fast action and hilarity, the comedy was written by Frank Roland Conklin with plenty of action jammed into its two thousand feet and the speed was preserved by Archie Mayo, a well known comedy director recently added to the Christie staff. A marriage, divorce and remarriage occur in the comedy, all in the space of six hours.

In addition to Bobby Vernon and Duane Thompson, such well known Christie characters as Lila Leslie, Victor Rodman, Billy Bletcher and Budd Fine have prominent parts in the comedy.

THE RECOMPENSE

Mildred Anne Leslie

"Play, laugh, run, strive, and work with your children."

There was once a little girl who had the most wonderful mother and father in the world. Also her brother and sister, who were quite grown up, were the finest and most beautiful young persons this particular little girl could imagine. Unfortunately, they had to be away at school nine months out of every twelve, for this family happened to live in a very tiny town.

Father's business was such that he made frequent trips to the country, and still nicer, frequent trips to the city. Whenever there was anything that this little girl could possibly be interested in, Daddy was always willing to let her go along.

Mother could always find time to devise some plan for a dull day. What fun it was to play school with Mother as a teacher! She could teach while she was sewing, or baking, or making beds, or writing a paper for her club. It was all the more fun to have a teacher who made pretty dresses for her pupil while she was actually teaching her to read or write. It wasn't every one who could learn to subtract while sniffing delicious cookies, and know that if one worked very quickly she might have just one cookie with her glass of milk!

And oh, the thrills before the first trip on a Pullman with Daddy, to a convention! Mother and daughter played the lovely game of "sleeping car" for weeks before with chairs and portieres. And when the time came to go, and all of her clothes were packed in Daddy's big suitcase, and she was kissed for the last time, and Daddy was reminded once again to ask the porter on the Pullman or the mail in the hotel to tie her hair ribbon, and the train finally pulled out for a glorious adventure—what a happy little girl she was! Then the breath-taking sight of the inside of the big hotel! The distracting sounds of the bustling city! The delicious "never-before-did-anything-taste-so-good" flavor of the foods Daddy let her order all by herself! The important feeling of sitting very still beside Daddy at meetings, even when she hadn't any idea what they were all about! And, best of all, the joy of going home again and telling mother all about everything! Jokes were so much funnier shared with mother, experiences so much more wonderful after they had been talked over with her.

Once in a while because mother and daddy were so good to this all-alone little girl and so thoughtful in her behalf, she forgot to appreciate them. Then they very wisely and very gravely would just not have time for her for awhile, and would let her exhaust her own possibilities for education and entertainment. It usually didn't take long for her to realize that getting up for breakfast with them was much more pleasant than sleeping late and cooking her own! When she insisted on having a puppy in addition to her cat and her two pet chicken, Daddy bought her one; but taking care of so many pets soon got to be a very irksome pleasure. It developed that there had been a reason for his original objection to that additional care.

No matter what happened, or didn't happen, our little girl was always finding that no one else understood, no one sympathized, no one rejoiced as mother and daddy did. Of course, Daddy seldom said so, but she always knew. Mother was so busy doing things, that discussions were rare, but her little girl always shared in that doing. When big brother and sister came home from college they always opened up a delightful new world of work and parties and interests which little sister could share, by proxy, if not actually. Everything seemed to combine to make this little girl happy.

But it was not always to be so. Something happened to Daddy's business which took away all the confidence from his eyes, and all the peace from mother's and much of the happiness from sister's and put a new, stern expression in big brother's which seemed to say that he had been graduated from college just in time to be father's strong right arm.

Little sister grew up quite suddenly. Mother and Daddy had played and laughed and worked and rejoiced and sympathized with her—she would show them that she could find ways of making dull hours bright for them, could learn to work in order to help take burdens from their shoulders. She it was who remembered to say grace at meals and have family worship when the family was torn up and transplanted to a new community and a strangely friendless environment.

Father's eyes finally brightened with confidence, and mother's with hope, if not with assurance. Big sister learned to work, happily carrying her end of the load, and big brother was a true rock of strength. Little sister, consciously growing up, was filled with a sense of responsibility which was a joy in itself because it afforded her an opportunity to give back in some measure the happiness of her childhood!

COMMUNICATION

To spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in the construction of a road, only to attempt deliberately to destroy it, may appear to be a strange procedure. Yet the Illinois highway department has done just that—and no one who knows the result doubts the wisdom of the investment.

The road in question is an experimental one, built at the villages of Bates near Springfield to obtain reliable data on the ability of various types and designs of road and surfaces to withstand modern traffic. In the two miles of test road there are 63 different sections: 24 of portland cement concrete and 39 of other types.

Fifteen army tracks carrying loads up to and even exceeding that permitted by law have been run thousands upon thousands of times both day and night over the test sections. Accurate records have been kept and an effort has been made to determine the reasons for the various kinds of failures.

Due to the traffic to which they have been subjected, all but nine of the original 63 sections have been seriously damaged, many of them having been destroyed almost beyond recognition. Of the nine still practically intact, seven are of concrete of various thicknesses and designs including the state's standard section (7 inches of 1:2:3½ monolithic concrete). The remaining two have concrete bases, but top courses of other material.

The tests prove conclusively that to withstand modern traffic, the first requisite is an adequate concrete foundation. And with that, no other expense need be incurred for an additional surface for either streets or highways, as is proved by the excellent manner in which the seven sections of concrete withstood the severe tests.

As a result of these tests, engineers for the state highway department already have changed the standard design so as to save $1,500 per mile of new roads and with further tests expect to justify additional changes in design that will save another $1,500, or a total of $3,000 per mile.

These tests made under the direction of Clifford Older, consulting engineer, 140 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, who was then chief highway engineer, state of Illinois, and Frank T. Sheets, then superintendent of highways and now chief highway engineer, are among the first, most conclusive and most comprehensive ever conducted. And Illinois will not be the only one to profit. Highway engineers from the U. S. office of public roads, from nearly every state in the union, and from many foreign countries have visited the Bates experimental road and have returned with many new ideas concerning the requirements to meet present traffic conditions and economies that can be effected.

It is particularly gratifying to note that these tests have proved the superiority of concrete for both country roads and city pavements in a most decided way.

Yours truly,

"Uncle" George.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Boy's and Girl's Calf Club Organized

Plans made some time ago for the organization of a Calf Club have met with success and a thriving club consisting of 14 members is in existence, performing its important function in encouraging the young folks to a keener appreciation of the value of high blooded stock and incidently a new knowledge of the business of farming. This is one of the first Calf Clubs ever organized in Charlevoix county and give indications of being the best, let us hope.

We all realize today, as it ever was, and probably always will be, that a good, profitable dairy herd is the soundest and most solid foundation upon which to build a successful and permanent agriculture for many reasons.

With our method of farm operations and management constantly changing, our viewpoint of marketing problems decidedly different, and our successful agriculture of the future depending directly on the young folks of today, work of this nature should be emphasized. It is hoped that the club members will be impressed with the difference in the money-making ability of the pure-bred and high-grade over the scrub and inferior kinds of animals that live and exist through the generosity of their owners and are merely "boarders" and pay no rent.

The prospective club members were given their choice of a pure-bred or a grade, of any of the three major dairy breeds, and of the age of calf they desired. It is encouraging to note that five of these calves selected were pure-breds and that the other nine were good grades, one of the parents being a pure-bred and out of dams having cow-testing association records excepting in one case. The sire of one of these calves has a record, whose five nearest dams have averaged over 850 pounds of butterfat and all of the calves have dams capable of producing over 1 pound of fat a day. Surely these animals will encourage the parents and neighbors to redouble their efforts in owning the best.

Many of the members, not having the necessary cash to purchase the calves, have borrowed the money from the various banks in the county, the loan being for a year and carrying either a 6% or 7% interest. Now in order to earn the money the young folks are making various bargains with their parents. One boy is feeding all the calves on the farm for the keep of his calf, others are milking an extra cow or two, and many other similar deals are made. The youngest member of the club has a calf that, although only 3 weeks old, follows her all over the farm—that is, outside the house.

Four months before the Fair all the members will keep an accurate account of all the feed consumed and cost of feed, etc., these records to be presented to the agent at the time of the Fair. A Calf Club exhibit will be one of the features of the 1925 county fair, at which time suitable premiums will be offered. One of the requirements in the club is the showing of the calf at the Fair.

It was hoped to have a larger membership, but the early winter cut the work short, in fact, two more calves were to be delivered the very day that the storm arrived. Next spring the club will be enlarged and if you have a boy or girl who wishes to join and have the satisfaction and pride of owning, feeding, and caring for a calf, write your county agent for details.

The following is the membership of the club at present, the age of the members being from 8 years to 15 years, and the calves from 3 weeks to a year:

Albert Elliott, Charlevoix—Pure-bred Guernsey.

Arthur Elliott, Charlevoix—Grade Guernsey.

Frank Severance, East Jordan—Pure-bred Holstein.

Lucille Severance, East Jordan—Pure-bred Holstein.

Clarence Trojanek, East Jordan—Pure-bred Holstein.

Mary Behling, Boyne City—Pure-bred Holstein.

George Shupton, Charlevoix—Grade Holstein.

Ova Crowe, Boyne City—Grade Jersey.

Earl Brown, Ironton—Grade Jersey.

Edward Omland, East Jordan—Grade Jersey.

Stephen Shepard, East Jordan—Grade Jersey.

Rex Supernaw, Charlevoix—Grade Jersey.

Richard Straw, Charlevoix—Grade Jersey.

Burr Blanchard, Phelps—Grade Jersey.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage, dated the 10th day of April, 1919, executed by George E. Cummings and wife, Ella M. Cummings, of Norwood Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, was given to Medrick Seymour of Charlevoix, Michigan, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, in Liber 29 of Mortgages on page 368 on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1919, which mortgage was on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923, assigned by said Medrick Seymour to Neil McAuley of Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County aforesaid in Liber 55 of Mortgages on page 100, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $1,993.60 of principal and interest, and a further sum of $12.30 and interest thereon for taxes paid on said premises, and the sum of $73 and interest thereon for insurance paid on said premises, together with an attorney fee of $35 as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof:

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of the principal and interest, together with the amounts paid for taxes and insurance, costs and expenses of foreclosure, including the attorney fee provided by statute, at Public Auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows, towit: The west half of the northeast quarter and the west half of the east half of the northeast quarter of Section eighteen, Township thirty-three north, Range eight west.

Dated December 16th, 1924.

Neil McAuley,
Mortgagee.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR TROOPERS IN ALL STATES

MICHIGAN COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC SAFETY SEES SPREAD OF SYSTEM FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

EXPLAINS TROOPERS DUTIES

State Police Earn Their Way By Returns to State Treasury

"I see a great future for state police organizations in the states which now have them. Further than that I predict that a great many other states will sooner or later have such organizations."

Harry H. Jackson, commissioner of the Michigan Department of Public Safety, of which the State Police are the principal unit, was asked the question, "What future do you see for such organizations as the Michigan State Police after completing a full year to the work?" and the above was his answer.

Commissioner Jackson was appointed to head the Michigan Department by Governor Groesbeck in October, 1923. He remained in command all through 1924. Although a man of long police experience, most of his life to fact, he had always served a local police department. At the time he became attached to the state organization he was head of the traffic division of the Detroit (Mich.) police department with the rank of inspector and the manner in which he handled the traffic situation in the city of Detroit had much to do with Governor A. J. Groesbeck selecting him in head the Department of Public Safety.

"The success of the State Police organizations in the states that now have them assures their future. In my opinion," said Commissioner Jackson, "and the successes already obtained and those of the future, will lead other states to fall into line and adopt such law enforcing agencies. As time goes on and situations develop in states that do not have a State Police force, similar to situations which have been met and conquered by State Police forces, strict law enforcement advocates will realize how their states can profit as others did and urge the passage of necessary laws creating the organization of State Police units."

Force Earns Its Way

"If properly managed, a State Police force can be made to be almost self sustaining. That could be made possible by having a large portion of the fines collected in State Police convictions and perhaps some of the other fees collected in the work revert back to the operation of the force. And in connection with this question I want to stress upon a saving that is made to the counties through the State Police. In Michigan, and I suppose it is the same in most other states, the counties allow their sheriff's department certain amounts each year for hiring special deputies and other such assistance as he may need. A State Police organization does, to a large extent, relieve that burden because a most important part of the work is close cooperation with the local officers, particularly the county officers whose territory is wide."

Commissioner Jackson said that his department has sent out a number of bulletins to the sheriff's departments in every county in the state informing them that the State Police is at their disposal and advising where the nearest State Police post is located and how it can be reached in the shortest possible time, day or night.

Duties Are Numerous

The Michigan force is composed of about 180 men, 150 of whom are in uniform, the others doing plain clothes work, handling investigations, etc., in which a uniform would endanger the results.

In addition to doing general police work the Michigan State Police do traffic work, conduct inspections of oil entering the state, transfer of prisoners from state institution to state institution, assist in investigations of suspected arson cases, and have the supervision of men paroled from prison.

The Department of Public Safety is divided into several divisions. One is the State Police, and others are the fire marshal's division, bureau of identification and the detective bureau, all manned by state policemen. The fire marshal's division until a few years ago was a separate department of state government. About two years ago the bureau of identification was organized and the detective bureau was started during Commissioner Jackson's regime. The oil inspection work comes under the fire marshal's division and the supervision of paroled men is a part of the State Police division.

Since the adoption of the prohibition amendment, its enforcement has fallen to a great extent into the hands of the State Police in states having such organizations.

The average cost per mile for road building in the United States for the past five years has been $16,675.

UNDER THE DOME AT LANSING

From the Farmers Standpoint

The old capitol building is athrob with new life as the senators and representatives gather for the 1925 session of the Michigan state legislature, which opens at high noon on Wednesday, January 7th. The representatives are scheduled to go into caucus tonight in an attempt to break the threatened deadlock over the speakership of the lower chamber. Representatives Fred Ming of Cheboygan, Fred Wells of Cassopolis, George Watson of Capac and Joseph Warner of Ypsilanti, are most prominently mentioned for this high honor. Nelson Farrier of Hillman is regarded as a dark horse who might be willing to accept the honor as a compromise candidate. It is significant that all of the men mentioned for the speakership voted for the gas tax as members of the 1923 legislature.

The third biennial message of Governor Groesbeck will probably not be delivered until Thursday afternoon when the senators and representatives will assemble in joint session in the House of Representative's hall. The recommendations to be contained in the governor's message are being awaited with great interest by the law-makers and legislative observers.

Gas Tax in Lime Light

In view of the fact that state administrative officials are making no attempt to enforce the present automobile license law and seem to be making it as difficult as possible for Michigan automobile owners to obey the law and purchase 1925 license plates, there is no question but that the matter of highway finance will be the leading issue before the Michigan legislature during the first few weeks of the session. It is commonly supposed that the governor will sponsor some modification of the present license fees, probably eliminating the horse-power feature and making the rates depend entirely upon the weight basis. It is hoped that he will not oppose a two cent gasoline tax, for in view of the attitude of a large number of the senators and representatives in favor of the gas tax, any opposition on the part of the governor in this measure would probably lead to a repetition of the dead-lock which characterized the 1923 session.

Even if the matter of highway finance is satisfactorily settled there are many other important issues coming up which will provide ammunition for what has every appearance of developing into one of the most interesting and eventful sessions of the Michigan legislature ever held. Tax reform, legislative reapportionment, adoption or rejection of the proposed amendment to the federal constitution to give congress power to control, regulate or prohibit the employment of all persons up to 18 years of age, are a few of the big issues on the docket.

THE LITTLE RED HEN--

"Puck, puck, puck, pucKAYah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that ANY "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to ADVERTISE the fact.

A duck egg MIGHT be just as good, but the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't ADVERTISE, and duck eggs have no market.

To be absolutely sure in buying ANY merchandise, stick to the advertised brands. For their manufacturers believe in them and tell you about them daily in the advertising columns of this newspaper, over their signatures.

The duck-egg brands MIGHT be just as good, but you cannot be sure, if the manufacturers themselves will not admit it!

THE ZEDELER SYMPHONIC QUINTET

The Zedeler Symphonic Quintet, organized by Niedal Zedeler, has demonstrated conclusively that the rank and file of American people thoroughly appreciate the music of the masters when it is correctly interpreted.

In order to secure the fullest symphonic effects in an organization of this size, the quintet employs an especially constructed reed organ, which fills the place occupied by wind instruments in a larger orchestra.

A pleasing feature of the musical program is an explanation by Mr. Zedeler preceding each of the various selections.

The Zedeler Quintet is composed of artists of the first rank. Mr. Zedeler was for many years soloist with the Stockholm, Sweden, Symphony Orchestra and later with the New York Symphony.

With a personnel of such high grade it is not surprising that the Zedeler Quintet ranks with the greatest of the small orchestra organizations and approaches actual symphonic proportions in its musicianship and masterly appeal.

BLAKELY SUCCEEDS MURRAY

NAMED AS FIELD MAN FOR TOURIST ASSOCIATION

Field of Work Will Be in Thirty Counties of Western Michigan —Well Recommended

President Carrull F. Sweet of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association todny announced the appointment of Mr. F. V. Blakely as field representative of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association in the thirty counties of west Michignn.

Mr. Blakely succeeds S. B. Murray, resigned, who did that work for the association in 1924. Mr. Blakely comes to the Tourist and Resort Association with an enviable business record behind him, having beeo secretary-manager of the Credit Men's Associntion at Grand Rapids for four years. Prior to that time he spent an equal number of years as credit man and office manager for the Wilmarth Showcase Company of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Before that he spent eleven and one-half years with the J. W. York & Sons Band Instrument Company of Grand Rapids. It will be his office to do the field work in organizing the counties of west Michigan to get their share of the great volume of tourists' business that is expected in 1925 which some authorities predict will be a good year.

F. V. Blakely

"Mr. Blakely comes to us with a record of achievement that should make his services invaluable to the resort, real estate and merchants' interests in west Michigan," said Mr. Hugh J. Gray, secretary-manager of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association today in commenting upon Mr. Blakely's appointment. "He has worked in organization matters of this kind for many years, and his vast credit experience makes him a careful judge of west Michigan's possibilities and the possibilities of the various section of west Michigan as to tourist revenue. His work as field representative will bring him into contact with business authorities in all parts of this section, and we ask that every cooperation be given him to the end that west Michigan will roll up its volume of tourist business in 1925 beyond either 1923 or 1924. We nre indeed fortunate in being able to seeure Mr. Blakely for work for which his whole training for years has fitted him."

(From what we know of Mr. Murray's work, especially on his visits to Charlevoix, we believe the change will be a profitable one, not only to the association, but to the numerous western Michigan counties interested in this work. We hope Mr. Blakely will visit Charlevoix. There's a lot of ironing out of past differences and misunderstandings to be done here, with profit both to Charlevoix and the association.—Ed.)

FAREWELL PARTY GIVEN MRS. LONG

At Home of Mrs. B. L. Harrington Saturday Afternoon

A farewell party for Mrs. C. W. Long, held at the home of Mrs. B. L. Harrington on Clinton street last Saturday afternoon, was attended by twenty-five of her friends.

Following a social hour, dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. H. D. Dean, in behalf of the ladies and in a very pleasing manner, presented Mrs. Long with a beautiful bead bag as a token of love and friendship. Mrs. Long thanked her well-wishers in appropriate fashion, expressing her gratitude for the remembrance and for the spirit of friendship that prompted the donors.

Mrs. Long, during the three years of her sojourn in this community, has endeared herself to those with whom she has come in contact in its church activities and social life and her sterling qualities of character have long been recognized. Many were the good wishes for prosperity and happiness during the New Year which were left with her by the departing guests.

BOYS' BROTHERHOOD CHOOSE NEW OFFICERS

Alcedo Hamlin and Billy Novak Head Classes

The Junior Boys' Brotherhood held their January meeting on New Year's day in the Congregational church parlors.

The study period was a resume of the Sunday school lessons for the last quarter, pertaining to "New Life" and the "Kingdom of Heaven." In this contest between the "honor" class and the "winners," the latter won. The Honor class entertained in a royal manner and the slogan, "Friendship and Service," was made to mean more to each boy by this hour of study and play.

The officers for January in the "Winner" class are: President, Alcedo Hamlin; vice president, Otto Yemmans; secretary, Herbert Campbell. "Honor" class officers are: president, Billy Novak; vice president, David Coulter; secretary, Franklin Ross (who is also yell master for January).

The boys will gather magazines and papers to sell in the early spring to raise money to assist in the Sunday school and missionary work.

Dan Geneit, David Livingston, Herbert Campbell and Billy Novak were star scholars for December.

LOEB WINS IN DAMAGE SUIT

State Supreme Court Says Charlevoix Court Erred

Richard Loeb, serving life sentence for the murder of Bobby Franks in Chicago, was the victor last Tuesday, December 31, in an appeal before the Michigan supreme court in a damage suit brought by parents of James Franklin O'Brien, 10, who was injured near the Loeb summer home at Charlevoix during the summer of 1920.

Loeb was driving an automobile belonging to his brother Ernest. It was claimed the car was unlighted at the time and that young Loeb was unable to see a pony cart in which the O'Brien boy was riding.

The circuit court returned judgment of $2,000 against Loeb and his parents, who were joint defendents in the suit.

The supreme court ruled the lower court should have ordered a verdict for the defendants in the absence of positive evidence that they owned the automobile. The case was remanded for re-trial.

MILTON BLOCK WILL ADD GROCERY STOCK

New Department Will Be Open for Business Next Week

The extensive changes in the interior of Milton Block's meat market at 324 Bridge street are due to the fnct that Mr. Block intends to add in the immedinte future a complete line of groceries to his present ment business.

It is expected that the work of redecoration and finishing of the tiers of new stock shelving and counters will be completed this week and that the new department will be ready for business within the next ten days, or as soon as a complete stoek of groceries, fruits and vegetables can be secured.

We are glad to see one of our most substantial business men branching out in this manner, as it indicates his faith in his town and its future growth. It is but one of the many little sights we have observed lately to prove that business is "looking up" nt the start of the new year. May she be a bumper year!

TAKES ICY BATH IN ROUND LAKE WATERS

Sailor Off the J. B. John Broke Through Thio Spot

Albert Stoltz, 22 years of age, a member of the crew of the J. B. John, Petoskey Portland Cement Co. steamer now tied up at the Wilbur dock for the winter, while crossing the ice on Round Lake last Saturday at nbout noon, stepped into a channel cut by an outgoing tug the night before and sank to his waist in the freezing water. The ice had skimmed over the cut and a light fall of snow hid its treacherous nature.

Stoltz had presence of mind enough to throw out his arms and keep from going completely under. "Mickey" John O'Neill, who happened to be near by when Stoltz fell in, ran to his rescue and with the help of Jack Bugbee dragged him to a safe footing. Stoltz appeared to be none the worse for his trying experience.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 11

10:30 church service. Pastor will preach. Subject, "Separation or Compromise." If you have or have not any doubt as to your duty as a christian you ought to hear this sermon.

12 o'clock Sunday school. The boys still hold the banner for attendance. School last Sunday numbered 182. That is fair. But we ought to double that number.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. Splendid opportunity for boys and girls to get training in religious experience. Is your youngster there?

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. This jubilant bunch make their meeting lively. Forty-two in attendance. Any leader ought to have an inspiration in that crowd. There was a good crowd at the sleigh ride. The next concert will be appreciated by all.

7:00 p. m. evening service. Pastor will preach subject "Character Study of Caleb and Joshua." Come to our evening services.

Prayer meeting every Thursday at 7:30 p. m. This Thursday in the form of family worship. We call it "family night." We meet for pot-luck supper at 6:30. Following the worship, Sunday school board with election of officers and official board will be held. Every Sunday school teacher and officer and every official member are in duty bound to be there. Every member of the church is urged to be present.

The pastor is appointed District Stewardship secretary. In his program of operation every pastor of Grand Traverse district is asked to organize at least one circle. This local church will read seven books in the period Jan. 19 to April 27, as follows: "Stewardship for all of Life," "The Message of Stewardship," "The New Christian," "A Man and His Money," "The Victory of Mary Christopher," "Gauga Dass" and "A Partner with God."

On the evening of the 18th the local W. C. T. U. will celebrate the fifth anniversary in this church. The local pastors will be the speakers. It is a union service.

On February 9th in this church, "Pussyfoot" Johnson will deliver his celebrated lecture. He is known as "The World, Renouned Reformer, Journalist, Authur, Globe-Trotter, Famed as a detective and a terror to liquor violators." There will be no charge of admission when "Pussyfoot" Johnson speaks.

The Epworth Church Ladies' Aid Society has very generously made an offering to the Methodist Children's Home of $25.00. This splendid group of women have maintained their society even through their church has not been running. We deem this especially gracious of them and the gift will be highly appreciated.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing club meets this Thursday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. Morris Ackert, 1101 Bridge street.

Mrs. Dimmick's Sunday school class will sell candy at the "family night" supper, Thursday this week.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. M. B. Hooker. Mrs. Arnold's division has the program and will serve.

FISH TONNAGE TAX OPPOSED

LOCAL FISHERMEN AGAINST IT TO A MAN

Say Proposition Was Brought Up at Meeting Where Fishermen Were Not Represented

Commercial fishermen of Michigan are organized nnd prepared to fight "to the last ditch" any attempt by the Michigan legislature now in session, to pass a fish tonnage tax law unless it transpires that a similar tax is placed upon Great Lakes fishermen who live in other states, but who fish in Michigan waters, and compete with resident fishermen in this state.

This attitude on the part of representatives of the industry is expressed in an article appearing in the current issue of The Michignn Fisherman, in which reasons for the opposition are explained in detail:

The article follows:

"Director John Baird of the department of conservation, has apparently enlisted the aid of the newspapers of the Booth Syndicate in his fight to have the next legislature pass a tonnage tax on fish caught by the commercial fishermen of Michigan. Editorials have been appearing in different Booth newspapers throughout the state urging the adoption of the tonnage tax. One appeared in the Bay City Times-Tribune December 2, and one in the Detroit News on December 7 and one in the Grand Rapids Press in a recent issue.

Comment Partial

"The main point of these editorials seems to be that each year the catch of commercial fish has become less and less. No consideration or mention is made of handicaps that would result if Michigan fishermen were forced to operate under such a law. Nothing is said of the difficulty in successfully propagating commercial fish fry as long as the problem of pollution remains undisposed of. The articles are purely partial and one-sided in charocter and do not display the general and broad-minded spirit that a newspaper should exhibit.

"Considerable space is devoted by these articles to a discussion of the octivities of the stnte department of conservation in propagating commercial fish. No recognition is given by the writers of these articles to scientifie opinions which have long been in the pessession of the department of conservation and which read to the effect that successful propagation of fish life in the waters of large streams and the Greot Lakes cannot be successfully carried on as long as sugar factories and other modera day industries are permitted to dump their refuse and poisons into those waters. The scientists who have made o study of the situation say further that the npparent diminishing supply of commercial fish is due chiefly to the advance of civillzation and the pollution of waters by our industries which the state of Michigan permits to contribute un-noticed and unchecked.

Pollution is Menace

"It seems to us "penny wise and pound foolish" to make such a hub over tonnage tax on commercial fish with no nttention paid whatever to this more serious problem of pollution which requires urgent and immediate action. It occurs to us that there may be a purpose shown by several parties who posed tonnage tax. It may be that they seek to divert the attention of the public from the question of pollution. Chiefly among these men who would have a purpose for so doing would be William W. Wallace, who holds the position of chairman of the state conservation department ond who is heavily interested in sugar factories in the vicinity of Saginaw Bay and the Thumb district.

"At the suggestion, no doubt, of Mr. Baird, these articles have referred to a "fish trust," as existing in the state of Michigan. This idea is a novel one for it will be readily admitted by anyone who knows anything about commercial fishing that no such thing as a "fish trust" exists and never has existed. This organization is made up of hundreds of small fishermen who make their livelihood by the toils connected with the catching of fish from the waters of the Great Lakes and who would be forced to forsake the only calling and only work they have ever known should they be forced to operate under a Michigan tonnage tax on

READS PAPER FOR 24 YEARS THEN HE QUITS

The cross-word puzzle craze has cost a doily newspaper one of its oldest subscribers.

A victim of the puzzle fad, he wrote from his home near Garrettson, S. D., and declared:

"I have taken your paper for 24 years and hitherto bave found no fault with it. When you began running cross-word puzzles they were very good and possible to work, but lately they have been harder and harder and now are almost impossible to solve.

"Having written you about this matter and received no satisfaction, I am compelled to abandon your good newspaper and take another which prints puzzles which ean be worked without staying up all night.

"Innsmuch as I can take only one daily paper and no otber cross-word puzzles than those I get in newspapers are available, I am compelled to find a paper which is satisfactory in this department."

The Courier will start a series of cross-word puzzles next week. Wonder how many subscribers we will lose?

CHORUS CHOIR VISITS HOSPITAL

GIVE PROGRAM OF ANTHEMS, HYMNS AND SOLOS

Plan of Organization to Give These Programs at Hospital at Least Once Each Month

The chorus choir of the Congregational church visited the Charlevoix hospital last Sunday afternoon and held a song service there at four o'clock, in a room off one of the wards on the main floor.

The program included a Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, both by Caleb Simper, and three antehms; "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand", by Brackett; "In The Light of God", by Roney and Shelley's "Saviour, When Night Involves The Skies", the solo tenor parts in the last named composition being taken by the Rev. C. W. Long. Mrs. Livingston and Mrs. Stelter sang a duet, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul", by O. B. Brown. Rev. Long made a short prayer and read the 23rd psalm.

The choir numbered fifteen the parts being divided as follows: Sopranos: Mrs. Archie Livingston, Miss Ruth Solomon, Miss Catherina Clark and Mrs. Charles Lamphear; altos: Mrs. A. J. Stelter, Miss Isabelle Mitchell, Mrs. Stout. Miss Eileen Fairchild and Miss Cordelia Kelderhouse; tenors: Rev. C. W. Long, E. C. Sterritt and Gilbert Saltonstall; basses: Harry L. Oldham, Claud Greenway and F. V. Tyler. Mrs. H. L. Oldham was the organist, a parlor organ having been pressed into service for the occasion.

It is planned to hold these musical services at the hospital at least once a month during the winter season, as so far the efforts of the choir have met with much appreciation.

MISS HERRINGTON AND MR. MERRILL

Were Married in Detroit on Tuesday of Last Week

The marriage is announced of Miss Wahneta Herrington, formerly of this city and now of Detroit, and Leon Merrill, of Petoskey, the ceremony having taken place in Detroit on January 6th last.

Miss Herrington is a daughter of Barney H. Herrington of Charlevoix, and shortly before leaving for Detroit a year ago last fall was employed as operator at the local telephone exchange. She is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and also of St. Mary's college at Saginaw.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Merrill of Petoskey and a junior in the Detroit college of law. He is also a graduate of Petoskey high school and a world war veteran.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill will make their home in Detroit until Mr. Merrill completes his law course. They will spend their summers in Petoskey.

SURVEY YIELDS IMPORTANT DATA

TO DATE COVERS FIVE NORTHERN COUNTIES

Area of Unproductive Lands on Increase Despite Efforts to Prevent This Condition

The land economic survey which has been made by the state of Michigan during the past three years has developed considerable data of value in establishing a land policy for the 10,000,000 acres of waste and idle land in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula. The survey to date has covered the five counties of Charlevoix, Ogemaw, Antrim, Roscommon and Alpena, an oggregate area of 1,629,691 acres being surveyed at an average cost of less than 5 cents an acre.

The area of idle and unproductive lands in these counties has steadily increased despite all previous efforts by public and privote organizotions to prevent this condition. It is shown that the state has already aequired title to about 700,000 acres in forfeited tax titles, and the reeords show that 5,000,000 acres more are delinquent. Between March 1, 1923 and November 1924, n period of 20 months, 61,271 acres reverted to the state.

The land economic survey was created to determine whot policy should be followed to make this land yield an income to the state, and consists of a regular year-round staff of five experts, one of whom is the director and forestry specialist, one o land economist, one a professional soil surveyor, and two experienced general assistants. Field surveying crews for summer work are made up of about 15 odditional men, most of whom are recent graduates or advanced students from the agricultural college and the state university. The cooperation of professional soil surveyors from the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural college is also enlisted. The state geologist's office studies and maps the economic geology and geological history; hydro-engineers from tho state university inventory the water power resources, and other divisions of the department of conservation study game covers, game-carrying capacity, and fish and fur resources.

The field datn recorded by the surveyors include soil indentification and distribution; general surface relief and drainage; vegetation cover; economic conditions; resort data and recreationol possibilities; inventory of water power resources; geological data including information on deposits of shale, limestone, gravel, marl, etc.; stream data for fish, fur, and game, and general and miscellaneous scientific dota.

There is an area of approximately 40,000,000 acres in the Great Lakes cut-over region including parts of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota comparable to the land which has been or will be covered by the Michigan survey. This survey is the only attempt to date on the port of any of the state governments to inventory the resources and to assemble the information that will enable them to work out and adopt an economic policy for the utilization of this great area of unused land.

A report of the survey will appear in the columns of the Courier next week.

A DOZEN GAMES ARE SCHEDULED

FIVE OF THEM WILL BE PLAYED AT HOOKER'S

Home Court Will Be Thoroughly Warmed and Deodorized for Spectators

An interesting basketball schedule has been arranged for the winter season. The following schedule is the original arrangement:

Central Lake, Jan. 9th—There.
Mancelona, Jan. 16th—Here.
Pellston, Jan. 23rd—There.
Petoskey, Jan. 30th—Here.
Harbor Spgs., Feb. 6th—There.
Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 13—Here.
Petoskey, Feb. 17th—There.
Traverse City, Feb. 20th—There.
East Jordan, Feb. 27th—Here.
East Jordan, Mar. 6th—There.
Harbor Spgs., Mar. 13th—Here.
Tournament, Mar. 19—Petoskey.

In making up a schedule, we cannot olways have the dates we desire to play certain games, because they are not satisfactory with the other school concerned.

On account of the 3rd and 5th numbers of the high school lecture course being given on January 16th and March 13th respectively, it was necessary to make some alterations in the above schedule. Due to these conflicting dates, it became necessary for us to play the Mancelona game, Saturday night, January 17th and the home game with Harbor Springs will be played on February 6th. This, of course, changes the alternating scheme we had devised.

We are late in opening our season this year, because of the dismantling of the old roller rink, the place where we have formerly played. We have o fine new building in which to engaged in inter-scholastic athletic contests this year. It is well heated and about 250 people can be very comfortably seated on our new bleachers in addition to the large number of spectators who can observe the game from around the sides of the court.

All communications leading to the horse barn have been sealed and the best deodorizing agent on the market has been procured and used in the new building. We can assure the puhlic that there will be no offensive odors and that you will be comfortably warmed while at the games.

Our game Saturday night is announced as being fast and hard, both teams being evenly matched. Many people are looking forward with great anxiety to the game. The local tossers are now in the pink of condition and they invite a large crowd to which they wish to demonstrate their ability to play basketball. Former support is appreciated and a continuation of the old spirit and attitude towards our school sports will greatly stimulate the action of our players and thus we nre the more enahled to do what you wish.

L. M. BUTLER TO BE MARRIED IN FLORIDA

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler Is Engaged

We note from a copy of the Clearwater (Fla.) Evening Sun, dated December 31, 1924, that "an interesting event of the holiday season was the bridge party given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Griffin and Miss Priscilla Armstrong at the Clearwater Beach Hotel to formally announce the engagement of Miss Virginia Morton Armstrong and Mr. Leo Madison Butler, of Clearwater. The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Fred Butler, mother of the groom-elect, received their guests in the dining room. Grouped ferns and pink roses made a charming setting for the bridge tables. When the tallies were passed it was found that in a basket of flowers carried by a pink-gowned girl was concealed a tiny card hearing the announcement message. Congratulations were then in order and many good wishes for the bride-elect were expressed."

The Courier echoes the sentiments expressed in the last sentence of the above and would add most hearty felicitations for the groom, who is a former Charlevoix boy, well and favorably known to our readers

CENTRAL LAKE MEETS DEFEAT

OUTPLAYED BY LOCALS IN FRIDAY'S GAME

First Basketball Contest of Season Results in Victory for Red and White

Charlevoix high school basket ball team traveled to Central Lake on Friday afternoon for the first game of the season and trounced our neighbors to the tune of 36 to 3.

Considering the length of time the boys have had to practice, they showed a very good brand of passing and scoring. The team worked as a unit and, in doing so, were able to score almost at will.

During the latter part of the second half, basket shooting was dispensed with the boys playing a passing game, endeavoring to better their ability in handling the ball.

With practice, Charlevoix will be able to put a team on the court that will square off some of the defeats suffered in football. Their main endeavor will he team work and to get this they are only asking Charlevoix people to cooperate with them and watch results.

Let's go, Charlevoix, and make the boys feel that we are wholeheartedly behind them in their efforts.

You will have your first opportunity of seeing the Red and White in action on Saturday, January 17th, when Mancelona comes up to see what we have.

GAS TAX BILL MAY COME SOON

DYKSTRA'S MEASURE TO BE INTRODUCED

Provides for Both Weight Tax and Gasoline Tax and Would Help County Highways

Possibility of passing a highway finance bill in the state legislature within ten days is expected, as only minor obstacles appear in the way of agreement.

Two bills are already in the hands of the senate taxation committee, sponsored by Senator Baxter, of Grand Rapids, and Representative Dykstra is expected to introduce a bill in the house when it convenes Tuesday, based on a slightly altered principle.

Both bills provide for a 2-cent gas tax and change from horse-power basis of license taxation to a weight tax. The senate bill would make the gas tax effective January 1, 1926, and would provide a straight 70-cent weight tax this year. Dykstra's bill would become effective as soon as it passed both houses.

Both bills will raise approximately $20,000,000 on the basis of returns this year. The amount raised by the Dykstra bill, however, would not provide for county rewards for roads already completed. The Baxter bill makes provision for surplus fund to pay highway rewords and it is expected this surplus will increase annually without change in rate.

All surplus left when the rewards are paid would be used to retire the $50,000,000 bond issue outstanding for roads built during the last four years, under the Baxter plan.

The senate bills are regarded as sure of passage with few alterations. It is also stated the bills have the approval of Governor Groesbeck. It is apparent, however, that considerable work will have to be done in the house before the weight and gasoline measures can be considered together.

In view of the declarations of harmony prevailing at the opening session last week, however, and the administration's willingness to support a 2-cent gas tax if the weight tax is provided, observers consider it possible the house will allow the Baxter bill to pass unaltered.

The principal concern of the governor's message was speedy passage of a highway finance program, and it is believed every effort will be made to get the measure through as soon after the legislature reconvenes Tuesday as practicable.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 18th

Church service at 10:30. Pastor will preach theme "The Ministry of the Church." Note these two words, "ministry" and "church" and observe how both effect the community and individual life.

Sunday school at 12 o'clock. The extreme cold of last Sunday did not diminish the attendance. 194 in Sunday school. That is splendid, youngsters. If the adults would speed up a bit too, what a crowd we would have. Mothers do not need to hesitate about sending children to Sunday school. The rooms are warm. An adjustment of the school board brings the beginners upstairs so no cold can harm them.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. This is a lively crowd. We asked a boy recently how he was able to relate so accurately the story of John the Baptist. He said, "I learned it in Junior League."

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. Fifty-six in attendance last Sunday. If present interest holds we will be compelled to have the league in the nuditorium as we do in the summer time. The young men were the leaders last week. This week the cabinet takes the reins. You will hear something. Give them a good audience.

7:00 p. m. evening worship. This week the W. C. T. U. have charge. It's a union meeting. See elsewhere for the program. All the pastors will give special brief talks. This is the fifth anniversary of the national prohibition amendment.

Prayer meeting this week Thursday at 7:30 o'clock. Read Acts 23. Any and all are invited. No Methodist is excused.

Sunday school election of officers took place last Thursday night as follows: superintendent, T. B. Dimmick; ass't sup't., Archie Belding; librarian, Orson Everts; treasurer, William Black; secretary, Dorothy Hooker; pianist, Lucile Belding.

The annual gathering of families of the church and friends of the church took place last Thursday night. 126 sat down to supper. The pastor called on John Johnson to ask the blessing. The old songs "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "'Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus" were sung, after which prayer was offered by C. R. Bellinger, Dr. McMillan and Albert Edwards. Archie Belding read the 3rd Psalm. The pastor made brief remarks showing what the church would be required to do this year, after which short speeches from the different organizations were given as follows: Mrs. Hooker for the L. A. S.; Mrs. McMillan for the L. L. & S. Club; Mrs. Beeman for the Missionary Society; Mrs. Alcox for the Pastoral Workers; Vera Belding for the beginner's department; Harold Newman for the boys' work; Jennie Black for the cradle roll and Ellen Cook for the Epworth League. This was pronounced to be the best gathering of our church society.

Two basket ball teams are organized from our Sunday school: the senior young men and the intermediate boys.

This church extends a hearty welcome to the Congregational people to attend our services until their new pastor arrives. We say as one of old, "If thy heart is with my heart give me thy hand."

Electric light globes, all sizes, shapes and colors. We handle the kind that give long service. Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 37-tf.

McMANUS NOW HEAD OF TOURIST CAMP ASS'N.

Is President of New International Body

The International Association of Tourist Camps, the first organization of its kind in America, was formed in Detroit on January 9th, with W. L. McManus, Jr., of Petoskey, as its first president. The purpose of the organization is the improvement of tourist camps in the United States and Canada.

Matters of proper policing, drinking water and sanitary conditions are included in the program of the new association. A fee of $1 a day per car has been suggested for maintenance for each tourist camp and to prevent any taxation of communities for the tenance of camps.

The first convention of the association will be held in Detroit in March.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services nt 10:30 and 7:30 each Sunday.

Young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m. each Sunday, Mrs. Olive Guild, leader.

DODGE BROTHERS TYPE-B SEDAN

Unquestionably, the most compelling tribute to the car's stamina is its widespread use by farmers, ranchmen, surveyors, salesmen, and others who travel isolated roads in all sorts of weather.

These men will tell you that a good polishing restores the durable finish to its original brightness after the car has been caked with mud for weeks.

To them it is a matter of vital importance, too, that Dodge Brothers powerful starter functions promptly after prolonged exposure to the cold.

Nor is any group of owners more constantly impressed by those elements of excess value which characterize not only the Type-B Sedan itself, but every car that Dodge Brothers build.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN.
County of Charlevoix ss.
The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the regular term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1925, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 12th day of December A. D. 1924.

PARM C. GILBERT,
Circuit Judge.

(Seal)
Countersigned,
Charles H. Emrey, Clerk.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

The petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest, computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the proviaions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further showa that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contnined therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of aaid parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Dated December 10, 1924.

ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan,
for and in behalf of said State

THE "JAP" CONTROVERSY

Some of our very learned statesmen have taken to calling those people who have found reason to believe that there was a possibility of trouble between Japan and the United States "Pin Headed," "yellow" and other pet appelations. It is not so very many moons ago those same fellows were resorting to every possible use of "the Yellow Peril" to throw scares into our people for one purpose or another. There is a positive tension between the two nations. The pussyfooting of some of our learned statesmen will not alter that fact, neither will it prevent the cocky Japs from attempting the impossible once they think the time is ripe. We have unnecessarily offended them in more ways than one, conditions that have been largely brought about and sponsored by western labor unions, but now the harm has been done there is no sense in denying the fact or trying to make the Japs believe we are their very warmest friends when in reality we are not, and are just waiting for the time to come when we will have to have an accounting with them. By all means every aim now should be to make our nation ready for such an eventuality. It is that same bunch of wise sages in high places in our government who object to the country's getting scared about our relations with Japan that recently sent our Pacific fleet over in the neighborhood of Japan to pull off war manouvers. It is the same crowd that were responsible for putting across the stringent Japanese exclusion act of the last congress. And then they expect the public to sit tight and not rock the boat.—Cheboygan Democrat.

WHOSE ARE THE GREAT LAKES?

The decision of the United States supreme court against Chicago's diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal, declaring it illegal, is a more important one than many citizens have realized.

Chicago has been taking this tremendous amount of water to aid it in the disposal of its sewage. It has been shown that the withdrawal of so much water from Lake Michigan has lowered the general level of all the Great Lakes except Superior as much as six inches, seriously affecting shipping.

The supreme court points out that this is a matter not of local welfare and convenience, but of national and international importance. Chicago's claim that the United States has no right to determine the amount of water that shall flow through the channel or the manner of its flow is therefore denied. In the report read by Chief Justice Taft, the court declares:

"This is not a controversy between equals. The United States is asserting its sovereign power to regulate commerce and the control of navigable waters within its jurisdiction. It has a standing in this suit not only to remove obstructions to foreign power bordering upon some of the lakes concerned and, it may be, also on the footing of an ultimate sovereign interest in the lakes."

Americans in general are too inclined to think of the Great Lakes as our lakes, with little regard to Canada. Citizens of lake cities of the lake on which they happen to be situated as theirs instead of a possession shared with all the other communities and states along its border. The supreme court's decision should remind everybody that the lakes are no one's private property, and the same reasoning presumably applies to navigable lakes and streams throughout the country.

DAIRY CATTLE AID SOIL FERTILITY

Startling Figures Given by Blue Valley Concern

Charlevoix county is richer yearly by $100,000 because of the soil fertility produced as a by-product of dairying, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The figure is based on data resulting from many carefully kept records on a considerable number of farms.

The average quantity of manure recovered for use on crop lands in the area studied was 7.4 tons per cow, and since the fertilizing value of a ton of manure is $2.50 the by-product value of each cow in approximately twenty dollars. The application of this figure to the 5,000 dairy cattle in this county brings the total added value to the soil fertility here to the almost unbelievable figure given above.

In keeping with its better feeding program the Institute estimates that from 25% to 50% greater profit from each ton of feed can be made by local farmers who milk cows through improved feeding methods, alone. This was demonstrated, it states, by the experiment recently concluded by the University of Minnesota. The school's dairy division about a year ago purchased four average cows with available records but without a scientific feeding ration, and by merely placing them on a home-grown ration suitable to their needs, increased each cow's production almost forty per cent.

CAMP FIRE'S FIRST PARTY IN NEW YEAR

Was Held at High School Last Friday Evening

The Ho-De-Os-Eh group of the Camp Fire Girls enjoyed their first banquet of the year last Friday, January 9th.

It was held in the halls of the high school building, where dancing was the pastime of the evening. A good dinner was served and many more evenings of fun have been planned for the Camp Fire.

The attendance was as follows: Miss Pennell, the guardian, who has been with the girls for the past year; Irene McCann, Frances Martin, Geraldyne Halverson, Marian Bartlett, Lucille Usher, Mildred Parker, Virginia Parker, Dorothy Withers, Dorothy Fairchild, Arlyne Supernaw, Helen Smith, Fern Crandall, Myrtle O'Neill, Anna Shearer, Gwen Geneit and Doris Krulik.

The poor commissioner of Calhoun county finds that 35 families which have been receiving charity for 10 years are the owners of automobiles. It must be gratifying to the taxpayers that the poor people receiving help do not have to walk into town to get it.

STATE ACCEPTS HUGE LAND TRACT

Cobb & Mitchell Lumber Co. Are the Donors

The state administrative board Wednesday, authorized the acceptance by the state of the gift of about 138,000 acres of cut-over land in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties. The donors are the Cobb & Mitchell Lumber company. The state, in order to secure the land, will pay back taxes amounting to about $3,800.

The gift was announced some time ago at a consultation conference. It is understood some of it is good farming land and arrangements may be made to trade some of this for land of value only for game cover and recreational purposes. The entire tract, except the farming land, will probably be made into a game refuge.

CHILD DIES FROM A HEART ATTACK

Efforts to Save Grace Gill Prove Futile

Grace Marion Gill, ten and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Gill of this city, died last Sunday evening at the Charlevoix Hospital, a victim of incurable heart trouble.

The little girl, who was born in Grand Haven, Mich., July 12, 1914, is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Swartz of the north side, from whose home on Petoskey avenue the funeral will be held tomorrow, with interment at Brookside.

McCafferty Dies

Francis McCafferty, a farmer of the St. James district, died at his home on the Beavers last Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock, following an attack of pneumonia, which lasted only a few days. Mr. McCafferty, who was a brother of Peter McCafferty, leaves a wife and eleven children. His remains will be buried some time tomorrow on the island.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Fifty fish shanties may now be counted on Round Lake. Quite a little settlement in itself, eh, what?

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A hammer and screw driver were left in a plumbing shop at Ann Arbor by thieves who had broken in and taken $25, but they aren't going back after their tools.

Michigan might as well give up. A Wisconsin woman has been appointed to hear evidence in the boundary dispute, and it is easy to guess who will have the last word.

Two hunters from the Soo, barehanded and without firing a shot, captured a large timber wolf alive last week. One hardly knows how to headline the story. Perhaps "Great Open Spaces Where Men Are Men." Or "Great Open Spaces Where Wolves Are Poodle Dogs."

Two young men arrested at Marshall on a charge of breaking and entering said that they went into the house merely to get warm. Accordingly, an effort will be put forth to make it hot for them.

We understand—that the bandit who attempted to hold up a Battle Creek tailor, and got his face slapped and his gun taken from him, threatens that unless apologies are forthcoming he will not play any more.

Eye witnesses, as well as motion pictures were used to show that an Iron Mountain man, claiming to be crippled, was capable of lifting large blocks of wood. This is what they know in the movies as double exposure.

On the day before Christmas the Grand Rapids police rescued a dog from the bottom of a cistern and a cat from the top of a telephone pole. Imbued with the spirit of the season, the creatures were doing all they could to keep from quarreling.

Lafge crowds are gathering at Flint to hear the performance of a "talking automobile," but we don't believe any one is going to buy one of the things until assured that it isn't likely to break out, when company is present, with remarks about how many payments are still due.

DODGE WILL MOVE TO HIS OLD STAND

To Install New Cleaning Apparatus in Antrim St. Shop

C. S. Dodge is planning during the last week in this month, to remove his tailoring establishment from the Brown building to his own store building on Antrim street, formerly occupied by himself with a grocery store some years ago.

One of the reasons for this change is the fact that Mr. Dodge is about to invest in a continuous purifying cleaning system for clothing and will need more room than what is afforded by his present location. This new system has a capacity of 50 to 60 suits of clothes per day and consists of a series of tanks, the cleaning fluid after use passing through a purifier before returning to the washer to be used again, thus insuring that each batch is washed in clean fluid with all impurities and odors removed.

SHRINERS HOLD THE FIRST ANNUAL FEED

It Happened at the Hotel Charlevoix Last Friday Night

The Shriners of Charlevoix held their first annual banquet at the Hotel Charlevoix Friday evening of last week, at seven thirty o'clock. It was an informal affair and there was no toastmaster, but many good stories passed around and everybody had a genial time.

Those around the groaning board on this occasion were Messrs. Thomas Dimmick, Ray Faulkner, W. W. Mitchell, Lyman E. Benton, B. A. Herman, F. S. Myers, George Priest, Captain Partridge, Frank Poole, W. S. Richardson, George Tomerassen and Robert Bridge. Mason Rose is also a Shriner, but was unable to be present at the banquet.

Held by Business Men at Hotel Charlevoix Monday Eve.

A party of twenty-five business men, friends of the Rev. Clarence W. Long, former pastor of the Congregational church in this city, gathered on last Monday evening at seven thirty o'clock in the dining room of the Hotel Charlevoix at a farewell banquet to Mr. Long given on the eve of his departure from this city.

L. W. Hannah acted as toastmaster of the evening, introducing the speakers, Messrs. Quant, Burns, Cartier, Stelter, Armstrong and Benton, who expressed in a felicitous manner their regret and that of Charlevoix people in general that Mr. Long is leaving us and their deep sense of his value to them as a friend and to the community as a worth-while citizen.

R. W. ROLLESON DIES IN SOUTH

Deceased Spent His Summers In Charlevoix

A telegram received on January 13th by James Gaskin, warden of the Chicago Club resort, from Winter Park, Fla., advises of the death of R. W. Rolleson, prominent Chicago financier and North Side cottage owner, which occurred last Monday at the Seminole Inn in the southern city.

The remains will be brought to Chicago next Friday and the funeral held from the home of the deceased at 2109 Prairie avenue. Mr. Rolleson has been coming to Charlevoix for many seasons and has always taken an active interest in the welfare of the community in which he spent his summers. He was a member of the advisory board of the local hospital and most sympathetic and helpful in the solution of its problems. He will be sadly missed from its councils.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR McMULKIN AND WIFE

They are Leaving for Florida to Spend the Winter

Mr. and Mrs. McMulkin will spend the remainder of the winter months at Lake Helen, Florida.

C. A. OF C. WILL MEET JAN'Y. 21ST

Winter Sports Committee is a Busy Outfit

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce are planning to hold a meeting of the association on Wednesday, January 21st, to take up further matters discussed at the previous meeting and new business.

The committee on winter sports is now engaged in preparing a place on Round Lake for the use of skaters. The spot selected is the southwest section of the lake, near Pearl Bros. dock and the ice will be scraped clear of snow and flooded from a hydrant for the use of the older people.

It would be a very good idea if the school board would follow its very excellent procedure of last year and flood the school yard for the use of the youngsters. Small fry, on skates especially, need lots of room.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, after cleaning up a fortune in Death Valley, Calif., boards a train for the East. He befriends a young lady annoyed by a masher, thoroughly trouncing the "pest."

CHAPTER II.—At Denver Webster receives a letter from Billy Geary, his closest friend. Geary urges him to come to Sobrante, Central America, to finance and develop a mining claim. He decides to go.

CHAPTER III.—Dolores Ruey, the young woman Webster befriended, and who has made a deep impression on him, as he has on her, is also on the way to Sobrante.

CHAPTER IV.

Day was dawning in Buennventura, republic of Sobrante, as invariably it dawns in the tropics—without extended preliminary symptoms. The soft, silvery light of a full moon that had stayed 'out scandulously late had merged imperceptibly into gray, the gray was swiftly yielding place to a faint crimson that was spreading ann deepening upward athwart the east.

In the patio of Mather Jenks' establishment in the Calle de Concordia, No. 19, the first shafts of morning light were filtering obliquely through the orange trees and creeping in under the deep, Gothic-arched veranda flanking the western side of the patio. Presently, through the silent reaches of the Calle de Concordia, the sound of a prodigious knocking and thumping echoed, as of some fretful individual seeking admission at the street door of El Buen Amigo, by which euphonious designation Mother Jenks' caravansary was known to the public of Buennventura. In the second story, front, a window slid back and a woman's voice, husky with that huskiness that speaks so accusingly of cigarettes and alcohol, demanded:

"Quien es? Who is it? Que quiere-usted? Wot do yer want?"

"Ye might dispinse wit' that parasqueer conversation whin addhressin' the likes ny me," a voice replied. "'Tis me—Cafferty. I have a cablegram Icher give me to deliver——"

"Gawd's truth! Would yer wake the 'ole 'ouse with yer 'amuering?"

"All right. I'll not say another worrd!"

Without the portal stood Don Juan Cafetero, of whom a word or two before proceeding.

To begin, Don Juan Cafetero was not his real name, but rather a free Spanish translation of the Gaelic. John Cafferty. Mr. Cafferty was an exile of Erin with a horrible thirst. He had first arrived in Sobrante some five years before, as section boss in the employ of the little foreign-owned narrow-gauge railway which ran from Buennventura on the Caribbean coast to San Miguel de Padua, up-country where the ultrate beds were located. Prior to his advent the railroad people had tried many breeds of section boss without visible results, until a Chicago man, who had come to Sobrante to install an inter-communicating telephone system in the government buildings, suggested to the superintendent of the road, who was a German, that the men made for bosses come from Erin's isle; wherefore Mr. Cafferty had been imported at a price of $5 a day gold. Result—a marked improvement in the road bed and consequently the train schedules, and the ultimate loss of the Cafferty soul.

Something in the climate of Sobrante must have appealed to a touch of laissez faire in Don Juan's amiable nature, for in the course of time he had taken unto himself, without bell or book, after the fashion of the proletariat of Sobrante, the daughter of one Esteban Manuel Enrique Jose Marin Pasqual y Miramontes, an estimable peon who was singularly glad to have his daughter off his hands and no questions asked. Following the fashion of the country, however, Esteban had forthwith moved the remainder of his numerous progeny under the annexation of Don Juan Cafetera's philanthropy, and resigned a position which for many years he had not enjoyed—to-wit: salting and packing green hides at a local abattoir. This foolhardy economic move had so incensed Don Juan that in a fit of pique he spurned his father-in-law (we must call Esteban something and so why split hairs?) under the tails of his camisn, with such vigor as to sever forever the friendly relations hitherto existing between the families. Mrs. Cafferty (again we transgress, but what of it?) subsequently passed away in child birth, and no sooner had she been decently buried than Don Juan took a week off to drown his sorrows.

In this condition he had encountered Esteban Manuel Enrique José Maria Pasqual y Miramontes and called him out of his name. In the altercation that ensued Esteban, fully convinced that he had received the unh end of the transaction from start to finish, cut Don Juan severely; Don Juan had thereupon slain Esteban with a .44-caliber revolver and upon emerging from the railroad hospital a month later had been lried by a Sobrantean magistrate and fined the sum of $20,000, legal-tender of the republic of Sobrante. Of course, he had paid it off within six months from his wages as section boss, but the memory of the injustice always rankled him, and gradually he moved down the scale of society from section boss to day laborer, day laborer to tropical tramp, and tropical tramp to beach comber, in which latter state he had now existed for several months.

To return to Mother Jenks.

Before Don Juan could even utter a matutinal greeting, Mother Jenks laid finger to lip and silenced him. "Go back to Leber's and return in an hour," she whispered. "I 'ave my reasons for wantin' that bloomin' cablegram delivered later."

Don Juan hadn't the least idea what Mother Jenks' reasons might be, but he presumed she was up to some chicanery, and so he winked his bloodshot eye very knowingly and nodded his acquiescence in the program.

When he had gone, Mother Jenks went behind the bar and fortified herself with her morning's morning—which rite having been performed, her sleep-benumbed brain livened up immediately.

"Gord's truth!" the lady murmured. "An' me mind to turn him adrift for the hinest fortnight! Well for 'im 'e allers hadmired the picture o' my sainted 'Enery, as was the spittin' image of his own fawther. 'Evings! 'Ell's bells! But that was a bit of a tight squenk! Just as I'm fully convinced 'e's been true an' I'm left 'oldin' the sack, all along o' my kindness of 'eart, 'e gets the cablegrum 'e's been lookin' for this two months past; an' 'e allers claimed as 'ow any time 'e got a cablegram it'd be an answer to 'is letter, with money to follow! My word, but that was touch and go!"

Still congratulating herself upon her good fortune in intercepting Don Juan Cafetero, Mother Jenks proceeded upstairs to her chamber, clothed herself, and adjourned to the kitchen. After giving orders for an extra special breakfast for two, Mother Jenks returned to her pantry, and formally opened the same for the business of that day and night.

To her came presently, via the tiled hallway, the object of her solicitude, a young man on the sunny side of thirty. He was thin for one of his height and breadth of chest; in color his countenance resembled that of a sick Chinaman. His hair was thick and wavy, but lusterless; his dark blue eyes carried a hint of jaundice; and—a generous mouth, beneath an equally generous upper lip, gave ample ground for the suspicion that while Mr. William Geary's speech denoted him an American citizen, at least one of his maternal ancestors had been wooed and won by an Irishman. An old Panama hat, sad relic of a prosperous past, a pair of soiled buck skin pumps, a suit of unbleached linen equally befouled, and last but not least, the remnants of a sande that much hard luck could never quite obliterate, completed his attire—and to one a stranger in the tropics would appear to constitute a complete inventory of Mr. Geary's possessions.

"Dnice corazon mio, I extend u greeting," he called at the entrance. "I trust you rested well last night, Mother Jenks, and that no evil dreams were born of your midnight repast of frijoles refritos, marmalade, and arf-an'-arf!"

"Chop yer spoofin', Willie," Mother Jenks shupered. "My heye! So I'm

"Chop Your Spoofin', Willie."

yer sweet'eart, eh? Yer wheedlin' blighter, makin' love to a girl as is old enough to be yer mother!"

"A woman," Mr. Geary retorted sagely and not a little abashed, "is at the apex of her feminine charms at thirty-seven."

He knew his landlady to be not a day under fifty, but such is the ease with which the Irish scatter their blarney that neither Billy Geary nor Mother Jenks regarded this pretty speech in the light of an observation humaterial, inconsequential and not germane to the matter at issue. Nevertheless, there was a deeper reason for his blarney. This morning, watching the telltale tinge of pleasure underlying the alcohol-begotten hue of the good creature's face, he felt almost ashamed of his own heartlessness—almost, but not quite.

For two months he had existed entirely because of the leniency of Mother Jenks in the matter of credit. He could not pay her cash, devoutly as he hoped to do some day, and he considered it of the most vital importance that in the interim he should somehow survive. Therefore, in lieu of cash he paid her compliments, which she accepted greedily.

An inventive genius was Billy. He never employed the same defensive tactics two days in succession, and when personal flattery threatened to fail him, a large crayon reproduction of the late Henry Jenks, which hung over the back bar, was a never-failing source of inspiration.

This was the "sainted 'Enery" previously referred to by Mother Jenks. He had been a sergeant in Her Britannic Majesty's Royal Horse artillery, and upon retiring to the reserve had harkened to a proposition to emigrate to Sobrante and accept a commission as colonel of artillery with the government forces then in the throes of a revolutionary attack. The rebels had triumphed, and as a result 'Enery had been sainted via the customary expeditious route; whereupon his wife had had recourse to her early profession of barmaid, and El Buen Amigo had resulted.

However, let us return to our sheeps, as Mr. Geary would have expressed it. Seemingly the effect of Billy's compliment was instantly evident, for Mother Jenks set out two glasses and a bottle.

"I know yer a trifler, Willy Geary," she stupered, "but if I do say it as shouldn't, I was accounted as 'andsome a barmaid as you'd find in Bristol town. I've lost my good looks, what with grief an' worritin' since losin' my sainted 'Enery, but I was 'andsome once't."

"I can well believe it, Mother—since you are handsome still! For my part," he continued confidentially, as with shaking hand he filled his brandy-glass, "you'll excuse this drunkard's drink, Mother, but I need it; I had the shakes again last night—for my part, I prefer the full-blown rose to the bud."

Mother Jenks fluttered like a debutante as she poured her drink. They touched glasses, callousd worldlings that they were.

He tossed off his drink. It warmed and strengthened him, after his night of chills and fever, and brazenly he returned to the attack.

"Changing the subject from feminine grace and charm to manly strength and virtue, I've been marking lately the resolute poise of your martyred husband's head on his fine military shoulders. There was a man, if I may judge from his photograph, that would fight a wildcat."

"Oh, m'yhe 'e wouldn't!" Mother Jenks bastuned to decline. "You know, Willie, I was present w'en they shot 'im, a-waitin' to claim 'is body. 'E kisses me good-bye, an' says 'e: 'Bruce up, ol' girl. Remember your 'usband's been a sergeant in 'Er Majesty's Royal 'Orse artillery, an' don't let the bloody blighters see yer cry.' Then 'e walks out front, with 'is line straight back to the wall, draws a circle on 'is blue tunic with white chalk an' says: 'Shoot at that, yer yeller-bellied bounders, an' be d——d to yer!'"

"To be the widow of such a gallant son of Mars," Billy declared, "is a greater honor than being the wife of a duke. Ah, Mother," he added with a note of genuine gratitude and sincerity, "you've been awfully good to me. I don't know what I'd have done without you."—He laid his hand on her fat arm. "Mother, one of these days I'll get mine, and when I do I'm going to stake you to a nice little pub back in Bristol."

She smiled at him with motherly tenderness and shook her head. In a concrete niche in the mortuary of the Catedral de la Vera Cruz the bones of her sainted 'Enery reposed, and when her hour came she would lie beside him.

"Yer a sweet boy, Willie," she told him, "an' I'd trust yer for double the score, s'help me. 'Eving knows I 'aven't much, but wot I 'ave I shares freely with them I likes."

Mother Jenks preceded him into the shady side of the veranda, where ordinarily she was wont to breakfast in solitary state. Her table was set for two this morning, however. Billy flipped an adventurous cockroach off the table and fell to with fine appetite.

He was dallying with a special brew of coffee, with condensed milk in it, when the Jamaica negro entered from the cantina to announce Don Juan Cafetero with a cablegram.

"A cablegram!" Mother Jenks cried. "Gord's truth! I'll wager the pub it's for you, Willie. Bob"—turning to the negro, and addressing him in her own private brand of Spanish—"give Don Juan a drink. If 'e 'asn't helped 'imself while yer back is turned, an' bring the cablegram 'ere."

Within the minute Bob returned with a long yellow envelope, which he handed Mother Jenks. Without so much as a glance at the superscription, she handed it to Billy Geary, who tore it open and read:

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage, dated the 10th day of April, 1919, executed by George E. Cummings and wife, Ella M. Cummings, of Norwood Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, was given to Medrick Seymour of Charlevoix, Michigan, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, in Liber 29 of Mortgages on page 368 on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1919, which mortgage was on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923, assigned by said Medrick Seymour to Neil McAuley of Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County aforesaid in Liber 55 of Mortgages on page 100, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923.

And whereas the umount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $1,993.60 of principal and interest, and a further sum of $12.30 and interest thereon for taxes paid on said premises, and the sum of $73 and interest thereon for insurance paid on said premises; together with an attorney fee of $35 as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof:

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of the principal and interest, together with the amounts paid for taxes and insurance, costs and expenses of foreclosure, including the attorney fee provided by statute, at Public Auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forennon, on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows, towit: The west half of the northeast quarter and the west half of the east half of the northeast quarter of Section eighteen, Township thirty-three north, Range eight west.

Dated December 16th, 1924.

Ellsworth Section

Oscar Smith, of East Jordan, visited his sister, Mrs. Isa Alward, several days last week.

Dales Yettaw left for Chicago on Monday for an indefinite stay.

Tracy Boss was on the sick list the last of the week but is back at work again.

Miss Kate Wilson, of Central Lake, is visiting at the James Wilson home south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Croyle, of Central Lake, are visiting at the home of their daughter. Mrs. Ted Edson.

Ennes Schafer was at Cadillac from Saturday until Tuesday, attending a meeting of the potato growers' exchange.

Several members of the girl's basketball team missed the train at Alden on Saturday and had the pleasure of a thirty mile drive home.

Miss Josephine Brosche and Miss Emma Brosche, of Traverse City, arrived on Monday for a few day's visit with their sister, Mrs. A. L. Ely.

It is rumored that Albert Elzinga, of Atwood, shot and killed a fox on Monday of this week. Any evidence tending to confirm this report will be greatly appreciated by local fox hunters.

Mrs. Vernon Vance is recovering very nicely from an operation performed at the Charlevoix hospital one day last week. Mrs. Vance was formerly Miss Ruth Carpenter, of Ellsworth.

Rev. Conklin announces another week of evening prayer meetings this week. Continually increasing interest in these meetings during the past week is the reason given for a continuation of the services.

Ellsworth independents will play their first home game of the season on Friday night of this week with the fast and scrappy East Jordan team as their opponents. A fast and snappy game is assured. The game starts at 8 o'clock. Don't miss it.

Ellsworth girls won their game at Alden 27-13, and the local boys lost 19-20 on Friday evening of last week, both games being well played. The boys game was a battle from start to finish, the teams being tied at the quarter, half and third quarter, Alden winning out in the last minute of play. The girls game was never in doubt after the first quarter. Alden plays return dates here on February 6th. Don't miss these games.

Charlevoix People Must Believe Such Convincing Testimony as Mrs. Smith's

No one in Charlevoix who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Charlevoix resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Charlevoix can doubt.

Mrs. Frank Smith, 307 May St., Charlevoix, says: "My back was sore, stiff and achy and when I did any stooping, pains darted across my kidneys. I felt nervous, depressed and completely worn out. Dizzy spells also came over me and my kidneys acted irregularly. I used a few boxes of Doan's Pills and they completely cured me." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 9, 1924, Mrs. Smith said: "The cure Doan's made for me has been lasting."

WILL MAKE THEIR HOME IN FLINT

Ellsworth Young Man Marries East Jordan Girl

Word has been received of the marriage of Willie Louisell and Miss Vada Dell, of East Jordan, which took place at Bellaire on December 21, 1924.

Mr. Louisell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Louisell of Ironton, formerly of the Phelps district. He came to Ellsworth some 15 years ago. For the past four years he has been employed in Flint at his occupation as a barber. The bride has been a resident of East Jordan for some time and has a host of friends who extend their best wishes for a long and happy married life.

The newly weds will make their home in Flint.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Stott is cutting wood for Mr. Brant now.

Mrs. Brooks was a visitor at the Stoel home Friday.

Frank Mason butchered a beef for Mrs. Clyde Baker last Wednesday.

Mr. Dennis and family were visitors at the Stoel home last Thursday evening.

Grace Brooks started to school again last Monday, after two week's Christmas vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mason, of Maple Hill, were visitors at the Frank Mason home Sunday.

Some of the Antrim City people attended the funeral of Mrs. Harvey Brower, at Eastport last Sunday.

Josie Simon of Antrim City and Clyde Baker of Eastport, were married last Friday. We wish them happiness and prosperity.

MILES DISTRICT

The Addis brothers are baling hay for Jerry Moblo.

Supley LaLonde is not feeling so well at this writing.

AT THE MOVIES

"Changing Husbands" is not a form of "sport" peculiar to Reno, Nev., alone, but it's being done every day in New York and every other big city in this wide world, and, another thing, it's a new Paramount picture, featuring Leatrice Joy and coming to the Pnlace Theatre next Wednesday, January 21st.

Girls, how would you like to trade husbands with Mrs. Next door for about three months? Well, that's just what Leatrice Joy does in this picture, adapted to the screen by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Roles," by Elizabeth Alexander. Miss Joy has the first dual rola of her screen career in this production. She plays the role of a wealthy young society matron and a young actress who change places in their search to find happiness, with most amusing, frequently alarming and at all times entertaining results.

Victor Varconi and Raymond Griffith head the strong cast playing in support of Miss Joy. ZaSu Pitts, Julia Faye, Helen Dunbar and William Boyd are also included in the list of players, well known on both stage and screen. Frank Urson and Paul Iribe directed the production.

UNDER THE DOME AT LANSING

Special to the Courier

Lnnsing, Jnn. 13.—Senators and representatives assembling here today for the second week of the 53rd session of the state legislature are chiefly concerned with the matter of highway finance. Some individual law-makers will discuss their own pet projects, but general interest is being reserved for gas tax and weight tax discussion.

The two formal sessions held during the first week accomplished little more than the organization of both houses and the reception of the governor's message. Considerable progress was made in the all-important task of getting acquainted.

The first significant development of the session was the election of Rep. Fred B. Wells of Cassopolis as speaker of the house. Wells was chosen at a caucus held on the night preceding the formal opening of the session. He was elected on the first ballot by a vote of 62 to 33 over Rep. George Watson of Capac, who received the solid Wayne county vote and was regarded as the administration's favorite.

Hear Governor's Message

With the speakership contest settled and other organization arrangements completed the senate and house met in joint convention Thursday and received Governor Groesbeck's third biennial message. The governor devoted most of his attention to a discussion of highway financing problems and advocated a modified automobile weight tax as the chief source of revenue. He mentioned a gas tax very briefly but did not endorse it. His address left the impression that in his opinion the weight tax should he passed first.

This appears to be the principal point of difference between the governor's program and that favored by leading members of the house and the senate who insist that a gas tax must come first and then such modifications and reductions of the auto licenses as would bring in the balance of the required highway funds.

This week may see important developments along this line. Immediately after Governor Groesbeck had finished reading his message, Senator Howard F. Baxter of Grand Rapids, introduced both a weight tax and a gas tax in the senate. The weight tax would take immediate effect and would be on the basis of 70¢ per hundred for passenger cars with higher rates for trucks, graduated from 80c to $1.00, according to weight. If Senator Baxter's two cent gas tax bill were passed, it would take effect January 1, 1926, and the weight taxes provided in the companion weight tax bill would thereupon be reduced 20c per hundred.

Gas Tax Gains Favor

It is understood that Senator Baxter's two highway-finance bills have the approval of the governor and the state administration, but they are not meeting with favor among leaders of the gas tax bloc in the house. Representative Joseph Warner, of Ypsilanti, father of the gas tax bill passed by the 1923 legislature and vetoed by the governor, states that he has a very carefully prepared gas tax bill which he will introduce in the house this afternoon. Representative Ate Dykstra, of Grand Rapids, also has a gas tax bill which he may introduce this week. It is admitted by even the Detroit dailies that sentiment in favor of a gas tax has gained strength since the lawmakers assembled a week ago.

George Welsh, of Grand Rapids, who by virtue of his office as Lieutenant-Governor, is the presiding officer in the senate, had his committee appointments prepared for nonouncement on the first day of the session, so it was possible to begin the introduction of hills in the senate immediately. Ten measures were dropped into the hopper during the first two days.

With the exception of the two highway finance measures offered by Senntor Baxter, the hill which will probably arouse the most interest was senate bill No. 1, introduced by Senator Arthur E. Wood, of Detroit, which would reapportion the state senators, doubling the number from Wayne county and making corresponding reductions in the representation from the rural districts.

For the first time in history, the house of representatives includes a woman among its membership. She is Mrs. Cora A. Anderson, of L'Anse, and represents Iron, Baraga, Keweenaw and Ontonagon counties. Mrs. Anderson is not exactly new in public service, nor is she unknown to the farmers of Michigan, for she has served for several years as state deputy in charge of the Grange work in the Upper Peninsula. Mrs. Anderson is proving popular with fellow members and reporters and gives promise of being a pleasing and helpful addition to the House.

"Henrietta Wilkins, Calle de Concordia, No. 19, Buenaventura, Sobrante, C. A.

"Leaving today to visit you. Will cable from New Orleans exact date arrival. DOLORES."

The shadow of deep disappointment settled over Billy's face as he read. Mother Jenks noted it instantly.

"Wot's 'e got to s'y, Willie?" she demanded.

"It isn't a he. It's a she," Billy replied. "Besides, the cablegram isn't for me at all. It's for one Henrietta Wilkins, Calle de Concordia, No. 19, and who the devil Henrietta Wilkins may be is a mystery to me. Ever have any boarder by that name, Mother?"

Mother Jenks' red face had gone white. "Earletta Wilkins was my maiden nyme, Willie," she confessed soberly. "an' there's only one human as 'ud cable me or write me by that nyme. Gord, Willie, wot's 'appened?"

"I'll read it to you, Mother."

Billy read the message aloud, and when he had finished, to his amazement, Mother Jenks laid her head on the table and began to weep.

THE CASE OF BILLY

Helen Gregg Green

I recently received this letter:
"My dear Mrs. Green:

"My small, six-year-old son, is unusually precocious. He has always treated me with the utmost respect and obedience, until a few days ago when he made a remark which I cannot get off my mind. I wonder if you can help me!

"I have been in the habit of sometimes rewarding him for good behavior with small gifts. Now, I must confess, on a number of occasions, I promised him something which I neglected to buy. He seemed never to notice my forgetfulness until the other day. I had said, 'Be a good boy, today, Billy, and mother will get you a toy engine.' A week passed, and the toy engine had never entered my head again. But I happened to remark, 'If you'll run an errand for mother, I'll take you to the circus.'

" 'Aw, no, you won't mother. I believe you're a fake!' he said.

"Of course I punished the child, as I considered the remark disrespectful and 'smart.' But the affair has worried me. Could you help?

Worried Mother."

I answered:
"Worried Mother:—

"Yes, I think I can help you. In the first place, remember this infallible rule for parents; Always keep your word with children. Do not make 'bluff promises.' They teach children to be untruthful.

"Personally, I don't believe in rewarding children for being good. Some day, that incentive will be taken away, and what then?

"You should not have punished the child for the remark he made. He didn't mean it to be 'smart.' He was simply stating what he believed to be a fact. It would be hard for him to get your point of view, and the next time he has a similar thought he will not say it, which may be a good lesson in diplomacy, but one tending to teach deceit. Besides, he gave you some valuable hints in mothercraft."

YOU WOULDN'T KNOW THE FINE NEW CARDS

Last Year's Charlevoix Posters Now Done in Colors

Everybody has seen, by this time, the handsome poster cards gotten out by the Charlevoix Association of Commerce last June.

They were printed on cardboard, 14 inches by 13 inches in dimensions and fitted with a loop to hang up on the wall. A fine engraving of a new birdseye viey of Charlevoix from Pine Lake, showing the three lakes and their connections, oceupied the upper half of the cards and the lower half was devoted to a ledgend, describing the beauties and advantages of the town from a resort standpoint and enumerating its facilities for entertainment.

This year 500 more of these cards will be gotten out with tubes for mailing. The engraving, showing the Charlevoix view, will be done in four colors, whieh are of brilliant hue and will make a striking and inviting appearanee. Two hundred of these will have ealendars attached at the bottom, making the total dimensions of eard and calendar, 14x20 inches. The balance of the 500 will be run off as posters, the same as last year, with the exception of the change to a four color job, as mentioned above.

The colored view of Charlevoix used on these cards will also form a double page spread in the center of the new 1925 Charlevoix resort yearbook, printer's proofs of whieh are already in the hands of the advertising committee of the Association of Commerce.

FISH TONNAGE TAX OPPOSED

the amount of their catch. It requires no scientist or mathematician to recognize that these small fishermen after paying a tonnage tax to the state of Michigan on the amount of their catch could not hope to sell in competition with fishermen of Ohio, Wisconsin, Canada and other states bordering the Great Lakes. We think the coming legislature will consider well before imposing such an unfair restriction and forcing these hundreds of small fishermen to forsake the calling whieh, in most instances, was followed by their fathers before them.

Industry Unattractive

"The fishing industry is not attractive and the number of those engaged therein has been falling off year by year. This possibly may account for the decrease in production since there are fewer men taking part in the work. Hundreds of these small fishermen will be anxiously watching during the next few months to see whether the legislature of Michigan will inflict upon them a tonnage tax of the range and amount that has been proposed, or whether the legislature will say that this is a matter for federal disposition or at least uniform regulation by the various states competing in the industry. The legislature of two years ago decided against such a tonnage tax and we sincerely trust that the new one about to assemble will concur in the wisdom of such a decision."

FRANK, YOU HAVE THE WRONG DOPE

Come to Charlevoix Now With Your Skiis and Toboggan

The Courier is in receipt of a letter from Frank Hines, former well-known druggist—pshaw, everybody knows Frank—who writes from 1229 Twenty-second Street, Santa Monica, California, and seems to figure that all his Charlevoix friends are suffering with chilblains and frozen noses and merely waiting for a good opportunity to hop the first train west to the Land of Sunshine and Roses.

Here's what he says: "The past week has been almost like a visit to Charlevoix for us, but minus the snow and eold, of course. We visited with the following the last few days—Charles Lamoreaux, Elmer Mudge, Will Newman, Frank Cullman, H. McKinnon and family, James and King Saunders, Walter Ball, Glen Dolberg, Frank Chaloupka and daughter, Calo Hinas, Ed. Chaloupka and wife, Lyman Price and son and their families and Lynn Purdy. Hope to see the few that are left there out here some day. Yours, F. G. Hines."

Frank, Frank, ynu're wrong. California is farthest from our thoughts. Read last week's Courier and you will understand why. If you had seen the bunch out last Sunday—everybody up and down the scale from the banker to the reporter—well, read the article in the middle of column five, page one, and say no more about your roses and sunshine. Snow and cold is what we are praying for. Give our greetings to the old friends when you see them again.

DO NOT MISS SEEING ECLIPSE

CHARLEVOIX NEAR CENTER OF MOON'S SHADOW

Fear Expressed That Clouds May Obscure View of Phenomenon—Due at 8:04

Next Saturday morning at 8:04 will occur the eclipse of the sun, visible over nearly the whole of the United States, and Charlevoix is almost exactly in the middle of the path of the total eclipse. The path of totality will be something like 100 miles in width. The really varies between 80 and 110 miles.

A word as to weather conditions. The records of the weather bureau show that the best chaace of clear skies will be found near the ocean, where the chance is about fifty per cent. For points farther west, the probability of favorable weather slowly but steadily decreases. Residents anywhere along the shadow-path are amply justified in making preparations, even if the chances of good weather are against them. Those who travel to see the eclipse will be wisest to take their stations east of the Hudson.

Here a word of warning to the inexperienced may be in order. Do not tire your eyes by looking too long or too often at the relatively uninteresting partial phases of the eclipse. Do not look directly at the sun unless you have some kind of "dark" glass through which to look.

Nothing is better for this purpose tban a photographic plate or film which has been exposed to the light and then developed. One so dense and black that the sun is just visible through it when tbe plate is held close to the eyes is about right.

With the aid of such a dark glass the steadily growing nick in the upper right hand edge of the sun will be worth watching as a prelude to the play. By nine o'clock, when only a narrow crescent of tbe sun remains in sight, the country will take on a weird appearance. The light from the sun's edge is not merely fainter but is different in color and quality. All the color values of the landscape become altered, usually in a most uncanny fashion.

The obscurity steadily grows. At two or three minutes before totality the moon's shadow comes into sight in the west, darkening all the sky and advancing with tremendous speed. On the present occasion, where the sun is low in the sky, the shadow will come almost directly downward out of space. The darkening of the western sky should be rapid and very striking.

This crowns the impression made by the strange coloring and the advancing gloom. No one who has seen it can doubt the ancient tales of battles stopped in their highest heat by an eclipse. It really seems as if the sun had gone out, even that tbe world is coming to an end.

But the precious seconds of totality are too few to spend in alarm. The moment that the darkness sets in all eyes must turn toward the vanished sun. In a few seconds one realizes that it is not by any means pitch dark, hut much more like a moonlight night. Only a few of the brighter stars can be seen and there is no difficulty in finding one's way about. Tha sky is not black but a deep slaty blue. In it hangs the disk of the moon, slaty blue like the sky, and around the moon's edge shines that wonderful fringe of light wbich tbe astronomer has named the corona—the crown of the sky—and which he is willing to travel far to observe for a few minutes during which the sun is totally eclipsed, because it is at this time alone that the corona can be seen.

On the inner coronal ring, close to the dark moon, one or more solar prominences may appear, as brilliant red wisps of light look like flames blown into all sorts of shapes by the wind. They look small to the eye, but often they are tens and even hundreds of thousands of miles high, big enough to surround the earth completely if it were anywhere in the neighborhood. At the coming eclipse this being a year of few sun spots, it is most probable that tbe prominences will be large. Possibly some may be visible through an opera glass.

All too soon the short totality, lasting hardly more than two minutes at the most, will come to an end, and now is the time to watch for things which are better left unlooked as the sun goes into the shadow, lest the observer's eyes be dazzled. Just before the end of totality the inner corona brightens perceptibly, tben sometbing far brighter, shining with a white, steely light appears. This is not the sun itself but its hot lower atmosphere—as becomes clear a second or two later, when the sun's surface, incomparably more brilliant, bursts forth. The air fills with light, drowning out the outer corona at once and the inner corona after a minute or so. Tbe great spectacle is over.

PUZZLE OPENS MOUTH OF HER STUBBORN HUBBY

There is a woman in Boyne City who owes all her happiness to cross-word puzzles. Soon after she was married she and her husband had a quarrel and in a fit of angar ha vowed he would never speak to her as long as ha lived. He was very stubborn and would probably have kept bis word, but finally ha asked ber if she knew a three-toed South American sloth in three letters.

SEAL SALES ARE ON AN INCREASE

BUT CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LAGS A BIT BEHIND

Though Returns Are Incomplete, We Are Not Yet Up to 1923 Figure

So fsr only one school in Charlevoix county has received a copy of "Health Training in Schools" and no school has received the ball and bat. The school receiving "Health Training in Schools" is St. Joseph's parochial school. Dominican Sisters, East Jordan.

Incomplete returns from Michigan counties in which the 1924 sale of Christmas Seals was carried on by mail, indicate an increase over the 1923 seal sale, according to Miss Mary Maier, of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, state seal sale director.

"Though totals are as yet incomplete, returns so far indicate that Charlevoix county citizens have not yet equalled their contribution of 1923 to fight against the "Great White Plague," says Miss Maier. "Such contributions are a voluntary tax by the people of Charlevoix county on themselves. They show that private citizens are glad to have such a yearly opportunity to fight tuberculosis."

SPORTS COMMITTEE FINISHES ITS WORK

Will Report to Commercial Association Tooight

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce will hold a meeting tonight (Wednesday, January 21st) at the council rooms. Members will be called to order at 8:00 p. m.

This is a business meeting, only, and as there are several important matters, vitally affecting the future of Charlevoix to come up before this meeting, it is hoped that all will turn out at the time above stated. Postal notifications are now in the hands of the members.

The Winter Sports committee and their helpers have been very busy during the past week. The work on the aki run north of town is now practically finished and the boys sre to be congratulated on baving done a good job. The recent snowfall haan't done us any harm, aither, as it needs a few inches more of the stuff to make the track O. K. A big crowd of eathusiaats were out to tha hill last Sunday and enjoyed tbemselves hugely, according to reports and some of the snapsbots takan. Oh, yes, and we musn't forget the work of the "entertainment" committee who furnished amuaement to the spectators by their interesting performanees. Wa understand that a leather medal is soon to be awarded to tbe best aerial acrobat in the outfit.

Scrapers have been busy durlag tba past few days clearing off a spaca on Round Lake for the rink and we msy say that everytbing is now in readiness for a big winter season in Charlevoix.

BINGHAM IS A REAL HUMORIST

HAS BEEN MAKING PEOPLE LAUGH FOR TWENTY YEARS

Well—Perhaps They Don't Keep It Up that Long, But—Anyhow, He Makes 'Em Laugh

The fourth number of the high school's Redpath lecture course is scheduled for February 2nd, which falls on a Monday evening and at which time Ralph Bingham, America's foremost platform humorist, will make his appearance.

If we didn't know a thing about Mr. Bingham but what we could learn from his photographed likeness on the announcement sheet before us, we could still confidently predict an evening of real amusement for the audience. Big, bluff and hearty, with an engaging smile and a personality bubbling over with good humor and keen wit, he seems; as his reputation confirms, the very beau ideal of humorists.

Monday, February 2nd, will be an evening of stories and music, not a lecture. "If humor be a gift of the gods, there was on high Olympus a mighty deal of tittering when Bingham was born. There are "funny" men and they make us groan; there are "humorists" that make us weep. But there are philosophers of creative mirth and for them we are grateful. A mere jest may be of flimsy quality, but true humor is nature's economics set to an inspiring tone. Bingham is a humorist of the highest order, because your soul laughs with his own. In his mind are all the bright colors of universal faney; in his heart is the glow of the cherished fireside. His evening on the platform is as clean as new leaves in the forest; and you come away as from an Arden of rest, where brooks have sweetly sung."

The above in quotation is from the facile pen of that distinguished writer, Opie Read, snd is certainly praise enough for nny man. It might also be mentioned that Mr. Bingham has given seven thousand performances since entering upon his work as a platform entertainer nnd has filled more return dates—in more towns—than any other humorist. He was twice president of the International Lyceum Association and is life president of the International Lyceum Stunt Club. He is also a member of the Lambs Club of New York and has played in their famous "Cambols." The Pen and Pencil Club of Philadelphia also claims him as one of their own. He has missed but two engagements in twenty years and has been with the Redpsth Bureau for the past eighteen years. If you like to laugh, mark Monday, Februsry 2nd on your calendar in red ink.

The fifth and last number of the course will be filled by Everett Kemp, "The Man with the Million Dollar Laugh," who comes to us on March 13th.

GRADE HOLSTEIN HEADS THE LIST

LEADER IN 3-YEAR-OLD CLASS FOR THREE MONTHS

Loeb Farms Cow Has Highest Individual Butter Fat Record in County

During the months of October, November and December several exceptional cows and herds have come to the front in the cow-testing association of Charlevoix county. One of the most noticeable high cows was a grade holstein owned by Dan Swanson of East Jordan. Tbis cow freshened on September 9 and during the following month she produced 70.8 pounds of butter fat, which was equal to the best in the 3-year-old class of Michigan's cow-testing association for that month. The other cow in this state having the same butter fat production was also a grade holstein owned by the Kalamazoo State Hospltal.

The high cow for November was also owned by Dan Swanson, and is the dam of Tiny, (the high cow in October).

In December, a 5-year-old p. b. Holstein owned by Loeb Farms, was champion butter fat producer in this county. She has 2,154 pounds of milk and 73.2 pounds of butter fat, which is the highest record of any one cow in this testing association for one month.

The Holsteins of this county are holding down the position of bigh herd in milk and butter fat averages. in October the 26 p. b. Holsteins owned by Orchard Bay Farm of Charlevoix, held first place with an average of 31.0 pounds of butter fat and 878 pounds of milk per cow. Breezy Point Farm's 17 p. b. Holsteins came first in November with an average of 31 pounds of fat and 977 pounds of milk, and in December the 7 grade and p. b. holsteins owned by Art Shepard, of East Jordan, topped off the list with an average of 1330 pounds of milk and 40.5 pounds of butter fat.

Some of the high producing individuals for the past three months in their respective age classes are as fellows. Owner, name of cow, breed, dato fresh, pounds of milk, pounds of hutter fat:

*Milked three times a day."

All of these 13 high cows for the last 3 months are sired by pure-bred sires. Sixty-nine per cent of the 13 cows are pure-bred and 31% are grades. The association herd books show that 32% of all the cows tested are pure-bred and 68% are grade cows, whicb means that 32% pure-bred cows produced 69% of the high cows during the last three months and that 68% of the cows tbat are grades produced 31% of the high cows in the same time. This leads us to believe that, while there are poor producers in the pure-bred and grade cattle, that the pure-bred are far in the lead for milk and butter fat production.

The Eclipse

VISITORS GAME THO OUTPLAYED

MANCELONA FIGHTS ON IN FACE OF DEFEAT

Friday Eveniog's Game, Fast and Hard Fought, Went to Red and White Quint

Charlevoix high school swooped down upon Mancelona in the new high school gym and decisively defeated the lumbermen by a score of 18 to 8, last Friday evening.

The game was fast and hard-fought. Although the Red and White outplayed the visitors from the start until the final whistle, the latter were game to the end.

Coach Alldread sent in his second team to start tbe fireworks and, considering the new material, they played a good game, leading the visitors by a score of 7 to 3 until taken out nnd replaced by the first team early in the second quarter. The game was soon put on ice for the Red and White.

Mr. Speltz of Boyne City, refereed and neatly handled the game. The line-up was as follows:

C. H. S.		M. H. S.
Solomon	F	Makel
Herrington	F	Schell
Davenport	C	Hickman
Cunningham	G	Angell
McCann	G	Nelson

Substitutions: C. H. S.: Brown for Solomon, Hallett for Herrington, Dagwell for Davenport, Jones for Cunningham, Glasgow for McCann. Beaudoin for Dagwell, Solomon for Beaudoin. M. H. S.; Brown for Schell, H. Angell for F. Angell. Field goals; "Sol," 1; Pete, 1, "Stub," 2; "Chuck," 1; Schell, 1. Free throws: "Sol," four out of four; "Stub," two out of three; Dean, one out of one; "Daddy," one out of one.

FORMER MRS. LEE HOWLAND MARRIED

Weds A. Kelly, Capitol Employee, at Lansing

State employees at Lansing are congratulating Mrs. Anna Howland of the auditor general's department and A. Kelly, elevator operator at the capitol building, who assumed the responsibilities and joys of the wedded state on Saturday evening, December 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were married at the Baptist parsonage by Rev. Dr. Hobbs in Lansing in the presence of immediate relatives and friends, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sargent, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. The bride was attired in green crepe da chene with cream lace and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

After the ceremony, tbe bridal couple left for Detroit and Flint on a short wedding trip. They ara now at home to their friends at 423 W. Lenawee street, Lansing. Both Mrs. Kelly and her husband nre very popular in their home city, especially among the state employees. Mrs. Kelly will be remembered here in Charlavoix as Mrs. Lee Howland.

DISTINGUISHED EDUCATOR DIES

LINUS SCOTT PARMELEE VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA

Was Efficient and Highly Respected Superintendent of Munising Schools

The death of L. S. Parmelee, Munlsing superintendent of schools, which occurred on Tuesday, January 13th, at his home in Munising, was a distinct shock to his many friends in this city, who met Mr. Parmelee when he was here with his family last summer, seeming, at that time, to be enjoying the best of health.

Mr. Parmelee was taken ill on Sunday, January 4th, with a bad cold which came upon him as the result of exposure during bis personal partiipation in the work of preparing temporary school quarters at East Munising, made necessary by the burning of the Washington school, just prior to the holidays. Although charged with the supervision of the construction, his energetic nature prompted him to add to his already heavy burden by taking an active part in the work itself.

While under a doctor's care from the second day of his illness, his case showed no unusual or alarming symptoms until the fifth day, when a minor involvment of the right lung was discovered. On Thursday, Jansry 8th, he became worse and at a consultation of physicians held on Tuesday of last week but slight hope for his recovery was held out. The patient continued to sink until the end, which came during the evening of the 13th. The direct cause of death was a streptococcic infection of tha frontal sinus, complicated by chronic inflammation of the heart muscle.

The funeral services were held from tbe home of the deceased at Munising on Thursday of last week, attended by members of the Masonic order, to which Mr. Parmelee belonged, in a body, as well as members of the Munising high school faculty, teachers, members of the board of education and friends, all of whom held their former associate in the highest esteem. Hundreds, including students of the schools, called to pay their last respects while the body lay at rest in the home. Many who would have liked to attend the service were unable to do so, owing to lack of room. Both public and parochial schools of the city closed out of respect to the deceased educator during Wednesday and Thursday.

Linus Scott Parmelee was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Horatio F. Parmelee, for many years residents of this city. Some twenty years ago, he served the city of Charlevoix most efficiently as superintendent of its schools (although the office of superintendent had not at that time been created here, his duties were similar). His wife was Miss Edith Fanning, a teacher in the Charlevoix schools, a sister of Mrs. Arthur Bergeon of this city.

Mr. Parmelee was born at Reading, Michigan. He graduated from the Hillsdale high school, later attending Hillsdale college. In the year, 1900, he graduated from the University of Michigan with the degree of bachelor of science. His first position was tbat of science instructor in the Houghton high school. In 1901 he went to Flint where he was head of the science department of the Flint high school for twelve conseeutive years, later accepting a principalship in the same schools, in which capacity he acted until 1922. In 1923 he attended Columbia University and the Teachers' College, where ha raceived his master's dagree. In October, 1923, he went to Munising as superintendent of schools, whieh position he held at the time of his deatb, whieh oeeurred in the 51st year of his life.

Besides his widow, two soas and a daughter survive the deceased—Horatio F., sophomora at the U. of M.; P. Ormiston, a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy at Anaapolis, and Ruth, who lived at home with her parents. A brother, Ed. Parmelee, lives in San Diego, California, where he is advertising manager of tha San Diego Union.

The remains were placed in the vault at Brookside on Friday afternoon, members of the local Masonic lodge conducting the services at the cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Mrs. Hilton, who had another attack of rheumatism last week, is some better.

Bertha Pierce was an all day visitor last Saturday with Marjorie Richardson.

Mrs. Melvina Haskins was an all day visitor one day last week at the home of her nephew, I. L. Dice.

The Misses Bessie and Beatrice Baumbach, of Antrim City, were Sunday visitors at the H. Pierce home.

Ise Alward and wife of near Ellsworth were visitors last Thursday and Friday at the home of their brotber, Sam Alward.

Drusilla Richardson of the Charlevoix telephone exchange, was a week end visitor at her home here, returning to Charlevoix Monday morning.

The Ladies' Aid social at the town hall Friday night was pronounced an entire success, a large number of young people being in attendance, who with some of the older ones played games until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wagner returned to their home in Charlevoix, Monday, after an extended visit with relatives here. Mr. Wagner expects to be very busy for the remainder of the winter making contracts for the growing of sugar beets.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Empey are back in Norwood again, after spending several weeks in Lansing at the home of their son, Guy Empey, and wife. They are glad to be back home again and everyone is glad to have them. There's no place like home, even in the good old winter time.

Magnus McGuire has a very sick horse. He had started to Central Lake with a load of hay and when near the Albert Smith home the horse collapsed. Dr. Newman, of Charlevoix was called in attendance and the latest reports is that the horse is much better.

A discount of $1.00 an every $5.00 purchase—all lines of stock included. See Benj. Brown about it. Adv. 2-tf.

Mrs. A. E. Hass and Mrs. W. H. Ransom, of Walloon Lake, have been quite ill for several days.

Mrs. Palmer's Sunday school class held their regular social meeting at the N. C. Griswold home on Friday evening.

Order your stove repairs right now. Time will soon be here to start up that heating stove that is in need of repairs. Charlevoix Hdw. Co.—Adv. 37-tf.

IRONTON

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jackson and children are visiting for a few days in Bellaire.

Mrs. Carlisle returned to her home here, after nursing her cousin, Mrs. Brower, at Eastport.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Louisell spent Sunday with Mr. Louisell's parents who live on the Mitchell farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Ogden and daughter spent Sunday at the Matthew Saunders home.

Gale Allen went to town twice on the ice Friday. Mrs. Allen visited her daughter, Mrs. Dean, at the Waller farm.

Rev. John Sutherland, superintendent of the Michigan Congregational conference, will preach in Charlevoix on February 1st and also at Ironton at 2:30 on the same date, if weather conditions permit. All interested please be present, as a business meeting will be held after the service.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, January 25th

10:30 morning worship. The pastor will preach. Subject, "Christianity Applied to Every Day Life." These teachings of Christ that we are reviewing are well worth the hearing. We appreciate the large audiences. But others can come. We have not yet had to use the annex and gallery. We welcome visitors. Christians of all denominations need soul food. Let us come into His sanctuary as brothers and sisters and worship the living God.

12 o'clock Sunday school. 188 last Sunday. We are trying to get the boys and girls to prevail upon their parents to attend Sunday school. The parents are doubtless anxious their children shall go, but why not have it work the other way? What do you think about it, parents? These are really wonderful lessons and we have at present possibly the best staff of officers und teachers we have had for some time back. The winter is passing. Summer's busy life will come on apace. Make these Sunday count now.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. The good book says, "A little child shall lead them." The training for leadership is attained in these gatherings. Give your youngsters the best advantage for life and get them to these services.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. What a splendid crowd last Sunday at that E. L. meeting. Our count crossed the 50 mark. Could you believe there were 16 young men in the bunch? The right kind of leadership, good singing and appreciative audience makes a service worth while attending.

7:00 p. m. worship. Pastor will preach. Sermon will draw some lessons from the life of Joseph. Did you ever think how nearly this youth of early times resembled Jesus Christ? He was sold for money like his Lord, despised by his brethren, severely tempted but victor, and finally lived to promote life for those who had hated him. Come to church at night and hear this sermon.

Prayer meeting Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read the 24th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. Christian or sinner is cordially invited to attend and take any part in these services.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing club will meet Thursday at 2:30 p. m., with Mrs. Benj. Brown, 405 Bridge street.

At the annual banquet last Wednesday 80 sat down to supper. The election of officers were as follows: President, Mrs. Dr. McMillan; vice president, Mrs. H. R. E. Quant; secretary, Mrs. Frank Courier; treasurer, Mrs. Geo. Sands; chairman work committee, Mrs. Wooley; chairman flower committee, Mrs. Supernaw. This society comprises many of the young married women of our church and community. Their regular meeting of once a week, Thursday afternoon, is spent in sewing. They have business meeting, devotional exercises and refreshments. If there are those in the community who would like to become a part of this busy crowd, see the president. They are a real essential part of the working force of our church.

At the Epworth League business and social gathering last Monday it was planned to hold an Epworth League prayer meeting each Wednesday at 7:00 p. m., for three-quarters of an hour. This will be a service in the practice of prayer and testimony.

CHURCH OF GOD

Preaching services at 10:30 and 7:30 each Sunday.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

The main value of silage lies in its carbohydrate content and its juicy nature and not in its protein content as it is one of the lowest we have. A good safe rule is to feed 3 pounds of silage to 100 pounds of live weight and about 1¼ pounds of good legume hay to the same weight.

In addition to the roughage it is necessary to feed a grain ration to get the maximum flow of milk. For a high producing cow it is impossible for her to consume sufficient roughage to get the required amount of protein and other nutriment, especially of the lower protein feeds, as timothy, red top hay, straw and stalks. If it were possible the animal would have to eat continuously all day long which is contrary to our good judgment, then also it would lack variety and palatability, as a result refusing to eat sufficient quantities of roughage.

In formulating your grain ration for best results, have at least 3 different grains included, and for high producing cows it is desirable to have 5 or 6. Also use your own feeds that you raise and only buy enough to balance your ration. Now then, if you are feeding the proper amounts of good corn silage and either sweet clover or alfalfa hay you need about 13% protein content in your grain ration, if feeding red clover or alsike hay or mixed hays you require about a 15 to 16% protein content, and if using poor silage and corn stalks, bean straw, oat straw or timothy hay you need close to a 19 to 20% rntion. Hence, the importance of good roughage, high in protein in lessening your cost of production, as proteins are what you have to buy and are high priced. The following are recommended rations having variety, palatability, and correct protein requirements:

13% Ration

Corn meal, 200 lbs.; ground oats, 200 lbs.; bran, 200 lbs.; C. S. or O. M., 100 lbs.—Total weight, 700 lbs.

15-16% Ration

Corn meal, 100 lbs.; oats, 100 lbs.; bran, 100 lbs.; middlings, 100 lbs.; C. S. or O. M., 100 lbs.—total weight, 500 lbs.

19-20% Ration

Corn meal, 100 lbs.; oats, 200 lbs.; bran, 150 lbs.; C. S. or O. M., 200 lbs.—Total weight, 700 lbs.

Barley, spetlz or small portions of rye can be substituted for corn with-

Order Your Fertilizer Now

We have less than six weeks to place specifications for the various kinds of fertilizer we will handle. We cannot do this until you tell us THE KIND YOU WANT. Come to the elevator or phone us immediately the kind you have planned on using and about how much you will need. If we know this in advance no one will be disappointed and everyone will be able to get just the kind they want. This is important, both to you and us, and we ask you to give us this information at once. It will enable us to give the best of service if you do.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of Charlevoix ss.
The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the regular term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County af Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1925, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Caurt above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petitian for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be neeessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Charlevoix, State of Miehigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each pareel described in the deeree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and aecepting a conveyanee of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole pareel shall be offered and sold. If any pareel af land eannat be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and ahall, on the suceeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on sueh second offer, or during sueh sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Cireuit Court of Chnrlevoix County this 12th day of December A. D. 1924.

PARM C. GILBERT,
Circuit Judge.

Charles H. Emrey, Clerk.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

The petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the Statc of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respeetfully shows that tbe list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a deseription of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for nonpayment of taxes, and which taxes havo not been paid; together with the total amount of sueh taxes, with interest, computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said pareels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; exeept that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of tbe general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Aets of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows tbat in all eases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been eancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers tbat the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several pareels of lands deseribed in said schedule.

Your petitioner furtber shows that the said taxes on the aaid described lands havc remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against tho aeveral parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that eaeh of said pareels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
Dated December 10, 1924.

ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan,

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

"The Child's First School is the Family."—Froebel

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

YOUR CHILD'S IDEA OF THRIFT

Edith Lochridge Reid

When you give your child his school allowance on Monday morning does he have an idea where it came from? When you take your daughter down-town and buy her a new coat, does she think that the "Charge it, please," settles the account?

Just recently Richard wanted to buy a second-hand bicycle which a chum had to sell, but father told him he didn't have the money to spare. "Well, give me a check," said Richard, and when Daddy explained that there wasn't any more money in the bank, Richard insisted, "Why there is, too, I saw my teacher come out of there this noon with some dollars they had given her."

Now Richard doesn't belong to an illiterate family, nor to a poverty stricken one, either. His father makes a deposit in the savings bank each time he receives his salary check, although he may run low on his checking account the last of the month. But Richard, although past nine years old, still thinks that banks exist in the community to pass out money per order by check.

Teaching thrift is not only a parental duty, but it is a civic obligation which the family owes to the community. To be sure, it takes more time and patience to divide up the savings account into respective accounts for each member of the family, but any moral training takes effort. Why not give five-year-old son his ten or twenty-five cents a week and then take him down to the bank and show him where to put half of it or a fourth for safe keeping? If he spends the remainder for candy on the way home, let him learn the consequences of such procedure by going without luxuries of that sort the rest of the week.

Good habits are so much easier taught when the child is still in the home or at least in his very early school years, because then he has fewer distractions and temptations, and his mind is most impressionable. If we can succeed in getting the child to follow a safe and sane schedule while directly under home influence, there is a pretty good chance of his keeping to it.

The mother who hands out to her children pennies and nickles without restriction during their babyhood, will find them demanding dollars in later years with no appreciation whatever and with no idea of their value except as they translate it into terms of ice-cream soda and frills.

Thrift involves more than the mere putting of money into the bank from a stated allowance. It is moral training in self-denial, promptness, reasoning, and a right attitude toward the family finances and home comforts.

Children taught to save intelligently make better men and women; they are usually successful in business and are self-reliant and contented.

Take your boy to the savings bank next week when he gets his allowance, get him a deposit book like "big folks" and watch his eyes shine.

Recently our Elinor opened a savings account and a few days afterwards when a new little neighbor came over to get acquainted, Elinor said, "Don't you want to trade at my bank?"

So the thrift habit and its influence may easily spread. The time spent in teaching the child to save is a good investment and will always brings its own reward.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, after cleaning up a fortune in Death Valley, Calif., boards a train for the East. He befriends a young lady annoyed by a masher, thoroughly trouncing the "pest."

CHAPTER II.—At Denver Webster receives a letter from Billy Geary, his closest friend. Geary urges him to come to Sobrante, Central America, to finance and develop a mining claim. He decides to go.

CHAPTER III.—Dolores Ruey, the young woman Webster befriended, and who has made a deep impression on him, as he has on her, is also on the way to Sobrante.

CHAPTER IV.—At Buenaventura, capital of Sobrante, Billy Geary, ill and penniless, is living on the charity of "Mother Jenks," keeper of a drinkshop. She receives a cablegram from Dolores, telling of her coming.

CHAPTER V.

Without quite realizing why he did so, Billy decided that fear and not grief was at the bottom of the good creature's distress, and in his awkward, masculine way he placed his arm around Mother Jenks' shoulders, shook her gently, and bade her remember that chaos might come and go again, but he, the said William Geary, would remain her true and steadfast friend in any and all emergencies that might occur.

"Gor' bless yer heart, Willie," Mother Jenks sniffed. "I dunno wot is 'ell yer ever goin'—to think a' me w'en I tell wot I've been up to this past fifteen year."

"Whatever you've been up to, Mother, it was a kind and charitable deed—of that much I am certain." Billy replied loftily and—to his own surprise—sincerely.

"As Gord is my judge, Willie, it started out that w'y," moaned Mother Jenks, and she squeezed Billy's hand as if from that yellow, shaking member she would draw aid and comfort. "'Er nyme is Dolores Ruey. 'Er father was Don Ricardo Ruey, president av this blasted 'ell on earth w'en me an' my sainted 'Enery first come to Buenaventurn. 'E was too good for the yeller-hellies beggars; 'e tried to do somethink for them an' run the government on the square, an' they couldn't hunderstand, all along o' 'avin' been kicked an' cuffed by a long line of bloody rotters. It was Don Ricardo as gives my sainted 'Enery 'is commission as colonel in the hartillery.

"You've 'eard me tell," Mother Jenks continued, "'ow the rebels got 'arf a dozen Hamerican gunners—deserters from the navy—an' hiew 'Enery's battery to hits; 'ow the government forces fell back upon Buenaventurn, an' as 'ow w'en the dorgs began to wonder if they mightn't lose, they quit by the 'undreds an' went over to the rebel side, leavin' Don Ricardo an' 'Enery an' m'yhe fifty 'o' the gentry in the palace. In course they fought to a finish; 'ristocrats, all of them, they 'ad to die fightin' or facin' a firin' squad."

Billy nodded. He had heard the tale before, including the recital of the sainted 'Enery's gallant dash from the blazing palace in an effort to save Don Ricardo's only child, a girl of seven, and of his capture and subsequent execution.

The Sainted 'Enery's Gallant Dash.

"That ended the revolution," Mother Jenks continued. "But 'ere's somethink I've never told a livin' soul. Shortly before 'Enery was hexecuted, 'e told me where 'e'd 'id the youngster—in a culvert out on the Malecon; so I 'ired a four-wheeler an' went out an' rescued the pore lamb. I 'id 'er until the harrival o' the next fruit steamer, w'en I shipped 'er to New Orleans in care o' the stewardess. Hi 'ad 'er put in the Catholic convent there, for as 'Enery said: "Eurletta, keep an eye on the little nipper, an' do yer damndest to see she's rnised a lydy. 'Er father was a gentlemnn, an' you never wnnt to forget 'e made you Mrs. Colonel Jenks.' So Hi've mnde a lydy out o' her, Willie: education, pinnner lessons, paintin', singin', an' deportmiat. After she graduated from the convent, I 'ad her take a course in the Uniwersity o' California—New Orlenns wasn't 'enithy for 'er, an' she needed a chynge 'o' climate—an' for the last two years she'a beeu teachin' in the 'igh school in Los Angeles."

"And you haven't seen her in all these years?" Geary demanded.

"Not a look, Willie. She's been after me ever since she graduated from the coavent to let her come 'ome an' wisit me, hut Hi've told 'er to wyte—that I'd he comin' soon to wisit ber. An' now, s'help me, she won't wait no longer; she's comin' to wisit me! Gor', Willie, she's on her w'y!"

"So this cabtegram would indicate," Genry observed. "Nevertheless, Mother, I'm at a loss to know why you should feel so cut up over the impending visit."

There was real fenr in Mnther Jenks' tear-dimmed eyes. "I cawn't let 'er see me," she wailed. "I wasn't this w'y w'en my saiated 'Enery hentrusted the lamb to me; it wasn't until awfter they hexecuted 'Enery that I commenced to slip—nn' now look at me. Look nt me, Willie Geary; look at me, I s'y. Wot do yer see? Aw, don't tell me I'm young an' 'andsome, for I know wot I am. I'm n frowsy, drunken, disreputshle luggage, with no heducation or nothink. All nlong, hever since she learnnd to write me a letter, I've been 'Enrietta Wilkins to 'er, an' Mother Jenks to every heachcomhin' beggar in the Caribbean tropics. I've lied to 'er, Willie. I've wrote 'er as 'ow 'er fawther, before 'e died, give me enough money to hedncate 'er like n lydy—"

Again Mother Jenks' grief overcame her. "Gor', Willie, I ain't respectable. She'a comin' to see me—an' I cawn't let 'er. She mustn't know 'ow I got the money for 'er heducation—sellin' 'ell-fire to a pack of rotten dorgs an' consortin' with the scum of this stinkin' 'otel. Oh, Willie, you've got to 'elp me. I cawn't 'ave 'er comin' to El Buen Amigo to see me, an' I cawn't ruin 'er reputation by callin' on 'er in public at the 'Otel Mateo. Oh, Gor', Willie, Mother's come a cropper."

Willie agreed with her. He patted the sinful gray head of his landlady and walled for her to regain her composure, the while he racked his agile brain for a feasible plan to fit the emergency.

"She been picturin' me in 'er mind all these years, Willie—picturin' a fraud," walled Mother Jenks. "If she sees me now, wot a shock she'll get, pore sweetheart—an' 'er the spittin' bimage of a hangel. And oh, Willie, while she don't remember wot I looked like, think o' the shock if she meets me! In 'er lawst letter she said as 'ow I was the only hanchor she had in life. Ho, yes. A sweet-lookin' hanchor I mo—an' Hi was 'oldin' to die before she found hout. I've got a hanneriso in my 'eart, Willie, so the surgeon on the mail-boat-tells me, an' w'en I go, I'll go like—that!" Mother Jenks snapped her cigarette-stained fingers. I'm fifty-seven, Willie, an' since my sainted 'Enery passed nway, I 'aven't been no bloomin' hangel." She wrung her hands. "Oh, w'y in 'ell couldn't them hurterles 'ave busted in thue to save my lamh the 'umiliatin' knowledge that she's he'oldin' to the likes o' me for wut she's got—an' 'ow I got it for 'er."

Billy Geury had a bright Idea. "Well," he said, "why not die—temporarily—if you feel that way about it? You could come back from the grave after she's gone."

But Mother Jenks shook her head. "No," she declared. "Widle Dolores is self-supportin' now, still, if anythink 'appened an' she was in need 'elp, 'elp is somethin' no ghost can give. Think again, Willie. Gor, lad, w'ere's yer brains?"

"Well," Billy countered thoughtfully, "apparently there's no way of heading her off before she takes the steamer at New Orlesns, so we'll take it for granted she'll arrive here in due course. About the time she's due, suppose you run up to San Miguel de Padua for a couple of weeks and leave me to run El Buen Amigo in your absence. I'll play fair with you, Mother, so help me. I'll nccount for every centavo. I'll borrow some decent clothes from Leber the day the steamer gets in; then I'll go aboard and look over the passenger list, and if she's aboard, I'll tell her you closed your house and started for California to visit her on the last north-bound steamer—that her cablegram arrived just after you had started; that the cable compsny, knowing I am a friend of yours, showed me the message and that I took it upon myself to call and explain that as a result of your departure for the United States it will be useless for her to land—useless and dangerous, because cholera is raging in Buenaventura, nithough the port authorities deny it—"

"Willie," Mother Jenks interrupted impressively, a ghost of her old determinir spirit stirring through her tears, "yer don't owe me a bloomin' sixpence! Yer've syved the day, syved my reputation, an' syved a lydy's peace o' mind. Kiss me, yer precious lydy."

So Billy kissed her—gravely and with dlfat reverence, for he had long suspected Mnther Jenks of being a peart cast before swine, and now he was certain of it.

"I'll send her back to the United States and promise to enble you to await her there," Billy continued. "Of course, we can't help it if you and the cablegram pnss connections, and once the young lady is back in the United States, I dare say she'll have to stay there a couple of years before she can save the price of another sea voyage. And in the meantime she may marry—"

"Or that hanconism may 'ave turned the trick before that," Mother Jenks suggested candidly but joyously. "In course she'll be disappointed, but then disappointment never lays 'eavy on a young 'eart, Willie; an' hein' disappointed at not seein' a person you ain't really acquainted with ain't as hnd as some disappointments."

"I guess I know," Billy Geary replied bitterly. "If that cablegram had only been for me! Mother, if my old partner could, by some miracle, manage to marry this Dolores girl, your arteries and your aneurisms might bust and he damned, but the girl would be safe."

"M'yhe," Mother Jenks suggested hopefully, "yer might fix it up for her w'en I'm gone. From all hinccounts 'e's no-end a gentleman."

"He's a he-man," Mr. Genry declared with conviction. He sighed. "John Stuart Webster, wherever you are, please write or cable," he murmured.

CHAPTER VI.

The ancient bromide to the effect that man proposes but God disposes was never better exemplified than in the case of John Stuart Webster, who, having formulated certain daring plans for the morrow and surrendered himself to grateful slumber in his stateroom nboard the Gulf States Limited, awoke on that momentous morn to a distinct apprehension that all was not as it should be with him. His mouth reminded him vaguely of a bird-and-animal store, and riot and insurrection had broken out in the geometric center of his internal economy.

Webster was sufficient of a jack-leg doctor to suspect he was developing a splendid little case of ptomaine poisoning. He decided to go into executive session with the sleeping-car conductor, who wired ahead for a doctor to meet the train at the next station. And when the sawbones came and pawed Jack Webster over, he gravely announced that if the patient had the slightest ambition to vote at the next presidential election, he should leave the train at St. Louis and enter a hospital forthwith. To this heart-breaking program Webster entered not the slightest objection, for when a man is seriously ill, he is in much the same position as a politician—to-wit: He is in the hands of his friends.

However, life had the habit of going hand with Webster so frequently that fortunately he was trained to the minute, and after three days of heroic battling the doctor awarded Jack the decision. Thereafter they kept him in the hospital ten days longer, "feeding him up" as the patient expressed it—at the end of which period Webster, some fifteen pounds lighter and not quite so fast on his feet as formerly, resumed his journey toward New Orleans.

In the meantime, however, several things had happened. To begin, Dolores Ruey spent two days wondering what had become of her quondam knight of the whiskers—at the end of which period she arrived in New Orleans with the conviction strong upon her that while her hero might be as courageous as a wounded lion when dealing with men, he was the possessor, when dealing with women, of nbout two per cent less courage than a cottontail rabbit. Being a very human young lady, however, she could not help wondering what had become of the ubiquitous Mr. Webster, although the fact that he had mysteriously disappeared from the train en route to New Orleans did not perturb her one-half so much as it had the disappearee. She had this advantage over that unfortunate man. Whereas he did not know she was bound for Buenaventura, she knew he was; hence, upon arrival in New Orleans she dismissed him from her thoughts, serene in abiding faith that sooner or later, her knight would appear, like little Bo-Peep's lost sheep, dragging his tail behind him, so to speak.

Dolores spent a week in New Orleans renewing schoolgirl friendships from her convent days in the quaint old town. This stop-over, together with the one in Denver, not having been taken into consideration by Mr. William Geary when he and Mother Jenks commenced to speculate upon the approximate date of her arrival in Buenaventura, resulted in the premature flight of Mother Jenks to San Miguel de Padua, a fruitless visit on the part of Billy aboard the Cacique, of the United Fruit company's line, followed by a hurry call to Mother Jenks to return to Buenaventura until the arrival of the next steamer.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage, dated the 10th day of April, 1919, executed by George E. Cummings and wife, Ella M. Cummings, of Norwood Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, was given to Medrick Seymour of Charlevoix, Michigan, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, in Liber 29 of Mortgages on page 368 on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1919, which mortgage was on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923, assigned by said Medrick Seymour to Neil McAuley of Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County aforesaid in Liber 55 of Mortgages on page 100, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $1,993.60 of principal and interest, and a further sum of $12.30 and interest thereon for taxes paid on said premises, and the sum of $73 and interest thereon for insurance paid on said premises, together with an attorney fee of $35 as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof:

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of the principal and interest, together with the amounts paid for taxes and insurance, costs and expenses of foreclosure, including the attorney fee provided by statute, at Public Auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows, towit: The west half of the northeast quarter and the west half of the east half of the northeast quarter of Section eighteen, Township thirty-three north, Range eight west.

Dated December 16th, 1924.

Neil McAuley,
Mortgagee.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Saturday and Sunday, January 24 and 25

Betty Compson in "RAMSHACKLE HOUSE." The thrilling story of a girl who fought with her back against the wall to clear the name of the man she loved. The gripping picture of a glorious fight against the overwhelming forces of law, money and public opinion.

Also a very good comedy, "WIDE OPEN." A laugh with every move, and there are a thousand moves.

Wednesday, January 28th

Charles Jones in "BIG DAN." Charles Jones as a prize-fighter is a knockout. But—this story proves that boxing gloves with brawny hands inside are helpless before lady's gloves, with white, delicate hands inside.

Also a humorous comedy, "FOLD UP."

Ellsworth Section

Eland Yettaw left on Tuesday for Flint, where he will visit his mother.

J. L. Cushman, of Toledo, Ohio, was a business visitor on Thursday of last week.

F. O. Gillett is doing mason work this week at the new house being built by Edward Klooster.

Chas. Edson is nursing a torn shoulder ligament received in the basket ball game last Friday night.

Emery Wilson has been confined to the house during the past week with a severe attack of neuralgia.

Mrs. Isa Alward was called to Marine City on Friday by the serious illness of her daughter, Ethel.

C. W. Fales and Harry Taylor have dissolved partnership and Mr. Fales is now the sole owner of the groeery store formerly owned by the two.

Yes, we got a fox the first of the week. It was a hard strugglie with a fight to the death at the finish, but "all's well that ends well," so "that's that."

The Misses Emma and Josephine Brosche returned to their home at Traverse City on Monday, after a week spent at the home of their sister, Mrs. A. L. Ely.

Stock holders in the Ellsworth Canning Co. held a very satisfactory meeting on Friday afternoon of last week, at which the last year's business was reviewed and plans for the coming year were discussed. They expect to be writing contracts on or before February 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yettaw received word last week from Detroit that their daughter, Savilla, had been painfully injured in a street car accident. The young lady was improving at last reports however. She is employed as a bookkeeper at the Dodge Bros. automobile factory.

The Ellsworth independent basket ball team won from East Jordan on the local floor on Friday evening, the score being 22-18. At the start, the game looked like a run-away for the home boys due principally to the superb basket shooting of Elzinga, and the first half ended with the visitors on the short end of an 18-2 score. East Jordan struck their stride in the second half, however, and began to crawl up and were crowding too close for comfort at the finish.

ATWOOD

Sun eclipse next Saturday.

Miss Alice Klooster is in Chicago.

Floyd Parsons expects to go Flint soon.

The women say, big snow after the eclipse.

Jim Zylstra is delivering wood around town.

Learn the lesson of faith, hope and charity—especially charity.

Several attended the program and social at Norwood last Friday evening.

Most of the farmers are getting out their year's wood. Nice, big piles, too.

Have you heard the Atwood string band? It consists of two violins, cello, banjo, and piano. We do not know as yet how much they charge to play out of town.

It would be a Godsend to our county if every child 16 or 18 years old could have enough steady work to form habits of industry instead of habits of idleness.

We are very sorry to learn of the illness of our friend and neighbor, A. B. Sneller, who is in the Charlevoix hospital for medical treatment. Here is hoping for his speedy recovery.

Surely Rev. Conklin, pastor of the Methodist church is growing in favor with every person he comes in contact with. His subject on Sunday morning last was "I am Seeking Not Yours, But You." Come and hear this man of God every Sunday morning at 10:45. Sun time. Sunday school at 12 o'clock.

ANTRIM CITY

Mr. Baumbach came home Tuesday from baling hay.

Mr. Brooks made a business trip to Central Lake, Friday.

Joe Evans was a visitor at the Robinson home last Sunday.

Wilbur Robinson was a visitor at the Brooks home Wednesday.

Frank Mason was a visitor at the Harry Mason home, Wednesday.

Mr. Stott and Mr. Stoel helped Mr. Brooks buzz wood, Monday.

Frank Mason is cutting some more trees out of the cemetery again.

Mrs. Stott and daughter, Viola, visited at the Brooks home Monday.

Mrs. Brooks was a visitor at the Stott home, Friday, and helped Mrs. Stott tie a quilt.

Lester Brooks and Wilbur Robinson were visitors at the Stott home Wednesday evening.

The Misses Martha Mason and Bessie Baumbach were out of school four days this week on account of illness.

We are still looking for candy from the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Baker. So far none has appeared.

Sam Alward and his brothers and Clyde Baker went fox hunting last Thursday and did not get anything, but Sam got left and had to walk home while the others rode.

MILES DISTRICT

Chas. Hillman left for Detroit on Saturday.

Norman Jensen is hauling logs for Albert Miles.

Frances Evans is cutting wood for Fred Bancroft.

We saw the first snow-mobile on our road Saturday.

George Stenke is hauling hay for Gerret Steenhagen.

Will LaClair, of East Jordan, spent Thursday night with Carl Moblo.

Miss Jesse Metz, of Rock Elm, spent last week visiting her cousin, Mrs. Frank Addis.

Mrs. Lynn Evans and children of East Jordan, visited Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dett Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Miles spent the week end with their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Xelle Miles, in East Jordan.

UNDER THE DOME AT LANSING

Special to the Courier

Lansing, Jan. 20.—Prospects look bright for a satisfactory solution of the perplexing problems of highway finance. Senators and representatives gathering here today for the third week of the session seem agreed upon a general plan of procedure worked out at a conference held between senate and house leaders and Governor Groesbeck.

Such strong support and popular demand for a two-cent gasoline tax has become so evident that all talk of postponing the enactment of a gasoline tax or of passing a one-cent levy has been abandoned. The present plan includes the passage of a two-cent gasoline tax and the enactment of lower license rates to be fixed on the weight basis alone with horsepower eliminated from consideration.

With this agreement reached, the senate committee on taxation reported out a gas tax bill sponsored by Senator Orville E Atwood of Newaygo as a substitute for Senator Baxter's bill. The substitute, known as the Atwood-Baxter bill, was referred to the committee on finance and appropriations which immediately went into session and reported the bill out promptly with the recommendation that it pass. It is now at the head of general orders and probably will be reported favorably by the committee of the whole today or tomorrow. It is expected that it will be passed by the senate and sent to the house this week.

Plan Lower Licenses

As a companion measure to this gas tax, Representative Chas. Evans of Tipton, chairman of the house committee on general taxation, and one of the staunch leaders of the gas tax bloc, has introduced an amendment to the present automobile license law, eliminating the horse-power feature and putting the licensing on a straight weight basis. The rate now in the bill is 65 cents per cwt. for pleasure cars and trucks up to 3,000 pounds. For heavier trucks the rate is graduated from 75 cents to $1.00 per cwt. It is understood, however, that these rates will be revised downward in committee. Many up-state senators and representatives insist that with a two-cent gasoline tax the weight levy should not exceed 50 cents per cwt.

While the Atwood-Baxter gas tax and the Evans reduced license fee bills are receiving the most support, they are by no means the only highway finance proposals introduced. Besides these and the weight and gas tax bills introduced by Senator Baxter of Grand Rapids during the first week two-cent gasoline tax proposals have also been introduced by Senator Frank L. Young of Lansing, Representative Joseph Warner of Ypsilanti, Representative Ate Dykstra of Grand Rapids, and Representative Loomis K. Preston of St. Joseph.

Governor Promises to Sign Gas Tax

It is the present plan that both the gas tax and reduced license levies be given immediate effect. Since Governor Groesbeck has promised house and senate leaders that he will sign whatever gas tax they pass, the prospect looks bright that the matter of highway finance may be definitely settled by February 1st.

With that out of the way there are many other perplexing problems to come up. The whole fight over legislative reapportionment is being held in abeyance until the road program is out of the way. Senator Wood of Detroit has already introduced a bill to double the number of senators from Wayne county, and Representative Culver, also of Detroit, has a bill ready to greatly increase the number of representatives from Wayne county in the house. While leaders in both bodies have promised that this matter will be given full consideration, it is evident that it will start a big battle and much bitterness will no doubt be developed.

Another distressing problem is in connection with the appropriations for the several state institutions. With budget requests for new buildings alone totalling nearly $19,000,000, the law-makers will be perplexed with the bewildering problem of going over these many requests and deciding which to allow and which to defer.

To give them first-hand information regarding the actual needs of the various state institutions, it has been decided that as soon as the highway finance program is definitely disposed of, the legislature will adjour for a week to allow the members to make their institutional visits or junkets as they were formerly called.

Covert Law Repeal Urged

Among the forty bills already introduced, one which is of outstanding interest to Michigan farmers is that sponsored by Representative W. J. Thomas of Constantine, which would repeal the Covert Highway Law. It is hard to predict whether or not this bill will pass, but it is evident that the Covert Act has lost favor in many parts of the state. Those who urge its repeal declare that it has outlived its usefulness and has become a real burden and a menace.

As usual, some little friction over the matter of week-end adjournment is developing between members living relatively near Lansing and those from northern Michigan. The practice of taking a recess from Thursday night until Tuesday afternoon grates on the nerves of those lawmakers who live too far away to get home and who must remain in Lansing with relatively little to do about half the week.

These adjournments are defended on the ground that they are necessary to allow the committees to consider bills before them and to permit the printing of the many bills introduced. It is probable, however, that many of the members like them because it gives them an opportunity to get home to attend to their private business.

Senator W. L. Case of Benzonia, favors speeding things up and having shorter sessions. He has introduced a constitutional amendment to limit any regular session to ninety days. This proposal, if passed, would go on the ballot for a referendum vote in November, 1926.

Rep. Frank W. McKenzie of Concord, is sponsoring a bill to extend the close season on quail until 1935. The present protection expires this year.

Rep. Orvy Hullett of Armada, has introduced a bill to make Eastern time legal throughout Michigan. It is not probable that this proposal will meet with much favor with farmers in western Michigan.

The right of counties to employ public health nurses is provided by a bill introduced by Sen. W. L. Case of Benzonia. The bill lays down rights and duties of such nurses but it also specifies that any citizen has the right to refuse to take any treatment or examination administered by a county nurse.

Churches and all religious organizations would be exempt from payment of any state corporation tax fees by the terms of a measure introduced by Rep. George Roxburgh of Reed City. These organizations are now compelled to pay $10 to the state every three years.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

out any noticable loss of value. Bran, middlings, oats, and wheat can be used in place of one another or interchanged without a great loss of protein, although bran and middlings are highest in protein.

Because of the exceptional high price of corn this year, I have suggested feeding a little less corn than is usually recommended. The above rations are for corn silage with the grain in it. If your corn silage has no grain you should feed more corn or a substitute.

For cows testing under 3.5%, feed 1 pound of grain to 4½ pounds of milk; for cows testing up to 4.5%, feed 1 pound of grain to 4 pounds of milk and with cows testing over 5% feed 1 pound of grain to 3½ to 4 pounds of milk.

The main thing in making out your ration is to feed the right proportion of C. S. or O. M. and of corn or its substitutes and the middle portion of your ration can be changed withany much difference in results, that is your oats, wheat, bran and middlings. Also feed between 1½ oz. and 2 oz. of salt per day per cow.

In all cases never give the cow so much feed that she leaves any in the feed box. It you are feeding poor roughage, such as oat straw, timothy hay, corn stalks and coarse sweet clover hay, you can't expect the cow to eat all of it.

DEATH HAS ENDED LIFE OF PROMISE

The Passing of Marjorie Mitchell Saddens Us All

The entire community was saddened and expressions of sympathy and deepest regret were beard on all sides last week when it was learned that Marjorie Florence Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of this city had passed away at the Charlevoix Hospital, on Friday, January 16th, following an operation for appendicitis, at the close of an illness of some four weeks' duration.

Miss Mitchell, who was born on November 11, 1910, was only fourteen years of age, just budding into womanhood at the time of her death. She was educated in the public schools of Charlevoix and Flint, a popular member of the eighth grade at school, and, although a member of the Methodist church, a regular attendant of the Congregational Sunday school and a devoted and earnest worker in the Young People's Christian Endeavor.

That she had won for herself an enviable place in the hearts of her friends and associates during her brief life in this community was evidenced by the many beautiful floral tributes, mute expressions of tender regard and sorrow at her untimely passing, that were presented as gifts of the nurses who cared for her at the hospital, the pupils and teachers of the schools and Sunday school and the many friends of the stricken family.

The funeral was held on Monday, January 19th, at two p. m., from the Mitchell residence on South State street. Several young men of the high school acted as pall bearers, the Rev. H. R. E. Quant conducting the services at the house and at Brookside Cemetery, where the remains were placed in the receiving vault.

The deceased is survived by her parents, her sister, Arletta and her grandmother, Mrs. Lydia A. Ward.

nually to the Michigan county making the greatest increase per capita in the seal sale will not be awarded until all returns are totalled. Mrs. Mautner's annual gift of thirty-five copies of "Health and Training in Schools," will likewise be awarded to schools in the county which has the highest per capita seal sale.

The Charlevoix school or schoolroom, which in the final accounting has sold the most seals per pupil, will be awarded the grand prize of a set of weighing scales with measuring rod attached. To become permanent property, such a scale must be won three times by the same school.

Schools and schoolrooms in Charlevoix county which have sold more than ten dollars worth of Christmas seals, are being awarded an official playground ball and bat. Those which have sold four dollar's worth, will be mailed a copy of "Health Training in Schools" for the school library. These awards are being mailed out as fast as returns come in.

GIRL'S NERVE FIRM IN FACE OF DANGER

Eleven Year Old Neva Webster is Heroine of Runaway

Neva Webster, eleven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Platt Webster of Charlevoix, route 3, had a rather thrilling experience last Saturday noon—an experience filled with great possibilities of danger which she faced with remarkable coolness and courage that would have done credit to a much older person.

Miss Neva was sitting on her father's sleigh while the team was being unhitched at Hooker's barn opposite the State street entrance, when the horses took fright at some boys who were sliding down the hill and tore off up the steep grade to Hurlbut avenue, where they turned to the left and continued their mad career eastward for more than two blocks until at a point between the Parsons and Zipp residences they left the road and headed with speed unabated towards the edge of the steep terrace overhanging Belvedere avenue. All this time, Miss Webster, who, although the horses were partially unharnessed, had managed to hang on to one of the lines and was calling "whoa" in as stentorian tones as she could muster.

Before the horses reached the edge of the steep declivity, the girl jumped and a moment later the team, with the sleigh whirling through space behind them, plunged down the bank. When they stopped, one of the animals was down with the sleigh partly on top of him, but by some unexplained miracle neither was injured. Miss Webster is to be congratulated on her plucky nerve and fortunate escape from serious hurt.

PIONEER RESIDENT HAS PASSED AWAY

Archie Irwin Dies at Ripe Age of Seventy-two

Another of that rapidly disappearing little group of pioneer settlers and sturdy citizens who have done so much to contribute to the growth and solid prosperity of our community has left us.

Archie Irwin, for forty-two years a resident of this city, died at his home, 303 Dixon avenue, last Saturday morning, January 17th, at nine o'clock, following a long illness. About two years ago, Mr. Irwin had his foot crushed in an accident. Shortly afterwards, blood poisoning set in and he was forced to give up his position at the Charlevoix Lumber Co., where he had worked nearly forty-one years continuously.

Mr. Irwin was born in lower Ontario on June 2, 1852 and was nearly 72 years old at the time of his death. He was married in Canada, 54 years ago to Miss Hannah Carter and to this union were born seven children, of whom only two survive, besides the widow. These are Mrs. Lou Comfort of this city and Mrs. William Holdsworth of Traverse City. There are also three grandchildren. A brother, the only surviving member of a family of eleven, lives in Canada.

The funeral was held on Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. from the home of the deceased, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating, interment at Brookside following. Those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. William Holdsworth of Traverse City, Ira F. Gordon, wife and two children, Clara and Earl, of Grand Rapids and Marshall Gallanger of Canada, a nephew of the deceased.

A discount of $1.00 an every $5.00 purchase—all lines of stock included. See Benj. Brown about it. Adv. 2-tf.

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE IS COMING

Normal Class Play Scheduled for Two Evenings Next Week

The Charlevoix county Normal Class are going to give us a real treat at the Palace Theatre on Thursday and Friday of next week, January 29th and 30th.

This will take the form of a play, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," a Mexican border comedy written by Owen Davis and directed by Mr. Slim. It is not the usual school play but a lively western comedy full of pep from the beginning. It has met with unusual success in all the large cities of the country and could only be secured by the payment of a fancy royalty. The following cast of characters has been carefully made. They have the ability and determination to give to the people of Charlevoix one of the best plays ever staged in their city.

The cast of characters will be as follows:

Richard Barrington (Dick Scott).....
Tom Cragen, Owner Bar Z.....Airel Cooper
Jose, Mexican.....Mr. Viella
Nat Martin, Sheriff.....Wayne Miles
Slim, Cowboy.....A. C. Belding
Splinter, Cowboy.....F. Holland
Shorty, Cowboy.....Clive Poquette
The Doctor, Cowboy.....T. Crandall
Professor, Cowboy.....M. Beyers
Margaret Lee, from New York.....Margaret Krulik
Wenona, Dick's Wife.....Violet McCafferty
Laura Cragen, Tom's Wife.....Vera Belding
Juanita, Mexican Girl....Erma Carey

There will be special music between each of the four acts—a full evening's entertainment. Seats will be reserved for those buying tickets before the date of the play.

DEATH RESULTS FROM OPERATION

George Miller Fails to Survive Shock to Heart

George Miller, aged 33, salesman for the meat packing concern of Wilson & Company, with headquarters at Jackson, died Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Charlevoix Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, performed on Friday of last week.

Mr. Miller, who was born in Charlevoix, educated in the local schools and who had spent most of his life here, had for several years past been working in Chicago and latterly at Jackson. He came up here last week for treatment for stomach trouble resulting from the diseased condition of his appendix and an operation was found necessary, in fact, had been advised by his physician in Jackson.

He was married about a little over two years ago to Mrs. Marjorie Boyd of East Jordan, no children, however, being born to this union. Besides the widow, he is survived by his sister, Mrs. Louella Korth of this city. His two brothers died some years ago.

The funeral will be held at two o'clock tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon from the Miller residence on Belvedere avenue, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating. The body will be placed in the vault at Brookside.

Larger Appropriation Urged for 1925—Auto Camp to Be Placed On New Basis

At a meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, held on last Wednesday evening, January 21st, it wos agreed that, judging from the number of inquiries for cottages already at hand, the tourist seoson for 1925, if weather conditions are at all favorable, should be exceptionally heavy.

For publicity purposes, 15,000 booklets and 500 four-color posters are now being printed and a newspaper advertising campaign in the middle west and south will start as soon os the proper time is at hand.

Preparations are also now well under way for the annual yachting regattu on Pine Lake, which is beld in the latter part of July, following the Chicago-Mackinac race. Committees from the Chicago and Jackson Park Yacht clubs are expected to arrive soon to complete full arrangements. A new acquisition of the local yochting fleet will be the large cruiser owned by R. E. Olds of Lanbing, who has chosen Charlevoix for his summer home, hoving purchased a large estate of 110 acres on Pine Lake, opposite the famous Loeb Farms.

The convention committee reported two conventions booked and several still pending.

The finance committee urged the necessity of a larger advertising fund, recommending that a quarter mill additionnl be placed in that fund and that an amendment to the city's charter to that effect be placed on the ballot at the April election, a measure that was unanimously adopted.

It was also decided to make a charge of 50 cents for the first night and 25c for each night following at the auto camp, which has always heretofore been maintoined as a free camp.

Following are the officers and committees of the organization for 1925, as recently elected and appointed:

DEPUTY CLERK PAYTON BACK

RETURNS FROM THE WEST SUNBURNED AND SMILING

Traversed tbe Califoroia Coast and Visited Pacific Fleet—Met Hubert Paddock

Who should visit the Courier office last Monday afternoon but Deputy City Clerk D. S. Payton, who has been spending a vacation of nearly two months durotion in San Diego, Cnlifornia, with his son, Vernon and family.

Mr. Payton, who left here on December 2nd over the Southern Pacific and returned to this city lost Wednesday via the Santa Fe, says he had a wonderful trip. He mokes particular mention of the Carriso Gorge through which he paased on one of the Southern Pncific's palatial trains on the way west. The distance through this gorge is eleven miles and it cost $3,939,000 to loy ond equip the track for this short distance. The depth of the gorge from the railroad is 900 feet—a nice little drop. The gorge takes its name from the grass in its depths, wbich is used by Indians in basket work. The range of mountains that it cleaves are the southern extension of the Sierra Nevadas. The coloring brought out on the walls of this vast canyon by the rays of the sun, Mr. Payton declares, is simply magnificent.

Mr. Payton traveled quite a bit up and down the coast above and below San Diego and reports business in that region flourishing. At San Pedro, he had an opportunity to visit the Pacific fleet, ten magnificent vessels of our navy under command of a vice admiral, and went aboard the flagship, West Virginia, largest and newest of the dreadnaughts, where he met Lieut. Hubert Paddock of this city, one of the West Virginia's officers. He says Hubert was looking fine and sitting pretty in every way.

Swayne also tried to tell us about his trip to Tijuana, Mexico, but after the first paragraph the paper started to smoke and the keys of our typewriter became overheated and jammed. So we had to leave that part of it out. We managed to gather, however, that Tijuana is "some" burg.

SUN'S RAYS DO AFFECT RADIO WAVES

Chicago Station Got Iron Mountain During Eclipse

Although no one we have interviewed so far has reported getting any results from tuning in his radio during the period of the sun's eclipse, word comes from Harold Gray of the research deportment of the Zenith Radio Corporation, Chicago, that his tests to determine wbether the shadow of the moon created conditions similar to nigbt were successful.

Gray asserts that at bis receiving station in Chicago he heard tbe announced broadcasting from station WJAZ at Iron Mountain, Michigan, broadcasting at a wave length of 268 meters, from 4 a. m. until after the solar eclipse. This would seem to indicate clearly that the sun's rays do have the effect of weakening the radio impulses.

CASES WHERE CONCLUSIONS ARE UNANIMOUS

In an issue of the Mancelona Herald, published thirty years ago appeared the following article, which shows that the poor printer had his troubles then as now and we may ossert from personal experience that his logic in the attitude he takes towards the matter concerned is entirely sound, as we have proven in a number of instances. If any of our customers feel the same woy about their accounts as did Mr. Hopkins, we wish they would be equally as frank as he and tell us so, as we always like to have our innermost convictions verified, if they cannot be pleasantly dispelled:

"The frequently quoted expression that 'it takes all kinds of people to make up a world' was forcibly borne to the mind of the writer the other day by the refusal of F. D. Hopkins, formerly of Alba, but now of Sherman, to pay in little printing bill of $4 at tbis office. Mr. Hopkias was married last summer to a young lady from Owosso, and the bill in question was for printing the wedding invitations. We have repeatedly sent Mr. Hopkina statements of tho account, which, for rensons best known to himself he has ignored, and as we have been sorely pressed for money, a sight-draft was sent to Sberman some days ago but was returned with the lead pencil inscription: 'Mr. Hopkins says this is N. G.' Well, we are inclined to agree with Mr. Hopkins, for, concerning the account, we have about come to the same conclusion ourself, so tbere is no chance for a dispute in that score."

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN IS DEAD

DR. GEORGE REYCRAFT EXPIRED SUDDENLY MONDAY

Was Koown As the Poor Man's Friend and Much Beloved by All Classes of People

Dr. George Reycraft, northern Michigan's most widely known physician, died very suddenly at 1:40 o'clock Monday afternoon at Petoskey Hospital. He had not been feeling well since Saturdny, but was up and dressed and took care of his patients in the hospital.

The physician's health had not been the best for several years, but he had not been seriously ill for some time. The passing of Dr. Reycraft brings regret and sorrow into hundreds of homes where he had been a valued counselor and friend for many years.

"Dr. George," as he was known to his thousands of friends and acquaintances, was born in Highgate, Kent county, Ontario, being a son of the late William Reycraft and Mrs. Reycraft. He secured his early education in Conada and later studied medicine. He came to Mackinac City about 1894 and later came to Petoskey and established practice with his brother, John J. Reycraft, under the name of Doctors Reycraft and Reycraft.

With his brother and other physicians he founded Petoskey Hospital on Michigan street and saw this institution grow until lorger quarters were necessary and the hotel building on Lake street was purchased and remodeled into the present hospital building.

Dr. Reycraft took time from his busy practice to become interested in local fraternities and became an active Elk and Mason. He was a past exalted ruler of Petoskey Lodge No. 629, B. P. O. Elks and a member of Durand Lodge No. 344 F. & A. M. and Emmet Chapter No. 104, R. A. M. of Petoskey. He served his city as mayor and was a keen student of municipal affairs.

Surviving him are his brother and fellow physician Dr. John J. Reycraft, his mother, Mrs. William Reycraft, a brother, William Reycraft and a sister, Mrs. Edward Beottie.—Petoskey Evening News.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon (Thursday) at 2 o'clock from the Petoskey Methodist church, Rev. Clark S. Wbeeler officiating, the interment following in Greenwood cemetery.

EAST JORDAN IS AFTER A NORMAL

BILL FOR NEW SCHOOL GOES IN AT THIS SESSION

Town Has Offered $50,000 Cash Bonus, Two Houses aod a Forty Acre Tract

Sometime during the present session of the Michigan legislature a bill, now drafted, providing for the establishment of a state normal school at East Jordan will be presented.

This bill is the outcome of the city's offer to the state of its entire educational system, including one of the finest and most modern high school buildings in the state; a cash bonus of $50,000; two big modern dwelling houses, located in the heart of East Jordan's choice residential section and valued at $25,000 apieco and a tract of 40 acres for building site and campus. The two dwelling houses are for use as dormitories.

This section's need for a state normol school of its own has long been acknowledged. The yearly enrollment statistics from the present schools demonstrate how they are struggling to meet the increased demands placed upon them. The average attendance at Central State Normal, Mt. Pleasant, for, instance, hos increased from 375 in 1919 to 1,028 in 1924. At Western Normal, Kalamazoo, the increase in the demands of its facilities has been even more marked. Western's enrollment for 1919-20 was 724; its estimated average enrollment for the current year is 2,237. This shows conclusively that the state's normal schools, at least, hove been called upon to hand out training to more students than they were originally calculated to.

In all Michigan there are 28 institutions of higher learning, 25 of which are located south of an imaginary line drawn east and west across the stote through the northern part of Isabella and Mecosta counties. The other three schools are located in the northern part of the upper peninsula. Figured on u per capita hasis, with the population of Michigan estimated at 3,668,000, there is one such institution for every 131,000 inhabitants.

Betwesn Marquette and Mt. Pleasant, however, a distance of 400 miles, there are approximately a quarter million people who are forced to send their young men and women hundreds of miles if they wish to continue with their education after graduation from high school. This circumstance, it has been cited repeatedly by sponsors of the East Jordnn normal movement, results in the loss of potential social, educational and even business and industrial leaders, for many of those who leave this part of the state to attend ipstitutions elsewhere never return.

There are 24 counties whose educational needs could be met, it is believed, by the founding of a normal here. They are: Charlevoix, Leelanau, Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Roscommon, Ogemow, Iosco, Alcona, Oscoda, Crawford, Kalkaska, Grand Troverse, Antrim, Otsego, Montmorency, Alpena, Presque Isle, Cheboygan, Emmet, Mackinaw.

Ground Hog Day

NORTH REPRESENTED AT WESTERN STATE

Men from Cadillac, Petoskey and Harbor on Track Squad

Four northwestern Michigan athletes are on the indoor track squad at Western State Normal, Kalamazoo—Lundquist of Cadillac in the high jump and hurdles; Martindale of Harbor Springs in the shot-put, and Miller and McMonagle of Petoskey in the two mile.

Kalamazoo normal has the largest winter track squad in its history. Fifty-three men are training under Coach Lawrence Taylor and this number includes practically all of last year's stars. The Teachers' first meet will be with Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware, O., February 13, and the second with M. A. C. at East Lansing, February 21. The team will also enter the Illinois relays on February 28 and the M. A. C. relays March 5, and will close its season in a dual meet with Notre Dame frosh March 10.

STORES CLOSE FOR HALF DAY

THURSDAY AFTERNOON IS PICKED BY MERCHANTS

Most of City's Business Men Have Signed Agreement to This Effect

Merchants of Charlevoix have decided to odopt a most wise and beneficial policy. Under the signatures of practically all of the merchants on Bridge street, the owners of these stores have agreed to close their places of business at 12:00 m. each Thursday for the balance of the day during the months of February, March, April and May, and no douht October, November, December and Jnauary.

The carrying out of this movement will give the clerks and themselves a chance to get out doors and do things they have heretofore had to put off until Sunday.

Putting it plainly, they have decided to get a little more out of life than has been possible under the old system of ataying "holed up" between the walls of the store from Monday morning until Saturday night, with Sunday as the only breathing spell from one years end until another.

Local banks and dentists are included. Patrons and customers of the places of business and service, are asked to arrange their trading accordingly, and the favor will be greatly appreciated.

A large number of towns in the state take all of Thursday off, while others close their place of business at noon on Saturday. However, Thursday afternoon will prove the best arrangement for Charlevoix with the exception of the busy months of June, July, August and September.

Pastors of our local churches will no douht expect a larger Sunday church attendance, the increase being largely composed of merchants whose previous excuse for non-attendance has been "duties at my place of business tie me up six days a week and Sunday morning is devoted to taking care of the many little repairs and upkeep about the home."

RED AND WHITE TEAM DEFEATED PELLSTON

By Score of 29 to 9 in Hard-Fought Scrimmage

The Charlevoix high school basketball team journeyed up to Pellston last Friday and defeated our northern friends 29 to 9 in a fust and rough game. The Red and White's speedy passing game proved to be too much for the Northmen, who were never in the lead. Hallett started things for C. H. S. by sinking a field goal from mid-floor which was followed in quick succession by the scores of his team-mates.

The line-up was as follows:

C. H. S.		P. H. S.
Solomon	F	Zimmerman, C.
Hallett	F	Connelly
Dagwell	C	Anderson
Jones	G	Hutchins
Glasgow, Capt.	G	Bonter

Substitutiona: C. H. S.: Davenport for Solomon; Cunningham for Glasdow. P. H. S.: Luesing for Hutchins, Brown for Bonter.

ECLIPSE HIDDEN BY CLOUD

NORTHERN MICHIGAN DIDN'T GET A PEEP AT IT

Mt. McSauba Was Nearest Scientific Observation Point But Disappointment Reigned

The fact that the skies of northern Michigan were shrouded in clouds during the eclipse of the sun that occurred on last Saturday morning prevented anyone in this region getting even a glimpse of the phenomenon. As reported, the cloudy section extended from Duluth far east into Ohio.

The time of deepest darkness coincided exactly with the scientist's predictions, based on their calculations, which were thus proven to be correct. For nearly two minutes it was too dark to read a newspaper, although the clock hands pointed to four minutes past eight.

Those local enthusiasts who carefully prepared smoked glasses the night before were doomed to disappointment and the many from here who walked out to Mt. McSauba so as to view the eclipse from its summit—well, they got the exercise anyhow. Some did say that the sky from that vantage point presented a wierd and peculiar appearance.

Early in the morning the sky was like lead. Later, the sky brightened a bit and there were purple and gold streaks on the horizon. At about 7:30 a dullness began creeping over from the west and grew heavier so slowly that it was almost unnoticeable. As 8:00 o'clock approached the darkness thickened and by 8:05 a. m. the eclipse was total. This period lasted for less than two minutes and light returned even more rapidly than the dorkness had descended.

Local photographers were disappointed, as they found nothing to photograph. While many radio fans tuned in at the hour of the eclipse and during the period when the sun's roys were obscured, we have not heard anyone here report that they got anything. There was, however, at the time a marked absence of static, which, however, had been exceptionally bad the night before.

In the east, conditions were somewhat different. The path of the moon's shadow represented a belt on the earth's surface, from 85 to 120 miles in width and extending from Duluth, Minn., to Montauk Point, N. Y. In the eastern part of this belt the skies cleared and favorable conditions for observation were reported at Ithaca, Poughkeepsie and Middletown, N. Y. and New Haven, Conn., as well as several points on Long Island. By 8:30 a. m., eastern time, the moon, rushing eastward at a speed unthinkable, had covered one third of the sun's surface for observers in New York and Connecticut, and it was noticeably darker. In some portions of the totality region, which centered in a curving path stretching across the country, lights began to wink on as darkness gathered. Coastwise vessels and harbor craft around New York put on their lights. In upper New York city, street lights came on and every member of the police force was held on reserve against possible emergencies. Precautions were token in many eastern cities against robberies and crimes of violence during the passing of the moon across the sun.

Of course, the scientific observers from the schools and colleges in the path of the eclipse were out in force. Aeroplanes hummed high in the azure while their passengers photographed the wonderful corona of light that edged the moon's black bulk against the sun. Cornell University observatory, at Itbaca, N. Y., reported a drop of five degrees in temperature while the sun's rays were obscured. According to Professor Emeritus "Davey" Todd of Amherst, who taught astronomy to President Coolidge and has seen eleven eclipses, directed the photography and observation at Mitchell Field, although he did no go up in a plane, and pronounced the eclipse the finest he had over seen. "Astronomical science advanced a thousand years this morning," he declored.

DODGE BROTHERS TYPE-A SEDAN

Its smooth, quiet performance is a matter of common observation.

People who pay no particular attention, as a rule, to the finer shades of chassis operation, are instantly impressed by the restfulness of the car in action.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of Charlevoix ss.
The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the regular term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1925, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 12th day of December A. D. 1924.

PARM C. GILBERT,
Circuit Judge.

Countersigned,
Charles H. Emrey, Clerk.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

The petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for nonpayment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest, computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
Dated December 10, 1924.

ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan,
for and in behalf of said State

COME OUT AND ROOT FOR THE HOME TEAM

They Will Need Your Support In the Petoskey Game

You've sat around the stove evenings, you've attended the movies at different times, you've visited your friends, but on Friday evening, January 30th, you will have your golden opportunity of seeing your undefeated high school basketball team clash with the strong blue and white quint of Petoskey, a rival for years of the Red and White.

The Charlevoix basketball team, headed by Captain Glasgow and coached by Mr. Alldrend are going strong and, as you look over the scores of each of the three victories, you will see that each battle has been won by a wide margin, showing that we have a scoring machine as well as a team that can play defense.

Petoskey is not only coming with a strong team, having a good record for this season, but also a band of rooters who will yell for their team.

Are you going to let a visiting team have more rooters at a home game than your own team? Remember, Petoskey people are coming eighteen miles to see this game and support their team while you've but a few blocks to come.

Come out and yell for the team that is representing your town. Show them that you're behind them, backing them and they will do the rest. Don't forget the date—it's January 30th (Friday) at 8:00 o'clock p. m. at Hooker's Garage.

The Hospital Minstrels are getting ready to give you a good laugh. Watch for the date to be announced later.—Adv. 4-t1.

EAST JORDAN IS AFTER A NORMAL

Chippewa, Luce and Schoolcraft. The total population of these counties is approximately 247,000.

Alert to the needs of the district, the East Jordan sponsors of the Northern Michigan Normal school two years ago went to the state board of education with their proposition. The board admitted that another state normal was needed. Shortly, a bill proposing the establishment of such an institution at East Jordan found its way into the legislature. The senate approved it overwhelmingly, the vote being 29 to 1 in its favor. Going to the house, the measure was referred to the educational committee, which body at the eleventh hour declined to report out on the floor for consideration.

Throughout the months that followed, leaders of the movement kept up an untiring campaign. Pamphlets and booklets depicting the need for a school and the reasons why it should be established at East Jordan were printed and distributed. Funds were solicited and subscribed. Members of the legislature were interviewed with regard to the project. And now, those behind the proposal are hopeful that it will be acted on favorably by the law-makers when the time comes.

MRS. JOHN BUSHEY DIES IN THE WEST

Mother of Mrs. Hugh King of Ironton Has Gone

Mrs. Hugh King, of Ironton, received a wire last Tuesday, stating that her mother had passed away at her home in Los Angeles, Calif., at the age of sixty-eight.

Murry E. Ballavance was born in St. Johns, New Brunswick, Canada, in 1857. She was married to John Bushey in 1874 and to this union nine children were born—three girls and six boys; two dying in infancy and two others, Clara and Walter dying in Traverse City in 1904, the family having settled in Michigan in 1886.

The deceased is survived by her daughters, Mrs. Fred Sarasin of Boyne City, Mrs. Hugh King of Ironton and sons, John, Jr., of Montague, Michigan and Joseph S. and Francis P. of Los Angeles, California; also three sisters and four brothers, all living in the eastern states.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushey lived in Charlevoix county for a number of years, having kept a boarding house at Phelps. They also ran a hotel at Torch Lake some years ago and became very well known throughout this section of the country. They later moved to Wisconsin and from there, five years ago, moved to California, where they lived at the time of their death, Mr. Busbey passing away there last March.

Mrs. Bushey will be remembered by those who knew her as a kind and loving mother, a wonderful neighbor and an active worker in the community in which she lived.

ESCAPED FROM BURNING HOTEL

Lisle Shanahan Was Guest at New Cheboygan

Lisle Shanahan, who has been attending court at Cheboygan for the past week or so, telephoned to Mrs. Shanahan in this city on Tuesday morning an account of the destruction of the New Cheboygan Hotel by a fire which started at 3 o'clock on that same morning, from causes unknown.

Mr. Shannhan, who was sleeping in his room in a rear corridor of the hotel, was aroused shortly before three o'clock by voices in the corridor outside his door and someone saying that they could smell smoke. He arose and dressed quickly, but had no time to spare in leaving the building before it was enveloped in flames. Most of the guests got out in good time with their belongings and Mr. Shanahan had time to gather the papers of his previous day's work in court into his brief case before leaving his room. One unfortunate guest, however, was forced to escape in bathrobe and slippers, leaving her entire wardrobe to the mercy of the flames.

The guests of the doomed hotel, thus unceremoniously ejected were forced to seek refuge in the Ottawa Hotel, a summer annex of the New Cheboygan, located across the street from the latter. Mr. Shanahan did not state the amount of the damage or whether or not it was covered by insurance.

AT THE MOVIES

He Dies for a Living!

Every time Joe King is assigned to a role in a motion picture he immediately prepares himself for a death scene. Poor Joe has been killed more times for the edification of the movie fans than Lenine for newspaper readers. But, unlike Lenine, Joe fully expects to keep right on with his "dying" for some time to come.

"Unguarded Women," an adaptation of the Saturday Evening Post story, "Face," will open next Wednesday at the Palace Theatre.

"Name the Man!" the first Victor Seastrom production since that director came to the Goldwyn studios from Sweden, open at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, January 31 and February 1st.

The picture is declared one of the most dramatic and emotional ever filmed, and in it, Miss Busch and Mr. Nagel rise to their greatest emotional heights.

The picture was enthusiastically acclaimed by critics and public, and had long runs at large theatres in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco and other of the largest cities in the United States.

Will Taylor, who drove to Florida last October with Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Anna Kenning Wood, is now night clerk at the Carlton Hotel, Melbourne, Fla., and will be there until the 10th of April, when he and Mrs. Taylor expect to return to Charlevoix.

About 40 of the friends and neighbors of Captain and Mrs. John Roen dropped in on them unannounced Tuesday evening, bringing with them the makin's for a potluck supper. Cards and dancing whiled away what all declared a very pleasant evening.

Petoskey staged a chess tournament Tuesday evening in that city and Charley Hamlin of Charlevoix went over and beat their local champion, Germond by name, three straight games. Charley came back carrying his hat in his hand—reason obvious.

Temperature reports for Monday night and Tuesday morning: Charlevoix, all the way from 8 below to 22 below; East Jordan, thirty-two below and Traverse City, twenty below! Lots of people will blame this on the eclipse. We hope it indicates an early spring.

Harold R. Jones, for many years with the bureau of fisheries here, has been made superintendent of the government machine shop at Woods Hole, Mass., and left here last week to assume his new duties. He will have charge of rapid work on government fishing vessels.

Down at Cadillac the county offices will be closed at noon on Saturdays during the winter months. The Wexford supervisors granted this request at their January meeting recently. They also reported favorably on a petition to close that county to deer hunting for a period of five years.

Miss Adeline Holley has purchased from Mrs. J. T. Oldham the building that houses her gift shop and the Oldham grocery store on Bridge street. After Mrs. Oldham vacates her part of the building on April 1st, it will be for rent, Miss Holley continuing in business at her present location. Mrs. Oldham's plans are not definite as yet.

Mabel Russell, living on Newman street and Garfield Russell of Mason street saw two distinct and separate robins near their homes on Tuesday. Searching inquiries on our part as to the condition of the robins revealed the astounding fact that they were not in a totally congealed state, as might be naturally supposed, but actually singing!

The city of Cadillac proposes to raise by taxation this year $3,595 for support of its municipal band. A committee composed of one member of the city council, one member of the Exchange club and one members of the Rotary club, has supervision of the band. New instruments, and uniforms will be secured and new music purchased. Good work.

L. C. Hamlin arrived in the city Monday night from Elkhart, Ind., to settle up his business affairs here. He expects to return in a few days to Elkhart, where he has purchased a grocery and meat market business. Mrs. Hamlin is now in Elkhart and the children will stay with their grandmother, Mrs. Allen Ulrich, in Charlevoix until the close of school.

A. Russell, relief agent for the P. M. R. R., took the place of E. E. Cross as agent at the local depot for the period of the latter's 90 day leave of absence, a week ago last Thursday. Mr. Russell has moved his family here from Benton Harbor and will occupy the Swinton house at 210 Dixon avenue until Mr. Cross's return from the west, on or about April 1st.

Calamity has been stalking the employees of Cobb and Mitchell's camp No. 50, which is located in Chandler township, near Springvale. Quite recently a man was killed on the railroad there; last Saturday Walter Huddleston was brought to this city with a badly cut foot; and Monday Othel Hartzog was put on a company's trains, hurried to Boyne Falls, and rushed from there by cutter to a physician in this city, where it was found that he was suffering from concussion of the brain and a badly lacerated scalp, caused when he was hit on the head by a falling limb.—Boyne Citizen.

Radio Potluck

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brady of this city were pleasantly surprised at their home on East Hurlbut avenue last Thursday evening by a party of their friends, numbering some ten couples, who brought with them the makin's of a potluck feed. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing progressive pedro and getting music over the radio.

THEY ARE COMING TO ENJOY WINTER

Party of Nine from St. Louis Will Arrive Saturday

J. J. Hallett, proprietor of the Hallett House in this city, received this morning from Miss Hannah Bemis of St. Louis, Missouri, a telegram stating that a party of nine people, including herself, will arrive here from the south on Saturday afternoon of this week to engage in winter pastimes and stipulating the accommodations desired for the party. To quote Miss Bemis: "We are looking forward with great pleasure to our Charlevoix visit."

Miss Bemis is the daughter of W. N. Bemis of St. Louis, prominent business man and member of the Belvedere Club of Charlevoix, who has been occupying with his family his cottage at No. 5 Belvedere for the past twenty summers. The news that our summer people are becoming interested in the possibilities of Charlevoix as a winter playground is especially gratifying to the business men who have worked hard to put things in shape for their entertainment and to the Courier, which has persistently supported the theory that we have as much here to attract the winter sportsman as many other places in the United States whose hotels are busy caring for visitors from all parts of the country, during the coldest season of the year.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Dell Eagleton, admitted to the hospital on Saturday, January 24th, for an operation, was discharged as convalescent on Tuesday, January 27th.

Mrs. Joe. Foster, of Charlevoix, admitted for operation on January 24th, was discharged Tuesday afternoon of this week as convalescent.

Floyd Bearss, of this city, operated on for appendicitis on January 13th, was discharged Saturday, January 24th, in good condition.

Mrs. Henry Block, of this city, who was operated on January 13th for appendicitis, was dicharged as convalenscent on the 25th in A-1 condition.

Mrs. Cleo Malpass, of East Jordan, was operated on last Tuesday for adenoids.

You'll miss a lot if you miss hearing the minstrels at the Hospital benefit, which is coming soon. Watch for date announcement.—Adv. 4-tf.

Small Fire

The fire for which the alarm sounded at 5 o'clock last Sunday afternoon was a roof fire at the Roy Ripley residence on the south side. The blaze started, as usual, from a chimney spark and worked its way from the north side of the roof to the south side, necessitating a little reshingling. Forty gallons of chemical scotched it before it could do much damage.

Conrad Nagel and Patsy Ruth Miller in, "NAME THE MAN." We are proud, indeed, to offer to the public one of the most sublime, one of the most magnificent dramas of humanity ever brought to life upon the screen. The story of betrayed womanhood; of a man who finds the path of honor in the end—this is the screen masterpiece that the years will never forget.

Also a Larry Semon comedy, "HORSE SHOES."

Wednesday, February 4

Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix in "UNGUARDED WOMEN." The drama of a woman's regeneration, through a man's loyalty and sacrifice. Are the girls of today, "Unguarded Women?"

Also a very "damp" comedy, "ONE WET NIGHT."

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

This time Billy's calculations proved correct, for Dolores did arrive on that steamer. The port doctor came aboard, partook of his customary drink with the captain, received a bundle of the latest American newspapers and magazines, nosed around, asked a few perfunctory questions, and gave the vessel pratique.

Dolores observed a gasoline-launch shoot up to the landing at the foot of the companion-ladder and discharge a well-dressed, youthful white man. As he came up the companion, the purser recognized him.

"Howdy, Bill," he called.

"Hello, yourself," Mr. William Geary replied, and Dolores knew him for an American. "Do you happen to have as a passenger this trip a large, interesting person, by name John Stuart Webster?" added Billy Geary.

"I don't know, Billy. I'll look over the passenger list," and together they moved off toward his office. Dolores followed, drawn by the mention of that magic name Webster, and paused in front of the purser's office to lean over the rail, ostensibly to watch the cargadores in their lighters clustering around the great ship, but in reality to learn more of the mysterious Webster.

"Blast the luck," Billy Geary growled, "the old sinner isn't here. By the way, do you happen to have a Miss Dolores Ruey aboard?"

Dolores pricked up her little ears. What possible interest could this stranger have in her goings or comings?

"You picked a winner this time, Bill," she heard the purser say. "Stateroom sixteen, boat-deck, starboard side. You'll probably find her there, packing to go ashore."

"Thanks," Billy replied and stepped out of the purser's office. Dolores turned and faced him.

"I am Miss Ruey," she announced. "I heard you asking for me." Her eyes carried the query she had not put into words: "Who are you, and what do you want?" Billy saw and understood, and on the instant a wave of desolation surged over him.

So this was the vision he had volunteered to meet aboard La Estrellita, and by specious lie and hypocritic mien, turn her back from the portals of Buenaventura to that dear old United States, which, Billy suddenly recalled with poignant pain, is a sizable country in which a young lady may very readily be lost forever. With the quick eye of youth, he noted that Dolores was perfectly wonderful in a white flannel skirt and jacket, white buck boots, white panama hat with a gorgeous puggaree, a mannish little linen collar, and a red four-in-hand tie. From under that white hat peeped a profusion of crinkly brown hair with a slightly red-ish tinge to it; her eyes were big and brown and wide apart, with golden flecks in them; their glance met Billy's hungry gaze simply, directly, and with a curiosity there was no attempt to hide. Her nose was patrician; her beautiful short upper lip revealed the tips of two perfect, milk-white front teeth; she was. Billy Geary told himself, a goddess before whom all low, worthless, ornery fellows like himself should grovel and die happy. If perchance she might be so minded as to walk on their faces! He was aroused from his brilliant inventory when the baurt spoke again:

"You haven't answered my question, sir!"

"No," said Billy, "I didn't. Stupid of me, too. However, come to think of it, you didn't ask me any question. You looked it. My name is Geary—William H. Geary, by profession a mining engineer and by nature an ignoramus, and I have called to deliver some disappointing news regarding Henrietta Wilkins."

"Is she—"

"She is. Very much alive and in excellent health—or rather was, the last time it was my pleasure and privilege to call on the dear lady. But she isn't in Buenaventura now." Mentally Billy asked God to forgive him his black-hearted treachery to his winsome girl. He loathed the task he had planned and foisted upon himself, and nothing but the memory of Mother Jenks' manifold kindnesses to him in'a day, thanks to Jack Webster, now happily behind him, could have induced him to go through to the finish.

"Why, where is she?" Dolores queried, and Billy could have wept at the fright in those lovely brown eyes.

He waved his hand airily. "Quien sabe?" he said. "She left three weeks ago for New Orleans to visit you. I dare say you passed each other on the road—here, here, Miss Ruey, don't cry."

He took a recess of three minutes, while Dolores dabbed her eyes and went through sundry other motions of being brave. Then he proceeded with his nefarious recital.

"When your cablegram arrived, Miss Ruey, naturally Mrs. Wilkins was not here to receive it, and as I was the only person who had her address, the cable agent referred it to me. Under the circumstances, not knowing where I could reach you with a cable informing you that Mrs. Wilkins was headed for California to see you, I had no other alternative but to let matters take their course. I decided you might arrive in La Estrellita, so I called to welcome you to our thriving little city, and, as a friend of about two minutes' standing, to warn you away from it."

Billy's voice, as he voiced this warning, was so singularly mysterious that Dolores' curiosity was aroused instantly and rose superior to her grief. "Why, what's the matter?" she demanded.

Billy looked around, as if fearful of being overheard. He lowered his voice. "We're going to have one grand little first-class revolution," he replied. "It's due to bust almost any night now, and when it does, the streets of San Buenaventura will run red with blood."

Dolores blanched. "Oh, dearie me," she quivered. "Do they still have revolutions here? You know, Mr. Geary, my poor father was killed in one."

"Yes, and the same old political gang that shot him is still on deck," Billy warned her. "It would be highly dangerous for a Ruey, man or woman, to show his or her nose around Buenaventura about now. Besides, Miss Ruey, that isn't the worst," he continued, for a whole-hearted lad was Billy, who never did anything by halves. "The city is reeking with cholera," he declared.

"Cholera!" Dolores' big brown eyes grew bigger with wonder and concern. "How strange the port authorities didn't warn us at New Orleans!"

"Tish! Tush! Middlesticks and then some. The fruit company censors everything, Miss Ruey, and the news doesn't get out."

"But the port doctor just said the passengers could go ashore."

"What's a human life to a doctor? Besides, he's on the slush-fund pay roll and does whatever the higherups tell him. You be guided by what I tell you, Miss Ruey, and do not set foot on Sobrunean soil. If you stay aboard La Estrellita, you'll have your nice clean stateroom, your well-cooked meals, your bath, and the attentions of the stewardess. The steamer will lie loaded in two days; then you go back to New Orleans, and by the time you arrive there I'll have been in communication by cable with Mother Jenks—I mean—"

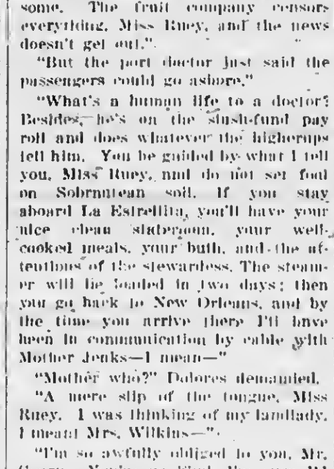
"Mother who?" Dolores demanded.

"A mere slip of the tongue, Miss Ruey. I was thinking of my landlady, I mean Mrs. Wilkins—".

"I'm so awfully obliged to you, Mr. Geary. You're so kind. I'm sure I'll be a most ungrateful girl not to be guided by you accordingly. You wouldn't risk any friend of yours in this terrible place, would you, Mr. Geary?"

"Indeed, I would not. By permitting anybody I thought anything of to come to this city, I should feel guilty of murder."

"I'm sure you would, Mr. Geary. Nevertheless, there is one point that is not quite clear in my mind, and I wish you'd explain—"



"You Haven't Answered My Question."

"Command me, Miss Ruey."

"If this is such a frightful place, why are you so anxious, if I may employ such language, to horuswoggle your dearest friend, Mr. John S. Webster, into coming down here? Do you want to kill him and get his money—or what?"

Billy's face flamed at thought of the embarrassing trap his glib tongue had led him into. He cursed himself for a six-gun-toting jackass, and while he was engaged in this interesting pastime Dolores spoke again.

"And by the way, which is it? Miss Wilkins or Mrs.? You've called for both, and when I reminded you she was a Miss, you agreed with me, whereas she is nothing of the sort. She's a Mrs. Then you blurted out something about a Mother Jenks, and finally, Mr. Geary, it occurs to me that for a complete stranger you are unduly interested in my welfare. I'm not such a goose as to assimilate your weird tales of death from disease. It occurs to me that if your friend John S. Webster can risk Buenaventura, I can also."

"You—you know that old scoundrel?" Billy gasped. "Why I—I came out to warn him off the grass, too."

Dolores walked a step closer to Billy and eyed him disapprovingly. "I'm so sorry I can't believe that statement," she replied. "It happens that I was standing by the companion-ladder when you came aboard and spoke to the purser; when you asked him if Mr. Webster was aboard, your face was alight with eagerness and anticipation, but when you had reason to believe he was not aboard, you looked so terribly disappointed I felt sorry for you.

"I'm going ashore. If it's the last act of my life, and when I get there I'm going to interview the cable agent; then I'm going to call at the steamship office and scan the passenger list of the last three north-bound steamers, and if I do not find Henrietta Wilkins' name on one of those passenger lists I'm going up to Calle de Concordia No. 19—"

"I surrender unconditionally," groaned Billy. "I'm a liar from beginning to end. I overlooked my hand. I beg of you to believe me, however, when I tell you that I only told you those whoppers because I was in honor bound to tell them. Personally, I don't want you to go away—at least, not until I'm ready to go away, too! Miss Ruey, my nose is in the dust. There is a fever in my brain and a misery in my heart—"

"And contrition in your face," she interrupted him laughingly. "You're forgiven, Mr. Geary—on one condition."

"Name it," he answered.

"Tell me everything from beginning to end."

So Billy told her. "I would much rather have been visited with a plague of boils, like our old friend, the late Job, than have to tell you this, Miss Ruey," he concluded his recital. "Man proposes, but God disposes, and you're here and bound to learn the truth sooner or later. Mother isn't a lady and she knows it, but take it from me, Miss Ruey, she's a scout—a ring-tailed sport—a regular individual and game as a gnoles."

"And I mustn't call at El Buen Amigo, Mr. Geary?"

"Perish the thought! Mother must call on you. El Buen Amigo is what you might term a hotel for tropical tramps of the masculine sex. Nearly all of Mother's guests have a past, you know. They're the submerged white tenth of Sobrante."

"Then my benefactor must call to see me here?" Billy nodded. "When will you bring her here?"

Billy reflected that Mother Jenks had been up rather late the night before and that trade in the cantina of El Buen Amigo had been unusually brisk; so since he desired to exhibit the old lady at her best, he concluded it might be well to spar for wind.

"Tomorrow at 10," he declared. Dolores inclined her head. Something told her she had better leave all future details to the amiable William.

"I remember you inquired for your friend Mr. Webster, when you came aboard the steamer."

"I remember it, too," Billy countered ruefully. "I can't imagine what's become of him. Miss Ruey, did you ever go to meet the only human being in the world and discover that for some mysterious reason he had failed to keep the appointment? Miss Ruey, you'll have to meet old John Stuart the minute he lights in Buenaventura. He's some boy."

"Old John Stuart?" she queried. "How old?"

"Oh, thirty-nine or forty on actual count, but one of the kind that will live to be a thousand and then have to be killed with an axe. He's coming to Sobrante to help me put over a mining deal."

"How interesting, Mr. Geary! No wonder you were disappointed."

The last sentence was a shaft deliberately launched in Dolores' delight it made a keyhole in Billy Geary's heart.

"Don't get me wrong, Miss Ruey," he hastened to assure her. "I have a good mine, but I'd trade it for a handshake from Jack! The good Lord only published one edition of Jack, and limited the edition to one volume; then the plates were melted for the junk we call the human race. Two weeks ago, when I was sick and penniless and despairing, the possessor of a concession on a fortune, but without a centavo in my pockets to buy a banana, when I was a veritable beach-comber and existing on the charity of Mother Jenks, I managed finally to communicate with old Jack and told him where I was and what I had. There's his answer, Miss Ruey, and I'm not ashamed to say that when I got it I cried like a kid." And Billy handed her John Stuart Webster's remarkable cablegram, the receipt of which had, for Billy Geary, transformed night into day, purgatory into paradise. Dolores read it.

"No wonder you love him," she declared, and added artlessly: "His wife must simply adore him."

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage, dated the 10th day of April, 1919, executed by George E. Cummings and wife, Ella M. Cummings, of Norwood Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, was given to Medrick Seymour of Charlevoix, Michigan, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, in Liber 29 of Mortgages on page 368 on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1919, which mortgage was on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923, assigned by said Medrick Seymour to Neil McAuley of Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County aforesaid in Liber 55 of Mortgages on page 100, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $1,993.60 of principal and interest, and a further sum of $12.30 and interest thereon for taxes paid on said premises, and the sum of $73 and interest thereon for insurance paid on said premises, together with an attorney fee of $35 as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof:

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of the principal and interest, together with the amounts paid for taxes and insurance, costs and expenses of foreclosure, including the attorney fee provided by statute, at Public Auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows, towit: The west half of the northeast quarter and the west half of the east half of the northeast quarter of Section eighteen, Township thirty-three north, Range eight west.

Dated December 16th, 1924.

Nail McAuley,
Mortgagee.

TESTS REVEAL NICE INCREASE

PURE BRED MILKERS PROVE SUPERIORITY

Herd of Pure Bred Jerseys Owned by N. Dekkenga Head List in County Association

N. Dekkenga and John Hennip purchased a pure-bred Jersey sire whose dam made 586 pounds of butter fat as a two year old on official test. The new owners expect to become members of a bull association whereby they will be able to exchange sires every two years in a pre-arranged manner for one of equal merits. In that manner they will be able to avoid the cost of purchasing a new sire every two years and reduce the cost of owning and keeping better sires to a minimum.

The tester has always made it a point to ask all owners of sires whether or not the sire's dam has a record and if the animal is a pure-bred. The answer invariably is, "Oh, yes, we have the papers." It seems that the public has not learned the value of the record made by the sire's dam; or, in other words, to distinguish between pure-breds that are of ordinary ability and pure-breds whose ability is known to be better than the average, and for the same reason many people have failed to get the desired results from pure-breds.

It so happens that all cows bought and placed on test in the association who have been reported to make three pounds of butter a day have failed to make the butter fat equivalent of three pounds of butter.

The Babcock tester and scales do away with all the foam on a 16-quart pail, all the extra salt and moisture in butter churned from one cow's milk in one day. Part of the cream in milk that is all cream, and the cow who does not eat anything and gives all the cream.

Cows who are good increase their value by being placed on test and cows who are good because they keep nice and fat while milking last about six months in the C. T. A., and then the owner gives up all hope of their ever becoming a good cow. Such cows can continue to be nice only as tender beef steak.

The past month of December shows an increase in production over the previous month and over the same month a year ago. This is due to the large number of low producers eliminated during the year B. C. Mellencamp was with the North Antrim C. T. A. The number of Durham herds on test also is less this year than last year, which has a very decided effect. When the months are compared month for month the increase average production is evident: August, 1923, 19.7 lbs. of butter fat; August, 1924, 22.9 lbs. butter fat; September, 1923, 19.3 lbs. butter fat; September, 1924, 20.5 lbs. butter fat; October, 1923, 17.3 lbs. butter fat; October, 1924, 19.5 lbs. butter fat; November, 1923, 16.4 lbs. butter fat; November, 1924, 19.46 lbs. butter fat; December, 1923, 17.44 lbs. butter fat; December, 1924, 23.38 lbs. butter fat. Each cow in the 31 herds averaged 23.38 lbs. of butter fat or 5.94 lbs. over the same month one year ago.

The herd of pure bred Jerseys owned by N. Dekkenga of Ellsworth, averaged 46.25 lbs. of butter fat per cow, which is the highest average production yet noted by the new tester, and will rank high among the herds of the state. Seven cows made over 50 pounds of butter fat. Sixteen cows produced 40 or more pounds of butter fat. Eighteen produced one thousand pounds of milk or more and nine did better than 1250 pounds of milk.

The following cows occupy the highest places in their respective age classes:

Mrs. Harm Sitzma, living two miles north of town, died very suddenly on Friday evening of last week, death being caused by heart trouble. Deceased was born in the Netherlands sixty-eight years ago and has been a resident of Banks township for the past twenty-six years. She leaves her husband and three sons, John, Ralph and Jake of Ellsworth, and one daughter, Mrs. Winnie Brown, of Ohio. Funeral services were held from the Christian Reformed church on Wednesday.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Margaret, who died one year ago, January 24.

Gone, dear Margaret, gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face.
But you've left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who lost can tell
The grief that is borne in silence,
For the one we loved so well.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boss, and children.

Do Your Railroads Win This Reward?

Modern Railroad progress in Michigan began March 1, 1920.

On that day, Uncle Sam quit Railroading and returned the roads to their owners, to reorganize and restore.

That date found the 24 steam Railroads of Michigan deficient in almost every essential. Service had fallen to its lowest point of efficiency. In public esteem, the Railroads were on trial.

Your Railroads are not ashamed of their progress since that eventful date.

We have re-equipped our lines with locomotives and cars.

We have restored and improved our roadbeds.

We have made large investments in terminals, and have made every dollar count.

And we are giving you today the best railroad service Michigan has ever had.

Your Railroads gladly acknowledge their appreciation of your spirit of Fair Play. We are making good for you. We will continue to make good with all the means and effort within our power.

There are many improvements still to be made. We will make them as our means permit. For it is our steadfast desire to make you as proud of Michigan's system of steam Railroads as we are of the prosperity of the state we serve.

Your Railroads want to be your Friends. Do we deserve such classification? Write us, frankly and fully.

SUCCESS

The time of prosperity is the time to assure future comfort for yourself and all the members of your family.

One of the most pleasant things about business success is the feeling that your family is properly provided for, regardless of what the results of your business may be in the future.

This may be made certain by placing securities with us in trust, the income to be paid to you or to your dependents and the principal to be disposed of during your lifetime and thereafter, according to your directions, all without recourse to the Probate Court.

It is not even necessary to forego the income on the securities, in order to safeguard your family's future. Place some of your securities with us under a "LIVING TRUST", continue to receive income from them, and yet gain the feeling of security which comes with the knowledge that no matter what happens, your family will be well provided for.

This form of trust is so flexible that it may be made to suit your individual requirements.

Inquire for further information.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, February 1

10:30 preaching service. The pastor will discuss the theme, "Shall we Obey or Shall We Sacrifice?" The main room was practically filled last Sunday. We note that more parents bring their children. We have often wondered if parents could worship God advantageously not knowing where their children were putting in the time. During this week some christian could ask some stranger to accompany him to the church. Perhaps there are several just waiting to be asked. Try it.

12 o'clock Sunday school. What a splendid crowd, 207 last Sunday, and no special effort. Just interested. The offering also was a top-notcher, more than ten dollars. Yes, just for Sunday school. And these lessons. What a splendid chance to teach real truths with the text furnished. Come next Sunday to church and remain to Sunday school. If you want to teach, tell the pastor or superintendent. Some adjustments necessary at the Sunday school board last week made William Black superintendent and Charles Arnold treasurer. We have a good permanent staff of officers and teachers now and we will do constructive work from now on.

3:00 p. m., Junior League. Mrs. Frank Metcalf has been carrying on this work for two weeks while Mrs. Poole is ill. The boys and girls enjoy their gathering.

6:00 p. m., Epworth League. It is perfectly miraculous how this work surges on. With a half hundred young men and young women trying with each other to build up religious life, something must happen. It was very unique when last Sunday's leaders had everyone take some part in the service. Epworthians are announcing a evalentine social for February 11, and if the ice will hold, Boyne City will be our guests. They have also booked a concert for February 18th.

7:00 p. m., evening worship. The pastor will sketch the life of David. These character studies become helpful to the hearers.. There were 100 present last Sunday night. Good! Do it again.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30. Read Acts 25 and come to the meeting.

Ladies' Literary and Sewing club meets with Mrs. Dutcher on Antrim street, Thursday, 2:30 p. m. These gatherings are so well attended that it is difficult to find homes large enough for them.

The young people have their own prayer meeting each Wednesday, from 7 to 7:45 p. m., held in the League room.

The regular official board will be held next Monday, February 2nd, in the church study at 7:30 p. m. Important business. Full attendance is urged.

We are booking a date with the Kalamazoo Western Normal Glee Club. It will be about March 30th. 'Nough said. You've heard 'em.

Old Orion shrouded himself in a haze Saturday morning and the eclipse became a non est inventus.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, Monday, February 9th. Hear him. It's free.

The young men's party at Nordrum's last week was a hummer. The fellows found it lacked not for feeds nor fun.

We hear a ripple of a business men's half holiday on Thursdays. Splendid! Now you can get to prayer meeting, men.

The church is about to undergo some needed repairs—a new heating plant in the basement; a new floor in the auditorium and new cupboards and wall fixings in the kitchen. It is best to keep the house of God in the best possible repair.

WHAT MY NEIGHBOR SAYS

Is of Interest to Charlevoix Folks

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Charlevoix resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Hubert Ackert, Mason, 107 W. Garfield Ave., says: "I had a constant ache in my back and when I stooped, I had to put my hands on my back in order to straighten. I was nervous and often dizzy spells came over me. My kidneys were sluggish and the secretions were scanty. After using a few boxes of Doan's Pills, from Metcalf's Drug Store, I was fixed up in good shape." (Statement given May 4, 1920.)

On October 9, 1924, Mr. Ackert said: "Every time I have had occasion to use Doan's Pills they have always given the same good results."

Order for Publication

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held in the probate office in the city of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1925.

Present: Hon. Servetus A. Correll, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Albert H. Loeb, deceased.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Ernest G. Loeb appointed administrator thereof.

It is ordered that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate, and that such claims will be heard by said court on Friday, the 29th day of May, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the probate office in the city of Charlevoix.

It is further ordered that public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in this county.

Servetus A. Correll,
Judge of Probate.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday, February 1

10:30 a. m., preaching by the pastor.

12:00 o'clock, bible school. Topic, "The Vine and the Branches." The junior classes are making splendid growth and the growth promises to continue. We cordially invite those not enrolled elsewhere to join us.

6:00 o'clock, B. Y. P. U. An inspiring meeting for all who will come. The junior group, led by Miss Kingsnorth, gave us a splendid meeting last Sunday and then made a fine choir for the evening service.

7:00 o'clock, an enjoyable song service, led by the Junior group. B. Y. P. U. will be followed by a sermon by the pastor, on a popular theme.

The large audience last Sunday evening thoroughly enjoyed the song sung by Mr. and Mrs. Joliffe, and hope they will come again.

"He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not also with him freely give us all things."

NEW OIL STATION READY BY MAY DAY

Texaco's Withdrawal Won't Affect Plans of Local Firm

It may be of interest, in view of the fact that it has been announced in a previous issue of this paper that Messrs. Brown & Wallace are about to engage in the erection of a gasoline and oil service station at the corner of State and Antrim streets on a portion of the site of the former Lakeway Garage for the distribution and sale of Texaco products, to learn, that the Texaco Oil Company decided to withdraw its business from Michigan, as well as the states of Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, thus making it necessary for the new local firm to take on some other line of gasoline.

The Texaco people have curtailed their business in this part of the country, due to the fact that they have secured a large foreign contract for their product which will consume a considerable portion of their output. This will not in any way, however, affect the plans of Messrs. Brown & Wallace, except, as stated above, it will be necessary for them to arrange to handle some other line of gas. Work on the new service station will commence as soon as the weather permits and it is the intention of the proprietors to have it ready for business by the first day of May, 1925.

Henry Block will have the entire rear portion of the building from State street to the west line of the property, which he will devote to his garage and battery business, as heretofore.

Your Stationery Needs--

THE COURIER JOB SHOP turns out work that is right—right in appearance in point of accuracy and in price. It has a reputation to sustain and every possible effort is put forth to the end. We invite you to give us a trial the next time you have a real particular job of printing. If we can't do it ourselves, we can have it done for you at a worthwhile saving in expense. We want you to be satisfied.

THE COURIER NEWSPAPER brings you the news of city and country; tells what home folks are doing, the condition of business, crops, development of the dairy industry, new enterprises launched, or about to be, state news and in short all leading matters of interest as they affect our readers. If you are not now a subscriber, drop into our office in Van-Pelt Place, mail us a card, or call phone 2-J and we will be glad to put your name on our list.

THEY LIKE OUR FIERCE WINTER

FOLKS FROM ST. LOUIS HAVING A HECK OF A TIME

Their Short Stay is Being Packed Full of Fun and They Want To Come Again.

With the commencement of Northern Michigan's coldest month, Charlevoix entered on what we hope may be a brand-new era as a winter resort. A party of ten penple from St. Louis, Missouri, arrived in the city Saturday night to enjoy for a week the different kinds of fun that a winter in the north has to offer. They came by the way of Detroit on the evening train (which was two and a half hours late, arriving here at six p. m.) travelling in the "Michigan," private railway coach of James Taussig, president of the Wabash line, whu, by the way, is a Charlevoix summer resident who stops at the Belvedere and a personal friend of the Bemis family, on whose initiative the northern expedition was undertaken.

The members of this party are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Muckerman, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bemis, the Misses Hannab and Elizabeth Bemis, and Messrs. A. E. DeBow and Pnul A. Schlafly, all of St. Louis; John M. Stanley of Detroit and G. H. Degenhardt of Alton, Ill. They are at present comfortnbly quartered at the Hallett residence, next door to the Hallett House on Belvedere avenue and expect to be here until Friday, when business duties of several members of the party make their return necessary.

All but two of the party have visited Charlevoix in previous years during the summer months, but none of them has ever been here before in the winter and for some of them our heavy anows, intense cold and ice-bound waters present an entirely new and strange experience, filled with mucb interest and delight. Since their arrival here, our southern visitors have been having a daily round of entertainment, all the more enjoyable beeause not "cut-and-dried" as might be the case at a formal winter resort, entailing the expense of guides and annoyance of making engagements considerably beforehand, but followed aecording to fancy, on the spur of the moment.

Most of the day Sunday was spent in tobogganing and skiing on the slopes of Mt. McSauba, the weather and ground conditions being perfect for the enjoyment of these pastimes. In the afternoon, large numbers of the townspeople gathered on Bridge street hill, which has been iced down the middle clear to the bridge for a bob-sled track and this sport continued until lnte in the evening, the local folk being joined by the visitors after the supper hour. Monday morning was pleasantly occupied by the party with an ice boat on Pine Lake and in the afternoon a spaee was cleared on Round Lake and the skaters of the bunch had their innings. Monday night throngs of merrymakers gathered on the Bridge street hill and several new bobs were seen (boyish and otherwise!). In fact, we understand, so popular has the sport become, the proprietor of a local woodworking concern is seriously thinking of enlarging his quarters to take eare of the orders for new bob-sleds and repairs on the old ones that he is daily receiving.

Late in the evening the erowd on the hill was joined by many of thuse who had been enjoying Ralph Bingham's funny cracks at the Palace Theatre and the fun started in earnest. Much amuaement was caused by the antics of three boys in a butter tub, who slid down the hill in n gyratory fashion, their outstretched arms and legs spinning around like the spokes of a wheel. Interest was heightened when two of the ladies in the St. Louis party tried this stunt. The track was in wonderful shape, having been sprinkled during the day, and watchers on the side lines with a "bug" for estimating figured that the big bobs made a good thirty-five miles per hour after reaching the foot of the hill at Antrim street and the smaller bobs at least twenty-five or thirty. And there were a number of smaller sleds flivering down the slope with two and sometimes three or four passengers piled one on the other like cordwood. Nobody seemed to care at all about the doings of the mereury, which was hanging at that time well below the zero mark, the excitement and brisk walk back up the hill keeping the moat sluggish pulse going strong.

Tuesday morning, members of tbe visiting party went over to the terraced slopes of the Belvedere

HALLETT LEADS RED AND WHITE TO VICTORY

Friday Night's Game Was Full of Thrills, Chills aod Excitement—9 to 7

In a game full of thrills, chills, and excitement the Charlevoix higb school basketball team defeated her rival, Petoskey by the seore of 9 to 7 last Friday evening in one of the most thrilling games seen on the local courts in years.

Pete Hallett, star forward, closed a brilliant athletic career in this game, making eight of the nine points made by the Red and White. Hsllett was not only a star forward in basketball, but a football and baseball star as well, receiving honorable mention on the All Northern football team. His loss in these tbree branches of sports will be keenly felt.

The game was good evidence of what forty minutes of the game will do. The Red and White had an uphill light of it all the way, and any weakening of spirit would have lost the game. In this game it was proved that C. H. S. is in possession of two of the best guards in the nurth, Capt. Glasgow and Jones. As is proven by the low scores in the game Dagwell and Brown also played steller defensive games.

Following is the tne up:

C. H. S.		P. H. S.
Davenport	F.	Metzel
Hallett	F.	H. Brown
Dagwell	C.	Slac
Glasgow	G.	Allson
Jones	G.	McCabe

Substitutions: C. H. S., Brown for Davenport.

Field gnals: Hallett, 3; H. Brown, 1; Slac, 1.

Foul points: Hallett, 2; Jones, 1; Slac, 2.

JACOBS MOVES INTO HIS NEW LOCATION

Stock and Fixtures Set Up on Last Monday

On Monday of this week, H. B. Jacobs moved his stock of groceries from the Paddock building to his new location at 205 Bridge street, the store formerly occupied by the Ivy Drug establishment.

The new place has been completely redecorated inside in white, with new linoleum on the floor and now that the fixtures and stock are in place the atore present a very clean, shipshape and attractive appearanee, and while Mr. Jacobs says he has no more room than in the other building, a more effective arrangement of the furniture gives an impression of much more space.

A room in the rear of the store, abuut 12 by 20 feet in dimension, has been fixed up and will be used as a storeroom. The desk is located just in front of this room and is screened from the store part by a partition. As regards location on the street, the site is much better, being between the drug store on the corner and Redpath's.

ALL NOTICES TO RAISE MONEY ARE PAY NOTICES

Many Courier readers do not seem to understand what is advertising and what is not. Any notice of a supper, entertainment or public gathering of any kind which is designed to raise money will be charged for at regular advertising rates. The omission from the notice of the price of admission or the cost of the supper or other charge by which the money is to be raised does not change the character of the notice; it is still a pay notice. All such notices should be paid in advance of publication or when sent in the Courier should be definitely informed to whom the bill should be sent.

ANNUAL REPORT PROBATE JUDGE

JUDGE CORRELL OUTLINES WORK OF YEAR

Fewer Estates Handled Than in Previous Year—Comments on Health of Community

Report in brief of the work of the Probate Court of Charlevoix county for the year, A. D. 1924:

There has been admitted to probate eleven wills, seventeen estates probated where the deeeased died without will, and twelve proceedings for the determination of heirs.

Three guardians appointed for mentally incompetent persons, twelve guardians appointed for minors, nine insane persons committed to Traverse City State hospital, two of whom were not residents of Charlevoix county.

Twelve adult persons and four children eommitted to Ann Arbor for treatment. Eight minors have been adopted by residents of the county, two proceedings have been had to admit persons to the Michigan Farm Colony for epilepties, at Wahjamega, Michigan, and their names placed on the waiting list; owing to the crowded condition of the institution neither have been received. Inheritance tax determined and collected, $1,576.08.

The Juvenile Division of the Court

Twenty-nine children in eleven different homes petitioned the court for assistance, and it was granted, in what is commonly called the Mother's Pension law. Several other petitions filed in the same matter, but were dismissed. On the first day of January, 1925, sixty-nine children were receiving aid under the so-called "Mother's Pension Law," and the amount paid each week was $148.50 or $7,722.00 in a year.

Twelve children have been brought before the court on charges of delinquency. No commitments to either of the state institutions during the year, 1924, which speaks well for the behavior of the children of the county. The offences charged were minor offences which the court had no trouble in correcting and adjusting.

In 1923 there were 101 proceedings in the probate court exclusive of the juvenile division as against 90 proceedings in the year 1924. You naturally want to know why, and where the decrease was. In 1923 there were fourteen testate estates and 31 intestate estates probnted. In 1924 there were eleven testate estates and seventeen intestates. Forty-five estates in all in 1923, twenty-eight in 1924. That accounts for the discrepaney.

The general health of the communities in this county was much better in 1924 than in 1923 and fewer fatalities. One thing worthy of mention, is, that thus far this school year there are no complaints for truaney. From that I infer that our schools are being successfully conducted. If the child is interested in making progress, and the school is moving on harmoniously, it likes to go to school.

Hoping that the general health of our communities, and the behavior of the children continue to be good, I submit this for your eonsideration.

SYLVESTER FAY WAS NAMED FOR ACADEMY

Former Charlevoix Boy Selected for Annapolis

According to word from Washington, (says the Petoskey Evening News of Wednesday, January 28th) Sylvester Fay, captain of the Petoskey high school football team during the 1924 season, has been designated for the Annapolis examinations.

Congressman Frank D. Scott has picked the Petuskey boy as the candidate from the eleventh Michigan district and "Cap" Fay, as he is known to his many friends, will make a strenuous effort to pass successfully the strict requirements.

Fay has a splendid record in his school work and has made good in various sports. His many friends predict he will pass successfully and be named to the United States naval academy.

Fay is a former Charlevoix boy—a grandson of Mrs. W. D. Moyer of route 3 out of this city.

AUTO SALE STARTS FEBRUARY FIRST

ISSUED ENTIRELY ON THE WEIGHT BASIS

New Rate Means a Saving, as Far as License is Concerned, to Auto Owners

The department of state has started tentative preparations for the collection of 1925 automobile license fees on the proposed new weight basis.

The Evans weight measure which has been adopted, is an amendment to the present motor-vehicle laws designed to greatly simplify the task of issuing license plates and collecting fees. According to Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state, its provisions would save the state around $150,000 a year in postage and reduction of clerical work.

Under the proposed new system, licenses will be issued entirely on a weight basis. There will be no calculations as to horsepower. The process of making out applications for license plates will be extremely simple. Blanks, probably in the shape of a card three by five inches instead of the preseft long document, will be furnished. Car owners will merely have to fill in the names and models of the car, the motor and serial numbers and the weight. The cost for passenger cars will be 55 cents for every hundred weight or major portion thereof. Applications will not have to be sworn to, as they now are.

Truck owners will follow the same procedure as passenger car owners except that their fees will be higher. If their vehicle weighs less than 2,500 pounds, it will be 65 cents a 100; from 2,500 pounds to 4,000 pounds, 80 cents a 100; from 4,000 to 6,000 pounds, $1.00 a 100; over 6,000 pounds, $1.25.

With the weight and gasoline tax now enacted and signed hy the governor, it is planned to open the sale of 1925 license plates February 1.

The proposed new weight system of collecting license fees will mean a saving, as far as the license itself is concerned, to a majority of car owners. Light cars are by far the most numerous. A popular make of light car, weighing 1,600 pounds, pays $11.10 under the old weight and horsepower plan. To 55 cents a 100 it will pay $9.60. Cars in the 2,000 class now paying $12.25 will pay $11.00. Around the 3,000-pound mark the tide turns and there is a variation between less and greater cost depending upon horse-power and other items.

NEW HOME OF LESTER SMITH IS DESTROYED

Wrecked by Flames Early This Morning

An urgent alarm on the fire whistle brought the department to the home of Lester Smith, corner of May and Lincoln, shortly after one o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. Smith heard the flames roaring in the front part of the house and awakened the rest of the family who escaped through the window, leaving their clothes and belongings to the flames. Lester went back for a trunkful of clothes and severely burned the fingers of one hand and singed his hair. Only partial insurance was enrried.

NORMAL BILL MAY START A BATTLE

EAST JORDAN HAS SEVERAL KEEN RIVALS

City on South Arm, However, Has Offered Most Attractive Inducements So Far

(By Ed A. Nowack)
(Special to the Courier)

Lansing, Jan. 29.—East Jordan, and Charlevoix county, have laid before the legislature, in the matter of the proposed new state normal, a booklet enclosed in an envelope bearing this inscription: "A Proposition to the State of Michigan." And in still another package, in the shape of Judge John M. Harris, Charlevoix county has placed in Lansing a state representative who is using all his political wisdom and strategy to win for his section the fight started two years ago when a new state normal first was talked of. The situation East Jordan and Rep. Harris face, however, is one that has attracted to it all the political opposition of a great section of northern Michigan, a section containing about 500,000 inhabitants and about ten other districts that are eagerly fighting for the prize East Jordan wants.

So far Rep. Harris appears to have been "breaking even" with the board. But the fortunes of politics, especially when the politics become embittered, change complexions rapidly. While standing out firmly for the normal for which his section virtually initiated a fight two years ago, Rep. Harris has not been antagonistic to the proposal to push through the legislature an appropriation of somewhere around $500,000 for a new normal which has gotten well under way at a round table discussion and dinner last week at which all the interested districts were represented.

It was the opinion expressed at that meeting, that the representatives and senators attending, unite in an effort to locate a normal somewhere in the northern half of the lower peninsula. This thought carried with it the idea that the legislature should authorize the appropriation, and leave the state board of education, the matter of determining the site. There will be another meeting of the representatives and senators from the interested districts at which there will be discussion of the bill that will be drawn for the normal school appropriation.

Rep. Harris, while not any more of a winner of the prize thus far than any of the other representatives, has produced enough material boosting East Jordan and Charlevoix county, to give other representatives some concern. Win or not, it is a foregone conclusion that Rep. Harris has given this legislature, and possibly a succeeding one, a packngo

ILLINOIS EDITOR TRIES TO KEEP ON SAFE SIDE

A certain editor of a paper in Illinois was threatened with a libel suit some time ago and made a thorough investigation of the libel law, coming to the conclusion that he could be sued for libel for almost any item of news.

The weather was about the only safe topic.

He began looking for a way out. Gradually he wrote up his items in a manner to comply with the letter of the law.

One morning his subscribers were greeted with this account in their favorite journal, of a swell reception given by one of the grand ladies of their home town:

"A woman giving the name of Mrs. J. C. Jones, who is reported to be one of the society leaders of this section, is said to have given what purported to be a reception yesterday afternoon.

"It is understood that a considerable number of so-called guests, reported to be ladies noted in society circles, were present and some of them are quoted as saying they enjoyed the occasion.

"It is charged that the firm of Bower & Black furnished the refreshments and Stringham the alleged music.

"The hostess is said to have worn a necklace of alleged pearls which she declares was given her by her husband."

It takes a smart man to save money, for saving is no easy job, especially at the start. There are too many temptations in the way of a would-be saver. He finds too many ways to spend the money it would be much better to save.

But it is comparatively simple if we will exercise a little restraint and occasionally "pass" the luxuries for which we have no real need.

You are as smart as the next one. Demonstrate it by saving regularly.

AT THE MOVIES

Why do the wives of the nation groan when their husbands suggest going to see a western picture? Because these productions usually minimize the importance of love interest.

The typical "western" includes only one woman in its cast—who is hence bound to be the heroine at any cost. Introducing her, it then busies itself entirely with the physical exploits of the hero. In the final fade out there is usually a brief embrace—with which the romantic sex must be content.

But it's not, for the ladies—God bless 'em—love, love!

That is why Hunt Stromberg bought Shannon Fife's original story "The Lightning Rider," for Harry Carey's new starring vehicle.

This story, without sacrificing any of the heroisms of the classified "western," builds up a romantic complication equal to any provided in a straight drama.

The "Lightning Rider" will be at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, February 7 and 8.

Friendship, in its most beautiful form, is brought to the screen with telling effect in the William Fox picture from the story of Ben Ames Williams, called "Not a Drum Was Heard," which comes to the Palace Theatre Wednesday, February 11th. Charles Jones has the leading role and Betty Bouton plays the part of the western girl he loves.

Perhaps the best description of the theme lies in the episode which occurs when two cowpunchers find themselves in love with the same girl. The men are "pardners" not partners. She tells the loser first, explaining that the other man is dependable—steady.

"Is there any other little thing about it?" he asks.

"I love him," replies the girl.

"Keno," says the rider, rolling a cigarette. And gives her up.

Aside from this kind of sentiment, the picture is a roaring tale of the glorious west, with gunplay and faro aplenty. Jones is at his best and has the support of a capable east.

grounds for a little practice skiing. The sport is a new one for some of them, we hear, and the run down McSauba is a pretty stiff one for the beginner and, in fact, a test of skill for any but the most expert. At the time this is written, the plans for the rest of their stay are not definitely known to us, but we understand that the visitors are to be the guests of Ralph Price at Ironton at dinner Wednesday and that afternoon they will try their hand nt fishing through the ice in the mouth of the Arm.

Miss Hannah Bemis, who is a leader of the party in their activities on this trip, when interviewed Monday afternoon by a representative of the Courier, expressed for herself and her associates their great pleasure in being here at this time and complete satisfaction with the arrangements made for their comfort and entertainment. While this time, she said, owing to business interests of several members of the party demanding their early attention, it was not possible to make much of a stay, it was their intention to come again next winter and make their visit to the northland a regular annual affair. She also seemed in hearty accord with the idea of advertising our winter attractions in the press of the South and to feel sure that it would bring good results.

In answer to the above, and speaking for the merchants and people of Charlevoix, we can frankly say that we, on our part, are delighted if our efforts have, even in a small measure, helped our natural advantages in providing a pleasant vacation week for our visitors. Even during the first few days of their visit, they have won general respect and liking for their good sportsmanship, courtesy and spirit of friendliness. They are very welcome, will be as much so next season and on as many future occasions as they care to accept our hospitality.

In passing, we might comment on one side of the situation which has a deep significance for the people of Charlevoix themselves and one not entirely of a material nature at that. We refer to the fact that so many of our own home folks have recently experienced what it means to use a cold and stormy climate to their advantage and pleasure instead of shunning it and hiding away from it as something to be dreaded and hated. This change of view is displayed in little things—the growing interest of the old timers in what the young gaffers are doing, their hearty assistance in the work of preparation and maintenance, and their enthusiastic (even if at first reluctant) entering into the winter pastimes of their children—and those of their own youth, perhaps, in some cases but a faint memory until but now revived.

All this has a tremendous meaning. If it were once possible to get the people of riper years to realize that playtime need not come to an end when short trousers and hair ribbons are put away but that we are all boys and girls under the skin to the end of our days and need our play-hours as a blessed antidote for the stresses and strains of strenuous modern life, we might enter upon the milennium at once. Wars might end, for a sport-loving people are building health and strength and contentment and do not want to see their fair structure swept away by strife. Labor and capital might lie down like the lion and the lamb or—better yet—play together. Religious differences might melt away in the warmth of goodfellowship kindled by community play. Surely, a better, cleaner, fuller life would undoubtedly come to us all.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Dr. Sutherland's visit and his helpful and encouraging messages at the various services last Sunday, were very much appreciated by the church. There is a prospect that another of the leading Congregational clergymen in the state may give us a Sunday in the near future, possibly February 18th.

The following announcements will be of interest to the church for the week beginning February 8th.

Sunday—Church school at noon. Eighty per cent of the pupils enrolled were present last Sundny.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meets at 6:00 p. m., with Mrs. Geo. Kelderhouse as leader.

Monday, at 8:00 p. m., in the Methodist church, "Pussyfoot" Johnson will speak. He is probably the best known prohibition speaker in the world. Admission free. Our people are urged to be present.

Tuesday, at 2:30 p. m., the Mission Study Circle meets with Mrs. Dean.

Friday, W. C. T. U. meeting at 2:30 p. m.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of Charlevoix ss.
The Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the regular term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1925, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the llen claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place aa shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 12th day of December A. D. 1924.

PARM C. GILBERT,
Circuit Judge.

Countersigned,
Charles H. Emrey, Clerk.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

The petition of ORAMEL B. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Charlevoix upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest, computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
Dated December 10, 1924.

ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan,
for and in behalf of said State

THE WEED AT VASSAR

Some of the overseers of women's colleges have long been inclined to preen a bit when co-educational institutions are mentioned, and hint that really the atmosphere and environment in their secluded, sheltered, and carefully hedged institutions are the only proper atmosphere and environment for really nice, select girls with a sense of refinement and with an ambition for the "higher things," whatever that expression means.

Consequently, as the young women themselves might put it, there's quite a kick in the vote of the Vassar undergrads for more lenient rules regarding cigarette smoking, and in the statement by approximately forty-five per cent of them that they puff coffin nails more or less assiduously.

Don't get us wrong. We haven't the least idea of writing anything even remotely resembling an anti-cigarette tract. If the Vassar girls want to smoke and smudge up their pretty walls and rooms and get squinty eyed, let them puff their dear little bobbed fool heads off.

The doctors say that the chief evil result of smoking among women is the effect upon the children they bear anyhow, and as the products of women's colleges don't have children—at least not enough to count—whether they burn tobacco, or even chew it, is of relatively little consequence.

MARTIN BLOCK HAS A NEW MEAT ROOM

Remodels Old Cooler to Meet Increased Demands

Martin Block has just completed the construction of a new meat cooler at his store, which he claims is the only one of its kind north of Grand Rapids.

To begin with, he has taken his regular standard cooler, which was 12 feet wide and 8 feet deep and deepened it by four feet, making a compartment 12 feet square and a little over six feet high to the drip pans. The ice space above this cooler has been built up until the entire structure is 11 feet from the top of the ice chamber to the floor. The interior of the ice space is 10 feet square and 40 inches in height, giving it a capacity of considerably over five tons of ice, which rests on wooden gratings situated over the drip pans which carry the water away through pipes at the rear of the cooler as the ice melts.

The regular insulating of the cooler has been reinforced with a three inch layer of cork put on with hot pitch (which is in itself an insulation) and over this on the inside plaster is laid and painted over with white paint, making a sanitary, light and air tight cooling compartment which could hardly be bettered. Mr. Block is justly proud of his new refrigerator, which is largely the work of his own hands.

The key of a sardine can was used as a skeleton key by thieves to open the door of a house in Marquette. We wonder if a rascal so ingenious as that couldn't possibly find a way to open a sardine can with one of these keys.

CHURCH OF GOD

You are invited to attend services at the Church of God.

Preaching service, Sundays, 10:30 and 7:30.

Sunday school, 11:45.

Young people's meeting, at 6:30 Sunday evening.

General prayer meeting at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

Young people's prayer meeting, 7:30 Thursday evening.

We have no new doctrine to bring you. The doctrine that we preach is the same that saved our fathers and mothers years ago. In short, we believe in justification by faith; sanctification of believers; holiness and purity of life; divine physical healing of body in answer to prayer and faith in God, and unity of all christian people. In fact, we are identical with the New Testament Church in doctrine, discipline, and practice.

If you are not a christian come and give your heart to God. If you are a christian come and lend us your prayers and presence.

Wm. Eldridge, Pastor.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, February 8th.

10:30. This is our chief service for the day. Attendance is good. Very cold or stormy weather makes little difference to the number worshiping. This Sunday the pastor will take for his theme "Pentecost," or the "Manifestation of the Holy Spirit." We expect our own people to attend. We extend a cordial invitation to any who would enjoy mingling with us.

12 noon Sunday school. The lesson is an "Intercessory Prayer." It is the passion of Christ manifest in prayer for his followers. One hundred and ninety-one in attendance last Sunday. It was a cold day too. Parents need not hesitate in sending the little tots. The rooms are warm and teachers on hand to care for them. Superintendent Black is always on hand and ready to make the school most interesting. Just come and see.

3:00 o'clock the Junior League holds forth. An old classic says: "A little child shall lead them." How often has the parent been led to think religiously by the prayerful life of a Godly child.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. This bevy of fifty young people make a lively meeting. More can come and more need help by coming. The Y. P. prayer meeting at 7:00 p. m. Wednesday night is being well patronized. Following this service the Junior choir assembles.

7:00 p. m. evening worship. The character sketch will take up the name Judas. The new young people's choir will sing. Come to church. We need your help and you need the fellowship.

Prayer meeting every Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Studies still in the Acts of the Apostles. Plan for this hour spent in religious worship.

This Friday the monthly official board meeting. Postponed from Monday we will not overlook the occasion. Very important business. All are requested to come.

The stewardship reading circle is in the second period February 2 to 16. Remember the time and keep the schedule.

The world renowned orator and lecturer, William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, will be heard next Monday night at this church in "The Balkans and the Orient." Just the announcement of this man's name is enough to crowd the house to capacity. Admission free. Auspices World League Against Alcoholism.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., at Mrs. Benj. Brown's, 405 Bridge street. Division B will serve and provide the program. This is the regular monthly meeting and ought to call out all the ladies of the church.

There will be a Valentine social in the basement of the church on Wednesday evening, February 11th, for the members of the Epworth League. We are expecting as our guests Boyne City League. Come on leaguers, let's give them a crowd.

The Masonic organization will give an invitation dance on the evening of Thursday, February 5th, in honor of the St. Louis people who are the guests of J. J. Hallett this week.

Donald Barnes, linotype operator on the Petoskey Evening News, was in the city over Friday night and Saturday, attending the basketball game and while here paid the Courier force a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Brown, of Petoskey, visited their brother, Benjamin Brown and family in this city over Friday and Saturday of last week, incidentally attending the basketball game.

Will Ives, who has been spending a couple of weeks vacation fixing up a new radio set at his home on the south side, is back at work again. He is now a full fledged member of the local association of knob twirlers.

Russell Blakeslee, having resigned his position as principal of the local high school, left for his home in Ypsilanti last Friday afternoon. Mr. Blakeslee's plans are not definitely known, but it is thought that he will teach mathematics in one of the Detroit high schools.

A. J. Usher left this afternoon to attend a three day session of the Michigan Press Association at the M. A. C. in Lansing. He will visit his son, Harold and family, in Grand Rapids enroute.

Mrs. Hugh Nelson of Charlevoix, who has been at the Charlevoix Hospital for the past month, suffering with pleuresy, complicated by kidney trouble, is in a very critical condition, little hope being entertained for her recovery.

M. R. Nelson of near Reed City, was in Charlevoix over Sunday, called here by the serious illness of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Nelson. Mr. Nelson was formerly located at Ellsworth, where he was manager of the Ellsworth Produce Co. He now operates a small store about ten miles south of Reed City.

Abnut 100 school children of Rexton, near the Soo, are without a school as the result of a fire which completely destroyed the fine new $21,000 consolidated school building at Rexton, at a late hour Monday night. Nothing but the foundation and charred frame work of the new school remained for the children to view as they gathered for school.

When she was unable to control two of her boy pupils, Miss Ethel Hillier, of District No. 2 in Forest township, Cheboygan county, had the lads taken into juvenile court. After hearing the case Probate Judge Berry placed the lads on probation for a period of 120 days. Parents are said to have taken the part of the boys.

Fred Cartier of this city just received a post card from George Priest and wife, who are spending their winter at St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Priest says they had a fine trip and can hardly realize that it is January 28th, as the thermometer stands at 80 degrees in the shade and there are flowers everywhere.

The Charlevoix pier lighthouse, E. C. Sterritt, keeper and the U. S. Lighthouse Supply depot, Capt. P. D. Ance, keeper, on a recent government inspection, were found to be in a high state of efficiency and were awarded what is known as a commissioner's star of efficiency, a very high honor.

Word comes from Harbor Springs that Mrs. Guy C. Eccleston, who has been confined to her bed by illness for the past two weeks, is slowly recovering, but not as yet able to be up and about the house. Charlevoix friends are glad to hear that her condition is not serious and that she is on the road to recovery.

John Kling and wife of the Loeh Farms, who have been visiting friends and relatives in Hollekis, Sweden, the place of their birth, since last fall left on the 29th of last month for home. A card from them received by the Courier states that weather conditions there are just like spring—no snow and no frosts. They expect to arrive in Charlevoix about the middle of February.

HEAR "PUSSYFOOT" AT M. E. CHURCH

Noted Prohibitionist Talks on "The Balkans and the Orient"

When William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson comes to speak at the Methodist church in this city (sents free) on Monday evening, February 9th, at eight o'clock, under the auspices of the World League Against Alcoholism, he will tell of conditions as he found them in foreign lands and stress the importance of law enforcement in this country and its relation to the immediate acceptance of prohibition abroad. Johnson is a world-wide traveler and known in practically every civilized country on the globe. His latest campaigns have been in the Balkan states, Turkey and Central Europe.

"Pussyfoot" has but one eye now, having lost the other in London, England, during a demonstration not at all in favor of his proposals for the curtailment of the liquor traffic. Instead of leaving England, he established headquarters in London and from there directs his activities for the World League Against Alcoholism which includes 31 nations. His home is in Westerville, Ohio.

It was while engaged as special commissioner for the government and as Indian commissioner under the Roosevelt administration, that he gained national reputation and had the name of "Pussyfoot" fastened upon him. The name grew out of his quiet method of appearing at unexpected times and at unexpected places and wrecking the plans of thieves, gamblers and bootleggers, in the early days before prohibition. He had several deputies killed and had many hair-breadth escapes himself during his several years of service.

The public is invited to hear this noted man.

Firemen Elect

The Charlevoix Fire Dpt. elected officers last Tuesday evening as follows: Pres., Harry Gregory; chief, H. D. Marshall; foreman, Sam Hamilton; foreman of hose, George Lusk; treasurer, John Zeitler; secretary, Charles Marshall; assistants, Charles Marshall, Walter Scott, Harry Gregory, Charles Ilyers, Frank Coatta and George Lusk.

BOYS SPLIT WOOD FOR THE TEACHER

"Young Americans" Prove Their Right to the Title

Mrs. William Poole's Sunday school class of 23 boys from the Methodist church met at her home on last Tuesday evening to surprise her, bringing a generous potluck supper with them.

They had a great time playing games. During the evening, the boys went out and brought in a cord of kindling wood which they split up after getting it inside. Then they shoveled paths out around the house for their hostess.

The class is known as the "Young Americans." After learning of their kind and helpful deeds on Tuesday evening, we are inclined to think that they are truly young Americans of the best sort.

The L. O. T. M. Busy Bees will hold a baked goods sale at the Jacobs Grocery, Saturday, February 7th.—Adv. 5-tf.

FRIENDS REMEMBERED HER 77TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Robert Johnston Was Surprised Saturday Eve

Last Saturday evening, January 31st, Mrs. Robert Johnston of 107 Mason street was very happily surprised when about 25 of her friends and neighbors called upon her, it being the occasion of her 77th birthday.

The evening was pleasantly spent in social intercourse, dancing and card playing, after which refreshments were served, the principal feature of the feast being a large birthday cake, illuminated with 77 candles.

Mrs. Johnston received many beautiful and useful presents from her guests, who departed at a late hour, declaring that they had enjoyed a very delightful evening and wishing their hostess many happy returns of the day.

"He has no wife to bother his life, so he paddles his own canoe," Billy recited. "I don't believe the old sour dough has ever been in love with anything more charming than the goddess of fortune. He's woman-proof."

"About Mrs. Jenks," Dolores continued, abruptly changing the subject. "How nice to reflect that after she had trusted you and believed in you when you were penniless, you were enabled to justify her faith."

"You bet!" Billy declared. "I feel that I can never possibly hope to catch even with the old Samaritan, although I did try to show her how much I appreciated her."

"I dare say you went right out and bought her an impossible hat," Dolores challenged roguishly.

"No, I didn't, for a very sufficient reason. Down here the ladies do not wear hats. But I'll tell you what I did buy her, Miss Ruey—and oh, by George, I'm glad now I did it. She'll wear them tomorrow when I bring her to see you. I bought her a new black silk dress and an old-lace collar, and a gold breast pin and a tortoise shell hair comb and hired an open carriage and took her for an evening ride on the Malecon to listen to the band concert."

"Did she like that?"

"She ate it up," Billy declared with conviction. "I think it was her first adventure in democracy."

Billy's pulse was still far from normal when he reached El Buen Amigo, for he was infused with a strange, new-found warmth that buried like malarial fever, but wasn't. He wasted no preliminaries on Mother Jenks, but bluntly acquainted her with the facts in the case.

Mother Jenks eyed him a moment wildly. "Gord's truth!" she gasped; she reached for her favorite elixir, but Billy got the bottle first.

"Nothing doing," he warned this strange publican. "Mother, you're funking it—and what would your sainted 'Enery say to that? Do you want that angel to kiss you and get a whiff of this brandy?"

Mother Jenks' eyes actually popped. "Gor', Willie," she gasped, "aven't I told ye she's a lydy! Ma' kiss the lamb! Ill trust, Mr. Geary; as 'ow I knows my place an' can keep it."

"Yes, I know," Billy soothed the frightened old woman, "but the trouble is Miss Dolores doesn't know hers—and something tells me if she does, she'll forget it. She'll take you in her arms and kiss you, sure as death and taxes."

And she did! "My lamb, my lamb," sobbed Mother Jenks the next morning, and rested her old cheek, with its rum-begotten hue, close to the rose-tinted ivory cheek of her ward. "Me—wot I am—an' to think——"

"You're a sweet old dear," Dolores whispered, patting the gray head; "and I'm going to call you Mother."

"Mr. William H. Geary," the girl remarked that night, "I know now why your friend, Mr. Webster, sent that cablegram. I think you're a scout, too."

For reasons best known to himself Mr. Geary blushed furiously. "I—I'd better go and break the news to Mother," he suggested hastily. She held out her hand; and Billy, having been long enough in Sobrante to have acquired the habit, bent his malarial person over that hand and kissed it. As he went out it occurred to him that had the lobby of the Hotel Mateo been paved with eggs, he must have floated over them like a wraith, so light did he feel within.

CHAPTER VII.

Webster reached New Orleans at the end of the first leg of his journey, to discover that he was one day late to board the Atlanta—a banana boat of the Consolidated Fruit company's line plying regularly between New Orleans and that company's depots at Limon and San Buenaventura—which necessitated a wait of three days for the steamer La Estrellita of the Caribbean Mail line, running to Caracas and way ports.

He decided to visit the ticket office of the Caribbean Mail line immediately and avoid the rush in case the travel should be heavy.

The steamship office was in Canal street. The clerk was waiting on two well-dressed and palpably low-bred sons of the tropics, to whom he had just displayed a passenger list which the two were scanning critically. Their interest in it was so obvious that unconsciously Webster peeped over their shoulders (no difficult task for one of his stature) and discovered it to be the passenger list of the steamer La Estrellita. They were conversing together in low tones and Webster, who had spent many years of his life following his profession in Mexico, recognized their speech as the bastard Spanish of the peon.

He sat down in the long wall seat and waited until the pair, having completed their scrutiny of the list, turned to pass out. He glanced at them casually. One was a tall thin man whose bloodshot eyes were inclined to "pop" a little—infallible evidence in the Latin-American that he is drinking more hard liquor than is good for him.

His companion was plainly of the same racial stock, although Webster suspected him of a slight admixture of negro blood. He was short, stocky, and aggressive looking; like his companion, bejeweled and possessed of a thin, carefully cultivated moustache that seemed to consist of about nineteen hairs on one side and twenty on the other. Evidently once upon a time, as the story books have it, he had been shot. Webster suspected a Mauser bullet, fired at long range. It had entered his right cheek, just below the malar, ranged downward through his mouth and out through a fold of flabby flesh under his left jowl. It must have been a frightful wound, but it had healed well except at the point of entrance, where it had a tendency to pucker considerably, thus drawing the man's eyelid down on his cheek and giving to that visual organ something of the appearance of a bulldog's.

Webster gazed after them whimsically as he approached the counter.

"I'd hate to wake up some night and find that hombre with the puckered eye leaning over me. By the way," he continued, suddenly apprehensive, "do you get much of that parroquet travel on your line?"

"About 80 per cent, of it is off color, sir."

Webster pondered the 80 per cent. probability of being berthed in the same stateroom with one of these people and the prospect was as revolting to him as would be an uninvited negro guest at the dining table of a southern family. He had all a Westerner's hatred for the breed.

"Well, I want a ticket to San Buenaventura," he informed the clerk, "but I don't relish the idea of a Greaser in the same stateroom with me. I wonder if you couldn't manage to fix me with a stateroom all to myself, or at least arrange it so that in the event of company I'll draw a white man."

"I'm sorry, sir, but I cannot guarantee you absolute privacy nor any kind of white man. It's pretty mixed travel to all Central American ports."

"How many berths in your first-class staterooms?"

"Two."

Webster smiled brightly. He had found a way out of the difficulty. "I'll buy 'em both, son," he announced.

"I cannot sell you an entire stateroom, sir. It's against the orders of the company to sell two berths to one man. The travel is pretty brisk and it's hardly fair to the public, you know."

"Well, suppose I buy one ticket for myself and the other for—well, for my valet, let us say. Of course," he added brightly, "I haven't engaged the valet yet and even should I do so I wouldn't be at all surprised if the rascal missed the boat!"

The clerk glanced at him with a slow smile, and pondered. "Well," he said presently, "if you care to buy a ticket for your valet, I'm sure I shouldn't worry whether or not he catches the boat. If my records show that the space is sold to two men and the purser collects two tickets, I think you'll be pretty safe from intrusion."

"To the harassed traveler," said Mr. Webster, "a meeting with a gentleman of your penetration is as refreshing as a canteen of cool water in the desert. Shoot!" and he produced a handful of gold.

"I will—provided I have one empty cabin," and the clerk turned from the counter to consult his record of berths already sold and others reserved but not paid for. Presently he faced Webster at the counter.

"The outlook is very blue," he announced. "However, I have one berth in No. 34 reserved by a gentleman who was to call for it by two o'clock to-day." He looked at his watch. "It is now a quarter of one. If the reservation isn't claimed promptly at two o'clock I shall cancel it and reserve for you both berths in that room. If you will be good enough to leave me your name and address I will telephone you after that hour. In the meantime, you may make reservation of the other berth in the same stateroom. I feel very confident that the reservation in No. 34 will not be called for, Mr.—er——"

"Webster—John S. Webster. You are very kind, indeed. I'm at the St. Charles."

"Be there at a quarter after two, Mr. Webster, and you will hear from me promptly on the minute," the clerk assured him; whereupon Webster paid for one berth and departed for his hotel with a feeling that the clerk's report would be favorable.

True to his promise, at precisely a quarter after two, the ticket clerk telephoned Webster at his hotel that the berth in No. 34 had been canceled and the entire stateroom was now at his disposal.

"If you will be good enough to give me the name of your valet," he concluded, "I will fill in both names on my passenger manifest and send the tickets to your hotel by messenger immediately. You can then sign the tickets—I have already signed them as witness—and pay the messenger."

"Well, I haven't engaged that valet as yet," Webster began.

"What's the odds? He's going to miss the boat, anyhow. All I require is a name."

"That ought to be a simple request to comply with. Let me see!"

"I read a book once, Mr. Webster, and the valet in that book was called Andrew Bowers."

"Bowers is a fine old English name. Let us seek no farther. Andrew Bowers it is."

"Thank you. All you have to do then is to remember to sign the name, Andrew Bowers, to one ticket. Don't forget your valet's name now, and pull everything up," and the clerk hung up, laughing.

Half an hour later a boy from the steamship office arrived with the tickets, collected for them, and departed, leaving John Stuart Webster singularly pleased with himself and at peace with the entire world.

A "large" dinner at Antoine's that night (Webster had heard of Antoine's dinners, both large and small and was resolved not to leave New Orleans until he had visited the famous restaurant), and a stroll through the picturesque old French quarter and along the levee next day, helped to render his enforced stay in New Orleans delightful, interesting, and instructive. For Sunday he planned an early morning visit to the old French market, around which still lingers much of the picturesque charm and colorful romance of a day that is done—that echo of yesterday, as it were, which has left New Orleans an individuality as distinct as that which the olden, golden, godless days have left upon San Francisco.

He rose before six o'clock, therefore; found a taxi, with the driver sound asleep inside, at the curb in front of the hotel; gave the latter his instructions, and climbed in.

Opposite Jackson Square the claying sweetness of palmetto, palm, and fig burdened the air. Above the rumble of the taxi he could hear the distant babel of voices in the French market across the square, so he halted the taxicab, alighted, and handed the driver a bill.

"I want to explore this square," he said. He had recognized it by the heroic statue of General Jackson peering through the trees. "I'll walk through the square to the market, and you may proceed to the market and meet me there. Later we will return to the hotel."

A Creole girl—starry-eyed, beautiful, rich with the glorious coloring of her race—passed him bound for the cathedral across the square, as Webster thought, for she carried a large prayer book on her arm. His glance followed the girl down the walk.

Presently she halted. A young man rose from a bench where he evidently had been waiting for her, and bowed low, his hat clasped to his breast, as only a Frenchman or a Spanish grandee can bow. Webster saw the Creole girl turn to him with a little gesture of pleasure. She extended her hand and the young man kissed it with old-fashioned courtesy. John Stuart Webster with reverent and wistful eyes watched their meeting.

"Forty years old," he thought, "and I haven't spoken to a dozen women that caused me a second thought, or who weren't postmistresses or biscuit shooters! Forty years old and I've never been in love! Springtime down that little path and Indian summer in my old fool heart. Why, I ought to be arrested for failure to live!"

The lovers were walking slowly, arm in arm, along the path by which the girl had come, so with a courtesy and gentleness that were innate in him, Webster stepped out of sight behind the statue of Old Hickory; for he did not desire, by his mere presence, to intrude a discordant note in the perfect harmony of those two human hearts. He knew they desired that sylvan path to themselves; that evidently they had sought their early morning tryst in the knowledge that the square was likely to be deserted at this hour.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, which mortgage, dated the 10th doy of April, 1919, executed by George E. Cummings and wife, Ella M. Cummings, of Norwood Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, was given to Medrick Seymour of Charlevoix, Michigan, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, in Liber 29 of Mortgages on page 368 on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1919, which mortgage was on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923, assigned by said Medrick Seymour to Neil McAuley of Charlevoix township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County aforesaid in Liber 55 of Mortgoges on page 100, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1923.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $1,993.60 of principal and interest, and a further sum of $12.30 and interest thereon for taxes paid on said premises, and the sum of $73 and interest thereon for insurance paid on said premises, together with an attorney fee of $25 as provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas the tax required by Statute to be paid on said mortgage was duly paid prior to the recording thereof:

Now therefore, notice is given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statutes made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount then due thereon of the principal and interest, together with the amounts paid for taxes and insurance, costs and expenses of foreclosure, including the attorney fee provided by statute, at Public Auction to the highest bidder therefor at the front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held) on the 20th day of March, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon on that day. The premises described in said mortgage being herein described as follows, towit: The west half of the northeast quarter and the west half of the east half of the northeast qunrter of Section eighteen, Township thirty-three north, Range eight west.

Dated December 16th, 1924.

UNDER THE DOME AT LANSING

Special to the Courier

Lansing, Feb. 5.—With the weight and gas tax measures signed, out of the way and operating, the future of Michigan's highway finonce program for two years is nssured. Finql amendments to the gas tax provide return to counties of $1,500,000 the first year ond $2,000,000 the seeond year to wipe out delinquent county awards. This money will be paid on a pro-rata basis, thus insuring satisfactory payments all around. Those close to the governor say it is his plan to wipe out the delinquent county awards as rapidly as possible and if the combination highway taxes will permit, the major part of the delinquent $6,000,000 awards will be paid by 1927.

Highway laws are heing codified and sponsors of local highway bills are, for the most part, not chafing under their inability to get sueh bills out of committee. The codified laws will give the state highway deportment and the state administrative board power to build roads from the viewpoint of state-wide necessity, thereby, as its sponsors say, insuring more rapid development of main arteries of travel, and, at the same time, carrying on sufficient local work to take care of necessary situations.

Building Program a Puzzle

The greatest trouble now facing the solons is the building program. Total requests amount to about $19,000,000. If this is allowed the property tax will be heavily increased. That the ax will be generously used seems certain. House leaders believe they can keep the requests within reasonable limits unless a well engineered omnibus bill is steam rollered through the house.

In connection with the building program it is rumored the bonrd of regents of the U. of M., plan giving to the state the monster unfinished hospital at Ann Arbor. With this structure out of the university building program, ond saddled onto the state, a greater appropriation for tho university will be made possible, it is pointed out,

Last week saw the great mass of appropriation bills dumped into the legislotive hopper and junkets now are under way to permit the solons to size up state institutions and judge matters at first hand. The ways and means and conservation committees of both houses have a total trip of around 1,200 miles planned.

Truck and Bus Men Fight

Lawyers for the truck and bus operators of Michigan, working in conjunction with the Detroit Auto Club, are drafting a new bill designed to replace the present common carrier act that makes commercial trucks nnd busses pay an additional tax over the present schedule. Such operators must pay $1 per hundred additional for use of the highways and this feature is very objectionable to them.

As the situation now stands, advocates of a larger tax for such vehicles say, pleasure cnrs pay a greater tax than the road destroying trucks. They point out that owners of pleasure cars pay the same rate whether they carry a full load or not while a five-ton truck, capable of carrying its weight, which it always does when on the road, pay but a trifle more in spite of the far greater damage to the highways. Proponents of a more adequate tax for heavy duty trucks nre planning a fight to make them pay.

Would Adopt U. S. Standard

Senator George Leland, Fennville, would make it mandatory for potato shippers to conform to the four U. S. Bureau of Markets' standards, thereby insuring present high prices for Michigan tubers. He also would give the director of agriculture power to fix penalties for violations of that law.

Rep. McEachron would prevent intermarriage of whites and blncks. Rep. Gillett would have autoists north of Arenac and Mason counties pay a three-quarter license fee. Rep. Hartmann and Hartzog would pass the child labor amendment to a refcrendum. Rep. Darin would hnve applicants for marriage licenses wait a week after applying.

Senator Hunter would increase the armory appropriation from $15,000 to $60,000 to enable some communities to proceed with armory building. Senator Condon would compel the government, in filing tax liens, to file with the register of deeds a description of the property.

Eye for an Eye, Etc.

When the session ended for the junkets 111 house bills and 80 senate bills had been introduced. This includes all appropriation hills. A great mnss of petitions nnd resolutions also hnve come in.

Rep. Cora Anderson, L'Anse, will vote no on Rep. McEachron's capital punishment bill and will vote yes on the proposed whipping post hill of Rep. Culver if it includes about 10 or 15 good, healthy lashings for wife beaters.

"I believe in any 'eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth' on this wife beating," she avers. "I wouldn't wont to be so severe with men or women, who, when fighting with others, pull hair, bite off fingers or ears, or pull out handfuls of hair. On capital punishment I shall follow the teachings of the bible. I'll never vote to take a humon life."

COMMUNICATION

The time is drawing nesr when we will want to think about the coming road building campaign.

I would like to say a few words in reference to the improvement of the lake shore road connecting Ellsworth with Central Lake, on the east side of Intermediate Lake.

The route is one of the most feasible, being practically straight and comparatively level, consequently easy in construction. Central Lake township has pushed the graveling north from their village to within a mile of the township line and I understand intends to complete that this coming year, while our township has done nothing as yet to improve the road in a material way.

The first mile from Ellsworth is in a deplorable condition and, owing to the nature of the ground, cannot be otherwise under the strain of the heavy vehicles passing over it until a permanent road is built. The balance of the way south to the township line would be easily maintained, as the land is of a much firmer nature.

Let us get behind the movement to build one mile of good gravel road from the Iron Bridge south.

—James Wilson.

NORMAL BILL MAY START A BATTLE

of language and facts it can think over at its leisure, whenever thought of a normal school may arise.

As a community that wants the normal for all it may be worth, East Jordan has placed before this legislature, as it did at the session two years ago, the most outspoken, attractive and reasonable offers of any of the sections desiring the school.

Flanked by the printed words of some splendid booklets, Rep. Harris informs legislators at every turn that East Jordan is offering a cash bonus of $50,000 to be used either as part of the building fund or as money to help in the preliminary work of establishing such an institution. East Jordan further offers its entire educational system as a training school for the proposed normal, two fine dormitory buildings and 40 acres for building and campus site.

With the aid of an entire school system as a training school for the normal, Rep. Harris points out it will be possible to train teachers at the East Jordan site, if a normal is placed there, at from 50 to 60 per cent less than in any other way.

East Jordan occupies the position of being located, Rep. Harris says, so as to not hurt any other normal school.

Representatives as a whole are beseiged with all kinds of political pressure to get back of some favorite bill. In several instancea, however, others are fighting to leave the selection of the new normal up to a committee the governor would be empowered to appoint. This move is receiving little support at this time.

The personnel of the house committee on education, of which Rep. Charles Sink, Ann Arbor, closely connected with the U. of M., is chairman, has on it, also, Rep. VanEvery, Petoskey, and Rep. Harris.

If the question of a new normal should resolve itself into the form of a bill authorizing an appropriation and a definite location, all the guns of every interested district would be turned on it. This would no doubt result in bills being introduced from other districts and the same kind of a death grapple would ensue as was witnessed two years ago when all normal school bills were throttled.

This Will Help Your Carrier Who Will Appreciate Your Kindness Greatly

Rural route patrons getting their mail on the snow-plowed roads please put temporary boxes near the track, so that the carriers can put the mail in the boxes without getting out of their vehicles. This is by special request of the postmaster, to which each carrier utters a fervent amen.

Here are a few postal "commandments" that might be memorized along with the original ten issued by Moses:

1. Thou shalt not have loose change in the box for postage, for it means much discomfort and delay. Place the change in a cup or envelope, or, better yet, provide yourself with a modest supply of stamps.

2. Blessed is he who keeps a supply of stamps on hand, for he shall bring much happiness unto the carrier, and shall be rewarded by more efficient service.

3. Thou shalt keep thy mail box closed, for rain and snow cometh like a thief in the night and filleth it up to the brim.

4. Thou shalt keep the approach to the box free from snow and other obstructions, and the box in such a position that it can be reached from the vehicle, with your name and number thereon; for, behold, I say unto you: wet feet, cold hands and delay are an abomination unto the carrier.
